NEW YORK, May 19.—(Canadian Press).—Stanley Baldwin's declaration at the time of his visit to Washington that Great Britain would pay every penny of her war debts together with Winston Churchill's recent announcement of his country's return to the gold basis has done more than anything else that has happened since the war to rehabitate the financial and economic structure of the world, in the opinion of Chancey M. Depew, who presided yesterday at a luncheon given at the Bankers' Club by the pilgrims of the United States to the delegates of the British Empire to the Inernational Police Conference. Mr. Depew gave but little indication of his 91 years. His voice was firm and he stood throughout his address, during the course of which he voiced his belief that what he termed to be the constantly increasing spirit of regard and friendly co-operation between the English-speaking peoples was the best sort of insurance for world peace and prosperity. Mr. Depew proposed toasts to the President and the King, which were drunk in iced croton water.

"I remember years ago meeting Gladstone, the great phase maker, and his reference to "Kin across the sea." It became a great slogan in both our countries, but we have advanced a great deal since Gladstone coined that phrase 30 years ago. To-day you can't tell an American from Canadian, or Canadian from Australian, or an Australian from South African. This mighty British Empire is living on a sound basis and it stands—with the American nation behind it.

Remarkable Feats Performed in Y.W.C.A. Tank by Aquatic Experts.

MANY FEATURES.

Swimming, Diving and Fancy Stunts Make Up Varied Programme.

At the Y.W.C.A. pool last night a remarkable exhibition of swimming was given by G. H. Corsan, who was ably assisted by three water sprites of Miss Littlefield's class, namely, Mrs. Craig, Mary Dunlop and Margaret Mason.

The Rev. J. D. Paterson introduced Mr. Corsan in a few reminiscent words, recalling experiences relating to aquatic sports which he had in learning speed swimming and life saving from Mr. Corsan, Sr.

G. A. Gillespie officiated as chairman.

There was shown at all times a perfect mastery of the water, and there was a grace and harmony of movement which could scarcely be excelled. While Mr. Corsan's work was masterly, no small credit is due the girls, who certainly appeared to wonderful advantage as they demonstrated ability in using a variety of strokes.

Life-Saving Methods.

The life-saving feature was very interesting, the methods being used, while perhaps not as gentle as might be desired, should none the less prove highly effective. Any man who would allow himself to approach a drowning state in the proximity of these aquatic marvels would be haled forth with scant ceremony.

The opening feature was an ensemble act imitating the gambolling propensities of the porpoise and dolphin, and judging only by what has been read of these water babies it is thought that the four artists presented a strikingly realistic representation of the animals mentioned. Rolling and tumbling about, darting here and there, they reminded one also of a group of sinuous seals as they disported themselves in reckless abandon.

Many Stunts.

A varied and interesting programme followed, which was a revelation to all present. There must have been many who did not know that so many stunts could be done in the water. The revolving or spiral stroke is worthy of note. In using it Mr. Corsan, in his progress, turns completely around with every stroke, moving the arms freely and with a sweeping motion above his head as he does so. The action resembles that of a motor boat propellor, and is remarkable for the apparent ease with which progress can be made.

Mr. Corsan also swam with right arm and leg paralysed, alternating with the left on the return trip. He explained that quite commonly in swimming cramps seize the swimmer, and it is fortunate if he is able to propel himself without the use of the maimed members.

The swimming with hands and feet tied was also good.

Miss Dunlop showed quite a turn of speed, and Mr. Corsan with a somewhat slower movement showed but slight inconvenience because of the handicap.

The submarine was a laughable and difficult feat, wherein Mr. Corsan emulates the cute tricks of the U boats using a pedal extremity very effectively as a periscope.

Smoked Under Water.

Mr. Corsan is also gifted in being able to smoke under any circumstances. He can even puff contentedly when entirely submerged under water.

The Programme.

The following is the programme of strokes and stunts:

Imitation of porpoise and Dolphin.
Australian crawl, sprinting style and long-distance style.
Revolving or spiral stroke.
Swimming with left leg and left arm only, half paralyzed stroke.
Crawl stroke on back.
Waltzing crawl.
Swimming hands and feet tied.
Exhibition of life-saving by the pupils of Miss Littlefield and imitation of a drowning man.
Marching.
Steam boat.
Loop the loop.
Crab and pendulum sculling.
Rolling log.
Submarine.
Relay race.
Smoking under water.
Under water swimming and fancy diving.

The programme was brought to a close by a high-class exhibition of fancy diving when the following plunges were demonstrated:

Back.
Back jack.
Standing, sitting, hand stand.
Standing, sitting, standing.
Standing, sitting.
Walking hand stand.
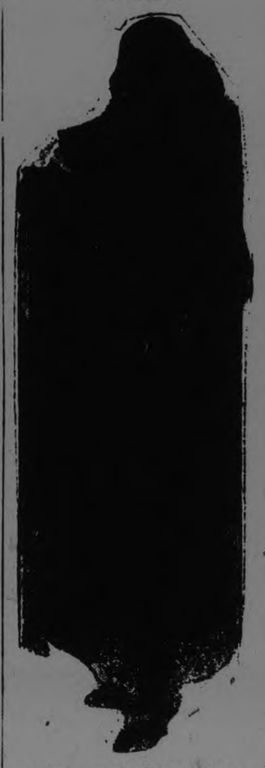
Swan dive.

DRESS SUBTRACTS POUNDS.



A front panel of long fringe and a fancy vestee of white satin make an unusual creation out of this sleevless black satin frock. The long lines and the straight cut are admirable for the generous figure, as they subtract pounds and add chic.

Cynthia Grey Says

Ten Commandments

Ten commandments for a happy marriage are given by J.A.R. Cairns, London magistrate who has handled many divorce cases, in a special article for the London Dispatch. He bases them on his experience of 25 years in handling divorce cases.

Here they are:

1—Don't expect paradise. Paradise in for the dead; marriage for the living.
2—Respect each other.
3—Avoid undue familiarity.
4—Be angry one at a time, because just as it takes two to make a marriage, it takes two to make a fight.
5—Remember things go wrong occasionally in the best regulated households.
6—Build castles in the air together.
7—Study each other and try to make each other happy.
8—Put home life first.
9—Show your affection.
10—Avoid cynicism.

It seems to me the judge has said a lot in a few words. The commandments are well worth pasting up on your dressing table.

YOUR VACATION.

By HUGH S. CUMMING.
(Copyright, 1925, by United Press.)

In going on your vacation, you should be prepared to deal intelligently with hurts and accidents. You should know what to do in case of sudden illness. If you are going camping or to some place far from a doctor you should provide yourself with a first aid kit and few simple medicines. A useful kit should contain something like the following articles:

Two gauze bandages, 2½ inches wide; two cotton bandages, 3 inches wide; one roll adhesive plaster, 1 inch wide; one dozen safety pins; one ounce absorbent cotton; one yard plain sterile gauze; one ounce tincture of iodine; one dozen compound cathartic pills; two ounces bicarbonate of soda; one drachm permanganate of potash; four ounces castor oil; one clinic thermometer; one hot water bag.

It should be distinctly remembered that only the necessary first aid treatment should be given by one who is not familiar with the practice of medicine. In case of sudden illness, see that the patient is put to bed and if the condition appears serious, send for a doctor at once.

Pains can often be relieved by hot applications. In some cases, however, especially, when fever is present, ice cold applications may be more serviceable. Headache may be relieved by cloths wrung out in cold water and frequently changed. Headache is usually but a symptom of much more serious systemic trouble.

Pain in the abdomen is often the result of constipation and this condition therefore should be treated. On the other hand, colicky pains often accompany diarrhea. A change in drinking water frequently results in intestinal disorders and diarrhea. In all cases of diarrhea it is imperative to stop all food at once and give the patient plenty of water to drink. A 24-hour fast will frequently affect a cure.

If the patient is feverish and especially if the fever continues for more than a day, be sure to call a doctor. In the meantime, it will be well to keep the patient by himself for the disease may be catching. If he is hungry, feed him nothing but milk until the doctor comes.

WHISPERS.

Who knows? .....Maybe the most henpecked husband once told his wife that she was the most beautiful little girl in the world, and that her mother could live with them!

Whenever a girl starts to tell her beau that she hates to see him spend so much money on movies, dinners and taxicabs for her, he may just as well turn the key on his bachelor flat, and buy the latest thin in wedding rings.

It is said that sometimes there are two men so loyal to each other that they will give up the woman they both love rather than sacrifice each other. Mebbe so .....and mebbe they've only been talking her over.

A taxicab is more expensive than the old-fashioned horse and buggy. But at least you don't have to keep tying the reins around the whip.

KEEPS BOOKS BETTER

Leather bound books should occasionally be dusted with a slightly oiled cloth to restore some of the oil which dries out. It is especially necessary if the books are infrequently handled.

Rings should never be left on the hands when they are being washed as soap gets into the corners and holds the dust that creeps in later.

STARCH ON IRONS

If starch has stuck to your iron remove it with fine steel wool or emery paper and polish off with a soft cloth.

'NEW MAN' MADE 'NEW WOMAN'

Gave Her All the Conveniences That Allow Present-Day Freedom.

MORE LEISURE NOW

Sarah Tyson Rorer, dean of American authorities on home economics, is a firm advocate of the new campaign among housewives to 'phone for food instead of making personal marketing trips. Mrs. Rorer speaks for tens of thousands of women. She has been famous for her knowledge for fifty years. During the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893 she was a leader in the field of housekeeping. At the Woman's Fair in Chicago in 1925 she was still supreme.

"The newsman," says Mrs. Rorer, "deserves the credit for the 'new woman.' He has taken the scrubbing-brushes out of our hands, covered our kitchen floors with linoleum that can easiy be mopped, and given us sanitary porcelain sinks.

"He changed our brooms and our dustpans, our washboards and wringers, for rows of electric switches. When we want to sweep, we press a button and the vacuum cleaner starts; when we want to wash we press another and the electric washer goes into action.

"He has given us stoves that regulate themselves and fireless cookers, so that we may be off at our lectures and luncheons, our meetings and our parties, while our dinner cooks.

"He has given us telephones so that we can 'phone for food' and thus increase our leisure by doing our marketing and shopping from our homes. And now he is placing at the other end of them men trained to understand and carry out our wishes.

"Yes," she concluded, "the men have given us this new freedom we are talking about. And if they hadn't if it had been left to us, we probably still would be wandering around in the same sort of jungle we were in when they rebuilt our kitchens and opened the doors separating us from a fuller life."

AFTERNOON TEA AT THE LYCEUM

St. Peter's Study Club Entertained at Tea, Followed By a Dance.

LARGE ATTENDANCE.

One of the most successful social affairs of the season at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum took place yesterday afternoon and evening in the assembly hall, in the form of an afternoon tea, given under the auspices of St. Peter's Study Club, followed by a dance until midnight. There was a splendid patronage of the tea in the afternoon and about two hundred people attended the dance in the evening.

The members of the Study Club were hostesses for the occasion. Miss M. O'Brien acted as convenor. Patronesses for the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Giroux and Mrs. H. Owen.

The decorations for the tea were very attractive. They were carried out in bright rose pink. There were pink shades on the electroliers, rose pink paper streamers weighed with rosebuds, crossed the small tables and rose paper made the dainty little novelties which formed an interesting portion of the decorations. The large table was centred with a huge "rose pie" in pink and green, and pink candles in silver holders. Small pink paper roses decorated the handles of the serving baskets and the electric bulbs on the stage, and particularly effective bits in the arrangement were the cunning little pink ladies with hollyhock petal skirts that centered each small table.

A musical programme that added much to the pleasure of the afternoon included vocal solos by the Misses Ernestine McManus and Geraldine Collins, and Shannon MacPherson, instrumental selections by Mrs. C. Hodgson, the Misses Lucille Doris, K. Doyle, Agnes Grant and Rita Maher, and a reading by Miss Viola Martin. Accompanists for the vocal numbers were Mrs. C. Hodgson, Mrs. Jas. Lynch and Miss Florence Giroux.

The music for the dance was played by Ken Blood, in his usual extremely capable manner.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Queen Alexandra H. and S. Excelled in Splendid Entertainment.

The Queen Alexandra Home and School Association excelled itself last evening in the quality of the entertainment provided for a large audience in the kindergarten room of the school, when a very enjoyable musical programme was presented. The ladies in charge, with special reference to the convenor, Mrs. C. H. Cheverill, are to be congratulated on the unqualified success of their concert.

Mr. A. Mowat acted as chairman for the occasion and opened the programme with a brief talk on "Neighborliness, and the Spirit of Helpfulness."

The programme, every number of which received hearty encores, included vocal solos by Mr. Maurice H. Park, who sang "Mary of Allandale," and "My Lovely Celia," and Vaughn Walker, who sang "Conquered by St. Quintin" and "Roses," violin numbers by Mr. J. B. Hartshorn, playing "Traum de Sennerin" and "Chanson Sans Paroles," and Mrs. Percy Hooper, who played d'Ambrosio's "Canzonetta" and a Scotch lullabye, reading by Mrs. F. G. McNeely, who gave "Enoch Arden," "The Frenchman's Dilemma" and a brief Irish encore, and an instrumental duet by the Misses Bentley, and Grace Read, who played selections from "Lucia di Lammermoor."

The accompanists for the evening were the Misses Agnes Logan and Grace Read; Mr. J. H. Renwirk and Mr. Charles Peaker.

Decorations of the hall were done in bright red, white and blue, with flags, in honor of Victoria Day. The candy table was attractively arranged with dainty baskets of home-made sweetmeats, in charge of Mrs. R. C. Flitton, assisted by Mrs. J. L. Hamilton.

Don't Squeeze Black-Heads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads makes the pores large and causes irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxine powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.

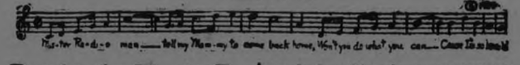
Radio Develops Strange New Tastes



Broadcasting Director Explains Public's Peculiar Likes and Dislikes

As managing director of station WOR, L. Bamberger and Company, Newark, New Jersey, handsome Joe Barnett gets more than ten thousand letters every day.

"An unique collection," he muses. "Nearly one-fifth of those who write, hint delicately that they would like to broadcast some experiences they consider interesting. Others suggest subjects which they claim would make interesting hearing.

"Not long ago a snake charmer poignantly wrote to know why we had nothing in our programs about snakes. She said reptiles were the most unjustly maligned of all God's creatures and should be set right by a little well deserved radio publicity.

"Men usually request talks on mechanics and women ask for fashions, but recently we've had that just reversed. At least one thousand women have asked for automobile information, and a number of men have sought advice on what to wear."

Mr. Barnett says radio audiences prefer popular to classical music, and just now are especially addicted to "Mr. Radio Man" and other music with a radio theme, especially when, like "Mr. Radio Man," it is written in fox-trot time, and can therefore furnish a porch dance.

GETTING LOST WAS EASY JOB IN EARLY DAYS

Woods Easily Bewildered Early Settlers Along the Lake Shore.

UNUSED TO WILDS

Houses Were Far Apart and Interior Was Without Human Life.

COBOURG.—Getting lost in the bush was no difficult matter in the early years of the 18th century, when the only part of this Country that was populated was along the lake-shore, and settlers' houses were as far apart as schoolhouses now are. Some years ago a very old settler used to tell the simple way in which his father got lost the first year after his arrival in this district.

"My mother was out," he said, "giving a calf some milk, when father said he would go to the woods and get some basswood boughs for it. He went into the woods a little farther than he intended, and then, turning about, lost his way, as traversing the forest was new work to him and he had not taken the precaution to blaze a trail. Although he only went a few roads before securing the boughs, he walked a mile and a half after losing his way and then came out at the point where he started in. Many years ago," the same narrator continued, "I went with a companion to look at a wood lot. It was two o'clock in the afternoon when we went into the bush, and although the distance to be travelled was only seven-eighths of a mile, it was sundown before our tramp ended and we came out at the place of beginning. Farms that are now the homes of Clyde-horses, pure-bred cattle and bacon hogs were then an unbroken forest, where there was plenty of game.

"My mother," he said; hardly ever went to the woods to fetch her cow without bringing down a deer. Wolves followed the line of the creeks and there was scarcely a night their howling was not heard. We had to watch the sheep very closely and shut them in at sundown to protect them from these enemies.

One family, who settled in Haldimond Township, and whose descendants still reside there, had a large sea shell, called by them a "kunk shell," which was used as a dinner horn and could be heard for a mile. The man of the house was quite a famous hunter and trapper. When night came on, if he had not returned, his wife would blow on this shell to guide him home. Sometimes, however, the hunter would not dare to cross some miry swamp in the darkness and, although not far away, would be forced to spend the night in the forest.

Twenty Miles for Supplies.

Shortly after spring opened, the wife of an early settler in this locality accompanied another settler and his wife on a little twenty-mile tramp to a store to obtain provisions. Unfortunately, when they reached the place, no flour, which they especially wanted, could be obtained. All they could procure was about two bushels of wheat and some pork. With this they started back the entire journey, necessarily taking them three days. It was the season of the year when black flies were at their worst, and upon reaching home, the face of one of the women was so disfigured that her little grandson, who afterwards told the story, did not know her.

The problem when they got home was the preparation of the wheat for food. However, there was, in the family, a small coffee mill, which they had brought with them into the country. The wheat was ground in this. The operation was slow, but the mill did the work thoroughly. The ground grain was then put through a coarse sieve, which removed the coarsest of the bran, and the residue was used for baking. One of the greatest difficulties of the early settlers was to obtain flour, and unless they pounded out the grain in a mortar, a coffee mill was the only resort. It was not unusual to grind the flour each night for the needs of the following day.

One settler in this district, who was the owner of a calf, upon hearing that a neighbor living fifty miles away, had a calf to dispose of, walked over, bought it and drove or led it home. He reared the two young animals as painstakingly as the successful breeder of the present day, and was rewarded later on by becoming the owner of a fine yoke of oxen.

Portage Roads.

A portage road for many years after these first pioneer days, was the only way to bring in supplies; and it was no wonder that, during the first quarter of a century, they were pretty costly by the time they reached their destination. A yoke of oxen did well, it was considered, if they hauled half a ton at a time over a corduroy road. If roads were impassible, and the stock of provisions ran low, the settler and his family had to subsist on the stores they had on hand, eked out by game and fish, which were always plentiful. Strange as it may seem, potash was the only commodity which the farmer had for the first few years that commanded a cash price. The farmer bartered off whatever else he had for goods that the storekeeper could give him in exchange.

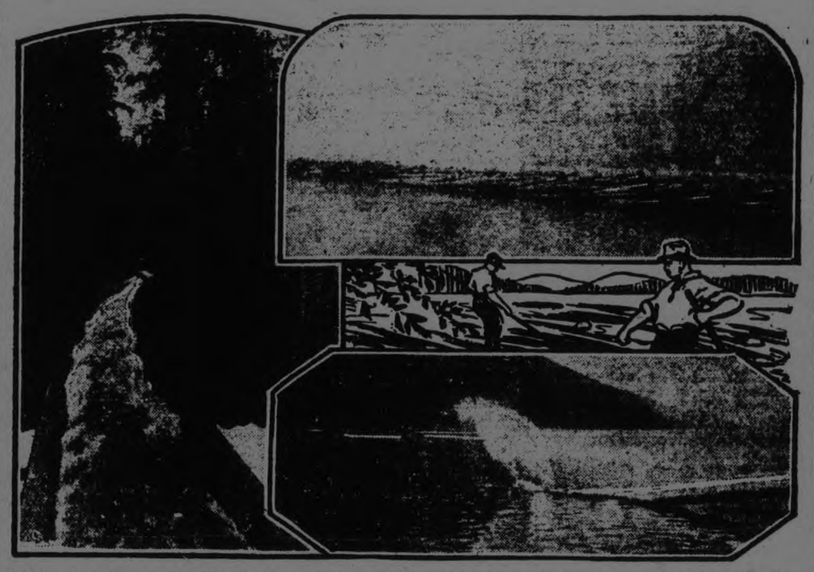
Upon a hill, about two miles east of the village of Grafton, a man by the name of Eddy built a frame barn in 1810. It is told that he saddled his horse and rode to Kingston to get the nails. He put half in each end of a bag, flung this across the horse, and returned home in four days, thus averaging about fifty five a day.

Old Time Looms.

The wool for the homespun, which was the common attire of men and boys, was made into rolls in a carding mill, then spun into yarn in the home and the yarn woven in home made looms. The cloth was then taken to the mills, where it was pulled, sheared and pressed. If the good lady of the house was capable, she made up the suits herself, and, if not, the services of a travelling tailor were secured. He measured the family for suits and made up the homespun for the farmer and his sons.

The farmer would also take two calf skins to a tannery. The tanner kept one and returned the other made into leather. The help of an and the leather was made up into shoes. Hand-made wooden pegs secured the soles and fastened them to the uppers in this primitive footwear.

Spring Drives Will Start Soon



Although underground cables have taken thousands of poles from city streets, the broad highways between cities are still enclosed by gleaming copper wires on mile after mile of sturdy poles. In Canada the yearly consumption for telephone, telegraph and power use alone is some 110,000 poles.

Soon the winter's cut of telephone poles will come surging through the flume and plunge into the peaceful waters of the lake. From here they will be collected and loaded on to railway flat cars and distributed to all parts of the country.

In a comparatively short time these same poles will be standing erect once more, doing their part in carrying the wires over which the waves of communication flow.

HANDKERCHIEF POINTS.

Fashion is fickle, no doubt, but she does remain true to handkerchief points on dancing frocks. Undoubtedly, they make the most flattering hemline there is, which is excuse enough for her constancy. Crystal beads and silver embroidery also embellish this lovely Nile green creation and give it a moonlight effect.

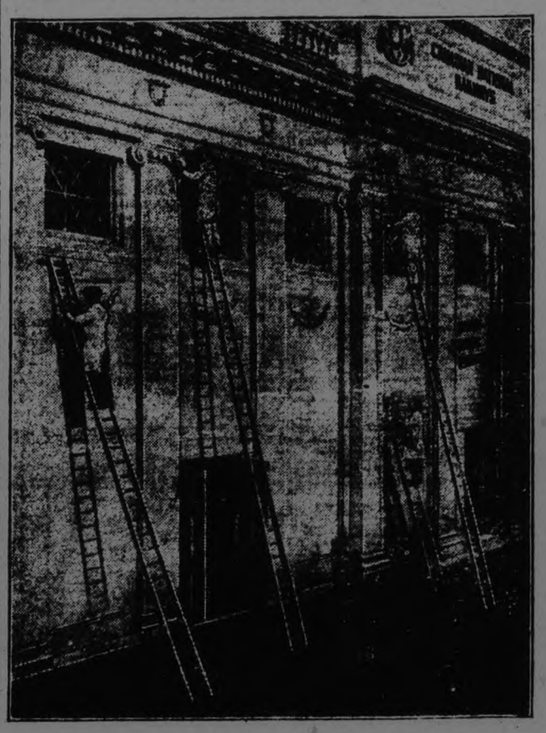
HOUSE CLEANING AT WEMBLEY



The British Empire Exhibition will re-open at Wembley, in April, bigger and better than ever. As last year, the Canadian National Railways will be one of the biggest exhibitors and Mr. H. R. Charlton, manager of the advertising bureau of the company is at present in England, arranging the placing of the exhibits. Improvements have been made to many of the features shown last year and much work has been done on an especially fine exhibit designed to attract settlers to Canada. English fogs and rains have not been kind to the exterior of the pavilion of the Canadian National Railways, and a squad of men have been employed to scrub the building, inside and out. The photograph shows men at work washing the outside of the pavilion, preparatory to the opening of the fair

A LINE-O-TYPE.

A man shovelling coal into the cellar of the Toronto Savings and Loan Building on George Street was yesterday overheard to say to a companion, "There must be so many drowned every year." He was discussing the tragedy on Sunday that robbed Peterborough of a citizen and a family of a father.

Stop This Fallacy.

There never was a greater fallacy uttered. Sunday night's occurrance was probably as pure an accident as ever occurred. A man, an ardent fisherman, intent on casting and waiting for a bite on his bait, forgets his position and slips into icy water with his overcoat on. His family of seven children wait at home for Daddy to return with a fish. Does our friend on the street suggest that this man drowned "because there have to be so many drowned every year"?

Proper safety appliances and proper personal care will prevent many accidents. Accidents are, from their very name and nature, unavoidable. But will our friend suggest that it is not worth while taking care because "there have to be so many drowned every year"? Will some mighty, unseen, hand swoop down upon him and carry him to the river to satisfy this mysterious toll that must be filled every year? He would be the last to anticipate it.

Precautions will prevent accidents—perhaps not every accident, but the majority.

Another instance of a near fatality that might have been prevented was the mishap in dismounting the old Machine Telephone poles last Tuesday. A line crossed a high tension wire and several men narrowly escaped being electrocuted.

The finding of little Charlie Hodges' body in the waters of the Scugog after ten days, once more explodes temporarily the false claims of clairvoyants and seers. Fortune tellers, so called, said he was a prisoner and described the room where he was held captive. They even told the day of his return, and declared no harm would come to him in the meantime.

Seers Fail.

And all the time the little fellow's body was submerged in the river.

Recent cases all around Peterborough fail to show one case where a fortune teller has come within a mile of the truth. In the Dummer disappearance last year a professed clairvoyant told the exact spot where the missing man's body would be found—in the open. The place was fine-combed for a week by hundreds of searchers without success, and the man is still missing.

We said "temporarily exploded, because after all if any one of us was in the position of the distracted parents, might we not seize every straw that offered help, weak and useless though we might know it to be?

Human nature remains unchanged. When every physical and mental power has been exhausted we turn to the supernatural.

"Soothsayer? A soothsayer is one who arrogates to himselft the attributes of Almighty God, perhaps not knowing how or why, but is in every case finally compelled to confess himself either deluded or a charlatan."
—Henry Webber.

A wise man once declared that the way to universal education is to solve the problem of making learning as easy and pleasant as entertainment. In words, sugar-coat the education pill. It remained for Peterborough to master the art and put it in practice.

Universal Education.

The Made-in-Peterborough Exhibition will be educational on a gigantic scale. It will not only teach citizens more of the city and the work carred on in it, but it will also teach him about himself. At this big fair he will see where his faculties need sharpening if he is to compete with his neighbor in office or factory. He will learn the bigness of the scheme of things in which he has his part and he will see where his daily work dovetails with that of every other man to make this a big industrial city.

No man who visits the Exhibition will go away without a bigger outlook on life and a broader viewpoint of the problems that confront his neighbor, his employer and manufacturers at large.

And the lesson will be sugar-coated, for there will be light entertainment aplenty in the big programme being prepared by the different committees.

Sometimes they say "Give till it hurts." The sponsors of the Made-in-Peterborough Exhibition say "Come and take it till it hurts."

REAL ESTATE JUDGMENT.

In the Surrogate Court of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

Elliott vs. Warburton and Walker.

W. F. Kerr, Esq., K.C., and A. Cochrane, Esq., for plaintiff.

T. P. Phelan, Esq., K.C., and W. H. Ford, Esq., for defendant, Warburton.

D. H. Chisholm, Esq., K.C., for defendant, Walker.

This is an action by a real estate agent of Port Hope to recover his commission for making a sale of a farm in the Township of Hope, owned by the late Rosevear F. Walker. The defendants are the executors and sued as such, and are incidentally also trustees, under the will of the said Rosevear Walker. They sever in their defences, each being represented by different solicitors and counsel.

The lines of defence are many and varied, the chief one being that the plaintiff was not employed by them or either of them. The plaintiff received authority to sell this farm signed by W. F. McMahon, a solicitor at Port Hope, who had been acting as solicitor for the estate generally. The plaintiff acted in good faith and made a sale of the property at the figure fixed, $8,500.00. This sale was not carried out by the defendants, as later they received and accepted a higher price for the property. I find as a fact that Mr. McMahon was not authorized to list the property with an agen by the defendant, Mrs. Walker; but that he was so authorized by the defendant Warburton.

The action, as stated, is brought against the defendants as executors but as laid cannot succeed. It should have been brought against them not as executors, but against them personally, the law being definitely laid down that the executor is personally liable upon his own contracts even though made in connection with the estate, and that the only possible judgment against him in such matters is a personal one. But the action can be maintained against him as executor when arising out of a contract, or contracts, with or made by the original testator:

Farhall vs. Farhall 7 Ch. App. 123

Security Trust vs. Wishart, 51 D.L.R. 614.

Jones vs. Toronto General Trusts, 17 O.W.N. 260.

Campbell vs. Bell, 16 Grant, 115.

The plaintiff's offer to purchase was from the brother of the testator, and was throughout I think thoroughly bona fide, and would have been carried out if the executors had been willing to do so, and it was through no fault of the plaintiff that the transaction failed.

It was very strenuously argued that the plaintiff must fail because one executor or trustee could not sell or convey the property without the concurrence of the other. I have no doubt that if it had been decided to accept Mr. Walker's offer, procured by the plaintiff Elliott, that Mrs. Walker, defendant, would have concurred and joined in the conveyance; but it is true she was not a party to the contract and did not authorize the appointment of Elliott.

It seems to me this legal question of construction of the will and concurrence in the conveyance is one of title and conveyancing and does not in any way affect the question at issue in this action, which is the liability of the defendants, or either of them, personally to the plaintiff for the services rendered at their request.

I find, however, that the plaintiff must fail as against the defendant Mrs. Walker, and the action as against her must be dismissed, and I think with costs. Notwithstanding his denial, I find that the defendant Warburton, did instruct Mr. McMahon to advertise the place for sale and to list it with an agent for that purpose. This Mr. McMahon did and in good faith, and the defendant Warburton must bear the consequences; but although I think it is clearly made out that he authorized McMahon to list the property that is quite so far as is proved he went. He did not authorize McMahon to list it and to agree to pay the agent 5 per cent. of the sale price, or indeed any other sum. No reference seems to have been made between them to the amount of the commission, therefore so far as Warburton is concerned, however, it may be with McMahon, all that the plaintiff is entitled to claim is a quantum meruit which may or may not be equivalent to the 5 per cent. No evidence was given on this branch of the case to assist me in reaching a conclusion. I have had, however, a good deal of evidence at different times adduced before me regarding real estate sales, and the amount of the commission allowable in cases of dispute, and I have decided to allow the plaintiff 2½ per cent. commission on this sale of $8,500.00, which will be $212.50.

To avoid multiplicity of actions and increased expense I allow amendments of pleadings to meet the facts of the case as found herein, pursuant to Rules 183 and 134.

Judgment will therefore be entered accordingly against the defendant Warburton for $212.50, with costs of action. This shall be without prejudice to Warburton's claim, if any, to be indemnified from the estate of the deceased.

Dismissed with costs as to defendant Walker.

Dated at Peterboro this 19th day of May, A.D. 1925.

HOOT ON HOREBACK IN NEXT PRODUCTION

Hoot Gibson's ability and skill as a rider of horses, an ability and skill demonstrated in many a despertaely contested competition in rodeos and round-ups, is put to a severe test in his latest starring vehicle, "The Saddle Horse," a Universal which will be shown in the Royal theatre, commencing next Thursday.

In "The Saddle Hawk," Hoot Gibson returns again to a straight Western drama, for the entire action of the picture takes place in the cattle country. The picture was filmed in Eastern Oreogn, where exists some of the biggest beef cattle ranches in the United States, and where, by the way, Hoot spent several years as a cowboy before he entered motion pictures.

Edward Sedgwick and Raymond L. Schrook, who have collaborated on several pictures for Gibson, wrote "The Saddle Hawk" and they made ample provision for the participation of a big bunch of Universal's famous Ranch riders, many of whom had ridden their first horse on the Eastern Oregon ranges.

Marian Nixon is the leading woman of the supporting cast, others of which are Josie Sedgwick and Frank Campeau.

There is a lot of good sound judgment in Frank Lloyd's "Her Husband's Secret," the First National picture now being shown at the Capitol theatre.

Adapted to the screen from May Edgerton's Saturday Evening Post story, "Judgment," the play relates to the effect that Britain was riding one of the most realistic and sincere dramas that it has been our good fortune to see.

It is one of the few photoplays in recent months which seems so wholesome and true to life that the reviewer finds himself actually living with the characters flickering before him, and oftimes feels like he has taken liberties in trespassing on his neighbor's property. There is no spectacle, no exaggeration and no pretense about "Her Husband's Secret." It lives. It goes from drama as delicate as a piece of lace, to one of the most astounding climaxes seen on the silver sheet, and never do you lose interest or sympathy with the plot or the characters.

Antonio Moreno is superb as Owen Elliot; Patsy Ruth Miller proves a delightful choice for his sweetheart, the daughter of the conservative old banker, Ross Brewster, played by David Torrence. Ruth Clifford is charming and impressive as both the young Mrs. Kent and the elderly Mrs. Pearce, and Walter McGrail is good as the "heavy." Frankie Darro as the boy Owen Elliot displays rare talent for he doesn't act, he's just himself. Pauline Neff, Phyllis Haver,, Robert Bolder, E. A. Warren and Harry Lonsdale do well in their parts. The photography and the natural settings of this picture are a revelation.

AT THE ROYAL

FINE MATRIMONIAL COMEDY AT ROYAL

"TOMORROW'S LOVE"

"Tomorrow's Love," a Paramount demestic comedy-drama starring Agnes Ayres, is the feature at the Royal Theatre the first three days of this week.

The picture is an adaptation by Howard Higgin of Charles Brackett's Saturday Evening Post story, "Interlocutory." Paul Bern directed and Pat O'Malley and Raymond Hatton, head the supporting cast.

Here's a picture that offers still another angle of the seemingly evernew "first year" theme—a production that holds up trial divorce for your inspection, with the novelty of an eight-year-old grandmother (Ruby Lafayette) essaying the role of peacemaker.

"Tomorrow's Love" is a merry marriage mix-up of a young wife who divorces her husband and then decides she can't live without him, and a "perfect" husband.

Right off the bat complications start when hubby meets an old "flame" at the hotel where he and the Mrs. go to spend their honeymoon. This is but one of a series of events that follow to keep the husband from proving himself an ideal life mate.

Finally reference to the "other woman" is made once too often and the wife hies herself off to the divorce courts and secures an interlocutory decree, to become final at the end of a year.

A trip to the Orient, certain episodes on shipboard, etc., convince the girl that dear old Robert isn't so bad after all. So back she comes.

In the meantime, friend husband has fallen for the forced sympathy of the other woman. He is about to marry her when his wife arrives. Everything is straightened out just as the clock tolls out the "first year." A new year is open before the couple and we leave them in the belief that they make the most of it.

Folks, even if you've never laughed before in your life, you'll laugh at this one. Played by the clever comedy pair who made "Worldly Goods" (Miss Ayres and O'Malley), the Zeigfeld Follies beauty (Janes Winton), and the screen's finest character comedian (Raymond Hatton), "Tomorrow's Love" is real entertainment.

AT THE REGENT

"HOW TO EDUCATE A WIFE" PROVES DIVERTING FILM

Domestic Imbroglios Thick in Elinor Glyn's Captivating Comedy.

Most of the audience who came yesterday to witness the opening of Elinor Glynn's "How to Educate a Wife," at the Regent Theatre, were not disappointed. On the contrary, they got the treat of their lives.

When the announcement was bruited that Elinor Glyn, the creator of the book, "Three Weeks," which has gone on thrilling generation after generation, had a story on the education of wives, all who were married, or going to be married, made mental resolves to see the picture.

It is a wonderful picture.

The acting of Marie Prevost and Monte Blue in the leading roles is a thing worth seeing, Marie as the wife who tries to help her struggling husband to success by flirting with his clients, and Monte as the husband who likes the idea of educating his wife to help him, until the moment when his jealousy masters him, and he sees red. Good, too, was the acting of Claude Gillingwater, Vera Lewis, Betty Francisco, Creighton Hale, Edward Earle and Nellie Ply Baker.

It is a Warner Brothers Classic of the Screen, and a good one. The direction of Monte Bell deserve high praise. This is the second picture of this young man who stepped out of the newspaper editorship, won his spurs with Charles Chaplin in that latter's "A Woman of Paris," and has made two pictures for Warner Brothers.

RAIN SPOILED CRICKET GAME

Peterborough C. C. Were Playing at Trinity College School on Saturday.

TWO WICKETS DOWN.

The Peterboro Cricket Club journeyed to Port Hope on Saturday afternoon for their match with Trinity College. The College won the toss and elected to bat on a good wicket. With only two runs on the board, Biggen was bowled by Thorpe. With only a few runs added rain commenced, and play was adjourned for a quarter of an hour. After that period another attempt was made. Runs came steadily until at 48 Kingsmill was bowled by Thorpe for a beautifully played score of 35. Winnett was next man, and he soon began to hit. With the score at 80 for two wickets, stumps were drawn as the rain became heavier. The Peterboro bowlers found the wet ball very difficult to control, the wet ground also making the fielding difficult. Another game has been arranged with the School for Tuesday afternoon of this week. Score:

Trinity C. S.
Layier, not out	20
Bigger, b Thorpe	1
Kingsmille, b Thorpe	35
Winnett, not out	18
Extras	6
Total (for 2 wickets)	80

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

"Golf's most successful teacher."
says "Chick" Evans

A very good practice to develop the knack of throwing the clubhead through the ball and out after it, is to place the ball about 8 or 10 inches in front of its natural teed position. Then address as usual and swing. Knowing that you have to reach slightly for the ball will cause you to throw the clubhead out after it. The solidity of the hit the first few times you do this may surprise you. Keep your head down. After trying this a few times tee the ball at its correct place, then play for the same kind of a throw of the clubhead. If it doesn't work, put the ball out front again and practice until you develop the throw. However, do not adopt that practice in regular play. The ball really is not hit so hard when it is out front. It only appears to be because developing the throw, you hit it a springy blow. The formula is to get that kind of a blow with the ball in its correct position.

JACK QUINN GRABS FIRST THREE FOR SOX

In the first 15 days of the season, the Boston Red Sox won only three games. And, oddly enough, Old Jack Quinn turned in all of the victories. No mean feat for a man of his years.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Micky Murray continues to shine at second base for the Galt Terriers. Against Stratford on Saturday he accepted nine fielding chances brilliantly, while he had two hits in three times up. The Peterboro boy is a sweet ball player, and local fans are glad to know that he is starring in Galt.

Big Buck Wilson, Oshawa's elephantine first baseman for a number of seasons, has dropped out of the line-up this year. With about the same speed and easy motion of a tractor, the big fellow nevertheless turned in some good games for the Motor Town crew, and against the Petes he had a disagreeable habit of interjecting a lucky looking hit just when it would do the most harm to Peterboro's chances.

Queen's championship football team will be well represented in the Central Ontario League this season with "Red" Batstone and "Liz" Walker, members of the Kingston Ponies.

Johnny Ouellet was registered by the Belleville club as a student at the Belleville Business College. Probably Johnny was taking a post graduate course in how to pitch two games a week all summer.

* * * * * * * * *

The Kingston Standard, notwithstanding the Petes, are not claiming the Central Ontario League pennant in advance. They simple declare that they'll be in there hustling all season, and the teams they meet will know they have been in a ball game.

* * * * * * * * *

"Play ball!" will be sounded throughout the Central Ontario League tomorrow when the Petes clash with the Ponies in Kingston while Oshawa will invade Belleville. The Petes' game at Kingston is a twilight fixture, made possible by the fact that the Kingston people have been wise enough to adopt daylight saving.

* * * * * * * * *

Reports from Kingston are to the effect that Young, the Ponies' right-hand pitcher who was with Brockville last year, but whose home is in Sydenham, will be given the assignment against the Petes tomorrow night.

* * * * * * * * *

It was rumoured around town yesterday that with Ouellet's certificate cancelled Belleville would drop out of the race. However, the Trunks have two pitchers available and plenty of material in other positions, and will carry on. The Examiner wired Vernon Weir, Secretary of the Belleville club, yesterday and received the following wire: "Expect to be in there to the finish." That should kill off the stories of Belleville's quitting. —F. D. C.

UHLE AND SCOTT EARLY SEASON HEROES

Two Mound Veterans Staging Real Comebacks as Major Leaguers.

Two veteran pitchers, George Uhle of the Cleveland Indians and John Scott of the New York Giants, are the early season heroes in the majors.

Both are staging the niftiest kind of comebacks, each pitcher having won his first three starts.

During the 1923 campaign George Uhle was the most effective right-handed pitcher in the American League. Last season he was unable to hit the .500 mark in games won. Why so sudden a reversal of form?

Last season Uhle, for five or six innings, would look like the star of 1923, only to falter. He had trouble finishing a game, no matter how impressive his start.

After taxing his arm for about half the game it would seem to suddenly go dead, lose its power. His failure to win was blamed on an ailing arm.

Worked Hard in South

This spring, during the Florida training period, no pitcher worked harder for condition than Uhle. As a result he opened the season fit, perhaps fifteen pounds lighter than last sason. He paid particular attention to his arm. It shows it.

The Uhle of the first month of the American League campaign looks like the Uhle and 1923. He is stronger at the finish than the start.

Perfect physical condition, a smaller waistline, appears to have entirely eliminated the arm weakness that seriously handicapped his work last season.

Ule looks to be in for a great year. That means much to Cleveland.

The other early season surprise is John Scott, whose pitching career reads like a page from fiction.

Several years ago the Cincinnati club of the National League gave John Scott his unconditional release. He was regarded as through, his arm having gone back on him.

Manager John McGrew of the New York Giants picked him up, sent him to several specialists and before the season was over Scott, by his work in several games as relief pitcher, gave evidence of still being able to deliver in the big show.

McGraw Brings Him Back

In the world series of 1922 with the New York Americans, Scott surprised the baseball world by turning in a shutout victory for the Giants. It established his comeback.

While that game put him back in the good graces of McGraw, the world series of the following year proved his undoing.

Here's the story: In that memorable sixth game of the 1923 classic, in which Nehf suddenly lost control, McGrew looked around for Scott to save the day and discovered he hadn't even reported for the game.

Scott, as punishment, was relegated to the minors. He had a big season with Toledo in the American Association and McGraw, in need of pitchers, brought him back.

Down at Ft. Meyers, Fla., this spring, just before the start of a game with the Athletics, Hughey Jennings told me Scott, at the time, was the most reliable pitcher on the staff.

Then just to upset Hughey's dope, Simmons hit a home run with two on in the first inning and Joe Hauser duplicated the drive in the second inning with the bases filled.

Scott, however, has already justified the opinion of Manager McGraw and Jennings by winning his first three starts.

In the city on Victoria Day the Quakers meet the Woollens in the Phelan Charity Cup Tie at the Oval.

The case of Woollens players brought out many technicalities in regards to transfer law and he went on the field of play on good faith on the understanding that a player can go back to junior and senior as he desires. This cannot be done. A player must make his application to the board before he can play senior to junior. Rule 10, Transfer of Players: All senior players transferred back to the juniors MUST appear before the senior executive. The senior board desires co-operation with players in all leagues. A junior player can play a trial game without signing a senior form.

A benefit game between the DeLaval and Thistle will be played on Thursday evening on behalf of Charlie Fenner who was injured in a friendly match two weeks ago. It is to be hoped that the fans will do their best to patronize this worthy object. He has been compelled to go around on crutches with his injury in plaster of paris.

DERBY FAVORITE LOSES

PARIS, May 18. — Ptolemy, which had been favorite in the betting to win the English Derby, was defeated in the principal stake event at Longchamps, yesterday. The colt finished second to Faraway, an outsider in the betting. Tresigny, considered the best three-year-old in the stable of E. Martinez de Hoz, the South American owner, finished third.

New Ford economy—now made possible by this oil created for Fords exclusively

MANY Ford owners complain of the cost of operating their cars. Frequent repairs, low gasoline and oil mileage, costly chatter, excess carbon—all these pile up expense and defeat economy.

Yet the car itself is not to blame. The Ford can be, should be in fact, the most economical of all cars to operate.

Correct lubrication is the most important factor in economical Ford operation. This is because the Ford has a unique lubricating system.

The special Ford system of lubrication

The engine and transmission of your Ford are combined in one housing. Both are lubricated by one oil—the same oil.

Ordinary motor oils are not designed to do both these jobs. They may lubricate the engine perfectly but fail as a lubricant for the transmission. This failure results in jerky chatter —destructive vibration—when you start, stop and reverse.

You can now eliminate this costly chatter, and, at the same time, lubricate your Ford engine perfectly by using Veedol Forzol, the economy oil made for Fords exclusively. It gives these eight economies in operation.

The Eight Economies of Veedol Forzol

1. 10 to 25% gasoline saving.
2. 10 to 25% saving in oil.
3. 10 to 25% less carbon.
4. Eliminates costly chatter.
5. Resists heat and friction.
6. Increased ability to coast.
7. Resists fuel dilution.
8. Reduces repair bills.

Drive around to the nearest dealer or authorized Ford Agent who sells Veedol Forzol. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol Forzol. Then test the "8 Economies" yourself.

GIANTS' RACE WORRIES FANS

Fear Long Lead Will Rob National Race of Interest.

WELL CONDITIONED.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The baseball fan is always finding something to worry about. When he isn't in a state of mental anguish about his club's losing too many games he has a brain disorder about his club's indulging in too much winning.

An unusual condition exists here among some Giant fans because they fear that Manager McGraw's smooth working club is winning so many games it will get so far ahead no one will be able to see it in the dust. Fans needn't get excited about that. The Giants will lose ball games and plenty of them. Ball clubs always do. That's why baseball is a good game. It is uncertain, and just when a club looks like a million dollars another club comes along and makes it look like thirty cents.

The Giants got away to a great start for the single reason that they went through a more thorough and beneficial training season than the other clubs. The other clubs are slow in getting started. They will all get under full steam when the weather becomes right, and then the Giants will find all the opposition they want and perhaps more than that.

It is years since the Giants' pitchers have been in such good shape so early in the season. Pretty soon the rival pitchers will catch up with them. The first month of a baseball season doesn't win championships. There are harder games to win ahead than those which have been played. Ball players know that. They do not get overoptimistic like fans.

Those who imagine the Giants are going so fast that they are to shoot right up through the roof of the league are entitled to another thought or two. The players who make up the Giants are only human. As the captions chirp in the movies, their joys will come with their sorrows and there will be many a defeat chalked up against them before the leaves turn to gold. Just hesitate a moment before planning on placing orders for your world's series tickets. There are seven other clubs in the National League besides the Giants.

FIGHT WAS BRIEF.

Mickey Walker Scored a Knockout in Half a Minute.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., May 19.—Sothering his opponent with a series of terrific right and left blows to the face, Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, knocked out "Lefty" Cooper of Minneapolis, here Saturday after less than half a minute of fighting in the first round of what was scheduled to be a ten-round bout. The title was not involved.

SOCCER NOTES.

The advantage of playing a one back game were mentioned in this column many times in team work. The rear back should always possess great speed so that he can retrieve the mistakes of the front back. A centre half back should work around the centre of the field as much as possible, slightly in rear of his outside half-backs, except when on the offence, when he should be in a position to back up centre for goal shooting. Many goals have been lost because of the failure of the centre half to close in on the goal during a shot.

The two outside halfs should be back when the offence begins to avoid any long breakaways by an opponents' long kocks.

It is the duty of the outside men to stay up the field as far as possible without incurring an offside penalty, as these men are purely ground gainers. The tackling should be left to the half-backs and the shooting to the inside men. The former should be able to men. The former should be able to kick the ball across the goal while on the run, thereby giving the opposing team little time to close in for goal defence.

Upon the inside men, particularly the centre forward, rests the task of goal shooting; for that reason they must develop speed that they may get into position without a moment's delay. The importance of sharp, fast shooting cannot be over-emphasized, as the fraction of a second often means a missed goal.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

Slumps in baseball by the individual or team are difficult of explanation. They just happen.

In looking over the teams of both leagues in spring training, no two clubs impressed more than the New York Yankees and the Detroit Tygers.

Baseball Slumps Frequent

Yet at the close of the first setto between east and east and west and west, these two clubs are bringing up the rear of the procession.

Neither the Yanks nor Tygers belong in the cellar, they are first division ball clubs, pennant contenders. It s hard to believe they will remain long in the second division.

Of the first 18 games played by Detroit, only four were won. The Yanks managed to take the same number in the first 15 starts. A most unexpected reversal of form by both teams.

Both the Yanks and Tygers have class, a punch, and it is only reasonable to expect they wil shortly start to climb and reach their level the first division.

Yankees miss Babe Ruth

Unquestionably, the absence of Ruth has played a prominent part in the early season failure of the Yanks.

The general all round excellent play of Ruth has been missing. It is the outstanding feature of the club. Ruth is more than a mere home run hitter, he is a great ball player.

No doubt the morale of the club has suffered because of Ruth's absence. Not only has his timely punch been missing but his presence as a threat was also lost when illness sent him to the hospital.

As a threetime pennant winner and the runnerup last season, pitching has always featured the Yanks' play. Good pitching has for years been the rule rather than the exception with the daily performance of the New York club.

So far this season consistency has been lacking in the pitching. Games in which the Yanks held a three-run or better lead, going into the late innings, have gone into the defeat column.

The mere presence of Ruth in the Yankee lineup at the present time would do much to strengthen the club's morale. However, reports make it appear that it will be at least a month before he gets back.

Detroit Starts Poorly.

The Detroit club has also been in one of those slumps peculiars to the individual and club.

When the team got good pitching, either lack of batting or slips in the field rendered it of no value.

When the Tygers hit their batting stride, the pitchers seemed to lose effectiveness and the punch at the bat was wasted.

In three games at Cleveland, recently, Detroit made a total of 20 runs, yet the best it could get out of the series was two defeats and a tie.

In another game the team went into the last inning with a five-run lead, only to be defeated, 10 to 8.

When the breaks constantly go slump in all departments. That is against a club it seems to affect the general play of the team, there is a what Detroit has been up against in the first month of play.

The Tygers have the class and sooner or later should strike their stride. However, they have a big task aead. When a club gets 10 games back of the .500 mark it has its work cut out.

SISLER SIZZLING.

Seeking to break a record held by yourself carries a little different thrill than trying to outdo a rival.

George Sisler finds himself in that position as he goes about his work of getting one or more hits in every game.

Sisler knows if he fails he is still the "king" as far as consecutive batting performances are concerned. He is the holder of that record.

Back in 1911, Tyrus Raymond Cobb, athlete extraordinary, batted safely in 40 games in a row, getting from one to five hits in every game.

During that long stretch Cobb made 77 hits.

It was believed he had established a record that would stand for years, perhaps for all time.

Just 11 years later, George Sisler came along and hit safely in 41 consecutive contests, beating Cobb's record by a single game.

TY AND GEORGE.

A glance at Sisler's record for consecutive batting reveals much of interest in making a comparison with Cobb's performance.

Sisler made one more run than did Cobb. He also connected for one more hit, getting 78.

In the matter of extra bases Sisler made 13 doubles to 12 for Cobb. Sisler connected for eight triples to seven for Ty, while the Georgia Peach made one home run to none for Sisler.

Thus the figures show that the work of the two great players was practically on a par over the long stretch of games in which they managed to hit safely one or more times.

Of added interest to Sisler's record is the fact that Joe Bush, now a member of the Browns' pitching staff, then with New York, stopped his batting rampage.

LATEST STREAK.

Sisler's latest feat of consecutive hitting is all the more remarkable because it started at the very opening of the season, at a time when the batting eye is usually not properly trimmed.

Cobb in recording his 40 games in a row in which he batted safely started on May 15 and ended it July 4.

Sisler opened his batting streak against New York on July 27 and ended it against the same team Sept. 18.

Incidentally, Sisler's latest run comes one year after he has recovered from eye trouble that kept him out of the game for a year.

Prior to the opening of the present season, American League pitchers insisted he couldn't hit a low ball, pitched inside.

Served that kind of pitching he has batted well over the .400 mark for the first month of the season. Perhaps the pitchers are all wrong.

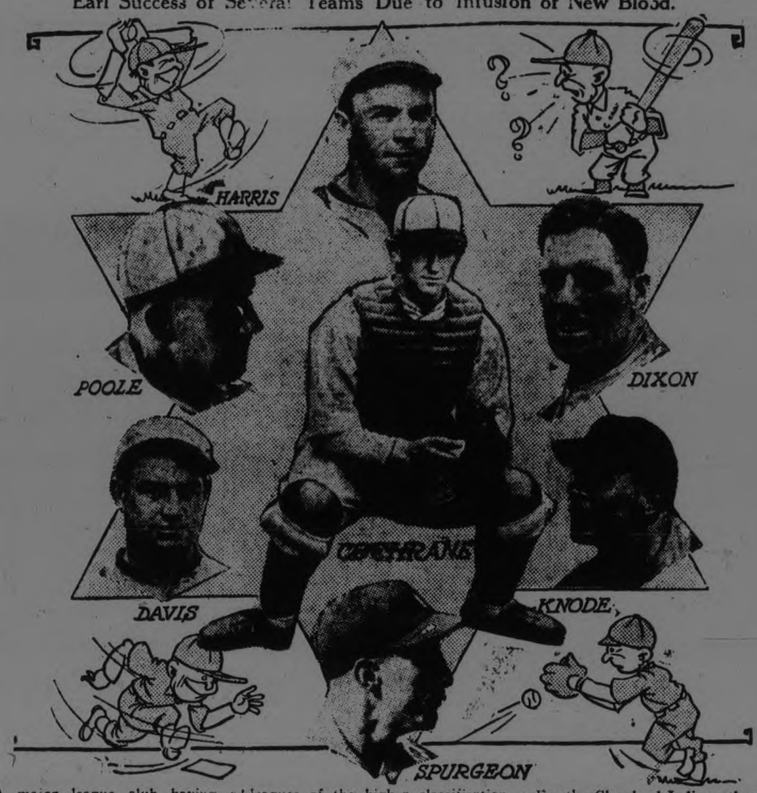
Sisler seems well on the way to make good the prediction that he would bat 40 points better than he did last year.

SEVEN YOUNGSTERS STARRING IN AMERICAN LEAGUE,

Earl Success of Several Teams Due to Infusion of New Blood.



A major league club having a vital weakness at one or more spots, cannot hope for much success.

Very often the addition of one ball player who plugs up an apparent weakness, makes a pennant contender out of an ordinary club.

The work of certain new players in the American League this year bears out my contention, that one player often makes a club.

In the early season success of the Chicago White Sox the work of one recruit stands cut in bold relief, Ike Davis, shortstop.

Davis appears to have plugged up the weak spot on the White Sox that has been a serious handicap, since the disciplining of Swede Risberg.

Shortstop Important Cog

An infield without a capable shortstop is no infield. For that reason the Sox for several years have been floundering about getting nowhere. A half dozen players have been tried out at short with varying success.

Then along comes Ike Davis.

Davis is no kid. He has had much profesional experiences in minor leagues of the higher classification. He looks like a ball player and so far is playing the part he looks.

No doubt having Eddie Collins working alongside of him has done much to stabilize Davis. The Sox manager has taken a great interest in him and feels that Davis is going to be a great help to his club.

Collins has impressed upon Davis the importance of the double play. He cuts the ball loose ala Collins. Double plays cannot be made by merely tossing the ball. The player starting the double killing must put something on the ball when he makes the force at second.

Double plays have been the savior of the White Sox in many of the early games. The combination of Kamm, Davis, Collins and Sheely is certain to give the Washington infield keen competition for the double play honors of the American league.

Connie Mack Fortunate

Another White Sox Youngster to make good is Outfielder Spencer Harris. The young man, playing in Harry Hooper's place in right field is doing a most excellent job.

For the Cleveland Indians, the fine play of Spurgeon at third base has rounded out the Cleveland infield. Bob Knode, at first, has been another link in the success chain of the Cleveland Club.

At Philadelphia Connie Mack was very fortunate in being able to pick up so capable a first baseman as Poole when Joe Hauser broke his knee cap just prior to the season's opening.

Young catchers able to deliver from the start are the exception in the majors. The American League has been fortunate in discovering two such performers.

Dixon of the St. Louis Browns and Cochrane of the Athletics have already established themselves as big league regulars.

No doubt they are welcomed by Hank Severeid and Cy Perkins, who for years have had to practically carry the entire catching burden of the two clubs.

The success of the seven youngsters has been the outstanding feature in the play of their respective clubs.

BEING A JOCKEY.

This thing of being a jockey isn't such a bad proposition.

Now we have it that Earl Sande, premier jockey of the American turf, is to be the highest priced as well.

Just after Sande recovered from injuries that kept him in the hospital the greater part of a year, J. E. Widener of Philadelphia agreed on an annual salary of $25,000 per year for first call on his services. The other day William Ziegler, wealthy turfman, purchased second call on Sande's services for $17,500.

It is estimated that Sande will make $100,000 with the bonuses he will receive if successful in any of the many rich stakes in which he is to ride.

Sande, while a remarkable jockey, isn't a gate attraction. Babe Ruth, the greatest attraction in sportdom, will make just about half of what Sande is to get.

Making it appear that the Babe, despite his $52,000 salary, is earning it, for the Bambino packs them in everywhere.

COLLETT WON.

Glenna Defeats Miss M. R. Cox, the Welsh Champion.

TROON, Scotland, May 19—(Canadian Press).—Miss Glenna Collett won her match in the ladies' open golf championship to-day, defeating Miss M. R. Cox, Welsh champion, by five up and three to play. Miss Joyce Wethered, playing through champion, won her match with Mrs. Allen Macbeth of Bowden, six up and five to play.

WHAT ENGLISH BOYS CALL SPORT

Boys of Bradfield College, Bradfield, England, thoroughly enjoy such sports as above, where they are shown "taking the water" against a fast stream in an obstacle race.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

When a preceding runner fails to touch a base and is declared out for do doing does it affect the status of a succeeding runner who has made a home run, one or more being out at the time?

The rule says that such an act does not affect the status of a succeeding runner who touches each base in its proper order

For instance, we will assume there is a runner on first and one out, when the batter hits to the deep outfield for a home run, scoring the runner originally on first.

Unfortunately the runner on first fails to touch second in making the circuit. The ball is thrown to that base, an appeal is made to the umpire and the runner is declared out.

That makes two out. The batman wh ohit the home run touches each base in its proper order.

Until the wording of the rule was made definite, the contention in the past was that the batsman who hit the home run had technically passed the other runner on the base lines, since he touched first base a head of him and should be called out for so doing.

The new wording elimintaes any such an argument and definitely says the act of the preceding runner in no way affects the status of the succeeding runner who observes all the rules.

Of course when there is two out and a runner fails to touch a base and is declared out for so doing, he renders of little use the action of a succeeding runner as far as scoring as concerned.

When an improper batsman hits safely and runners on the bases at the time advance as the result of the hit, what action is taken if the batting-out-of-order play is properly discovered.

Just one thing more is always necessary to remember in batting out-of-order plays, aside from the fact that the proper batsman is the player called ou when the mistake is properly discovered. It is this:

At no time can any runner or runners advance on any act of an improper batsman which is discovered by the team in the field and an appeal made to the umpire.

Let us assume that the bases are filled and two are out when an improper batsman doubles, clearing the bases.

The team in the field being aware of the error calls the attention of the umpire to the slip. He calls the proper batsman out, this makes the third out and erases the three runs that had crossed the plate.

If there was one or no one out at the time, the runners who had scored would simply return to their original bases.

HER NERVES SO BAD SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

Mrs. Grace Kitchen, St. George, Ont., writes: "After having a severe attack of pneumonia I was left in a weak and run down condition. My nerves were so bad I could not sleep nights, and in the day time I had terrible fainting spells, caused by my heart being weak. Finally I got so bad I had to take to my bed for weeks at a time, but one day I read about so decided to try them.

After taking one box I felt a slight improvement. I have now taken five boxes, and have gained 35 pounds in weight. I am now more than able to do all my own housework as well as considerable outside work. I cannot recommend Milburn's H. & N. Pills too highly for those suffering as I did."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE BOYCOTT

To the Editor of the Examiner.
Sir:

The W.C.T.U. has decided to introduce a reign of terror in Ontario through the Boycott and all those who take advantage of the privilege of the law and 4.4 beer are to suffer. What we have been fearing all along is violence, and now the women purpose to begin it. Who will be most likely to suffer? I think that we may expect lewlessness to break out, and it will be unsafe for W.C.T.U. women and prohibitionist women of all kinds to go out alone at night, or even in lonely places in the daytime There are lots of ruffians waiting for a chance to begin vengeance and this act of the W.C.T.U will give them their excuse. I think it will prove bad policy.

N WARD

FALSE NEWS.

The following letter refers to a false note of an accident written on The Examiner bulletin board by someone unknown. Warning was given in yesterday's issue.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like a small space in your valuable paper in reference to an item on the Bulletin Board on Sunday.

Now I am a mother, and such nonsense should be stopped. It may have been put on as sport but it was too serious for joking. Should that boy's mother have passed and read the item, she might have dropped dead. Now surely the Examiner or police won't let such a thing happen without seeing to those boys. If my boy was in such company I certainly would be the first to have him lashed at the police court, as he deserves. If the small boys only pick up a few apples or anything they would be fined and perhaps three months on the hill. Now if this is not seen into, I shall certainly look it up myself.

A Fond Mother of Good Boys.

WHEEL CHAIR LEAGUE OPENS

When the cry, "Play ball," sounded this spring crippled war veterans at the Veterans' Hospital, Tacoma, Wash., were not to be denied the fun of the great game. They trundled their wheel chairs onto the field and soon had a spirited game underway. At bat you see I. Day of Seattle, while C. J. Holmgren of Minneapolis is behind the plate.

GOUGH CASE IS STILL GOING ON

D. L. McCarthy Says Daly and Gough Conducted Business Like Haney.

NO DECEPTION.

TORONTO, May 19 (Canadian Press)—Even admitting, which he did not, that R. P. Gough, as vice president of the Home Bank, had been deceived by the president, H. J. Daly, that was no excuse for Mr. Gough's neglect of his duty, it was argued today by D. L. McCarthy, K.C., Crown Counsel, in opposing before the first divisional court Mr. Gough's application for a reversal of his conviction. Mr. McCarthy said Mr. Gough had given no specific instance of deception.

During the time when M J Haney was president, said Mr. McCarthy, Gough and Daly undoubtedly acted together, whether or not with the object of getting rid of Haney, he could not say. At any rate Haney resigned, but the business of the Bank was carried on in the same way under Daly with Gough as vice president. Mr. McCarthy continued his argument this afternoon.

4.4 BEER HERE ON C.N.R. CAR

J. M. Brooks, Peterborough Importer, Will Distribute it on Thursday.

STRANGE SIGHT.

The 4.4, long heralded, has arrived. It rests at the Canadian National station, silent, unassuming, unpretentious, contained in an ordinary box car having as its only mark of distinction a small red label on which is written the inscription "Perishable."

J. M. Brooks, the importer, says that the contents of the car will be distributed on the twenty-first, in readiness to quench the thirst which has been fostered for the past years, and he will keep on his premises a quantity to supply orders not already in.

All who wish to gaze upon the rare vision of a carload of beer should hie themselves to the Canadian National Station and search out a yellow refrigerator car having Number 46,927.

NAVY LEAGUE MEETS.

Ontario Branch Finds Contributions Are Both Fewer and Smaller.

KINGSTON, May 19 (Canadian Press)—The seventh annual meeting of the Provincial General Committee of the Ontario Division of the Navy League of Canada opened in the Board of Trade rooms here this morning. The raising of funds was accomplished only by organized effort and hard work. Contributions have been fewer in number and smaller in size.

HORSES STAMPEDE FROM STOCK YARDS

Nineteen Break Away From C.N.R. and Race Through City Streets.

A thrilling spectacle occurred yesterday afternoon when nineteen horses owned by Mr. Letterier stampeded from the Canadian National stockyards and dashed madly through city streets in their break for freedom.

Many of them slipped on the pavement and went crashing down to be trampled underfoot by other equines. Several children narrowly escaped death and it is providential that there were not serious injuries resulting.

The route followed by the speeding horses was from the stock yards to Charlotte up Aylmer and out MacDonnel to Reid and thence out the Chemong road.

All have been recaptured now and will soon be speeding away to new owners regardless of their own desires.

CAR RAN AWAY.

Backed Down From Rogers Street and Climbed on Verandah.

A car belonging to Geo. S. Conley was parked yesterday on Rogers Street, south of Hunter. At 4.50 p.m. the brackes slipped and the car backed down the street across Hunter and smashed a verandah post attached to the home of Mrs. Gillespie. The car was uninjured, save for a slight indentation in the back.

CANADIAN CATTLE AND LEATHER INDUSTRIES COMPLAIN OF OCEAN RATES HAMPERING THEIR TRADE

Shipping Charges Virtually Exclude Light Steers From the British Market.

$20 A HEAD TOO HIGH.

Rate on Leather to Liverpool Four Times 1911 Rate—Business Hurt.

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press). — Representatives of the cattle industry and the sole leather industry appeared before the special Parliamentary committee on ocean rates Tuesday afternoon and protested against the prevailing rates charged by the steamship companies on their respective commodities. Col. Henry A. Mullins, of Winnipeg, who said that he had been in the cattle business for forty-five years, complained that the present rate of $20 a head was "stopping the steer from going to the British market that the Britisher was asking for." Buyers in Great Britain wanted the light steer weighing from 1,000 to 1,100 pounds, but these couldn't be shipped at $20 a head without loss. A twelve dollar rate would have encouraged the Western shipper.

Herbert T. Shaw, treasurer of the Anglo-Canadian Leather Co., Montreal, protested against the prevailing ocean rate on sole leather from Montreal to Liverpool of 85 cents a hundredd pounds. This rate was four times the 1911 rate, while the rate on hides, which his company imported from the Argentine, had gone down below that prevailing in pre-war days. "I consider I'm paying a bonus to someone when I pay the rate of 85 cents on sole leather," the witness said.

Not Seeking Export.

In 1909-10-11 the rate on sole leather to England was 21.07 per 100 pounds. In 1914 it had increased to 34.2 cents. At present the rate was 85 cents a hundred, or four times the 1911 rate.

His company had been a fairly large exporter of sole leather, but in view of the increased rates it was not pressing for this kind of business any more, said Mr. Shaw. The rate on dry hides, which his company imported from the Argentine, had gone down below pre-war rates, the witness declared, and last year stood at 45 cents per hundred as compared with 70 cents and 80 cents in 1913. The distance from Montreal to Buenos Aires was twice that from Montreal to Liverpool, the witness said.

Port business could be increased by 50 per cent. given lower rates. He thought the increase should not be more than 40 per cent. over the average rate for the six years prior to the war.

Present Rates Unfair.

"I don't think it is fair to charge me the present rate," said Mr. Shaw, when questioned by G. H. Montgomery, K.C., counsel for the steamship companies. He said that he had protested again and again in regard to the rate. He had been informed by a representative of the C.P.R. that the steamship companies were carrying a great many commodities at low rates, and therefore had to increase the rates on other commodities. Wheat and flour were two of the commodities which the steamship companies did not increase.

Mr. Shaw stated that the price of sole leather now was about the same as in 1914. The cost of hides had decreased by about 20 per cent., but the freight rate had gone up.

KICK BROUGHT DEATH.

Frank Fralick, of Minesing, Died as Result of Kick Fro mHorse.

BARRIE, May 30 (Canadian Press).—Frank Fralick, Minesing, died Monday night as a result of a kick from a horse.

INQUEST REFUSED.

Crown Accepts Coroner's Report of Hodges Drowning.

LINDSAY, May 20.—(Special). — The remains of little Charles Hodges whose body was found in the Scugog on Monday morning, were laid to rest in Riverside Cemetery Tuesday afternoon. It was the mother's desire to have interment take place at their old home, Edgar, Simcoe County, but owing to the condition of the body, the authorities deemed it advisable to have the burial take place here.

Yesterday the father of the deceased visited the Crown Attorney's office and demanded that an inquest be held. County Crown Attorney Anderson was out of town, but Acting Attorney Mark requested Mr. Hodges to state his reasons for making the demand. He stated that he simply wished an inquest held, but was informed that the authorities could not grant the request in view of the findings of Coroner Logan.

SELLING BEER MINUS LICENSE IS PROHIBITED

Attorney-General Nickle Warns Applicants to Have Permits on Hand

HOTELS FIRST

Incomplete Particulars Caused Delay—700 Permits by Tomorrow

TORONTO, May 20 (Canadian Press).—Applicants for permits to sell 4.4 beer will be breaking the law if they sell liquor tomorrow without having received the necessary official license from the Ontario Government, was the warning given out today by Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney general.

Mr. Nickle said that the staff of the department were dealing with the applications as rapidly as possible, but in some cases further enquiries necessitated postponement in the granting of permit.

It was estimated that by tomorrow morning between 700 and 800 permits would be in the hands of standard hotel keepers and others throughout the province who wished to sell the stronger beer.

The department to date has not dealt with many applications for shop and restaurant licenses, standard hotel applications being dealt with first.

TWO DIED IN FIGHT OVER BLACK VOTE

Election Officer Questioned Right of Negroes to Vote for School Board

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 20 (Canadian Press).—Sherman Parsley, a merchant of Kermit, near here, and Buck Kirk, president of the Board of Education, are dead, and three other men are wounded, while six are under arrest on a charge of shooting, as a result of a pistol battle yesterday at a poll at Kermit, where an election was being held. The fight is understood to have started when a man named Lee Curry brought two negroes to poll. An election official questioned the negroes' right to vote, and a free-for-all fight resulted.

THOUSANDS OF NATIVES ATTEND PRINCE'S LEVEE

Crowd Was Estimated At Over 10,000 With Few Whites

FANTASTIC GARB

Combine Native and Civilized Dress—Zulu in War Paint On Motorcycle

KING WILLIAMSTOWN, Union of South Africa, May 20 (Canadian Press) — Thousands of Kaffirs, garbed in fantastic combinations of native costume and improvised European dress gathered here today from all the surrounding countries and hailed the Prince.

One Zulu in full fighting trim and with a war shield lashed to his back smashed through the streets on a motor cycle to reach the Prince's levee.

A Kaffir paraded the ground near the Prince's headquarters attired in navy blue trousers, a black dinner suit waistcoat and a rough imitation of a tail coat made from wild cat skins. There were a large number of Kaffir women, with faces painted red. Some were clad in long skirts, some wore short sleeved and low necked blouses, but for the most part both men and women were equipped only with their usual reddish brown blankets and bead necklaces.

A crowd estimated to number more than 10,000 cheered tremendously as the Prince arrived wearing the uniform of a colonel of the Welsh Guards. The only white persons permitted at the gathering were the Prince of Wales, the members of his staff and a few local officials and newspaper men.

MAYOR APPROVES A LITTLE PAINT

Thinks Personal and Property Beauty May Be Greatly Added To.

NOT OLD-FASHIONED.

Mayor J. J. Turner appealed to the aldermen at Monday night's meeting of the City Council to set examples in clean up week by repairing the ravages of winter in their own premises and also asked that any city property in need of spring cleaning be attended to this week.

His Worship has always in mind the possiiblity of adding to the attractions of an already attractive city. He is not old-fashioned, and when a beautiful young lady can make herself prettier by the judicious addition of cosmetics he believes Peterborough can benefit by the equally prudent application of paint.

Clean-up week appeals principally to men, since the domain that is seen by the passer-by on the street is under their control. If it could be made coincident with house-cleaning it might provide an excuse for escaping the nailing down of carpets and hanging of pictures that follow the yearly upheaval indoors. But whether used as an excuse for escaping other less congenial tasks, or merely undertaken out of a civic spirit and because of a personal pride in the appearance of his property, this is the week for every man to do his bit toward the beautification of Peterborough.

The Mayor expects that every man this week will do his duty.

COMMUNISM BUT NOISY MINORITY IN LABOR RANKS

"Reds" Would Disappear if Canada Had Full Measure of Prosperity.

SENATE DEBATE.

Mine Workers Officers Paraded Behind Red Flag on May Day.

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—Declaring that the United Mine Workers had been in absolute control of labor in Nova Scotia since 1918, that during that time they had violated contracts several times and made no effort to control the destructive elements in their organization, Senator Beaubien renewed in the Senate yesterday the discussion of the Cape Breton strike situation. He said the president, the vice-president and the secretary of the local U.M.W. had walked in a May-day parade at Glace Bay behind the Red flag, and there had been no word of protest. The remedy for persistent labor troubles in Cape Breton lay in strong Government measures to control the situation there in defence of law-abiding citizens.

Senator Griesbach said that Communism was the enemy of trade unionism. Since the beginning of the war it had waxed strong, supplanted true Socialism and had resorted to recruiting young boys to its ranks. But Communism was after all only a "noisy minority" in labor ranks and any attempt to achieve a dictatorship of the proletariat by force would mean civil war in Canada. If the Dominion had a full measure of prosperity, Communism would disappear.

Senator Robertson, former Minister of Labor, discussed the growth of Radicalism in Canada, and praised the aims and methods of trade unions proper. He doubted if President J. L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers had offcial knowledge that officers of his organizations had participated in a Communist parade.

Senator Dandurand, Government leader, said the Government was in close touch with the situation and would do everything possible to preserve law and order.

The Senate adjourned until three o'clock to-day.

GERMANY WILL REVISE TARIFF

Grains, Meats, and Aniline Dyes Will Bear Heavier Duty

FARM PRODUCTS, TOO

BERLIN, May 20. — (Canadian Press). — Relatively large tariff changes affecting the grain and chemical industry are contemplated by the German Government. It is proposed that aniline dyes will continue to be admitted tariff free in Germany, but the tax on mineral dyes will be increased.

Medicines of inferior qualities will be given increased duties. The proposed new tariff contemplates tariff increases on rye, wheat, barley and oats in the hope of stabilizing agricultural prices and increasing production.

It is also proposed to establish a duty in meats, lard and fats.

LONDON, May 20 (Canadian Press) — Hana Samek, the first German ever entered for the British Amateur Golf Championship has been drawn to meet Cyril Tolley, a former champion, in the tournament which opens at Westward Ho next week. Samek is the only scratch player in Germany.

WEATHER

Lowest last night 45 degrees and at six o'clock this morning 50 degrees. Warmer conditio are now apparently at hand. Much warmer has set in over the prairie provinces, and temperatures from 75 to 85 degrees were common yesterday, and should be due here soon. Probably the straw hat season will reach here by the "Queen's Birthday" after all, and a plentiful supply of men's headgear of this description is now on display in some of the George street store windows. This is "blossom week" in the Niagara Peninsula and in the counties along the shores of Lake Ontario to the south of us. Peterboro is a little too far north for orchards to thrive at their best. —W. TWIN CITIES ARE THREATENED BY FOREST FIRES

Fort William and Port Arthur Are Surrounded By Fires.

DEER IN CITY.

Wild Animals Fleeing Before Flames, Enter Fort William Suburb.

FORT WILLIAM, May 20 (Canadian Press)—The twin cities at the head of the lakes are surrounded by forest fires that may prove exceedingly serious unless rain comes and if dry weather and high winds should prevail. Just how close the fire ridden areas to the west are, is shown by the fact that a drove of red deer was seen this evening at the western limits of Fort William. Apparently these animals had been speeding ahead of the fires, which were sending up great clouds of smoke to the southwest and west.

The reports of losses from the isolated farms and settlements have been coming in, but particulars have not been received. All that could be learned last evening was that a house and barn, both unoccupied, had been burned in a blaze that has been threatening the village of Hymers.

Sawmill Burned

In the State River district the saw mill and plant of James Smith has been wiped out with considerable loss. Squads of farmers are fighting the flames in State River and other districts under the supervision of the fire rangers.

Flakes of ashes were falling in Fort William yesterday afternoon from the fires that were burning in the townships to the west.

Farm Houses Burned.

PORT ARTHUR, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Four farm houses are known to have been wiped out and seven or eight others are believed to have suffered by forest fires which have swept over Silver Mountain and Whitefish Areas fifty miles west of this city in the last twenty-four hours.

There are a number of Finnish settlers in the vicinity of Whitefish River where the fires raged yesterday, and it is believed that they have lost their homes. Telephone communication between the city and Silver Mountain has been cut off by fire, but the Canadian Press was able to communicate with Albert Groves at Stanley, who had made the journey by auto through the fire-swept region to secure aid.

Groves had used his auto all day in transporting families from the threatened areas, and in places along the rough country roads, the heat was intense enough to scorch the paint from the auto. The top had to be removed to prevent its burning. At five o'clock yesterday afternoon the fire had approached to within a mile and a half of the station house, Groves stated. He said that the ties were burning on the railway line for a distance of half a mile.

Grocers Fear Boycott and Won't Sell New Beer

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont, May 20.—Ten hotels here were equipped to sell the new 4.4 beer today. The bars had been moved out and tables and chairs replaced the mahogany and brass rails. Because of the announcement by local branch of the W.C.T.U. that groceries selling the new beer would be boycotted the grocers were not anxious to place it on sale.

ASCENSION DAY MARKS ONTARIO BACCHI FEAST

Hull Bars Shut on Day Ottawa's Open With Stronger Beer.

REVERSAL OF TIDE.

All Ottawa Hotels Apply For Licenses— Breweries Working Night and Day.

OTTAWA, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—The ironical phase of the opening day of the sale of 4.4 beer in Ottawa is particularly appealing to local hotelmen, because across the river in Hull Ascension Day, which is a holiday in Quebec Province, will keep the bars shut.

"It just means the reverse side of the picture," one official of the Hotelmen's Association chortled yesterday. "Instead of Ottawa moving over to Hull, Hull will move over to Ottawa."

This morning's mail from Toronto was eagerly watched by many in Ottawa. It was expected to bring the beer licenses for the standard hotels and some of the larger restaurants.

The two local breweries have been working night and day in anticipation of Thursday's rush and a large stock is on hand. Large shipments have also been made to neighboring towns.

It is estimated that as many as 150 persons in Ottawa have applied for a license. Every standard hotel has made application, and in addition, many former hotels which were turned into near boarding-houses have expressed their intention of reverting to their old status, and have applied for licenses.

SKULLS OF WAR DEAD ARE SOLD TO SCIENTISTS

Bones From Battle Areas Bartered By Agent of German Firm in U.S.A.

TO MEDICAL MEN.

Attention Attracted to Bullet Holes in Many of Skulls Received.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Skulls and skeletons of dead American and Allied heroes who fought and bled for their countries in the World War are being sold in New York for $22 to $75 apiece.

Many of the bones now used for scientific and demonstration purposes by medical institutions and physicians in this city and throughout the nation have been snatched from the battlefields and cemeteries of France, Flanders and the Eastern fronts.

Traffic Worldwide.

Such are the admissions of members of Pfau's American Instrument Company, No. 2 East Twenty-Third Street.

This company obtains its wares direct from agents of the German Government. The firm, with headquarters in Berlin, is internationally known.

It supplies human bodies to leading ear, eye and throat specialists throughout the world.

Paul F. Werbelow, of the Pfau Company, readily admitted that the attention of his firm was attracted by the large numbers of skeletons and skulls from Germany which had bullet wounds or which had been partly shattered by shell-fire.

Purchasers Absolved.

Knowing that the medical demand for bones was far in excess of the supply, he came to the only conclusion possible — that dead heroes were being robbed of their last peace in the cause of scientific enlightenment.

In his own words:

"My firm is the largest in the world doing this sort of business. We have been established for thirty

POWER EXPORT CAUSED STORM IN PARLIAMENT

Sir Henry Drayton Replies Sharply to Premier King in Debate.

WOULD RAISE PRICE.

Mr. Graham Denies Benefit in Prohibiting Export of Power.

OTTAWA, May 20 (Canadian Press).—A storm broke in the House of Commons yesterday over the unsigned draft contract, tabled the day before between the Carillon Industrial Corporation of Ottawa and the Dominion Government for the export of electric power from Carillon on the Ottawa River to the United States. Almost immediately after opening, the House turned to the contract, and the debate waged through the afternoon into the evening.

Sir Henry Drayton led the Conservative attack.

Sir Henry Drayton claimed that had the draft contract been signed, leases for export might have been renewed up to 40 years from January 1, 2006.

"Does my honorable friend think the government will entertain any such absurd request?" Premier King sharply queried.

"I really do not know what absurdity this government would not do if they thought it would pay them to do it," replied Sir Henry.

There was an altercation also over the statement made by the Prime Minister on Thursday that, so far as he was aware, no application had been made to the Government for export of power from Carillon.

Mr. Meighen charged that when the Prime Minister made this statement an 'application as astounding in its audacity as ever presented had been before the government for months."

Premier King repeated that no application had been brought before the Government by the minister, and that was the meaning he had meant to convey. Mr. Graham declared, the country was not committed to anything. On the general policy of power export, Mr. Graham argued that if the Federal Government declared against such export, then all contracts between power exporting companies and American firms would be affected.

"Should we say," added Mr. Graham, "that under no circumstances might power be exported, all companies who export would have to increase their prices to Canadian customers."

"The Government has already stayed its hand for many months in this matter and does not intend proceeding with any haste whatever," said Premier King at the close of the debate.

The Gold Pencil Won By Miss Arleigh McKone

Arleigh McKone, who won the first prize for the girl selling the largest number of tickets for the Kiwanis concert, about a month ago, has again demonstrated her prize-winning ability by winning the gold pencil awarded to the girl having the largest number of votes in the popularity contest, at ten o'clock this morning. There have been many other changes in the list as you will note. Miss Pearson, DeLaval girl, was standing pretty well down the list yesterday, and now has second place. What the standing of the various contestants will be to-morrow, no one knows, but the excitement has just begun. Mr. Crowe, manager of the Capitol Theatre, has very generously donated a first prize of a three months' pass to the Capitol, a second prize of a two months' pass and a third prize of a one month's pass, for the three girls selling the largest number of tickets beween ten o'clock to-day and ten o'clock on Friday morning, the passes being for June, July and August. Everyone has a chance to win one of these prizes because the present standing would not matter, the prize being for the largest number sold beween those two dates. We give below the official standing of all the contestants.

STERLING PUTS SHIP OF TRADE ON EVEN KEEL

Influences International Business Through Steadying Influence On Market

BUYING STEADY

Speculation Dies When Stable Market Returns After Several Years

NEW YORK, May 20. — Sterling exchange reached a new high at $4.85½ in the New York market yesterday, and at the same time the market gave strong proof of the stability that has been enforced since the British return to the gold standard. Though transactions were unusually heavy, amounting, it is estimated, to almost £5,600,000, there was a spread of only 1-4 cent between the high and low quotations on sterling for the day. In recent months, exchange dealers said, transactions of this volume would have caused sharp fluctuations in the exchange rate.

Buying Was Steady.

It was said that individual exchange transactions of £250,000 could be put through without causing a tremor in the market. The close was at the day's high point, $4.85¼, and the lowest point reached was $4.85¼. The heavy dealings were attributed to buyers who went long during the steady climb of sterling toward par, and who were now willing to realize their profits. The buying came from several big New York banking groups and presumably some came from abroad. The buying was so steady that it created the impression of a pre-arranged plan.

Influences International Trade.

The new stability of the British pound is having a powerful influence on certain phases of international trade, dealers in exchange said. Importers, for instance, who have bills to meet on London no longer have to make their arrangements in advance, for they know that the pound is being held to steady levels, and that it will not be appreciably higher or lower when they come to close their transactions. The stable market also has done away with the speculative activities that had marked the foreign exchange market for the last few years.

HOTELS DON'T WANT PERMITS

Those in Dry Areas Fear Loss of Business Through 4.4 Sale.

HOSTELS ONLY.

TORONTO, May 20 (Canadian Press)—With practical completion by the license board staff of sending out of standard hotel beer sale permits it has transpired that some standard hotels in dry areas are not asking for permits for the reason that they believe the beer sale would hurt their ordinary hotel business. They will continue to serve the needs of the community as hostels only.

UNION BATTLE HOLDS UP CALL TO CLERGYMAN

St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford, Called a Non-Concurring Pastor.

DISPUTE AROSE

Union Moderator of Montreal Presbytery Refuses to Deal With Clerk.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 20.—The congregation of St. Andrew's church, nearly a month ago, extended a unanimous call to Rev. James Grier of Montreal to become the pastor and this call was presented at a meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery in Cobourg and was forwarded to the Presbytery at Montreal. Nothing was heard from Mr. Grier, and the delay caused some uneasiness on the part of the congregation.

Cause of Delay.

J. A. Anderson, Clerk of the St. Andrew's Session, received a letter on Monday morning from Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, Clerk of Peterborough Presbytery, dealing with the matter. Enclosed was a letter from Mr. Grier, who explained

The delay, it seems, is due to a peculiar situation that has arisen in the Montreal Presbytery which at present has two clerks, a circumstance of which so much has been said recently in the daily papers. The non-concurring Presbyterians claim that Rev. A. S. Reid is the clerk, while the Unionists maintain that the proper official is Rev. S. Munro. The Moderator of Presbytery is Rev. S. L. Martin, who is a Unionist, and the call to Mr. Grier is in the hands of Mr. Reid, whom Mr. Martin refuses to recognize. For that reason the Moderator refuses to call a meeting of the Presbytery to deal with the call from the Campbellford congregation.

The Synod has been asked to decide the dispute over the clerkship, and pending the hearing of this appeal it is not likely that the call to Mr. Grier will be disposed of.

In his communication to Mr. Thomson Mr. Grier states the bare facts in the case without comment. Members of the congregation who have invited him to become their pastor believe that he is disposed to give the call favorable consideration as he has asked the Moderator of Presbytery to call a meeting to deal with it.

Mr. Anderson has received a letter from a non-Union layman, who is a member of the Montreal Presbytery and who explains the situation in that body. The letter states that Mr. Grier has a warm spot in his heart for the people of Campbellford and that members of the Presbytery deeply regret that owing to peculiar conditions the call should be delayed. The member and adherents of St. Andrew's are asked to be patient and are encouraged to hope that everything will yet be arranged in accordance with their wishes.

TUG OF WAR TEAM BREAKS ITS ROPE

Practice For Victoria Day Sports Ends in Disaster —One Hurt.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 20.—Several Campbellford citizens autoed to Menie last evening to witness the practice of the baseball team that will represent the Burnbrae district in the Seymour Township League, and that of the tug-of-war team that is getting in shape for the contest with Percy Township at the celebration for Victoria Day here.

There were only six members of the regular tug-of-war invincible on hand last night. These six selected four others from the crowd and pulled against 18 volunteers. When the opposing teams got down to business, coached by James Stewart, the captain of the regulars, the inch rope snapped like a fiddle string, and the contestants were piled up in two promiscuous heaps.

The rope was repaired, and four of the regulars pulled against six, and in both contests, heavy as the odds were, honors were fairly even.

This team has been before the public for 16 years, and has never yet met with defeat. They are ready for the Victoria Day event, but realize that they are going up against the stiffest proposition that they have ever faced, as the Percy men, too, are practising and have secured the best men the township can produce.

Sprained His Ankle.

Frank Little, seated on the ground with his feet braced against the sidewalk and the rope around his body, pulled against four men. He lost out, and emerged from the contest with an injured ankle that will cause him to walk with a limp for several days.

JUST HAVE TO SWAT.

LONDON, May 20.—British scientists recently almost lost their lives in experimenting with "Lewisite," a poison war gas, in a closed room, but it had little effect on several common house flies which happened to be in the laboratory.

Anaemic—Nervous

The anaemic child is in no condition to stand the mental and nervous strain of school work and examinations, along with the enormous burden which physiological changes put upon the system at this time of life.

The importance of good, robust health during this critical period cannot be sufficiently emphasized. It may mean the difference between invalidism and health throughout a lifetime.

Fortunately this condition responds promptly to restorative treatment and the results obtained by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food have proven beyond doubt its suitability in such cases.

Mrs. Archie Martelle, Cornwall, Ont., writes:—"My daughter, while attending school, was sick for two years, and had to be kept home. She had nervous trouble, and was under the doctor's care, but he did not seem to do her much good. She was very thin, restless, and hardly ate anything. Her complexion became sallow. I began giving her Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and it did her the world of good. Her improvement was gradual, but it was not very long before she was quite herself again. I cannot recommend this treatment too highly."

CAMPBELLFORD METHODISTS MEET LAST TIME AS ENTITY

Merge Next Month in the New United Church of Canada.

WOUND UP WORK.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh Honored By Conference—Westwood Vote Regular.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 20.—Meeting for the first time as a unit of the Methodist church, the clerical and lay delegates of the Campbellford district held a session here yesterday in the Methodist church, and wound up the business of the church year. When next they meet it will be under a new name and there will be strange faces among the delegates and their jurisdiction will, it is expected, be practically the same.

In alluding to the impending change Rev. C. W. Barrett of Stirling, the District Chairman, said they were in a somewhat similar position as the young girl on the eve of marriage. She liked the name of Brown, to which she had been accustomed since infancy but was willing, without regret, to take the name of Smith with hope and faith in the future.

Delegates Present.

The clergymen and laymen present from each of the circuits in the district, were as follows:

Campbellford — Rev. Wesley Elliott and George Oliver.

Norwood — Rev. W. P. Rogers and E. C. Squire.

Stirling—Rev. C. W. Barrett and H. C. Martin.

Rawdon—Rev. E. G. Joblin and C. U. Heath.

Havelock—Rev. E. O. Seymour and Ed. Fennell.

South Dummer—Rev. W. B. Tucker and George Elliott.

Seymour—Rev. C. D. Daniel and Ernest Mitchell.

Warkworth—Rev. S. A. Kemp and W. V. Drewry.

Norham—Rev. John F. Everson and Samuel Gummer.

Hastings—Rev. M. L. Hinton and William McConnell.

Cordova—Rev. H. B. Harrington and Herbert Howard.

Keene—Rev. A. MacLachlin and Sam. R. Armstrong.

Mr. Harrington is journal secretary.

Mr. Seymour has charge of the schedule reports of the district.

Two Candidates for Ministry.

Two young men were considered as candidates for the ministry, Van Alstyne Fennell and Ralph E. Spencer, both of whom have been among Mr. Seymour's hearers in the church at Havelock and both have put in some time at college. Mr. Fennell was not at the meeting as he is at present engaged in writing at his examinations. Mr. Spencer answered to the satisfaction of the delegates all the questions submitted to candidates and it was unanimously decided to recommend to the ministers' section of the conference which meets at Belleville in June that both the candidates be admitted.

A Year of Progress.

The schedule report submitted by Rev. E. O. Seymour, the secretary, showed an encouraging increase both in membership and in the amount of revenue during the past year. The district had been asked to raise $8879 for the mission field and the total contributed by the various churches was $9082.

The number of members and the total revenue of each church in the district was as follows:

Take 2 Campbellford Methodists

Campbellford — 528 members; revenue, $9,289.

Norwood—456 members, an increase of 30; revenue, $6,139.

Stirling — 402 members, a decrease of 16; revenue, $9,976.

Rawdon—324 members, an increase of 7; revenue, $5,551.

Havelock—310 members, an increase of 20; revenue, $6,815.

Seymour— 215 members, a decrease of 9; revenue, $5,117.

Warkworth— 302 members, an increase of 9; revenue, $5,594.

Norham— 225 members, an increase of 71; revenue, $3,478.

Hastings—209 members, increase of one; revenue, $4,445.

Cordova—146 members, increase of 6; revenue, $1,476.

Hiawatha—26 members, decrease of 21 revenue, $95.

Unionist Admitted.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, formerly minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church and now associate pastor of the Methodist church here, who was present at the afternoon session, was, on motion of Rev. Wesley Elliott and Rev. C. D. Daniel, made a corresponding member of conference. Mr. McIntosh in a brief address, thanked the delegates for the honor which was unanimously conferred.

Union and Westwood.

Rev. W. B. Tucker, of South Dummer, asked that, beginning on June 4th, the Methodist congregation at Westwood be allowed to coalesce with the Presbyterians of the same place, united congregations to worship in the church of the latter, which is the better building. The Presbyterians had voted for union by a majority of three, but some dissatisfaction has arisen over the way in which the vote had been taken and the matter had been laid before the Presbyterian Association in Toronto for final settlement.

Mr. Tucker said that both congregations were in favor of immediately joining forces, and added that he had been invited to become minister of the united charge. He suggested that his present pastorate be taken over by the minister at Norwood.

Mr. McIntosh, by invitation of Chairman Barrett, spoke on this question, stating that the vote in the Westmount Presbyterian church had been regular and that the appeal to Toronto was not at all likely to change the situation. He spoke hopefully of the outlook for the United church and gave it as his opinion that in a short time there would be a swing toward union.

On motion of Rev. C. D. Daniel it was decided to refer the question of union of Westwood to the stationing committee of conference.

Rev. N. P. Rogers Elected

Rev. W. P. Rogers of Norwood was elected on the second ballot to represent the district on the stationing committee of Conference, getting 14 votes out of a total of 24. Rev. H. B. Harrington of Cordova was chosen as alternate.

Lay Delegates to Conference

Every minister in the district is a delegate to Conference by virtue of his office and each circuit is entitled to one lay representative.

The laymen at the meeting retired and elected the following deegates from the various circuits:

George Oliver, Campbellford; Stirling, H. C. Martin and J. D. Mills; Rawdon, C N Heath; Seymour, E J Mitchell; Havelock, Edward Fennell; Norwood, E C Squire; Warksworth, W V Drewry; Norham, Samuel Gummer; Kenne, Sam Armstrong; Hastings, W M McConnell; South Dummer, G A Elliott; Cordova, Amos Caverly.

The following were recommended as alternates: George Spencer, Trent River; John F Elliott, Norwood; T H Rowe, Campbellford; Andrew Heage, Hood's Station.

Tribute to Mr. Barrett

On motion of Rev W B Tucker, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Rev. C. W. Barrett for his efficient service as chairman of the district. Mr. Tucker expressed the hope that Mr. Barrett would be chosen president of the next conference as he had stood second on the list of candidates in the election a year ago. All the delegates from the Campbellford district were asked to bear in mind the fact when they came to mark their ballots.

Mr. Barrett made a graceful reply and the meeting adjourned subject to whatever the future of the church may have in store.

An Aged Visitor

One of the afternoon visitors was John Edwards of Keene, who was introduced by Rev. A. MacLachlin of that village. Mr. Edwards and his wife celebrated their diamond wedding recently. He helped build the Keene Methodist Church 50 years ago and is at present the oldest member and official. His son, whose wife is organist, is recording steward and the latter's daughter plays the organ in the Sunday School.

TWO FARMERS ROBBED.

Three Thugs Beat Them Up on Country Road, Taking $395.

GUELPH, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—Battered into a state of semi-consciousness on a dark country road, a few miles out of Guelph, by three thugs at an early hour yesterday morning, Chester McBain and Ernest Perriman, two farmers who reside near Acton, were robbed of a sum of money totalling $395.

The Provincial Police failed to find any trace of the robbers, who are still at large.

COBOURG PROHIBITIONISTS LAUNCH NEW DRY CAMPAIGN

West Northumberland May See Political Upheaval as a Result.

TO SIGN PLEDGE.

Members Are Committed to Take Hand in Nominating Candidates.

COBOURG, May 20.—Delegates from Fenella, Roseneath, Centreton, Wicklow, Grafton, Vernonville, Baltimore, Plainville, Camborne and other parts of the West Riding of Northumberland were in town Monday, for a convention of the local branch of the Ontario Prohibition Union, which was held in the Sunday School Hall of the United Church. Organization was effected at the afternoon session when committees were appointed on membership, publicity, law observance and finance. In the evening a mass meeting was held, when the hall was filled to the doors. The meeting was addressed by a talented and well-informed trio of speakers, and was ably presided over by the president of the West Northumberland branch, Rev. W. A. Bremner, associate pastor of Cobourg Methodist Church. An orchestra played much appreciated selections as the audience was assembling, and the meeting was fortunate in having present Mr. George Neale, the Scottish baritone, who sang a number of much appreciated songs in excellent voice.

The first speaker, Mr. A. R. Hassard, B.C.L., Toronto, spoke on a two-fold theme of education and legislation as the most important adjuncts for carrying on this work.

He was followed by Mr. John Bailey, general secretary of the Ontario Prohibition Union, who explained how the work is being financed, and the need of funds for carrying on, and dealt with the budget in a practical way.

Mr. Arthur Hawkes made a characteristic speech, and was heard with interest. He said the young people of to-day did not know what they had escaped, and referred to conditions years ago, when whiskey could be purchased in Ontario for 25c a gallon, and when there were 400 licensed bars in Toronto to serve its population of 50,000 people at that time. He appealed to them from a national standpoint to carry on the temperance work that had already made so much progress and help to make Canada a better and a stronger nation, more able to cope with difficult problems that may arise.

The convention was preceded by temperance Sunday held throughout the riding. In local churches it was observed by Rev. R. F. Stillman and Rev. J. N. Norton preaching strong temperance sermons in the United Church, while Rev. W. A. Bremner assisted Mr. Norton by taking the evening service at the Baptist Church.

A New Party?

A governor on the political engine, rather than a fourth party, was brought into activity here when the prohibitionists in West Northumberland organized in keeping with the new Provincial policy of the Ontario Prohibition Union. The assembled stalwarts were told that they were undertaking one of the biggest political jobs of modern times. They are committed to taking a hand in the nomination of the candidates of the three main parties in Dominion as well as Provincial politics. Then, if none of the regular parties brings forth a candidate after the prohibitionist kind, the prohibitionists are to run a candidate of their own.

To that end Ontario can now watch the beginning of a new province-wide temperance pledge-signing campaign, that is as different from what was done in blue ribbon days as public ownerships is from the old-time policies of the old-time Conservative party.

A Pledge to Support Dry Men.

The pledge has nothing to do with personal total abstinence from intoxicating liquors. It is a promise to support only those candidates who, being personal supporters of prohibition, will insist on absolute freedom from party obligations upon this overmastering issue, in order that they may support the policies enunciated by and for the Ontario Prohibition Union.

The plan is to secure so large a block of uncompromising prohibitionist voters that no party will dare ignore them, when candidates are being chosen. The principle sought to be made operative is somewhat akin to that on which some captains of industry proceed—who can again control of one-third of the voting strength of a company can gain the mastery of the whole concern. Anybody can see that this is something very potential in Provincial and Federal politics—if it can be made to work.

On Monday afternoon in the parlors of the United Church, formerly the Methodist and now under the joint pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Stillman, always a Methodist, and the Rev. W. A. Bremner, late pastor of the Presbyterian Church, which voted against Union, the executive of the West Northumberland branch of the Ontario Prohibition Union met to lay out its campaign. About fifty ladies and gentlemen attended from Cobourg and the townships of Alnwick, Hamilton and Haldimand. Strong committees were appointed to handle finance, membership and publicity education. The political action committee's appointment was deferred two weeks, so that the strongest possible combinations may be made from prohibitionist members of the three parties in consultation with the sub-division workers.

There was a public meeting with speakers from Toronto, whose addresses said little about the Nickle beer, but stressed the necessity for far greater activity if Ontario is to be kept in the first place among temperance communities in the English-speaking world. It has been proposed to inaugurate the pledge-signing campaign on public lines with perhaps a series of garden parties which will do for the new political Ironsides what county picnics accomplished for the U.F.O. before and during the Drury heyday.

A notable feature of the situation is the extent to which ministers are taking the lead in an essentially political movement. It was said at the meetings that their changing relation to the political side of social and moral progress is expressed by the almost complete disappearance of the Roman collar from their week-day garb. When in business suits, they prepare for political action, one speaker said they put their spiritual overalls on as the neeswt fashion of Christian armor. Old observers of Northumberland electioneering are already asking whether this hinterland of Lake Ontario is to see the political world turned upside down.

F. D. MOORE

LINDSAY, May 20—The remains of the late F. D. Moore, K.C., late County Police Magistrate, who died on Friday, were taken to Peterboro Monday and interred in the family plot, Little Lake cemetery. The deceased practiced his profession in Lindsay for over forty years. He was unmarried, and is survived by one brother, John K. Moore, Smith towns ship.

Funeral services were conducted at his late residence on Sunday by Rev. Canon Marsh, after which the remains were placed in the vault of Riverside cemetery until Monday.

In the passing of Mr. F. D. Moore, K. C., at Miss O'Neill's Hospital, on Friday evening, Lindsay lost one of its oldest and best known citizens.

The late Mr. Moore was born on the Moore homestead in Smith township, Peterboro County, and attended the old Grammar School in Peterboro, afterwards studying for law in Toronto. About forty years ago he came to Lindsay to practice his profession, and on the death of the late Adam Hudspeth, K. C., entered into partnership with the late A. Jackson. He was later appointed County Police Magistrate on the death of the late Mr. McSweyn, and held that office until his retirement a few years ago, being associated at that time with the firm of Moore, Bradford and Scott.

During his incumbancy of this office, he discharged his duties without fear or favor, and if he erred, it was on the side of justice

The late Mr. Moore was an ardent Conservative, and filled important positions at times on the executive of the County. He was a warm supporter of the National Policy introduced by the late Sir. John A. Macdonad. He was a great lover of nature Nothing gave him greater delight than to walk along the country roads or to ramble through the woods, and he was always accompanied by his dog. He was also a lover of dumb animals and a warm supporter of the Humane Society. He strongly advocated by voice and pen protection for fish and game and enforced the law to the fullest extent when cases of infraction came before him. For a number of years deceased was a member of the Public Library Board.

The deceased was greatly interested in Indian lore and legendry, and had quite a collection of relics of the days when the redman roamed the land. He was an interesting conversationalist as well as an authority on the early history of the country.

PRINCE CONDUCTED DANCE ORCHESTRA

Wielded Baton and Put Lots of Pep Into the Music.

KING WILLIAMSTOWN, South Africa, May 20.—(United Press). — In gay and democratic spirit, the Prince of Wales last night, at a dance here, asked permission of the orchestra conductor to lead the music himself.

The conductor, surprised but flattered at the request, gladly acquiesced, whereupon the Prince, wielding a tiny baton, conducted for several numbers, putting plenty of pep into the dance tunes.

THIEVES PUSHED TRUCK ON BLANKETS

Stole 533 Blocks of Pig Iron While Watchman Stood Nearby.

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 20. — (United Press). — Pushing hand trucks over blankets to muffle the sound, thieves stole 533 blocks of pig iron, valued at $30,000, from a Washington Street warehouse while a watchman stood guard less than fifty feet away. So confident were the robbers that their project would meet with success that they stopped to eat sandwiches and drink coffee in the midst of their operations, evidence found by the police indicated

SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

The sewage disposal plant, which has been the subject of discussion for years, is at last to be built.

The work could no longer be postponed—in fact, this project should have been carried out years ago in justice to the townships bordering on the Otonabee below the city.

Taxpayers may grumble at the outlay involved—but there was no choice in the matter, in view of the fact that the work had been ordered—and rightly so—by the Provincial Board of Health.

It was impossible for Peterboro to continue to dispose of its sewage by the primitive method of dumping it into the river—and citizens who look at the matter in the right light should be glad that the pollution of the Otonabee is finally to come to an end.

Money spent on improving health conditions is always a good investment.

We have ensured the purity of our water supply by the installation of a filtration plant.

The step that is now being taken of getting rid of the city's sewage in a sanitary manner is another move toward a better and more healthy city, and should be welcomed as a sign of progress and enlightenment.

MAKE IT THOROUGH.

It is pleasing to note that Clean-Up Week is being observed by many citizens, and the result is a generally spic and span appearance to long blocks of residential streets, a condition that cannot fail to have a very favourable impression upon visitors.

But Clean-Up Week will be a failure if it does not include the sections not so open to the public gaze.

If backyards and lanes are neglected while all attention is paid to the lawn and garden, the net result cannot be called a success.

More important still and more frequently disregarded is the duty of eliminating fire hazards from the homes, business places and factories of the city.

This week should be used to get rid of as many of these risks as possible; the accumulation of rubbish in attic or cellar, the inflammable material under stairs, the oily rags in the corners, the hundred and one useless things around a house that some day may help to cause a disastrous fire should be banished.

A clean city is not only good to look at, but it is healthy and it is reasonably safe from fire—and if the spirit of this week takes hold of the people properly Peterboro can measure up to these specifications without trouble.

THE PARKING PROBLEM.

The City Council has wiped out the old parking bylaw and has substituted new regulations which, it is hoped, will be of greater service than the former restrictions.

It is not surprising that changes have been made. Every centre is experimenting with this new problem of "parking," growing steadily more troublesome as the number of cars increase.

It is a problem with more than one angle, this question of providing a parking place for cars without blocking business places or menacing the public safety.

The streets cannot be kept altogether free from parked automobiles because it is manifestly impossible to secure room enough elsewhere for the large number of cars in commission in the city, to say nothing of the many from outside that are here every day.

Yet there must be some restriction on the use of the streets for this purpose, or the result would be confusion worst confounded.

The Council will doubtless have to do a lot more patching and mending of the regulations before they secure a set of rules that will come close to giving general satisfaction.

MILITIA ESTIMATES.

The controversy in the House over militia estimates was no doubt followed with much interest throughout the country.

Whatever may be the general opinion as to Canada's policy in regard to military preparedness, there seems no doubt that the present conditions are not satisfactory.

The existing militia organization might as well be scrapped altogether, put out of its misery, as it were, and not be allowed to slowly starve to death.

If the country wants a citizen army to be ready for emergencies it is certain that more adequate financial encouragement will have to be given the militia units.

It is almost impossible to carry on under the present handicap which leaves militia regiments so badly off for funds that the officers have to dig down into their pockets to keep the organization going.

The Minister of Defence, Hon. E. N. MacDonald, readily admitted in the course of the discussion that this was the case, and he added that he was considering bringing a supplementary estimate for artillery training.

It is too much to expect that the militia can be kept alive at the expense of the officers—no country should ask such sacrfices of any of its citizens.

If there is to be a national force for the protection of the nation in times of emergency, then the nation must foot the bill—the Progressives notwithstanding.

THE WEST IS SOUND.

What is the truth about this alleged Western feeling? asks the Kingston Whig. If we are to accept the word of responsible newspapers, who are on the spot and should know, the West is sound to the core. There are out there, however, quite a lot of people who have absorbed ideas about farm credits and so on, who, when they get together in their agrarian meetings, work themselves up into a feverish state about what they call "the rights of the West." The resolutions they draw up and pass are usually clothed in imperative language, and it would seem they were intended to scare. Nobody having been scared, these probably well-meaning people, and no doubt as innocent of disloyal sentiment as any of us in the East, have become articulately impatient.

That is all. When people get impatient they are apt to say things under the impulse of what is called "mob psychology," which scarcely reflects their inner judgment. In other words, their rather foolish hints at secession are dictated by a desire to attract attention. In the West, all that is frankly and generally understood, and awakens no excitement whatever. Left to their calm and esoteric convictions, it is as certain as sunrise that not two per cent. of the people in the Prairie Provinces could be got to support a definite movement toward secession. That many could be got to support anything in any part of the country.

Time will bring a complete cure. We have a country scattered over a vast geographical area, with diversified needs and strong local aims. It would be strange if, under such conditions, these parochial purposes should not at times obscure the fact that, so far as the central Government is concerned, a broad policy has to be given effect—a policy which, as far as may be practicable, serves the common good. No one who is in contact with nation-wide conditions can fail to appreciate the difficulties of government in Canada. Yet the sense of what is right prevails, and, while discordant notes may always be expected from Provinces which are not in close touch with the centre, there is at bottom harmony. The unifying process is steadily proceeding. In a very short time, these garrulous disturbers at Ottawa will have been forgotten. It has always been so in the past.

MUSSOLINI AND WOMAN FRANCHISE.

Premier Mussolini has forced a bill through the Italian Chamber granting to a carefully selected number of the women of Italy the municipal franchise only. He seems to have done it largely in the spirit of throwing a sop to Cerberus. Apparently he does not himself believe very much in woman franchise. In fact, his actions indicate that he does not believe in any sort of franchise. He believes in black-shirt rule.

Nor do his followers believe in woman franchise. They arose one after another in the Italian Chamber and spoke against it, winding up their harangues, however, with the statement that they would vote for the Government Bill in order to maintain discipline within the Fascisti party. The Communists opposed it on the ground that it could only work mischief under "the capitalistic system," and should be preceded by a workers' revolution. This made the opposition of the Italian Chamber very nearly unanimous. Yet the Bill carried. Mussolini can clearly teach the Western politicians a lot in the business of maintaining party discipline. Our party "whips" might try castor oil.

The idea in Mussolini's mind seems to be that if he gives the Italian women a little toy franchise to play with, they will be satisfied and silent and create no more trouble. It is to be feared, however, that for once the wizard of Fascism is wrong. No class in the community is ever satisfied with a little helping of "franchise"—when they once get a taste, they want the whole dish. Franchise is power. At least, it looks like power to the people who do not possess it. Mussolini knows—none better—that it only looks like power so long as real power is willing to lurk in the background. So he may easily fancy that no one—men or women—will be ready to risk their very lives to get an obvious sham. But he should read the history of the extension of the franchise, to men as well as to women, in the nations of the West.

He did introduce one touch of reality into the situation, however. He announced that, as a logical corollary of this Bill, he would conscript women as well as men in the next war. This is not a fair corollary of so limited a Bill. The women should get the national franchise before they are expected to fight in defence of the nation. But where they do enjoy the national franchise, then it is a grim application of pure logic to insist that they shall also fight.

It reduces itself almost to a syllogism. The franchise is a bloodless method of measuring the power on each side of a public question and finding out which side has the strongest support. Originally we only measured power by civil war. The Wars of the Roses constituted a sort of general election. But we soon came to the sensible conclusion that war is a wasteful way of measuring power. A lot of the "power" is lost in the process. Men get killed. So we decided to count noses and take it for granted that the majority could defeat the minority if it came to a fight. Roughly speaking, this is true if we only count the noses of powerful people.

This accounts for the limited nature of the franchise to begin with. The hinds who were only herded to battle and did not know the rights and wrongs of the issues at stake, were not permitted to vote. Only men in positions of power had the vote. As power broadened down to the masses, the franchise followed it. It may have leaped ahead sometimes and lagged behind at other; but, generally speaking, that was the process.

And that was the process that gave the women the franchise during the war. It was not their silly and exasperating assaults on the post-boxes; but the fact that under modern conditions they could genuinely help to win a war. They can make munitions. They can drive lorries, trucks and ambulances. They can nurse. They are a very effective army behind the army. A decided minority of the men, with all the women behind them, could defeat in the field a majority of the men.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The breweries seem better prepared for the advent of 4.4 than are the standard hotels.

If 4.4 beer brings 25,000 visitors to Niagara Falls tomorrow, as is predicted, some people will be inclined to question the need of a tourist association.

Prof. Greaves in his address here yesterday on the art of public speaking might have mentioned some of the members of the House of Commons as "horrible examples."

The straw hat season seems due for a late start. Nevertheless, everybody may be longing for a cool breeze before long. As the negro philosopher put it as the January breeze filtered through his tattered clothing, "Where was you last July, wind?"

Shorter speeches and more members to hear them is evidently the idea of the Special Committee detailed to recommend changes in the rules of the House of Commons.

The London Advertiser wants to know what has become of the old-time after-dinner speaker who used to begin by "unaccustomed as I am to public speaking." That's easy. He is now lecturing via the radio route.

Active trading in yesterday's market worked the heavy run of over 8,000 down to about 3,000 carry over, including late arrivals of fresh cattle. Export stock cattle for Manchester brought from $7 to $7.75.

Good to choice butcher steers and heifers brought from $6.85 to $7.25; few extra choice beef steers, $7.35 to $7.50. Medium and common butcher stuff will probably clean up at from 25 to 40 cents below last week's average in the same class. Fat butcher cows steady from $5.50 to $6.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 19. — Wheat scored an advance in prices for new crop deliveries, but underwent a sharp set-back for deliveries to be made this month. The chief stimulus toward an advance was an unofficial estimate that the 1925 domestic yield of winter wheat would be 8,000,00 bushels less than was indicated by the government forecast on May 1. The wheat market closed irregular, ranging from 2 1-2 decline to an equal advance; May $1.66 3-4 to $1.67, and July $1.53 1-2 to $1.53 5-8; with corn 3-8 to 1 3-8 up; oats varying from 1-8 cent off to half cent gain, and provisions all the way from 15 cents down to a rise of the same extent.

Prices for May showed at one time a drop of 6 to 6 14 cents a bushel as compared with yesterday's finish, but business in that month was of only a scattered sort.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 19.—Consumptive demand continues good and the surplus is being placed in cold storage warehouses. Indication point to a fairly steady market for the present time. The quality of eggs arriving now is excellent, due to the absence of high temperature.

Toronto and Montreal.—Markets unchanged.

Manitoba — Receipts are lighter and buying prices 1 to 2 cents higher.

There were 5 cars shipped last week from Southern Saskatchewan to Eastern points. Jobbers in the North Battleford section are offering extras 26, firsts 24, seconds 21.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 19. — There was no improvement in the foreign demand for Canadian grain here today, and in consequence business in an export way was again quiet, there being only sales of odd loads of oats. There was some demand from local exporters for oats here and sales of a few fair sized loads of No. 2 feed grade were made at 1 cent per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and No. 2 Canadian Western sold at 15 1-2 cents per bushel over.

There were no further developments in the millfeed market, prices for all lines being very firm on account of the continued limited supplies available for which there is a good steady demand. A stronger feeling developed in standard grades of rolled oats and prices were advanced 10 cents per bag.

The receipts of butter today were 391 packages, as against 209 for the same day last week, and 821 for the corresponding day a year ago. A steady feeling prevailed in the market owing to the continued small supplies coming forward which is said to be due to the fact that large quantities of cream are being shipped to the United States. The volume of business was not large, but the demand was sufficient to absorb the offerings and prices were unchanged. In a wholesale jobbing way the movement of finest creamery is steady at 34 cents per lb. in solid packages, and at 35 cents per lb. in 1 lb. blocks.

U. S. Buying Cheese.

The receipts of cheese were 6,176 boxes, as compared with 13,137 for the same day last week, and 3,716 for the corresponding day a year ago. It was reported that buyers from the United States were in the market recently and picked up quite a few lots for speculative purposes, which was probably the cause for the strength at the country boards last week. The export business here today was again quiet, there being little demand from English importers for supplies, and prices were unchanged.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, May 19.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 1-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 3-4.

KIEL CANAL TRAFFIC

Total Tonnage Surpassed That of 1913, With Fewer Vessels.

BERLIN, May 20. — Traffic through the Kiel Canal last year had more than tripled since the close of the World War and the total tonnage surpassed that of 1913. In the latter year 53,382 vessels with a total tonnage of 10,349,929 passed through the canal. The number of vessels in 1918 was 15,929 aggregating 4,720,000 tons.

Last year's traffic showed 42,720,000 tons.

Last year's traffic showed 42,373 vessels with a total tonnage of 13,434,162.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

(To be Continued)

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes ....but no work or children.

She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she swamps Dick with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazzy" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR ,warns her not to been seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with JIM CAREWE.

Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia.

Gloria held her breath and listened. Her ear was pressed tight to the receiver.

Then Miss Briggs' voice came over the phone again. This time it was choky with tears.

"Tell me the truth . . . is Mr. Gregory going to die?" she asked brokenly.

"I don't think so. The crisis is past," Mrs. O'Hara answered, "but these heart complications are tricky things."

"How does that wife of his take it?" Miss Briggs asked.

Gloria frowned. What right had these two women to be talking about her and Dick in this way?

"Oh, don't ask me to figure Mrs. Gregory out! She's too deep for me!" she heard Mrs. O'Hara say. "She never comes near her husband's room . . . but I can't get her to stir out of the house. I'll say this for her, though: She's the prettiest thing I ever saw."

Miss Briggs sniffed.

"Do you think so?" she asked.

Stealthily Gloria hung up the receiver. She stood biting the pointed ends of her fingernails, thoughtfully.

Of course, Miss Briggs couldn't see that she was pretty! She was too jealous of her! She hated her because she was Dick's wife!

. . . Why couldn't Miss Briggs see that it was her own fault that she hadn't been able to "land" Dick?

Gloria was sure that any woman could marry any man she chose to marry. . . . All she had to do was to "vamp" him intelligently.

These women like Miss Briggs, who scorned a bit of honest make-up and a curling iron! What conceited simps they were!

No man was going to take the time to look past their colorless faces to find their beautiful souls. Not on your life!

And Miss Briggs, with all her brains, hadn't had sense enough to see that, Gloria decided.

She ran upstairs to her own room that had been the "spare" bedroom until Dick's illness.

As Mother Gregory had privately remarked to Maggie . . . "Anybody with a nose would know it was Gloria's room!" For it was fragrant with the smell of Gloria's favorite perfume and powder. The bed was heaped with tiny slumber-pillows, and an untidy pile of motion picture magazines littered the window seat.

It had always been the dream of Gloria's life to break into the movies . . . or to go on the stage. The thought still lurked in the back of her mind, teasingly.

She leaned over the dresser and held her face close to the mirror, so that the coppery sunshine of her hair brushed the glass.

. . . How could Miss Briggs say she wasn't pretty? Why she was beautiful!

Dick had always said so. So had—Stan Wayburn.

Stan Wayburn!

The verythought of him was like sudden light to Gloria. Ten days ago she had made up her mind never to see him again. She had kept her mind on home and poor Dick. She had seen no one but the nurse the doctor and Mother Gregory. . . . And oh, but she was sick and tired of the four walls of the house! She needed cheering up, she told herself.

In a flash, Gloria's mind was made up.

She would see Stan Wayburn that very afternoon! She would call him up and ask him to take a walk with her. Surely there could be no harm in that.

Then, after that, she would never see him again—perhaps.

. . . Gloria dressed to go out, with feverish haste.

When she was ready, she tried to slip quietly out of the house without letting Mother Gregory know she was going.

But Mother Gregory had X-ray eyes and the ears of a fox.

"Where are you going, Glory?" she called. "I want you to get some darning cotton for me at the store, if you're going out."

"Oh, the dickens!" Gloria remarked to herself. She didn't want Mother Gregory to see how she had dressed herself to go out to meet Stanley Wayburn. But there was no way out of it.

She dragged herself unwillingly into the sunroom. Mother Gregory had been darning Dick's socks and sewing buttons on his shirts all day.

"Glory," she asked now, "don't you ever do any mending for Dick?"

Gloria shook her head impudently.

"I don't know how to mend. My mother always kept my clothes in order for me," she said. "Now, when my stockings have holes in them, I throw them away. . . . I hate darned stockings."

Mother Gregory set her lips firmly.

"I've always said," she remarked, rolling a pair of socks into a neat ball, "that a lazy wife could throw more money into the rag bag and the garbage can than her husband could earn working night and day."

"I'm no worse than the rest of the women I know," Gloria defended herself.

"Then you know the wrong kind of women—you flapper wives aren't real wives!" replied Mother Gregory. She picked up the Bible that lay on the wicker table beside her. She opened it, and put on her glasses.

"Let me read you something," she said. "Listen to this . . . 'Who can find a virtuous woman? For her price is far above rubies. The heart of her husband doth trust her. She will do him good and not evil. . . . She seeketh wool and flax and worketh willingly with her hands.'"

Gloria laughed.

"That's the bunk . . . that old stuff. Times have changed since the Bible was written," she said.

"That's where you're wrong, Glory. Times haven't changed. They're just the same as they were in the days of King Solomon," Mother Gregory went on, "and it looks to me as if a virtuous woman is just as hard to find these days as she was thousands of years ago. . . . Where are you going all dressed up, and covered with that nasty perfume you use?"

Gloria began to feel that in some uncanny way Mother Gregory knew that she was going out to telephone Stanley Wayburn to meet her.

"Is it tan darning cotton you wanted?" she evaded. "Like this?" She bent to pick up a little piece that lay on the ring at Mother Gregory's feet.

Suddenly she felt Mother Gregory's hands on her shoulders. She looked up at her. The older woman's eyes were bright with tears.

"My dear," she said, "I talk to you this way only because I want this marriage of yours and Dick's to be a success. . . . Let us try to be friends, you and I."

Gloria found herself facing the most surprising fact in human experience . . . the kindliness of a person you believe to be thoroughly unkind!

She couldn't find a word to say. Finally she rose to her feet, and put the scrap of darning cotton into her purse. She went slowly out of the house into the sunny street.

She telephoned Stan from the store on Charlotte Street, where she bought the darning cotton.

"Zowie, but it's good to see you again," he said when she met him. "Didn't you come in your automobile?"

Gloria shook her head. Her eyes shone with welcome.

"No. I'm dying to walk, if you dons mind a little hike," she said. "I've been penned up in the house ever since I saw you last. Dick's had pneumonia, but he's better now. . . . I guess he'll be all right if his heart holds out."

"Is that so? Sorry to hear he's been sick," Stan answered indifferently as they swung along.

Then his tone changed.

"That explains why I haven't heard from you for so long," he said. "Now tell me—why, under heaven, did you suddenly get up and beat it that day you came to see me at the hotel? I never was so surprised in my life. What made you do it?"

Gloria blushed uncomfortably.

"Oh, I hate to tell you," she answered in a low tone. "It was because of all those women's pictures in your room! I'm so jealous of every woman you've ever cared about! . . . And I hated to think I was just one of them. I made up my mind that day that I'd never have a thing to do with you again!"

Wayburn laughed. Then he turned slightly and tipped his hat to someone who passed.

"That was your friend Mrs. Wing . . . the dizzy blond I met at your party," he said.

"Is that so!" Gloria exclaimed. "I suppose by to-morrow she'll have it all over town that I'm in love with Stanley Wayburn, the well-known actor!

Stan grinned. "Are you?" he asked.

"I wish I knew. One day I hate you . . . and the next day I can't wait to see you," the girl confessed. "But I think about you most of the time. If that's being in love, I suppose I am."

Gloria walked along, deep in thought. She wondered what it was she felt for Dick. It was true that life with him was not exciting. . . . And yet, she had said a prayer of thankfulness the night he had passed his pneumonia crisis.

She had been filled with sorrow, that night, at the thought that Dick might die and leave her.

But, now that he was better, she was almost indifferent again. . . .

What ailed her, anyway. Gloria wondered. Why didn't she know her own mind?

When she had married Dick she had been almost happy with him. But a bottomless pit had opened between them, with the return of Wayburn into her life.

Gloria looked at Stan. With his hands in his pockets, he sauntered along humming a jazz little tune.

SHOULD EXPORT POWER SURPLUS GRAHAM ARGUES

Discussion of Carillon Lease and Proposed Contract—Rights of Provinces Involved.

NO DECISION YET.

Hon. Arthur Meighen Surprised That Government Had Policy Though Undeclared.

OTTAWA, May 20—In a discussion of the proposed contract for the exportation of the surplus power developed in the Carillon project on the Ottawa River, Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, said in the House that the Government had so far done nothing in this matter and had not committed the country to anything.

Mr. Graham emphasied the fact that the time in which power could be exported under any particular license, was restricted by statute to one year. No doubt the Governor in Council might have power to extend that, but the minister doubted very much if a lease such as the one now under discussion would be legal, "or if anybody could borrow money on it, unless it conformed with the statute." The original lease of 1921 had been re-issued once. The Government had been approached time and gain for an extension. There was eevn an order in council giving the minister power to extend the lease, but that power had never been exercised, and today there was nothing more than the old lease for the development of 250 horse power at Carillon. An officer of the department, on the strength of the order in council of last year, had signed a new lease. The minister recalled it, and the lease remained dormant.

Mr. Meighen asked if he was not aware that an application had been made to export power.

Mr. Graham replied that no doubt the application had been brought to his attention but he was not considering applications, and as a matter of fact had never read the draft lease which was now under discussion. However, he had never wished to deny that he knew about this matter. He had even discussed it casually with engineers and solicitors.

Affect Provincial Rights

Hon. Edward Bristol asked if Mr. Graham had considered the possibility that a federal lease of this kind would interfere with provincial rights. Mr. Graham replied that no doubt there was a good deal to be said for that. The point was that the government so far had done absolutely nothing in the matter.

FIRE DESTROYED VACANT RESIDENCE

House Owned by Thomas Sanderson at Bailieboro Was Burned.

BAILIEBORO, May 20. — On Thursday evening the residence owned by Thos. Sanderson, near the shore of Rice Lake, was burned to the ground. The blaze when first noticed by the neighbors had gained too much headway to be extinguished.

Mr. Sanderson had lived in his house until about the new year, when he moved to his new home near Port Hope. At the time of the fire the house was unoccupied, and the origin of the fire is unknown. It is understood that the building was covered by insurance.

The blaze was first noticed about nine-thirty o'clock, and the building was soon diminished.

The Union churches of the Fraserville circuit, including Fraserville, Bailieboro and Bensfort, are losing their pastor in June, Rev. R. M. Old Stone Mill At Stirling Changes Hands

STIRLING May 20.—Several business changes have occurred here lately. James Cranston has disposed of his mill to Mr. Ivey, of Campbellford, taking a house and lot in Campbellford on the deal. This building is one of the substantial kind, having been constructed by a Mr. Baker in 1855. It was built of stone, 3 stories high, with walls two feet thick, for a woollen mill but the machinery for that purpose was never installed. Later it was made into a grist mill turning out a good quality of flour, by the old stone grinding process, the power being by water got by the ordinary old-fashioned flume. Later on a penstock was put in to convey the water in a more direct way to a new style of water wheel. Then the roller process was installed and steam used as the motive power.

The grinding of wheat into flour ceased several years ago and a plate grinder of large capacity is now used with a 35 horse power eelctric motor to furnish the power.

ASHES OF BUSH FIRES FALLING IN PORT ARTHUR

Flames Spreading Through Timberlands Around Twin Cities on Lake Superior.

FANNED BY WINDS.

Forces of Forestry Department Inadequate—Large Tracts in Danger

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., May 20.—(Canadian Press).—The bush area adjacent to the twin cities in practically all townships is endangered by fires. Fanned by a strong wind, the flames which had been dormant for some hours, were yesterday lashed into a mad fury.

Ashes from a fire in McIntyre Township were falling on the streets of Port Arthur, the atmosphere was humid, and the sun darkened into an amber ball by the clouds of smoke.

Reeve Ibey of McIntyre Township has sent an urgent call for assistance to the Forestry Service here. The bush in several places in Ware Township is burning and the hilly range north-west of the city in McGregor has been burned over.

More Fires Reported.

Within the past twenty-four hours a considerable increase in the number and volume of forest fires in the district has taken place, and there is considerable alarm in many quarters. The first big blaze was reported from the Township of Ware, to the north-east of the city, where a blaze had begun to endanger heavy timberlands.

The Forestry Department sent its available forces to that township. At that time it was thought there were few, if any, serious fires elsewhere, but another call came in from the Township of McIntyre, and although supplies of equipment and men are short, whatever is available wil be sent there.

Homesteads Menaced.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Hot dry winds have followed the snowstorm of Saturday last and fanned the forest fires into activity again, and a huge fire is now burning near the upper waters of Current River, north of Port Arthur, threatening homesteads in McGregor Township. All available forces are at work trying to stem the onrush of the flames.

Reports from the Dog Lake section and from Strange Township, near Silver Mountain, are to the effect that the fires have broken out afresh, and are again menacing large tracts of green timber. The first of the aerial patrol arrived here Monday and the seaplane flew over the district Monday evening. Two other planes are expected.

There was insurance on the barn.

FOSDICK SEES NEW RELIGION

Hopes Present Reformation May Succeed Without Split From Churches.

RELIGION OF JESUS.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick Monday night in his first public utterance since his conditional acceptance of the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, said he "hoped and believed" that what he termed the "new reformation" could be brought about without a schism from the 'old line" churches.

'Maybe we shall have to split away, but I don't think so," he said. 'But in whatever way, the reformation is coming—away from the sometimes false, grossly inadequate religion about Jesus, to the religion of Jesus."

Dr. Fosdick, who is Professor of Practical Theology at the Union Theological Seminary, spoke at the annual dinner of that institution at the Hotel Pennslyvania.

"I will explain simply what this new religious reformation is about. There is the religion of Jesus Christ and the religion about Jesus. It is difficult, sometimes, to distinguish between them at a given point in the Scriptures. The religion of Jesus concerns His relationship with God and His way of living. On the other hand, the religion that has grown up about Jesus has to do with things that have been said of Him and of interpretations of things He said.

"We must endeavor to think back through the religion about Jesus and recover for our modern life the religion of Jesus. We hear of the number of Christians in the world and people contrast the number with Christianity's failure to transform the world. A multitude of these Christians have not the religion of Jesus. They have a religion about Jesus and think that is Christianity. A man is a Christian only to the degree that he possesses the religion which Jesus Christ possessed.

He Attacks Councils.

"Modern churches bustle with religion about Jesus. You bet they have it! They bristle with it. They are bitter about it. Some organization councils take a young fellow who is anxious to be a Christian minister and hold him up for heresy. Like bandits, they get his theological loose change, but there are some questions that go so much deeper than conventional orthodoxy. How much of it is the religion of Jesus Christ Himself? I hear Paul's glorious theme: 'Christ in you! Christ in you!' They may call that heresy if they want to, but I know it's true Christianity.

"SHE IS SKINNY"

If she only knew that she could put on at least 5 pounds of good healthy flesh in 30 days she wouldn't be worrying about her peaked face, hollow cheeks and neck and run down looks.

She has tried Cod Liver Oil, but the ill-smelling, nasty tasting stuff upset her stomach and made her feel worse than before.

Doctors and good pharmacists know that Cod Liver Oil is full of vitalizing vitamines that make flesh, creates appetite, restores vigor, builds up the power to resist disease and chases away nervousness.

But it's horrible tasting stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are prescribing and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, which Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch and druggists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

It is a wonderful upbuilding medicine for skinny,, backward children, especially after sickness and 60 tablets only cost 60 cents.

One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

Be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablet.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Every day The Examiner contains stories which if they were surrounded with a thousand years of haze would rule the exploits of the ancient romantic people. Last year airmen flew around the world. If such a feat had been made a thousand years ago, no doubt college professors would today be expounding to classes on the heroism, bravery, and romance of the daring adventure.

Making History

Less than five months of this year has passed, yet two stories have broken into the press, stories which, if taken in the light of their possibilities for drama and literature, possess no equal in romanticism.

Where is there a comparison in the drama of the Argosy and the Golden Fleece, and the 1925 newspaper story of the mushers carrying diptheria serum to ice-beleagured Nome?

The Grecian legend of Tantalus, standing neck-deep in water which receded when he attempted to moisten his parched tongue, possesses no greater heart appeal than the story of Floyd Collins, fast in the stygian darkness of Sand Cave, dying of thirst and hunger while water dripped tantalizingly near his head, and food lay just out of reach.

Nearly every story of mythology has its match in the life of modern beings and told in the daily newspapers.

And in the authentic history of nations and empires the story is the same.

Napoleon returned from the Isle of Elba, striking consternation into the heart of Europe.

Von Hindenburg returns from Hanover to the head of a colicky German republic.

This is History—and it was told in The Examiner last week. The comparison could be carried further. There's more romance in modern aviation than in the ancient Icarus and his waxed-on wings. There's more incentive and precept in a living statesman or philosopher than in all the Athenians.

And all these living things of today are gathered all over the world by thousands of reporters and editors and presented to readers with a minimum of inaccuracy and a wealth of detail.

When a woman thinks she's right, the fact that the world sides against her only proves how stupid the majority always is.

How Men Work

There is something inspiring about the way men roll up their sleeves and bend their backs to a task to help their neighborhood. Right here in Peterborough is an excellent example of what men will do in a good cause. The Peterborough Health Association needs money with which to carry on its good work. The business men of the city might have sat back in their chairs and contented themselves with contributing their dollar or ten or twenty dollars toward a fund to be raised by solicitation. But they decided to make it an occasion for entertaining the people and informing them on the achievements of the city. Every day they are working tooth and nail to make the affair a success—and victory is already theirs. Every available foot of floor space has been taken up. Had the armouries been twice as large these men could have sold all the space at their command then.

Because manufacturers know that the Health Association is doing a good work for the city and they know that they have something of interest to show the citizens at the Made In Peterborough Exhibition.

A lot of people show seemingly unwarranted excitement over the advent of 4.4 beer. It must be remembered that Attorney General Nickle says it is not intoxicating.

OUTDOOR GIRLS ARE GOOD NEEDLEWOMEN

They Are the Women Who Do Most on Needlework Now.

LONDON, May 20—The modern girl is taking a more intelligent interest in needlework than did the early Victorian according to Mrs. Mary Antrobus who is restorer by royal warrant of the tapestries in Holyrood, Windsor Castle and Buckingham palace.

Mrs. Antrobus acted as one of the judges at an international needlework contest here, and is considered one of the greatest authorities in Europe on these materials. Hunting women, and the girls who play hockey and tennis and take an interest in outdoor sports are, as a whole, the women who do the best embroidery today, in the opinion of Mrs. Antrobus. Needlework fulfills a side of their lives which sports do not, she says, because sports are not creative and needlework certainly is.

FOREST FIRES IN WEST

SCOUT WORK ACTIVE IN CITY

Movement Lay Dormant Several Years But Vigorous Committee is Now on Job.

SEVEN TROOPS.

After being practically extinct in Peterborough for a number of years the Boy Scouts have been reorganized and active work will start right away. A lot of hard work has been put in all through the winter by those interested, and training classes conducted by District Commissioner Walter D. Tyrer have been faithfully attended. The local association which is backing the movement is headed by Mayor Turner as president, F. L. Roy, vice-president, and J. John, secretary-treasurer.

At the meeting of the association yesterday afternoon it was decided that one of the assistant scoutmasters who took the course during the winter should be sent to the Gillwell camp near Brantford for ten days, beginning July 7. Applications for charters for three troops were approved and will be sent into Provincial Headquarters. The chairmen of the troop committees are Father Maguire, Thomas Mark and Harry Dickin. Other troops will be organized and it is expected that seven will be in operation shortly.

It was announced that Dr. Murray Fraser, who has recently come to the city to take charge of the laboratory of the Provincial Board of Health was district scoutmaster in Owen Sound and he will be asked to take charge of one of the troops.

A great deal of time has been given by a number of men in order that they might be trained in this work by Commissioner Tyrer, who attended the Gillwell Camp last year and gained some very valuable experience and information. As soon as quarters can be arranged and troop committees formed all seven troops, each consisting of at least two patrols, will become active and a great work will be started among the boys of the city. It will be new to most of them as the boys now of scout age were too young when the movement flourished in 1919-20, under the leadership of Mr. Whiteside. The committee has been backing up the prospective scout masters in their studies and is now engaged in encouraging the formation of troop committees to look after the welfare of the new troops.

The president, vice-president, secretary and commissioner were appointed an examining committee to put the boys through their tests for first class and proficiency badges as they progressed to that stage. They will secure the assistance of experts for the various tests, such as doctors for the first aid test, or signallers for the signalling tests.

BRITAIN HAS NO WISH FOR PERSIA

Doesn't Want Protectorate, But Desires Only Independence of Country.

LONDON, May 20 (Canadian Press).—That Great Britain had no protectorist aims in Persia, but desired only the independence of that country, was insisted yesterday by the Earl of Balfour, speaking in the House of Lords in his new role of Lord President of the Council.

He answered the criticism from foreign sources of Great Britain's policy in Persia, declaring that it was entirely due to misinformation with regard to oil and other matters.

LONDON, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—The London Morning Post reports that the British Government is refusing to admit delegates from Russia and other European countries who proposed to attend the annual conference of British Communists opening at Glasgow on May 30.

Recent London despatches have indicated that the Conservative Government was considering the abandonment of the policy instituted by the Laborites while in power, of allowing foreign Communists to enter the country.

At Least Four Hotels Will Handle New Beverage Tomorrow

START AT 7 A.M.

Since yesterday the available supply of 4.4 has been increased to the extent of an additional car load which is lying on a siding at the C.P.R. Station.

The consignment was shipped from the Dominion Brewery Co. to F. E. Hawken, who has acquired a depot at 195 Simcoe Street in the building used by Coone- and Jopling.

Mr. Hawken has ample storage space in a cool, airy cellar, and will aid considerably in neutralizing the reputed aridity of the city.

"Delivery will be made on Thursday morning," Mr. Hawken said, "providing that my permit comes before that time. A license has arrived allowing beer to be stocked on the premises, but not one allowing me to handle it."

Hotels are in various stages of preparation.

The Munro House is straining at the barrier, tense and ready to go on the crack of the pistol.

A compartment designed for the occupancy of the beverage is at the southern end, and frames in which ground glass panes will be placed, are already in position. Ample space for four tables and a refreshment counter remains.

Armstrong's hostelry is also in the running as the necessary equipment is on the premises.

Reconstructive works is progressing rapidly at King's Hotel. New cabinets are being built. Tables and chairs are on hand. One of the busy workers said cheerily that the mop was going to be busy to-night in a general clean up, preparatory to oiling the floor.

Al. Johnston, of the Windsor House, though handicapped by a bad start, is pulling up wonderfully and getting his premises rapidly in condition for the big race.

The proper partitions are being erected and a special room across the hall is being prepared for dispensing the beaded liquid.

If the permits have arrived, sale will start at 7 a.m., but not a glass may be poured until the permit is at hand.

DENTISTS VOTE

Local Practitioners Have Sent Ballots On College Amalgamation

Along with the dentists of Ontario, Peterborough dentists have mailed ballots to the Secretary Treasurer of the Royal College of Dental Surgery indicating their desire regarding the relationship which shall exist between the College of Dental Surgery and the University of Toronto. The time of ballot closing is May 26th, 1925.

The R.C.D.S. was affiliated with the University about 1888 and during the last twenty years negotiations have been carried on to arrange a more complete connection, the difficulty being that the Varsity had not sufficient means to accommodate students as was thought necessary.

From 1905 it has been operated by the dentists of Ontario who regularly, every two years, elect a board of directors.

The college as it is at present is located on College and Huron Sts. and contains a full up to date equipment for the teaching of dentistry in all its branches. Eight hundred students have been accommodated.

It is proposed now to hand over the college as a faculty to the University of Toronto. A plan has been submitted to each member of the R.C.D.S., enumerating the conditions relative to the change.

Mrs. Margaret Phipps

Chatham, Ont.— Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did me a wonderful lot of good and to women who go down in health during motherhood I would advise its use. I was very sick, especially did I suffer from 'morning sickness.' My stomach was so upset that I could not retain anything. I was afraid to eat. I grew nervous and weak and my back ached. I just seemed to suffer with all the ills that come to prospective mothers. I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription advertised and began to take it and this medicine just kept me up fine, relieved me of all suffering and distress, and I was able to be around right up to the last. I have the greatest faith in 'Favorite Prescription.'"—Mrs. Margaret Phipps, 126 Inches Ave. All dealers.

BILL HITS FOREIGN ESTATE BUYERS

Real Estate Tax of Four Per Cent. May Be Imposed.

PARIS, May 20. — Foreigners purchasing real estate in France would be subject to a real estate sales tax four times as large as that levied upon natives if a bill now in the hands of the finance committee of the chamber is approved by the French parliament.

The present law imposes a tax of 13 percent of the price paid, while the new bill would amend the law by making it 52 percent when the buyer is a foreigner, "even when such a foreigner has a legal domicile in France."

"The depreciation of our currency has incited a certain number of capitalists belonging to countries favored on the international exchange market, to invest their capital in France, in the hope of realizing heavy profits, when the franc returns toward its par value," the preamble says.

"The franc having lost 80 percent of its value, the English and the Americans are thus able to buy French property at prices much below those prevailing in 1914."

ASSAULT LANDS MAN IN COURT; TO PAY A FINE

Harry Peters Convicted of Attacking Neighbor in Quarrel.

A FISH CASE

Edward Harron Pleaded Guilty to Taking Maskinonge Illegally.

At the County Court on Tuesday before Magistrate A .A. Langley, two cases were aired. The first, an offence against the Fish and Game act by Edward Harron was speedily dealt with as he pleaded guilty.

As this was Harron's first appearance in this jurisdiction the magistrate was inclined to be lenient and imposed a fine of $10 and costs or a total of $19.35. Harron said the fish, a maskinonge, was intended for the sick wife of a neighbor. This was also considered an extenuating circumstance.

Assault Case.

Following that was a case of assault which Thomas Mayhew of Chamberlain street had laid against Harry Peters who lived across from his, Mayhew's home. Peters was fined $3 and costs.

Mr. Mayhew when called upon, testified that he lived near Peters and that on May 14 he saw him in his laneway about 6.30 p.m.

It appears that there had been previous trouble among the children and that on the day of the disturbance Mr. Peters, in the absence of Mr. Mayhew, made certain opprobious remarks to Mrs. Mayhew.

On the return of Mr. Mayhew he, learning about the incident called to Peters asking the reason for the outburst.

Peters said he'd soon show him and prepared for action by the customary rolling of sleeves.

Mayhew said, "You know where you are." Meaning that he was on his own property.

Peters then leaped the barrier and swung an impressive left at Mayhew's right arm. At the time of the initial stroke Mayhew's hands were reposing placidly in the bib of his overalls, but spurred to life by the blow he swung into action with gusto. After the first broadside the combatants went to the ground where a fair exchange was given before they were separated by Tompkins, who took the role of mediator.

The fiasco soon drew a large audience, as Mrs. Mayhew said, "the lane was full of people," including James Staves, Irwin Detlor, Norman Blewett and Tompkins.

The defence tried to establish the fact that Mayhew had used his teeth and harsh language but the evidence failed to support it.

The stories told by three witnesses for the prosecution were identical and as the defence said that his evidence was of a similar nature it was deemed unnecessary to proceed further.

The magistrate chose to treat the matter as a petty domestic bickering and delivered an admonitory address, ridiculing the meanness and triviality of such petty differences.

PARIS, May 20 (Canadian Press) Rejuvenated at 84, the famous impressionist painter, Armand Guillaumin, allows it to be revealed that he has been rescued from an advanced condition of senile decay and transformed into a healthy, clear-eyed man, in full enjoyment of all his mental and physical faculties. The seeming miracle was wrought by Dr. Javorsky, who tested on him his treatment based on the transfusion of blood. The blood was taken from the arm of a young girl. Four or five cubic centimetres sufficed.

LOCKJAW CAUSED DEATH OF STUDENT

Developed From Cut in Leg Sustained When Thrown From Horse.

TORONTO, May 20 (Canadian Press).—Tetanus in an acute form, which developed from infection in a wound in his leg suffered while he was horseback riding a week ago caused the death late yesterday of William T. (Bud) Huston, aged 14 years, a student at St. Andrew's College. The boy, who was a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Huston of Toronto, was apparently recovering until symptoms of lockjaw appeared on Sunday evening.

"Bud" Huston was a lover of horses and a leader in the college riding school. His horse took fright and threw him, and in his fall the boy was hurt in the leg.

Blue-jay is the delightful way to end a corn. A tiny cushion, cool as velvet, fits over the corn—relieving the pressure. The pain stops at once. Soon the corn goes. Blue-jay leaves nothing to guess-work. You do not have to decide how much or how little to put on. Each downy plaster is a complete standardized treatment, with just the right amount of the magic medication to end the corn.

The dainty woman does not KEEP Corns

Almost every woman spends hours every week in the care of her face—cold-creaming it, cleansing it, massaging it, to guard against the tiniest blemish. . . . But that doesn't prove her daintiness. It may merely indicate pride and vanity. . . . The real proof of perfect daintiness is the care a woman takes of the things that are not seen. . . . A blemish on her foot is as objectionable to her as one on her face. The moment a corn appears, she applies a Blue-jay. At once the pain goes, in 48 hours the corn goes too.

TOURISTS LEFT MILLIONS HERE

Washington Says $150,000,000—Peterboroough Had $500,000 Say Statistics.

TRAFFIC HELPS.

According to figures issued by the Chamber of Commerce some definite value of the tourist trade may be shown.

During the year 1924, $500,000 was the sum directly and indirectly added to the coffers of Peterborough because of the tourist traffic.

The Province of Ontario benefitted by $30,000,000.

It can be definitely proved that $17,000,000 was spent in Ontario by automobile tourists alone whie the Parks Commission of Ottawa states that 143 millions are spent in the Dominion of Canada by visiting tourists.

The following is a despatch from Washington, D.C.

Expenditures of Americans in Canada increased considerably during 1924 reaching a total estimated at $150,000,000. Among other large items of American expenditures abroad are the annual expenses of Americans living in foreign countries but drawing their income from American sources. These were estimated at $30,000,000.

The United States army now is experimenting with aerial bombs six times as large as those dropped on Paris or London during the war.

ADVISE CHANGE IN ROAD GRANTS

Would Pay Fifty Per Cent. On All Roads Instead of Split Percentage.

TORONTO, May 20.—(Canadian Press).—Representatives of the various counties in Ontario will put forward their views in connection with the proposal to re-classify the county road systems and the government grants made thereto at conferences to be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, at which Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, will be present. Conferences will be held on the recommendation of the Advisory Committee on Roads, which reported at the last session of the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Henry stated to-day that the representatives of six adjoining counties would be heard at each session. In the past the Government paid sixty per cent. of the cost of "Provincial county" roads and forty per cent. of the cost of "county" roads, and it is now suggested that the province make a flat payment to the counties of fifty per cent. instead of the split percentage for different classes of roads.

IRON PIPE RADIO.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Radio signals from the Naval Research Laboratory at Bellvue, Md., now are picked up daily by the U. S. S. Scorpion, stationed at Constantinople. Paid $10 a Gallon For Water In Cans

TORONTO, May 20.—Testifying on his own behalf in a case heard yesterday by County Judge Coatsworth in General Sessions, Hyman Atkins told how he had purchased what was ostensibly 350 to 450 gallons of alcohol from one Itzel, for which he paid $3500 only to discover that each can contained only about a glassful of alcohol in a separate container, water composing the remainder of the contents. He had tried in vain to recover his money from Itzel.

Atkins was charged with failure to make proper returns as to his real and personal property under the bankruptcy act.

The csae is proceeding.

CORSAN SERVED AS AN AVIATOR

Swimming Instructor Was With Air Force—School Boards Help Elsewhere.

REPEAT SHOW.

Geo. H. Corsan, who this week is giving swimming instruction at the Y.M.C.A., has had a very creditable career in the Aviation Corps. During the past war, Captain Corsan was instrumental in adding to the glory of Canada by the feats which he performed in bringing down many Hun planes.

Later Mr. Corsan has given flying exhibitions at the Toronto Exhibition. There was one day when he was scheduled to give a flying stunt in the morning and swimming in the afternoon. As his plane fell into the lake, Mr. Corsan found himself compelled to give a combination of the two.

Mr. Corsan has visited nearly all the large cities in the States and Canada, and in that time has taught thousands to swim. Last week, while in Montreal, he taught 5,000 school children how to function in the water. He states that usually in the cities he visits hearty co-operation is given by the school board.

Mr. Corsan has crossed the Toroonto Bay with hands and feet tied, and last year battled for eighteen hours in an attempt to cross the English Channel. When three miles from the French coast adverse tides carried him back and he was picked up in a semi-paralysed state.

At the Y.W.C.A. pool on Friday night there will be a similar exhibition to that given last night. The entire programme will be changed and a number of novelty features introduced. Some of the best swimmers in the city will be present.

TO-NIGHT IS THE NIGHT

If you do not feel well there is some reason for it. In nine cases out of ten it is due to your liver. So start tonight and take two Tanol Calomel Tablets or take one before meals and a glass of hot water in the morning to wash all poisons from the system. Calomel, as you know, is the only drug known that acts upon the liver and that is why there has been such wonderful results from the use of it in the new form called Tanol Calomel. Just get a few of these sample tablets from F. C. Webber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are. m.-w.s.

SHOULD EXPORT POWER SURPLUS

regard to the export of power, it must be borne in mind that if the Federal government declared against it, then all the contracts which the Province of Ontario had with United States firms, would be affected at a time when the hydro of Ontario was paying its way and reducing domestic rates by selling its surplus elsewhere, no government would dream of saying it should not be done.

The fact was that the governments of Ontario and of Quebec both approved the principle of exporting power.

Sir Henry Drayton protested that this was not a fair presentation of the case. Because of business depression, the Ontario Hydro had a surplus of power, but under good business conditions, there was no surplus.

Mr. Meighen asked if Mr. Graham approved of the issue of brand new licenses for the export of power to new industries in the United States.

Should Export Surplus

Mr. Graham replied that that was not the point he was dealing with. He wanted to suggest that Sir Henry Drayton's attitude was not consistent with that of his friends in the provinces. Development of power must go on and if there was a surplus, it should be exported.

"Temporarily," remarked one of the members.

Mr. Graham said that surely the presence in the Canadian statutes of the restriction to one year of any export license was a sufficient reminder to the United States customers that the arrangement was temporary.

Evasive Answer

Mr. Meighen followed Mr. Graham. Mr. Meighen was astonished to find that the Government appeared to have a policy matured and ready for presentation to the Canadian public on this matter of export of power. Why then had there been such a long silence, and such vague terms in the explanation given by the minister of Railways just now? Delegations had come to Ottawa, members had asked questions in the house, there had been much discussion and conjecture in the press, but never before had the government been prepared to say what it thought about this matter. Last Friday night, opposition members had asked for a statement of the government's policy and all the prime minister could say was that he was mindful of the interests of Canada. Even the Minister of Railways had given an evasive answer to a question about new licenses. Last Friday night the Prime Minister had denied that he had ever been approached with regard to the export of power from the Carillon. Premier King protested that what he had said was of course with a full knowedge that everybody was aware that delegations had been down, he had meant that the government had no specific proposal before it.

Censure by Meighen

Mr. Meighen said that while the Prime Minister had asserted three times that no application had reached the Government, the Minister of Railways who knew of the application, sat silent in his seat, and the whole country was allowed to get impression that no application had been made. It was "astounding in its audacity." The application came from a firm of which a member of the Government was a partner, said Mr. Meighen, referring to Hon. H. B. McGiverin, Minister without portfolio.

The Minister of Railways said that the member for Ottawa was not a member of the government at the time referred to.

Mr. Meighen suggested that perhaps his association with the firm accounted for his rise in public life

LOVE FOR CHRIST MISSION MOTIVE

Sunday Sermon at Lakefield By Rev. F. W. Anderson.

LAKEFIELD, May 19. — A very inspiring address was given in the Presbyterian church, Lakefield, on Sunday morning last, when Rev. F. W. Anderson, spoke on the purpose, personnel and programme of the missionary conference held at Washington, D. C., in January last. Taking as his text the exhortation of Jesus "Seek you first the Kingdom of Heaven," the speaker said that one came from the conference feeling that this was the great worth-while quest of life. Jesus Christ is the hope of the world for the individual the family, the church and the nation. Not pity for the condition of the heathen, nor fear that they will destroy our civilization, is the true motive for foreign missions, but love for Jesus Christ and a real desire to carry Him to men and women through the school, hospital and the preaching of the word. The foreign field is not only in India or China, but in every community or individual heart where Christ is not known. The law of the jungle—get, grasp and keep as long as you can—is in perpetual conflict with the law of Christ Give, save and serve to the uttermost —to give Christ to the world is the great task of the Christian church.

Church Resolution.

At a well attended meeting of the elders and managers of the Presbyterian church in Lakefield, held after the morning service on Sunday, May 17th, the following résolution was carried unanimously:

"Whereas, certain reports have been circulated regarding the ability and intention of our congregation to carry on after June next and such reports tend to mislead and distrust our people, the elders and managers after a careful survey of the situation are of the opinion that at the present time it is in the best interests of the Church of Christ in Lakefield that we continue here our life work as a congregation of the United Church in Canada, and do that end we invite the co-operation of every member and adherent in Christian fellowship and service."

The treasurer reported that the finances were in a healthy condition for this time of year. The attendance at church services has been good and a very encouraging feature is the hearty co-operation of the young people in all branches of the church work. Nineteen new members were received at the recent communion service on Easter Sunday.

I.O.O.F. Church Parade.

The anual church parade of Lakefield lodge 358, I.O.O.F., was held on Sunday evening with a good attendance of members. Rev. W. H. Howard gave a thoughtful sermon on the value of Oddfellowship and kindred fraternal societies in the community, where they can be an aid to the work of the churches, while in no sense a substitute for them.

Rev. T. J. O'Conor Fenton of Norwood, Rural Dean of Peterboro, will be in charge of the morning service in St. John's church on Sunday morning next as Rev. W. Cox will be absent in Kingston.

Three-Legged Chick.

Mrs. T. Z. Webster of Smith who raises large quantities of poultry every year brought into the village last week a freak specimen of the chicken family which has three legs and four feet. The chicken which is now more than a week old is alive and thriving in spite of its handicap.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's, Peterboro, are putting on their three act comedy, "The Troubles of Grandpa," under the auspices of St. John's A.Y.P.A. on Tuesday evening, May 26th.

FOSDICK SEES NEW RELIGION

"You see it is not a cheap and superficial liberalism such as that accepted by some who wish to escape the rigors of Christianity and keep its comforts—a feather bed for falling Christians, it has been called. This isn't. It is not only something to satisfy the conscience but also to clear the mind.

"Creeds have been constructed and mythology woven about the founders of religions to glorify them so that if they came back no one would be as surprised as they. A great deal of modern Christianity has turned its back against His religion. I know of a preacher who was asked if he thought a man would be a Christian if his life was a perfect exemplification of the Sermon on the Mount and he said, 'No, he would not be a Christian.' A professor in another theological seminary, with unsuspected candor, said, 'Jesus Christ was not a Christian.' That's what fundamentalism means. There is some truth in it. If Jesus Christ came back and saw the things that are practiced in His name He would say, 'If that is Christianity, I am not a Christian.'

"They object because we reject some things that are taught about Jesus. If they are so, I am not a Christian. I had supposed that the multiplication of the disciples of Jesus and the applying of His principles to life were the most important things of all. After all, at the heart of the Gospel stands Jesus Christ, saying 'Follow Me'."

SKULLS OF WAR DEAD ARE SOLD

years. We have all sources of supply at our finger ends. It is my belief many of the specimens are World War soldiers."

Herr Werbelow made it clear that none of the institutions — among them the Universities of Pennsylvania and California—and none of the medical men who purchase his wares have any idea of their gruesome origin.

He explained further:

"I must resent the statements that our exhibits at the annual convention of the Medical Association of the State of New York, were skeletons dug up from German burial and battle grounds and then officially sold.

"This is absurd, for in Germany as she is to-day there are no battle grounds.

"Germany is the centre of this kind of work. The skulls are shipped by our agent in Berlin, landed duty free and then prepared for demonstration purposes in our store in New York.

"Where the German Government gets the skulls and skeletons from we don't know, or care. I do know that France and the Balkans make a specialty of selling dead men's bones. If I were to venture an opinion I would hazard that bodies of dead soldiers come from battlefields in France and South-eastern Europe, Bulgaria, in particular.

"Are they American, British, French or Italian skulls? It is impossible to say. Perhaps the professors of biology might tell."

Werbelow added that in Germany and some other continental countries a human being had the right to sell his or her bones for scientific work.

He went on:

"Some of the shattered skulls may be those of suicides or others dead from accident, but the fact is the supply from continental morgues would not equal the American demand. That has increased some 700 per cent. since the war.

"I should point out, moreover, the German Government does not make a business of skull selling. Officials supply what is necessary at cost."

When questioned as to whether details of these revelations would be likely to harm the skull and skeleton export trade from Germany, Herr Werbelow replied:

"We don't care. We get 'em and we prepare 'em. That's all we care about."

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

FLIRTING ISN'T REALLY CRIME

No Statute to Prohibit Smiling—But Kissing May Be Different.

WOMAN DECIDES.

Flirting is not a crime, a judge has decreed.

That will be good news to a lot of young fellows in Peterboro, whose chief job in life seems to be the ogling girls as they pass street corners.

A young lady asked an Examiner reporter yesterday whether nothing can be done to do away with this nuisance. "There is no statute declaring flirting a crime," a lawyer said when the question was put to him. He showed a judgment where it had been decided there is no crime even in a married man kissing a woman other than his wife so long as the woman he kissed did not seriously object. The case under judgment was of a man accused by his wife of having kissed another woman in her presence. The wife insisted that her husband be punished. It was said, obiter dictum, that if the recipient of the kiss had fought back, struck, or shouted for help, there would have been a real crime.

It would have been assault and battery.

But it seems there is no charge applicable to the smiler, unless that undefined charge that covers a multitude of sins—vagrancy—be brought into use.

HERE'S A CHANCE TO GET IN PRINT

Tell That Peculiarity or Whimsicality You Have Noticed.

No doubt you ha been reading "The Flapper Wife," the Examiner's biggest serial hit. More people have expressed interest and pleasure in this story than ever took the trouble to praise a serial before.

Now, having read the married-life experience of Gloria and Dick, Peterborough people should be ready to tell some of their own. Every person in the world has a peculiarity. Tell us about your husband's or your wife's. No names will be used.

Simply tell what peculiarity you have noticed most.

Does your husband tell you what he would do if he had lots of money?

Does your wife insist on two house-cleanings a year?

Does your husband refuse to answer the telephone?

Does your wife tell you the plots of moving pictures she l seen?

Address your contributions to the "Editor of the Woman's Page, Examiner, Peterborough."

This is worth watching!

Is This Your BIRTHDAY

WEDNESDAY MAY 20—If today is your birthday, you will have a gambling streak that you must learn to curb. Horse races, poker parties, bridge games and other forms of losing your money will take up entirely too much of your time, unless you watch your step. Another danger is that you may be tempted to take money that doesn't belong to you for gambling. You can overcome this fault, if you will just exert more will power. Aso try to keep busy all the time and you won't have so many temptations. The chances are that you will marry before you are 21, and that your mate will be a blond if you are a brunet and a brunet, of you are a blond.

CAREER VS. HOME

In the show world they were known as the "perfect couple." For years they were pointed to as the "happiest and homiest" of married movie stars. And now Richard Barthelmess and his wife, Mary Hay, have announced a "marriage vacation." The old question of "career or home" bobbed up and Mary Hay, dancer and actress, wanted to go on dancing. So she leaves for Europe on a dance tour and Richard stays home and takes care of the baby. Each will have the child six months, says the announcement, and a divorce is denied.

This quantity makes about 4 dozen cakes.

Cynthia Grey Says

Dear Miss Grey: I am a girl of 20. I have a little brother 10 years old. He really is a nice young kid, but whenever I have a young man caller, he stays in the room until 9 or 10 o'clock. Don't you think the family ought to send him to bed?—Virginia.

A boy of 10 ought to be in bed long before 9 or 10 o'clock at night for his own good health. And it is not fair of your family to allow the boy in the room with you and your caller. If he stays up late, he ought to sit with the family.

Dear Miss Grey: I had a fine job. While I had it I spent money freely and had a lot of nice friends. I became engaged to a beautiful girl. Since I have lost my job and am out of work, she will not see me. And all my friends leave me alone, too. Isn't this unusual? Or does it always happen to people who are out of luck?—Rathbone.

No not always. You have been unfortunate in picking "fair-weather friends" instead of the real variety. Be glad that you found this out. You will be more wise the next time you pick a group of friends, because of this unpleasant experience. Don't let it make you bitter.

WHISPERS.

What does your husband think of you?

Does he regard you as an angel a housekeepr or a pal?

Unless he thinks of you as a mixture of all three, you haven't given him the right "slant" on you, Mrs. Wife!

So many letter come to me from women who complain that their husbands have lost interest in them.

"I'm a good cook, and a wonderful housekeeper. I keep his socks mended," one woman will write about her restless mate," but he doesn't seem contented, anyway."

That woman isn't a pal to her husband, probably. Every man wants to be entertained. A successful wife must be Mary as well as Martha.

It's true enough that one road to a man's heart is through his stomach. But the woman who makes an appeal to a man's brain seldom loses out.

"My Fred complains that we don't have enough meals at home," a bride of a year wrote to me the other day. "I tell him I'm not going to burn myself up over a cook stove every night in the week."

There you have the viewpoint of the married flapper .....the modern wife! She knows her rights, and she's going to have more of them than any other woman of any other time in the world's history.

Her husband will never think of her as the guardian angel of his home .....and that is the way most men, in their sentimental souls, regard the idea wife. But they like her with just a dash of spice .... and a knowledge of cookery and fine sewing, too.

Compared with the gentle art of being a wife and a homemaker, tightrope walking is child's play. But think how many millions of women are succeeding at it every day!

Weaker sex? Whoever called us that was either a bachelor or a cynic ....or else hejust didn't know his subject!

SUMMER GLOVES STYLES GALORE

Most Women Prefer Them Plain, But Ornamental Gloves Seen.

CUFFS POPULAR

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 20.—(United Press).—Until recently, the white glove was the only one for dress wear. This season, however, it has been replaced by light beige, champagne, fawn and other light tannish shades. Suede is chosen by those who can afford to wear suede, although glazed kid is just as popular with the majority of women. Certainly suede is very beautiful and in the above named colors it blends with the season's costume colorings. Glazed kid, on the other hand, becomes soiled less quickly and is therefore more practical. Cloth and silk gloves in light tan shades follow the lines of the kid gloves with short-flare wrists or turn-back cuffs, and these are preferred by women who find the kid gloves too warm. Both of these gloves laundry well.

In spite of the fact that most well dressed women prefer a plain glove, one sees many ornamented cuffs worked in embroidery or outlined and trimmed with insets of gold kid. In any case, the shade of the glove should match the hosiery and women can not be too careful of these minor details in dress. If one wears grey hosiery, the grey glove is essential. Where the stocking is black, which is rare these days, the glove may be black with a brilliantly embroidered cuff or the white glove may be worn. The white glove is used only where one wishes to gain a color contrast. With the black and white costume, for instance, it is very effective.

Cuff gloves are more commonly seen than other types, although slip-ons which extend about three inches above the wrist and are untrimmed are worn by many well groomed women. Beige gloves have many new color combinations used on cuffs, such as roseda green, red, yellow, etc. A very novel glove is one with petal cuffs, with each petal lined with a different pastel shade and edged in green. Gold kid appliqued in leaf design on cuffs are not unusual, although these seem rather bizarre. Slip-on washable doeskins without seams and in natural shades are often worn with the tailored outfit.

Now that warm weather is here, most women carry their gloves rather than wear them which gives rise to the belief that a glove in the hand is worth two on the hand. We say, "a glove in the hand" because women who carry their gloves usually lose one of them. It is always more satisfactory to clasp gloves together when carrying them, for when one loses one glove one feels like the small boy who said, "It's bette to find a whole worm in an apple than half a worm —if you've eaten the other half."

JOE M'GINNITY IS GOING STRONG YET

Veteran Pitcher Has Won Two Games in as Many Starts.

DUBUQUE, Ia., May 20—"The pins get wobbly," says Mr. McGinnity, "but the old wing still is there."

For the benefit of the young people be it said that Mr. McGinnity is none other than that selfsame "Iron Man" Joe, who, in the closing days of the 19th century climbed into his first major league baseball uniform.

Nine seasons "Ironman" McGinnity pitched his fast ball to good effect, often working in 50 games or more, going the route in both ends of a double-header, earning his sobriquet by the strength of his arm and the tirelessness of his massive physique.

And today Joe still is pitching ball, good ball, in the Mississippi Valley league. In 1923 he piloted and pitched Dubuque to a pennant, and came back this year as manager and half owner.

McGinnity's record this year is two games pitched and two games won, with the frost scarcely out of the ground and many an "old timer" ten years his junior complaining about not being ready yet to go the distance.

The other day every old lady in Dubuque rose and screamed shrill cheers as "Ironman" Joe outpitched young Johnny Welch, of the Marshalltown Ansons, the boy twirler of the league, who is but 18.

Against Rock Island Joe not only pitched, but started a batting rally with a lusty two-bagger.

But Joe doesn't care much about batting.

"The pins are a bit wobbly," said the veteran, referring to his bowed nether limbs that haven't missed the feel of a pair of baseball stockings in 30 years.

"I am still able to show the youngsters a few things about pitching. Why, the other day they touched me up for 13 hits, but I kept them to three runs."

Emil Yde of the Pirates, is one hurler who has got off to a poor start this season. Yde, in his first three starts, lost as many games as he did all last year, when he topped the hurlers in both leagues with 18 victories and but three defeats.

BILLY EVANS SAYS:

CASE OF MAYS.

Pitching is perhaps the most precarious position on the ball field.

Incidentally, pitching is most vital to a club's success. The power of a team can largely be measured by the strength of its pitching staff.

When I was in Orlando, Fla., this spring, I had a chat with Carl Mays, former star pitcher of the American League. Last season with the Cincinnati Reds he was one of the most effective hurlers in the National League.

Mays never looked in better shape and was cutting loose with the ball in mid-season form.

"He was the most useful man on the staff last season," remarked Manager Jack Hendricks." He was a great starter and an equally good relief pitcher."

It was apparent that Hendricks was banking strongly on Mays for another big year.

Just prior to the opening of the season something went wrong with Mays' run. He has been unable to throw a ball for several weeks. It is feared he is through.

MANAGER'S WOE

Infielders and outfielders, and in some cases catchers, have continued to star after suffering arm injuries, but pitchers seldom survive the ordeal with any degree of success.

One snap of the arm, one pitched ball, put Mays out of the running as a big leaguer, temporarily, at least, if not for good.

That is what a manager is constantly up against relative to the most important asset of his ball club, pitching.

"If I get the pitching and I should get it, I will be up there," remarked Manager Robinson of the Brooklyn club when I met him in the south.

Pitcher Burleigh Grimes held out until the last moment and didn't get much spring work. As a result he was not ready at the opening of the season.

The great Dazzy Vance, while he has been able to win, has not pitched the ball of which he is capable.

So far Robinson hasn't got the pitching he expected, as a result his club has got away to a slow start.....

Pitching is the thing. However, a club that has the batting punch as supplied by Wheat, Fournier and Brown must be reckoned with. When the Brooklyn pitching arrives the club will be most troublesome.

THE UNUSUAL

Losing a ball game through a club making nine runs in the eighth and seven runs in the ninth was an experience the Cleveland and Detroit clubs recently underwent.

Cleveland had only a one run lead when Chicago broke loose in the eight to a 12-4 victory, so the rout was not so discouraging.

Detroit, however, went into the ninth inning leading, 8 to 3, only to be beaten, 10 to 8. That was a terrible blow.

In those two games, two pinch-hitters had an unusual experience. Elsh, batting for Chicago against Cleveland, walked twice on eight straight balls. Rice of St. Louis in the Detroit game, hit safely twice.

Hank Severeid, the other pinch-hitter used by St. Louis, connected for a home run with two on the bases.

A seven-run rally in the ninth, defeating a club leading by five runs, will rank as one of the toughest breaks of the year for the Tygers.

It certainly is the unusual for a pinch hitter to get two singles in the same inning and theo ther pinch-swinger to connect for a home run.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The Central Ontario League was due to get away today, with Peterboro playing at Kingston and Oshawa clashing with Belleville in the Quinte City. The spring training has afforded little chance to get a line on teams, so that prophesies as to the results of today's fixtures are nothing more than guesses.

* * * * * * * * *

Kingston and the Petes have each played one exhibition game, the Ponies being beaten 3 to 2 on Saturday by the Circle Six juniors, while the Petes swamped the Cobourg D. and O. team, 24 to 2. These results mean little or nothing in furnishing dope on the league race, although the exploit of the Circle Six in beating the Ponies was a surprise. Batstone and company were at full strength and the game was umpired by Joe Dalley, the Ponies' manager, so the Kingston seniors were left without an alibi. Circle Six fielded almost identically the same team as was defeated by the Lakeviews in the junior race last season, and will undoubtedly be keen contenders for the Provincial honours.

* * * * * * * * *

It may be that the barring of Ouellet will convince Belleville that the Quinte crew have more pitching strength than they realized. There has always been a suspicion around the circuit that Ouellet was so willing to pitch that nobody else got a chance to show his wares. Hughie Keon, the former Tweed twirler, who has been with the Trunks for several seasons, looked like a mighty sweet pitcher in the intermediate series, and he may prove a surprise in this year's race.

* * * * * * * * *

Peterboro should have a good hockey season next year, seeing that not only all of last winter's splendid team are still here but the squad has received two welcome additions in the persons of Babe Bogardis of Port Colborne and Bruce Cox, who hails from the same hockey nursery that developed Bert McLeod, Collingwood. Both are forwards. Bogardis has been regarded for several seasons as one of the most effective players in the fruit belt group. He is a fast skater and a good scorer. Cox, although just past the junior limit, has been one of the mainstays of the Collingwood team for several years, a sixty-minute man with the ability to get goals. With two such clever forwards added to last year's team the S. P. A. winners should have a line-up that will cause a lot of trouble for the opposition next winter.

* * * * * * * * *

Fans should not fail to remember that the local opening of the Central Ontario League race takes place on Saturday with Belleville as the visiting team. It looks like a big season in the Central loop, and Peterboro's 1925 team should have the backing of the fans generally. Saturday's game will be the only home fixture for several weeks, as the Petes play games in Belleville and Oshawa next week and do not show at home again until June 6, when the Kingston Ponies will pay their first visit of the season here.

100-YARD DASH

Johnny Ward's Challenge Has Been Accepted.

Great interest has taken place in the announcement that a handicap 100-yard dash will be run at the benefit game between Thistle and De Laval on Thursday evening at King Edward Park.

Johnny Ward, the prominent all-round athlete, has issued a challenge to all soccer players by giving each and any one five yards in the hundred. This has been taken up by Hugh Richmond, R. Dawson, A. Williams (Thistle) and Art Read and Jack Chambers (Woollens)—six runners altogether.

Johnny Ward plays with the De Laval.

LEAD LEAGUE IN RUNS BUT THAT'S ALL

At this writing Detroit and St. Louis lead the American League in the run-scoring department. And yet both clubs are quite a bit removed from the top of the heap. Poor pitching and inferior work afield have held the Tygers and Browns down.

HALE PLAYING GOOD GAME FOR MACKITES

Sammy Hale of the Athletics seems to have hit his stride at last. He's been putting up a nice game for Mack so far this season, his hitting having been especially hard and timely. He's done much to give the team a good start in the 1925 canter.

TROON, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—Mrs. C. K. Allen of Winnipeg, defeated Miss H. R. Ellison of Boston, 2 up and 1 to play in the British Ladies' Open Golf Championship.

Miss G. Lascelles, Melbourne, Australia, defeated Mrs. S. F. Jamieson, Ireland, 2 up.

Miss Doris Chambers, England, defeated Miss H. Robinson, Worcester, 3 and 1.

Miss D. R. Fowler, North Hants, beat Miss A. Croft, Ashford Manor, 3 and 2.

Miss Joy Winn, Aldeburgh, beat Miss P. Cosgrave, Stoke Poges, 7 and 5.

PRETENTIOUS RING PROGRAM SCHEDULED

With the Gibbons-Tunney, McTigue-Berlenbach, Wills-Weinert and Walker-Greb bouts on the card, it certainly looks like it's going to be a busy summer, pugilistically speaking, at least. Its been a long stretch since such a pretentious program has been offered ring followers.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Cutting the clubhead across the ball because of the drawn-in arms at the moment of impact may be caused by a too restricted back swing or by rigidity in arms and shoulders in the back swing is likely to develop. When the back swing is rigid, the forward swing is usually a stiff arm body jab. There being no throw of the clubhead, the club head is of course late to the ball. You sense this lateness and have a feeling that the clubhead is liable to be poked into the ground. To avoid that disaster you pull in the arms to let the clubhead through. The cure for all that is to keep relaxed in the back swing. Throw the clubhead back, catch it in the grip at the top then turn it. Take time enough to be rythmic.

Havelock Lodges Held Their Annual Church Parade to Knox Church.

HAVELOCK, May 20.—On Sunday evening the Oddfellows of Havelock Lodge No. 286 and Dorcas Rebekahs No. 98 held their annual church service in Knox church. Rev. J. Lennox, who was inducted into this pastorate last week, was the preacher and delivered a helpful and impressive sermon, basing his remarks on that part of Christ's sermon on the mount, as contained in the sixth chapter of Matthew, speaking of alms, prayer and fasting.

The church was filled to capacity, chairs having to be brought from the school to accomodate the large congregation. Representatives were present from Norwood and Campbellford lodges. Special music was rendered by the choir, Miss Winnifred Barlow and Mr. H. F. McNichol taking the solo parts in the anthem, "Our Saviour" very acceptably. A solo, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" was also rendered by Mrs. F. Quinn in a very pleasing manner.

CRICKET MATCH WON BY SCHOOL

T. C. S. Beat Peterborough C. C. By Twelve Runs on Replay.

BOWLING GOOD.

The Peterboro Cricket Club journeyed to Port Hope yesterday to play their match with Trinity College School which was postponed on account of rain on Saturday last.

Captain Charlie Thorpe won the toss and decided to bat first. The weather was beautifully fine, but there was a wind with a cool edge on it which has not worn off yet. The game resulted in a win for the School Peterboro scoring 68 runs, which total was passed with five School wickets down, though on continuing, two more wickets fell and stumps were drawn at the score of 80 for seven wickets.

Peterboro started out disastrously, losing two wickets in the second over, after which the score gradually mounted, thanks to valuable stands by Delafosse, Thorpe and Lewis, the latter of whom carried his bat out for a carefully played innings of thirteen. Charlie Thorpe was top scorer with 18 runs to his credit. The School fielding was splendid, and all chances given were taken. The bowling of Seagram was deadly, the first four and last two wickets falling to him for a total of 21 runs. Biggar also bowled well, getting three wickets for fourteen runs.

The School made a more auspicious start, scoring 31 runs before the first wicket fell. Lazier made the top score of 22 for the School, and other notable innings were contributed by Seagram 19, Biggar 12, and Boulton carrying his bat out for 10. The fielding of the Peterboro team was erratic at first, which, however, tightened up later on. G. R. Langley made the catch of the match, taking the ball a few inches above the ground at mid-on. The bowling honors of the Peterboro team fell to Col. Goodday, one of the schoolmasters, who consented to sub. for Dr. Hewitt, who was prevented at the last minute from making the trip. He took four wickets for 17, Lewis taking two for 20, and Thorpe one for 26.

Return Game Soon.

The match was thoroughly enjoyed by all, and the return match will take place at the Exhibition Grounds on Saturday, May 30, when it is hoped the tables will be turned.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA CONCERT

(By Jeanette)

The third annual concert by the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra was presented at the Grand Opera House last evening, before an audience which, while not unduly large in numbers, totalling hardly five hundred people, was extremely appreciative of the fine musical programme presented.

The orchestra was assisted by Mr. Norman Joliffe, bass baritone, of New York City, and Mr. Leo Smith, violoncellist, of Toronto. The selections by the visiting artists and the orchestra were met with enthusiastic appreciation and hearty applause was followed by a generous number of encores.

The programme, of an agreeable length, was varied and extremely interesting. Composition by classical masters and modern composers, in serious and light vein, were offered in a splendid assortment of vocal and instrumental music.

The orchestra was at its best last night, in a repetition of several of the musical numbers which have gained it a reputation in the city and a rendition of a charming group, entitled "The Forest Ranger's Courtship." The quality of brightness which is always manifest in the playing of the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra, the light touch and seeming enjoyment of their own music which adds so much to the attraction of their playing, was as apparent as usual last night. Under Professor Gliddon's skilful direction, every resource of the big ensemble was demonstrated to the very best advantage. With a splendid volume of true tone, the attention to small details which makes for perfection in any art, an instant precision in attack and release that left an impression of clear-cut excellence, particularly noticeable in the "Faust" number, and music bright and happy in tone, the orchestra lived up to the reputation it has made for itself as an aggregation of fine players.

The opening orchestral selection was the Overture from Schubert's opera, "Rosamunde," a well-played example of the poetic nature of the composer's music. This was followed by applause that brought a brief encore.

In the Grand Selection from Faust, the orchestra exhibited to perfection its grasp of tonal variations in a diversity of movements that progressed from grave to gay, from lively to severe." A splendid appreciation of the demands of an exacting selection was evident in the different portions of this number, which opened with a chorus of shivering strings, progressing to full orchestral resources of the woodwind, the brass and the cymbals. A cornet solo with horn accompaniment was a feature of Faust's own song, "Salve de more," and there was a flute overtone in a later bit. The full, rounded tone and smooth evenness of execution in the orchestra's playing was especially apparent in the bright, martial swing of "The Soldiers' Chorus."

The Idylle, "The Forest Ranger's Courstship," with sections entitled Forest Life, Foresters' Serenade, Wedding March, and Dance on the Greensward, was particularly attractive. In light, bright mood and quick tempo, it opened with a simulation of bird notes in a forest. The violins were especially apparent in the second movement, with the 'cellos and bass viols competing with the cornet in the third.

The final orchestral number, Von Suppe's Overture 'Banditenstreiche," (the song of the jolly robbers), was an odd, effective selection, with a swing to the gradually quickening measures, first the blare of the horns against the treble of high-pitched strings, then the voice of the clarinet sounding through the staccato rush of the violins.

A notable member of the orchestra was Mr. Leo Smith, 'cello soloist from Toronto, who added his music to that of the organization, playing every number with a watchful eye on the baton of Mr. Gliddon, who proved once again last night that he has that most-prized of qualities in a conductor, the art of gaining from his players the last bit of their attention and co-operation in his leadership.

Mr. Norman Joliffe, a former resident of the city, and incidentally the first vocal pupil registered at the present Conservatory of Music, was greeted with applause at his appearance and accorded enthusiastic encores for every number.

With the exception possibly of one encore, the singers programme was entirely new to his hearers, and was chosen, evidently, with a view to affording contrast and diversity in his vocal selections.

Mr. Joliffe's voice is an exceptionally fine bass baritone, rich, warm and true, even in texture, dramatic in effect his songs being given with a superb technical finish, easy delivery and intelligent interpretation.

He made a skilful use of vocal color, singing with a restraint that lightened his sonorous tones at times to an almost tenor-like timbre. An odd attribute of Mr. Joliffe's voice is its flowing smoothness that leaves an impression of legato, "bound together" evenness. There were no apparent breaks to the evenly rendered melodies of the various solos.

Mr. Joliffe's vocal programme opened with an aria from Faust, "Valentine's Farewell," sung with a fine body of robust tone. In the encore the lovely little song, "Duna," was demonstrated effectively the artist's grasp of a contrasting lightness in atmosphere.

The rich fibre of his voice and intellectual handling was apparent in the "Nocturne" solo, and in its contrasting companion, "De Captaine of de Marguerite," one of Geoffrey O'Hara's bits of French-Canadian dialect, done inimitably, with vim and vigour to the "talking" stanzas of the nautical ditty by the boastful mariner, brief, jaunty encore followed the applause for this number.

In the final group was "Lethe," a peculiar song of forgetfulness and slumber, done with 'cello obligato, by Mr. Smith, and another contrast in "Fuzzy Wuzzy," the Tommy Atkins story in verse of the native Soudanese soldier. The artistic manner in which Mr. Joliffe uses his voice, his admiral phrasing and fine resonant tones were particularly apparent in this, and the encore which followed, an odd selection, "The Blind Plowman," sung by request. In this, the song of the man whose eyes were taken "that my soul might see" was a ringing, vibrant quality that made the rich tones particularly impressive.

One of the most interesting portions of a thoroughly interesting musical entertainment was the violincello playing of Mr. Leo Smith. This artist whose music is always splendid, surpassed himself last night. In the darkened atmosphere in which he played, with the stage lights dimmed to a twilight softness, he seemed to be inspired. His beautiful numbers were accorded renewed applause. His first trio demonstrated splendidly a varying treatment of stringed music. "Allegro Spiritoso," was a bright-hued bit of musical painting with faint, minor-toned intervals. "Romanie" was a gay, vivid dance measure, with Hungarian warmth in its swift tempo and picked strings. The descriptive music of "Vito," one of Popper's charming compositions, fantastic, sweet, played with a dancing bow, and a dainty final tremolo passage, brought renewed applause, that drew from the musician one of his favorite numbers, "Le Cygne" (The Swan) with its dreamy, haunting melody.

In his final suite, presenting the music of Old England and Ireland in a modern setting, Mr. Smith played "The Sky Shepherdess" (Old English), a mild selection with a homely atmosphere and two bits of old Irish Melody in "The Gentle Maiden," with a strong reminiscence of "St. Patrick's Day," in its harmonies, and "Top o' the Cork Road," a jolly, humorous, jig-like number. To the applause which followed these, Mr. Smith gave one of the long-bowed, smoothly flowing pieces which seem to be favorites with him, a mild-toned andante number, with a recurrent refrain.

Accompanists for the evening both of whom played in excellent fashion, were Miss Olga Fowler and Mr. Charles Peaker.

PAVING

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

Paving was broached by the City Council on Monday night.

Say, I'd like to catch the fellow who invented paving streets. Perhaps you know just how I feel about it. The trouble that it brings you, many other trouble beats and if you have some youngsters, you won't doubt it.

From morning until evening they are digging up the clay, or sending dust a-flying through the air. Just like a bunch of youngsters who will wallow in their play, are men who ply this trade, that seems unfair.

They pile their bricks in wallways that will tempt a tiny tot, for youngsters, as you know, are wont to climb. "Well' build a house," says Tommy. Then they do it, like as not, and they're busy from the morn to supper time

When homeward come the youngsters who have helped to pave the street, poor mother knows, right quickly, where they've been. There's mud upon their clothing and there's mud upon their feet and of course they drag the bloomin' stuff right in.

Yep, the paving gang is troublesome and yet it's got to be. The drawback is that mother is enslaved. It means a lot of muddiness while going on, but gee, we're glad to use the highway when it's paved.

Bad Crop Reports Raise Grain Prices at Chicago

CHICAGO, May 20. — (Canadian Press).—Adverse crop reports from the domestic winter wheat belt, together with unexpected upturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool led to an early advance to-day by the wheat market here. The fact that sterling exchange had reached a new high record, the topmost point since 1914, tended also to lift wheat values. On the bulge in wheat price, however, standing orders to sell July delivery were met with, and this circumstance was responsible for something of re-action all around. The opening, ½ to 3-4 higher, May 160½ to 170, and July 154½ to 155, was followed by a sag to 168¼ for May and 154 for July.

Corn and oats derived firmness from wheat, after opening at 1-8 off to 5-8 up, July 116¼ to 116 3-8. The corn market continued to average higher.

Oats started at 1-8 to ¼ advance, July 44 7-8 to 45, and held near to the initial range.

Provisions were responsive to the decline in hog values.

May wheat advanced 4 5-8c to $1.91¾, with deferred futures ranging from 5-8 to 3 1-8c up. Coarse grains followed the trend of wheat, all recording gains.

HOOT GIBSON'S NEXT PROMISES BIG THRILL.

The star is supported by a cast of which Marian Nixon is leading woman and which contains such well-known portrayers of Western types as Josie Sedgwick, Frank Campeau, Charles K. French, G. Raymond Nye, William Steele, Fred Humes and Tote Ducrow. Also a big bunch of Universal Ranch Riders take part in the picture to contribute daring horsemanship and true western atmosphere.

"The Saddle Hawk" was wrtiten especially for Gibson by Raymond L. Schrock and Edward Sedgwick, who have collaborated in several of the Gibson pictures. Sedgwick also is the director.

"The Saddle Hawk" was filmed in Eastern Oregon where some of the biggest beef cattle ranches in the country are to be found, and the entertainment furnished by the rapid action story is enhanced by the beauties of the country that was photographed as background.

The opening of the story finds a young herder of sheep employed by an aged Mexican. By a series of strange developments the young sheep herder becomes known far and wide as a man of desperate determination. Entrusted with the duty of escorting a beautiful young woman to her father's ranch, the young rider kills a man in a duel, but the girl is captured by the leader of a band of outlaws.

With a price on his head, sought by the sheriff and distrusted by the girl's father, the young horseman scorns danger to himself and sets about to rescue the girl, a task which necessitates among other hazards that of boarding the outlaws in their own headquarters.

The picture is said to be replete with thrills, including a desperate hand-to-hand fight between two men on galloping horses and a battle between outlaws and a sheriff's posse.

AT THE CAPITOL

BUCK JONES COMING IN "THE TRAIL RIDER."

A Pulse-Stirring Tale of the Old West.

It wasn't so many years ago that the strife between the cattle men of the northern and the southern ranges was savage and long drawn out—the reason being that nearly all Texas cattle were infected with the Texas cattle fever tick. That disease was almost always fatal to cattle, and when the Texas herds started North, Kansas ranchers barred the way at the border. Many a cowpuncher "went West with his boots on" during the resultant gunfights.

The powerful story of "The Trail Rider," written by George Washington Ogden, has that old cattle war as a basis. It is a tale that develops thrilling situations and gives the dashing Buck Jones ample opportunities to show that the man who lived longest was the fellow whose gun leaped from its holster first. The escape from the forefront of a herd of stampeding cattle is wildly pulse quickening.

It is a William Fox production, and will be shown at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday.

GERMAN FAIRS HELP BUSINESS

Many Cities Are Now Holding Exhibition of Their Goods.

GOOD RESULTS

COLOGNE, Germany, May 20.—The epidemic of fairs which is sweeping over Europe has struck Cologne, which has just held its third exposition in less than two years. Time was when German enterprise in fairs was limited to the old, established fair at Leipsic, with Frankfort as a second rate contender. Now there are regular spring and autumn fairs in Leipsic, Frankfort, Berlin, Koenigsberg, Breslau, Danzig, Cologne, and several other cities.

Cologne argues on its behalf that it is the door to western Europe, the best emporium for the placing of export orders for Belgium, France, Holland, and England. It argues further that it is the best clearing house for the industries of the Ruhr; that an exhibition of sample products of these numerous industries in one central place is both good business for the exhibitors, and a convenient method for the prospective purchaser.

It is but natural that the Cologne fair has as its specialty an exhibition of everything connected with modern heating. The Ruhr Valley is the great coal and lignite basin of Germany, and many and diverse are the inventors and firms occupying themselves with the problem of national heating. This year's fair abounded in heat-saving devices, such as small stoves producing heat economically.

The promoters of the fair say that this years' business was good. There have been numerous buyers from Belgium, Holland, and England, and even some from France.

B.A.C. CLUB HAS SPECIAL MEETING

Norman Joliffe Is Guest of Honor at Gathering—Last in '09.

A fitting close to the visit to this city of Norman Jolliffe, the eminent bassobaritone who contributed to the programme at the Symphony Orchestra concert, earlier in the evening of Tuesday, was a long delaye l meeting, beginning at 11.30 p.m. of the "B. A. C. Club," with which Mr. Jolliffe was connected and a valuable member at the time of his residence in the city many years ago. At the time Mr. Jolliffe was spending some time endeavoring to break into the newspaper profession, but fortunately for him he found another occupation in singing and instructing others He carries on a studio, in New York City, and is one of the foremost teachers in the profession, but reaching such an altitude has left him the same cordial, cheery and friendly man he was when he left Peterborough.

The "B. A. C." Club was a choice collection of young men, held together by means of friendly comradeship. Originally of twenty-five members, one by Peterborough. Last night,after the concert, some of the originals got together at Hoopers, and with two or three visitors entertained the able member. All especially Mr. Jolliffe, enjoyed the occasion. With all formality, the minutes of the previous meeting, that of December 2nd, 1909 were read and attested by those present, who included Messrs. N. Jolliffe, R. L. Dobbin, W. A. Richardson, W. D. Campbell, W. R. Turner, A. H. Boomer, R. P. Best, R. S. Merrill, Geo. Robertson and J. E. Middleton, Rev. W. H. Young, Paul Trebilcock and T. P. Hooper were taken in as visitors, a special privilege and benediction.

After supper all present fell to recalling incidents and the treasurer told how the Club, before going into a state of coma, extricated itself from certain financial involvements of an embarrassing nature. They went out, and selecting two young men presumably with coin in their pockets, initiated both and used the initiation fee to pay the debts of the Club. As a piece of financial strategy the idea is recommended to organizations like situated.

The gathering adjourned about half-past two of the morning, the intervening hours having been spent in a furore of song, laughter and reminiscence. Mr. Jolliffe contributed songs ad libitum which means as many as you like and a few to carry home, Harold Young ably and dexterously accompanying. Any intention that Bill Campbell had to warble a few ditties evaporated, their being too much field for comparison. Each member had something to tell and told it. A cordial invitation for the Club to hold its next meeting in New York will be considered. Possibly the election of six more candidates for membership would cover expenses, partially.

DISCRIMINATION INJURED CANADA

F. C. Cornell Tells Ocean Rates Committee at Investigation Today

STOPPED EXPORT

OTTAWA, May 20 (Canadian Press)—F. C. Cornell, of Montreal, former Secretary of the Canadian National Millers' Association was the first witness before the Ocean Rates Committee of the House of Commons this morning. He said that for years a discriminatory rate had been in effect from New York which made the rate on flour from Canadian ports eight cents a hundredweight higher than the rate from New York on United States flour. Millers had fought this differential from 1919 to 1924 before it was removed. He believed that it retarded Canada's exports which were estimated as running 30 per cent higher since the discrimination was removed. The rate on flour, with minor variations, was now equal from United States and Canada ports. Canadian mills could produce 21,000,000 barrels of flour for export. Last year Canada's exports were 12,000,000 barrels.

SEARCH DESERT FOR FIRST MAN

Scientist Thinks That Adam Lived on Mongolian Plains.

EXPLORE THE GOBI

By RANDALL GOULD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1925, by United Press)

PEKING, China, May 20. —(United Press).— Was Adam a Mongolian?

Roy Chapman Andrews, who first learned that dinosauers laid eggs, is treking back to the scene of past explorations to find out.

He heads an expedition which, prepared at every point, is ready to sift all the evidence at whatever cost of time and hardship.

Two hundred camels are plodding across the desert rocks and sands in this high enterprise. Special motor cars with extra thick balloon tires chug through uncharted territory on the same quest.

When the summer sun is at its hottest, Andrews and his fellow-scientists will be at work. They will continue when the season has changed and the bitter cold winds sweep down. This, they say, is to be a fight for information which will go on to the finish.

All through last winter the party was busy at work in Peking, preparing to set forth in the spring. Last time that Andrews set forth, at the head of the Third Asiatic Expedition of two years back, there was no particular notion of what might be found. Baring of intimate details in the family life of the dinosauer was as big a surprise to the scientists as to anybody else.

But for many years Andrews and his associates have held to the theory that not only the first animav life, but man himself, probably came from Asia. The work of the Third Asiatic Expedition has opened the way for specialization on this newest hunt.

Winter before last, two Jesuit priests quietly slipped into Peking with evidence to prove that they had found a "kitchen midden," or prehistoric dump heap, in Mongolia, which proved beyond question through its ancient stone implements that a Stone Age man lived in Mongolia. This gave Andrews' theory further substantiation.

"No one can tell what we may find," said Andrews before setting forth from Peking, "but we know at least that man has been in Mongolia during the period in which we are interested, and the evidence seems to point to the fact that Mongolia harbored the very first man of all. Our problem is to find out something about him.

"Perhaps we shall hunt five years without turning up a thing about the first man—but we'll have found something else of interest, in that case, just as we unexpectedly ran across the dinosauer eggs.

"The present expedition will not work on any period as far back as the dinosauer. We intend to probe a period about a million to a million and a half years ago; a period when the 'missing link' between the root stock and present day man must have lived.

"Our investigations so far indicate that Mongolia must have been an ideal place for the development of man. It was a savannah-like country, neither tropical nor heavily forested, where man could have a healthy struggle for existence. He could hunt the wooly rhinoceros and the giant ostrich, develop his stone implements and weapons and work out his racial history."

Andrews pointed out that European investigations have shown influxes of man from outside, and it is belief that these outsiders went from Asia—a land which is practically virgin territory for the scientist.

It will not be an easy task to find remains of so fragile a creature as man, but some there must be, Andrews is convinced. All Mongolia has a huge granite floor with varying depths of dirt above. At some points this floor dips into basin formation. The basins are closed, and in them there are many fossilized remains. Somewhere, it is hoped, the remains of the first man or of his immediate descendants have been preserved.

The personnel of the party incudes a skilled paleobotanist, geologists, ornithologists, photographers and many other specialists. Nothing has been left to chance. Andrews believes that if ancient man is in Mongolia, he will be found; if he is not, the party will still uncover enough valuable scientific material to warrant the trouble being taken by the American Museum of Natural History and other sponsors.

SPECIAL SERVICES ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

If Man Had Not Sinned Was Rev. W. Allan's Subject

The services being conducted by Rev Willian Allan in St. Paul's Church are carried on this week with unabated interest on the part of the large congregations. And last night's audience was no exception to the rule.

The subject—"What Would Have Been the Result for the Race, if, When Tempted, Man Had Not Sinned?"—had for its text the words found in the second chapter of Genesis, verses 16 and 17,—"And the Lord commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat. But of the tree of the Knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it; for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die."

In a few sentences Mr. Allen gave a resume of Monday evening's address and its conclusions, telling of man's mechanical make-up, and his liability to sin, and thus his failure. Otherwise, if man had not sinned the world had not known sin and death; and how that God created man, knowing that he would sin through disobedience to His divine will, through this making man free to go his own way, either right or wrong, with or without putting his faith and trust in God, his creator.

Mr. Allan followed this intorduction by showing how, when man failed, in the test which was an absolute necessity in view of the nature of things; death in his relation to God resulted. so that the New Testament discribes man's condition as "being dead in trespasses and in sin." Then followed the sorrow and suffering to which humanity seems to be heir. He said "The inference to be drawn is that if man had been obedient he never should have known death, but would have enjoyed life instead." The teaching of Scripture bears this out.

The just man having failed, God sent His Son, Jesus Christ, not only to redeem the race from the ruin of the fall, but to prove that He had not asked too much from man in the Garden of Eden. We are told that God sent forth His Son, "born of a woman, made under the law." For a summary of the law with its precepts, promises, and penalties, we find this in the 10th chapter of Luke, verses 25-28, where Jesus said to the young lawyer, "This do and thou shalt live." The reward of perfect obedience is life without tasting death. Jesus was tested in all points like as we are, yet without sin. He said, "Which of you convinceth me of sin?" He was without sin, being the perfect Son of God. If the Word of God means anything to us, it must be that Jesus had the opportunity of entering heaven without tasting death. This He had, as is shown on the Mount of Transfiguration. We are told He was transfigured before them. We had never realized what our life would have been, had there been no sin and death. The first three chapters of Genesis deal with the virgin birth, and the vicarious atonement. All creation, the speaker explained, i pitched in the minor key. Paul says, "The whole creation groaneth and travaileth," but the wilderness will blossom as the rose. Not a figurative speech, he said, but a reality; everything will take in beauty as we put our trust in God. All that can happen in our imperfect world has brough sorrow and suffering, and that was caused by man's failure to obey the law of God. It has been said that God did not give man a square deal. God asked man to do something he was unable to do, alone. God never asks us to do the impossible. If Jesus was born of human parents, He was naturally like other men. He was made under the law, and so was tested and lived a blameless and perfect life. We should be like the man who said to the apostle, "Sir, we would see Jesus."

Two Scriptures are very interesting. In Hebrews 12,1-2, we are exhorted to look unto Jesus, "the author and finisher of our faith, who, for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, dispising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the majesty on high." Now, the word "for" is somewhat misleading if we are not careful to see what it really means. The Greek clearly teaches that the meaning of the word is not "in order to get," but "instead of." Jesus on the Mount of Transfiguration had offered Him the reward of obedience to the law—the right to enter heaven without tasting death. Instead of taking the joy that was set before Him He endured the cross in order that, being "the corn of wheat" of which He speaks in John 12, He might, by falling into the ground and dying might ultimately bear much fruit. If man ahd not failed, we had had no cross to bear. It is natural to sorrow, but we should not be as those without hope. Let us seek the reward of redemption. Let us take comfort in the hope of the return of a Comforter and Redeemer. Mystery of the Scriptures is that which has been concealed, but is now revealed to us. We shall be changed—it is still a transfiguration. Many Christians are blind today to the real meaning of obedience to God's revealed will; there is far too little study of His work.

Concluding his address, Mr. Allan said: Had the first man not sinned the entire race would have entered into an eternal state of security and bliss by the gateway of transfiguration. There would then have been no valley of the shadow. Let us lobk forward to the coming of the Son of God, and thereby gain an entrance into the new Jerusalem.

SUBJECT FOR TO-NIGHT

The subject should interest all students of our Westminster Confession of Faith; "Does Predestination Mean That Some Have Been Foreordained to Be Lost?" Mr. Allan will address the congregation in this subject. Miss Greta Lebar will sing "Face to Face."

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Good Attendance to Hear Report On Convention by Mrs. Geo. Henderson

St. Andrew's W.M.S. held its monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon, with a good attendance.

The president opened the meeting with prayer, while Mrs. W. White took the Bible reading. After the regular business was attended to, the ladies listened to a well delivered report, by Mrs. G. W. Henderson, who was a delegate from St. Andrew's to the Annual Provincial Convention of the W.M.S., which was held recently in London, Ont. Mrs. Henderson's report was very interesting and instructive.

A splendid paper, read by Miss Best, on Mission Work in China, dealt with the progress made in that country through the missions.

Mrs. W. R. Widdess then contributed a beautiful vocal solo, which was thoroughly enjoyed.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison, after which Mrs. M. Kerr pronounced the Benediction.

GOVERNMENT AIMING TO CUT COST OF IMMIGRATION BY COMBINING EFFORTS OF SEPARATE SERVICES

Hon. J. A. Robb Announces Negotiations Under Way With Two Railways.

WORK DUPLICATED

Migration to United States Again Discussed—48,000 Returned Last Year.

OTTAWA, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—The Department of Immigration is negotiating with representatives of the two big Canadian railway systems to reduce the cost of immigration and colonization activities abroad. This statement was made by Hon. J. A. Robb, in the House of Commons yesterday, just as the House adjourned after three hours' discussion of salaries of the Department of Immigration.

There had been much criticism of the alleged duplication of work as between the Canadian Government agencies and the Canadian National Railways colonization agents overseas. Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, said it was "the height of hypocrisy" that Canada should have three different immigration services, that of the Government and those of the two railways.

He believed the C.N.R. sold more lands when their expenditure on colonization was $100,000 a year than now, when it was $750,000 a year.

Mr. Robb's remarks, just as the item was being voted, implied that negotiations were now going on to co-ordinate the three services and eliminate duplicate expenditure wherever possible.

Exodus to United States.

The migration of Canadians to the United States came up again during the debate which was on a civil government vote of $300,770 for the Immigration Department. The item carried. The Opposition claimed that the exodus had been so great in the past few years that a large part of Canada's population was now settled there.

Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, reported that some 48,000 had come back in the past year, and that there was now a steady drift back to Canadian residence of those who sought their fortunes in the United States.

Col. J. Arthurs (Conservative, Parry Sound), reading from a report of the United States Department of Labor, gave emigration from Canada to the United States between 1899 and 1910, as 179,226; during the years from 1911 to 1920 as 742,000. During the past four years, he said, 436,898 Canadians had gone across the border. He gave the figures of returning Canadians as 265,173 between 1902 and 1920. During the WINNIPEG, May 21 — Convicted on the evidence of three youngsters, who told the court of a carpenter shop robbery they had staged later selling the stolen property to the accused, Thomas Wilson, who was termed by the court a "modern fagan," was yesterday sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Montreal Woman Says Ernest Stockholm Shot Himself—Kissed Her Hands.

HAD BEEN INTIMATE.

MONTREAL, May 21. — Ernest Stockham, for three years her intimate friend, kissed her two hands through an opening in the slats of the shutter of her bedroom window, pointed a pistol at her, and then shot himself, about midnight Saturday, according to Mrs. George William McIntosh Reay of 653 Lasalle Road, Verdun, on the witness stand, before Coroner McMahon, and a jury yesterday morning.

Mrs. Reay and her husband are held in $10,000 bail on the Coroner's order.

To the remark by the Coroner, "We begin to believe that you shot him," Mrs. Reay replied: "No, sir. I do not know how to use a revolver—I had no reason to shoot him."

She gave evidence of the entering of her house by Stockham through a window earlier on the evening in question; of his having upset the bed and dining rooms and rummaged in her bureau and boxes, and her and her husband's trunks.

Stockham had threatened her with the revolver, she said, then threatened to kill himself. He left the house at 9.30, taking the pistol with him, but had come back at 11.30 to return it to her. He again changed his mind and agreed to go home. Then after a feint at killing himself on the dyke opposite her home, according to her story, he came to the side of the house outside her room and there ended his life before her eyes.

Questioned by W. M. Couper, K. C. counsel for herself and her husband, witness denied that she or her husband had killed Stockham.

Failure by Reay to bring to the police a second revolver, said to be useless, led to his being rebuked by the coroner. Reay replied that he had not understood the order. Mrs. Reay stated that she believed the pistol with which Stockham killed himself to be her husband's.

Evidence by two landladies at whose houses Stockham had been a roomer showed that Mr.. Reay had called on him almost daily since October last.

Asked by the coroner if her intimacy with Stockham had not been the cause of trouble between herself and her husband, Mrs. Reay replied "He used to scold me, but I did not pay any attention to him."

THAT THERE ARE MANY WHEELS TURNING in the movement to get ready for the Made-in-Peterborough Fair is evidenced by a general review of the hustle and bustle going on throughout the city. The tidings of the Fair are being broadcasted for hundreds of miles around, and thousands of people are coming to see Peterborough and to this Exhibition. It is easily predicted that several times the number of people will pass through the turnstiles at this Fair than ever passed before. The citizens have been most generous in contributing to its success. Mr. Brownlee, the blind basket maker, has a booth at the Fair, and has donated 10 per cent. of the proceeds of his sales to the Health Association. It is a spirit such as this that will make the Fair a success and will enable the Health Association to continue its good work. Two Brothers in Hull Ask Court to Award Heavy Damages for Injuries.

BACKING ENGINE

HULL, Que., May 21.—Judge Demers, in Superior Court, yesterday reserved judgment in the rehearing of two claims for damages against the Canadian Pacific Railway brought by Maurice and Alphee Bertrand, of Hull, arising out of a level railway crossing in August, 1922, when Hector and Lucien Ouelette were killed and the two plaintiffs injured by a backing engine which hit a motor truck driven by Alphee Bertrand.

Maurice is suing for $30,000 and Alphee for $15,000 damages.

The re-hearing was made necessary by the recent verdict of the Privy Council in the Ouiette damage action, resulting out of the same accident, which upheld the trial judge and reversed the ruling of the Supreme Court, thereby finding that the railway company had been negligent in not having a look-out man on the backing engine.

Judge Demers, in reserving judgment, said that he would be bound by the ruling of the Privy Council.

All Night Sitting to Discuss the Scottish Poor Law Bill.

ENDED IN ROW.

LONDON, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons rose at six o'clock this morning after an all-night sitting, which at times became stormy. The business at hand was the discussion of the Scottish Poor Law Bill, and this gave the Clydeside members an opportunity to deliver lengthy statements concerning unemployment in Scotland.

The session ended in a row due to the Conservatives charging the Laborites with breaking their agreement with the Government whips that the sitting would not be unduly prolonged. Tempers on both sides rose but the Speaker ordered a closure and the bill was passed.

Wife Of Turkish Prince Won't Return To Harem

BERLIN, May 2. — "Woman's place is no longer in the home." Thus spoke Princess Abdul Kadir when the police found her at a Budapest Hotel, at the behest of Prince Abdul, and demanded that she return to the Turk harem.

She did however surrender jewelry valued at $9,000,000 crowns which the prince claimed she had taken along with her when she departed—he called it a case of kidnapping—from the Turk's fireside, in the company of two men friends.

PATENTED LAND TAX WANTED BY WESTERN TOWNS

Municipalities Deprived of Revenues on Properties Held by Soldiers' S. Board.

ASK GOVERNMENT

Schools and Public Utilities Operated With Difficulty on Straitened Funds.

TTAWA, May 21 (Canadian Press).—The right to tax patented soldiers' settlement lands, in Saskatchewan and Alberta, which have been taken over by the Soldiers' Settlement Board, was asked by a deputation which waited upon Premier Mackenzie King, Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, and Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture Wednesday. The further right to tax all unoccupied patented lands held by the board and all patented lands sold by the board to civilians was also asked. Consideration of these requests by the Government was promised.

The delegates, J. J. Lamb and E. Pinchbeck, representing the rural municipalities of Saskatchewan and Alberta respectively, were heard, in camera.

It was pointed out to the Prime Minister and members of his cabinet, it was stated afterwards, that when the Soldiers' Settlement Board was appointed, it was given authority to purchase lands from private parties who were owners and title holders, and re sell these lands upon the amortised repayment plan to returned soldiers who wished to establish themselves as self-supporting farmers.

Objects Achieved.

The primary objects of the board met with general approval and there was no doubt that it had been instrumental in placing a large number of returned soldiers upon the land; and, through the financial arrangement provided, had given the men an opportunity to establish themselves as farmers, which could not be provided by any private corporation.

At the same time, Messrs. Lamb

4.4 BEER MAKES BOW HERE WITH A MINIMUM OF FLURRY AND WITHOUT RUSH TO BUY

None of Expected Line-ups Were Seen at Peterborough Hotels.

PERMITS DELAYED.

Noon Time Business Taxed Staffs and Tables—Opinions Divided.

The long heralded 4.4 made its debut in Peterborough at 8.30 this morning when it went on sale at the Munro House. By nine o'clock the beer could be obtained also at the Windsor House and the Albion in Ashburnham.

Due to the fact that wholesalers were delayed because of the non-arrival of permits the beverage was not obtainable at 7.00, the official opening hour.

Four hotels had permits but no beer and two wholesalers had beer but no permits. The morning mail brought the missing licenses and deliveries were made at once.

There were many dropping in at the various hostelries from time to time wearing an expression of inquiry which quickly changed to one of disappointment when the sad news was conveyed.

However at 8.30 all cravings were satisfied and the three hotels mentioned above are doing a capacity business.

Al Johnston has his beer on draught as well as in bottles and his staff is kept busy supplying the popular demand. Mr. Fisher of the Munro house found that he has to turn in and help as his two assistants could not keep pace with the appetities of the consumers. The whole staff was rushing about, seven tables were occupied to capacity and a roaring trade was going on. At noon there were five waiters busy and a constant stream of thirsty workers passed in, critically tested the beverage, remarked on its goodness or badness according to their opinions, and went off to work.

Mr. O'Toole of the Albion reports that he also is doing a good stroke of business. In fact the industry of the three hotels is considerably greater than it has ever been since O.T.A. came into force.

Mr. Brooks was fortunate enough to get his permit early this morning where as the other wholesale dealers have been forced to wait.

Empress Has Permit

A permit has been received by the Empress hotel but the beer will not be offered for sale till the beverage room is renovated.

Permits have not yet been received by the Montgomery hotel or King's, but as repair operations have not been entirely completed in those places as yet the delay is not so keenly felt.

Mr. King avows that if the permit does not arrive today he will not commence selling 4.4 till Saturday. "I am just superstitious enough not to start anything like that on a Friday," he said.

When business does open up in this hotel, patrons will certainly find ideal surroundings as Mr. King is sparing no effort to have his beverage room beautiful and well equipped.

Opinions Vary

Opinions regarding the new drink are varied as some believe that it is all that could be desired while others are avowedly dissatisfied and deplore the absence of kick.

One said "As far as I can see it's no better than the beer we've had. I've had two bottles and they gave me heart burn."

This would seem to indicate that the liquid was rather potent.

A jovial farmer seated himself at a table and said "Bring on some of that new forty four."

Another made the cryptic remark "Mother's day was a couple of weeks ago; mine's today."

Didn't See the Point

A new joke on the Scotchman has gone the rounds. It appeared that Sandy believed that the alcoholic content would be forty four per cent and he didn't see the point till this morning. Which was tough on Sandy.

A number of gentlemen presumably from the rural sections have made a special trip to the city this morning in order to appraise the value of the beer.

While it is true that a number are drinking the beer today merely for sampling purposes hotel keepers

Tiny Spruce Budworm Is Costing Canada Billions

OTTAWA, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—The story of a little bug which could park himself quite comfortably on a child's finger nail, but whose appetite had already cost the Dominion of Canada more than seven billion was told to members of the Royal Society of Canada by Arthur Gibson, F.R.S.C.

This Lilliputian with the brobdignagian appetite is none other that the spruce budworm and the tale of his depredations to Canada's forests and of the fight being waged to exterminate him gave eloquent testimony of the place that science occupies in the economic field.

WAS DEATH OF MANGIN DUE TO POISON BY REDS

"Liberte" Charges That Hero of Verdun Was Poisoned By Bolsheviks.

ORDERED BY MOSCOW.

"The Hour Has Come to Tell the Truth," Says Newspaper Article.

PARIS, May 21. — Late General Charles Mangin was poisoned, probably by the order of Moscow, is the startling charge made by "The Liberte," which begins an article on the subject with "The hour has come to tell the truth."

General Mangin, the hero of the smashing allied attack on Verdun and leader of the first, second and thirty-second divisions in the first important victory on the French, died May 12th.

"Liberte" calls on the government to order a thorough investigation of the circumstances of General Mangin's death.

GERMANY ASKS COURT DECISION

Alleges Poles Have Violated Agreement Regarding Upper Silesia.

OTHERS EXPECTED.

GENEVA, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—Appealing to the world court for the first time, Germany is asking for a decision upon the Polish-German agreements regarding Upper Silesia. She alleged that the Poles have violated the economic arrangements and are confiscating rural and industrial properties, contrary to the convention. Germany's action is believed to presage submission to the court of a series of disputes arising out of the Versailles Treaty and other compacts. The decision of the court is unalterable and acceptance is obligatory. This makes the third time the court has been used at a last resort.

BODY FOUND.

Bookkeeper Missing Three Weeks Drowned Nine Days Ago.

ST. CATHARINES, May 21. — (Canadian Press). — The body of Alfred Duncan Laurie, bookkeeper at the General Hospital, was found in the Welland Canal last evening near Lock 7. Doctors state that the body had been in the water about nine days. Laurie, who is a returned soldier, aged 51 years, had been missing from his desk for three weeks. He was born in Scotland.

Path Of City Dog Catcher Beset With Difficulties

A number of difficulties are about the path of the dog-catcher, which is not so rosy as it would seem. Besides the possibilities of a sharp-toothed bulldog or hound objecting personally to being captured, there are certain dog owners who do not appreciate Mr. Ferguson's activities and have threatened physical violence if their dogs are molested. One owner took other steps and went to the pound, where a board on the fence was found to be slightly loose and an exit for the dog was speedily arranged. As the number of the tag has been ascertained, the owner was approached and the dollar fee collected and the catcher was saved the trouble of returning the dog.

Up to the present time, Alderman Phelan has received report that ten dogs have been rounded up since Monday morning.

Total in United States Last Year is the Biggest Ever.

IN 77 CITIES.

NEW YORK, May 21. — More murders were committed in the United States during 1924 than ever, according to reports based on statistics from 77 cities which have been compiled by Frederick L. Hoffman consulting statistican of the Prudential Insurance Company.

The survey shows an average of 9.9 homicides per 100,000 population, though New York's city total climbed to 387. This city's average was 3.5 less than the average for the country.

Records for other large cities are:
Chicago 17.5, an increase of 3.9.
Philadelphia 7.6, a decrease of 1.8.
Boston 5.1, an increase of 8.
Pittsburg 12.1, a decrease of 1.6.
Newark 6.3, a decrease of 1.
Newark 6.3, a decrease of 1.
St. Louis 21.7, a decrease of 4.4.
Cincinnati 15.3, a decrease of 2.8.
San Francisco 8, a decrease of .9.
Los Angeles 14.2, an increase of .9.
Jacksonville, Florida with 58.8, had the highest homicide death rate.

SLEEPING SICKNESS INCREASES RAPIDLY

1407 Cases the Last Year Against Only 16 Six Years Ago.

LONDON, May 21. — (Canadian Press). — Official statistics just issued show that sleeping sickness, from which Lord Milner recently died, has been steadily increasing in England and Wales. The number of cases has increased from 16 in 1918 to 1,407 in 1924.

PRINTERS STRIKE.

Staffs of Hamilton Herald and Spectator Walked Out This Afternoon.

HAMILTON, Ont., May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Printers in the offices of the Herald and the Spectator went on strike to-day at 1.15 p.m., failing the settlement of a dispute over the wage scale.

ONTARIO'S BIG BEER INAUGURAL IS ANTI-CLIMAX

Even Wet Toronto Failed to Provide Line-ups This Morning.

BORDER QUIET.

Expected Influx of Americans Fails to Materialize at Windsor.

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—The four point four beer inaugural in Ontario to-day proved to be very much an anti-climax. There was no line up for the new beverage this morning at any place, even in Toronto, the home of the big wet battalions. Newspaper reporters, accompanied by cameramen, were on hand at the opening to record the rush, but the best obtainable were pictures showing fewer than half a dozen men seated at tables. Early reports from Windsor and Niagara Falls note the absence of the rush from across the border that was promised. One vendor in Niagara Falls did not make a sale before 9.30, and three hotels there up to eleven o'clock hd not sold a single glass. One hotelman said the new beer was dud anyway, and he was sorry he had spent the money on alterations.

No Border Rush.

Later reports from Windsor indicated a show of interest from the Detroit side, but nothing that might be called a rush. The sixteen hotels doing business had plenty of customers, most of them border cities folk.

Reports gathered by the Canadian Press this morning show that a large number of Ontario towns have not yet received permits, and in some cities only the smaller hotels have been authorized yet to begin sale.

This was the case in Ottawa, where the Chateau Laurier and Russel Hotels still await permits. Parry Sound and Gananoque have no permits yet. There are two carloads of beer at Owen Sound, but nobody has authority to sell it. Three hotels, however, are awaiting permits. Galt also was still arid this morning owing to the non-arrival of permits. St. Catharines, Stratford, Kingston, Chatham, Sarnia, Brockville, St. Thomas and other points reported no rush to speak of.

There was a fair crowd of customers assembled at Woodstock by the time the dispensers were able to do business at ten o'clock, permits having arrived by special delivery at that hour.

Opinion as to the quality of the new beverage was much divided, but the balance supports the view that it is an improvement on the 2.5 per cent. stock. A large percentage of men questioned admitted that they were drinking experimentally merely to see what the much advertised beverage was like.

Most Toronto hotels are selling the new beer at ten cents per glass, but a few of the larger places are asking fifteen cents.

Clubs Refused.

It is officially stated that 800 permits have been issued by the Department here. Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, said to-day that about a dozen clubs throughout the province had obtained licenses, but many athletic and recreation clubs applying for same had been refused. It was not proposed, he said, to grant permits to clubs with a dozen members and quartered over a store. Few grocery stores throughout the province are yet handling the new beer.

NO BEER ON TRAINS.

When Is a Man Drunk, Is An Important Question, But Inspector Gives List Of Signs Apparent

When is a man drunk?

Inspector Reid believes that the answer to this query will grow rapidly in importance with the advent of the new beer. According to the Inspector it is quite within the realms of possibility that some, not content with the mellifluous 4.4 will imbibe quantities of a more potent fluid and heap the blame on the innocuous shoulders of the recently acquired beverage.

"If any figure on getting away with that they are due for a great shock," remarked the Inspector, "because we have been in the game long enough to enable us to distinguish whether or not a man is drunk, and if he is we can tell how he got that way."

When asked how a drunken person was distinguished, the Inspector said that the usual evidence of such a state were an unteadiness of gait, a breath redolent with the unmistakable odor, eyes stary and bloodshot, a decided thickness of speech, an unwarranted familiarity, particularly with members of the police force, and there is usually evidenced an inordinate desire to spread good fellowshp thoughout the universe.

Results of to-day innovation are awaited with keen interest.

COLONEL GERMAIN WON DISTINCTION

Former Omemee Man Commands Successful Moose Jaw Battalion.

OMEMEE, May — — The following item will be of interest to the members of the 45th Battalion of Victoria county:

The highest honors in the military affairs of the province of Saskatchewan have been obtained by the 1st Battalion, King's Own Rifles of Canada, commanded by Lieut.-Colonel M A. Germain, a former Omemee boy. This Moose Jaw battalion obtained the highest number of marks in the competition of the Saskatchewan Infantry Association for the training year 1924-25.

In a communication received from Major A. G. Styles, D.S.O., secretary of the association, the officer commanding the 1st K.O.R.C., is informed that the President of the Saskatchewan Infantry Association, Brig.-Gen. Alex. Ross, C.M.G., D.S.O., desires to congratulate Col. Germain, the officers, non-commissioned officers, and the men of the unit, on the splendid showing made in the competition.

The competition which is open to all infantry battalions in the province, is based on the musketry returns, and the showing made at the annual inspections of the various units. Points are awarded both for practical work and for an oral examination of all officers and non-commissioned officers, and the 1st K.O.R.C. was awarded 3692 marks of a possible 500 marks.

Arrangements are being made by the officials of the Saskatchewan Infantry Association for the presentation to the local battalion of the challenge trophy, which is the reward of the splendid showing made during the past winter's training.

Sale of Clothing.

On Saturday afternoon the ladies of the Methodist church held a bake sale on Mrs. C. L. Morcombes lawn. At 3 o'clock, the appointed hour for the sale to commence the tables were laden with an abundance of home made bread and buns, and a variety of other delicious looking baking, and in a very short time the supply was exhausted; in fact long before the many buyers had been supplied. Unfortunately a heavy shower of rain put a damper on the sale which had to be removed to the verandah, and much baking was not brought in until later in the evening when a number of orders were then filled. The proceeds which are to be used as a flower fund, amounted to about $14.

Fish Pond in Store.

The fishing was good in Omemee on Saturday night and although the season does not lawfully open until June 15th, there was not any interference on the part of the Fish Inspector. The fishing pool was the drug store window where anyone possessing one dollar and willing to part with it might hand out three "fish" for that amount. Many ludicrous fish and a few "maskinonge" were pulled out. Among the loot carried away by some of the young ladies who fished was a safety razor, a pipe, a spatula accompanied by a bottle of flavoring extract, a collection of French ivory, a No. 2 Brownie camera, and many other useful and laughable articles.

NORTHUMBERLAND LIBERALS HOLD CONVENTION IN JUNE

President Sets Twelfth as the Date For Choosing Candidate.

MARSHALL THERE.

Frank Slade Declares His Intention to Stand For Nomination.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21. — President J. Nelson Stone, of the Northumberland Liberal Association, announces that a convention of the party will be held in Warkworth Town Hall on Friday, June 12, at 1.30 p.m. for the purpose of placing a candidate in the Federal field. The members of the executive in the various polling subdivisions are requested to select their delegate. An address will be given by Hon. Duncan Marshall and a good lady speaker will be secured to make an appeal to the lady voters.

Fred. Slade, farmer in Haldimand Township, and ex-Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, has notified President Stone that he has been urged by his friends to stand for the nomination, and that he has consented to have his name presented to the convention.

Mr. Slade was a candidate on the U.F.O. ticket in the Federal election of 1921, when there were three candidates in the field: C. W. Kerr, Liberal of Cobourg, and M. E. Maybee, the present member. Mr. Slade was a Liberal before the U.F.O. movement was started.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—For some reason or other, Warkworth has decided to drop out of the Northumberland Baseball League, and a meeting of the executive will be held at Warkworth this evening to deal with the new situation and to rearrange the schedule, as the action of Warkworth leaves the League with only six members.

BANKRUPT JUMPED FROM HIGH BUILDING

Morris Sieger's Creditors Said Assets Were Withheld —Son Attempted Leap.

NEW YORK, May 21 (Canadian Press).—As a climax to a stormy creditors' meeting during which some of the creditors charged that the assets of the bankrupt jewelry firm of Morris Seiger and Son had been withheld, and threatened to take the case to the district attorney, Morris Sieger jumped from the roof of the 15-storey Knickerbocker Building at Broadway and 42nd Street last night, and his son, Simon, attempted to jump after him.

The firm failed for more than $200,000 several months ago, leaving the Sieger family practically penniless.

TOWNSHIP LEAGUE DREW UP SCHEDULE

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21. — A meeting of the executive of the Seymour Township Baseball League was held last night at the Seymour Parsonage, President C. D. Daniel presiding. PATENTED LAND and Pinchbeck stated, there was a general opinion among the rural taxing bodies, particularly rural municapalities, that the Soldier Settlement Board was taking shelter behind the Crown, when it was faced with the responsibility of paying legal assessments for taxation purposes, when it had become the owner of lands under certain circumstances.

Messrs. Lamb and Pinchbeck further declared that 1148 fully patented quarter sections had reverted to the board in the two provinces up to the end of 1924. The board had refused to recognize the right of the municipalities to levy and collect taxes upon these lands until the lands were resold or leased. It was estimated that between $15,000 to $200,000 in taxes had been lost to the municipalities of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan up to the end of 1924, through cancellation of taxes levied upon fully patented lands acquired by the Soldier Settlement Board. In many cases, the amount lost could not be stated, as no assessments had been made on soldier settlement lands, nor would be made so long as the board held the land unsold or unleased.

Results Quoted.

The question was a serious one for a number of municipalities and a considerable problem for a large number of small school districts and telephone companies, which found it very hard to operate, owing to so many taxes being cancelled or not assessed upon abandoned or rescinded soldier settlement board lands. Usually, it was stated, the municipalities, school districts and telephone companies which could least afford to lose the taxes, were the heaviest sufferers. In Saskatchewan, 22 municipalities collecting municipal school and telephone taxes had lost $20,000, and in Alberta, 16 municipalities had lost $26,000 in two years' taxes. Conditions would be worse instead of better in the future.

The delegates urged that early consideration be given to their request.

FIRES IN NORTH ABATED IN FURY

The Reports Indicate Heavy Losses But No Deaths Are Known Yet.

MANY HEROES.

FORT WILLIAM, May 21 (Canadian Press).—With the fury of forest fires which have swept the districts in this vicinity for the last week somewhat abated, reports are pouring in of losses to lumbering companies and settlers. It is indicated that the fires have taken the greatest toll ever recorded in these parts.

Tales of narrow escapes from death and of heroism on the part of settlers righing the flames are contained in almost every report received. There has been no known loss of life, but two boys, Joe and Jack Cryderman, aged 7 and 9 respectively, were missing in the Scoble district for some hours, and settlers in the neighborhood of Rabbit Mountain organized search parties. The searchers found them along the trail. They had become frightened and started to walk to this city. Mr. and Mrs. Aro, of Strange Township, are in the hospital here suffering from burns received when their home was destroyed. They were able to save their stable and cattle. Mr. Aro had a narrow escape from death. He was working in the barn when flying embers set the house on fire. He rushed in to save valuable papers and money and came out with his clothing afire. He leaped into the well and escaped with bad burns.

voiced the opinion that Stockham had perceived for some time that their affair was at an end. She had told her husband and the latter had believed until after the affair, that Stockham was her half brother.

High Bail Set.

Mrs. Reay also swore that her husband was not at the scene of the tragedy until two or three minutes after Stockhan had shot himself, when he reproached her for having got him into "a nice mess," and went into the house and telephoned for the police. Reay according to his wife, had been visiting a sister in Westmount. He was customarily absent on Saturday evenings, when Stockham was a regular visitor at the house.

Entering her home on Saturday evening at 7.45, by the front door, Mrs. Reay met Stockham in the hallway with the revolver in his hand pointing it at her. He had later told her that he had entered by one of the windows.

She had gone out some ten minutes previously on a message. Her husband had gone to visit a sister in Westmount and had not said when he would be back. She expected him that night however.

When she asked Stockham what he was doing he had replied that he had just fired one shot in the dining room. She had then seen that the dining room and the bedroom were in disorder and had asked him why he had upset them. He had not said very much and what he did say she could not catch.

Had two Revolvers.

In the two rooms in question every thing was in disorder. The mattress was torn, the bed linen ripped from the bed, trunks rifled, linen boxes rummaged and their contents thrown all over the place. Pictures on the walls and bureau were smashed, furniture was overturned, and the place generally wrecked. All this must have been done in the space of about ten minutes.

Pressed for an explanation by Mrs Reay Stockham had given her none. He was not sober but was not very drunk.

Coroner McMahon: "Mrs. Reay, I want you to tell the whole truth, not only part of it."

Witness: "Yes sir; I am telling the truth."

Coroner McMahon: "You must know the reason why he was there?"

Witness: "He was looking for the revolver."

Coroner McMahon then asked witness if it were not a fact that Stockham had been at the house for another purpose and drew an emphatic 'No!' from Mrs. Reay in reply.

He again asked her if it were not a fact that it was because of a refusal in such matter that Stockham had shot himself, and again received an emphatically negative answer.

Coroner McMahon: "You heard me ask your husband about his revolver the other day and heard him tell me that he only had one, and that that was out of order. Why did you say nothing at that time?"

Witness replied that she had left that for her husband to explain.

Coroner McMahon: "It looks pretty bad for your husband to deny a thing which was very important."

Witness: "I understand that there are different names for these things."

She added that her husband had two revolvers.

GOVERNMENT AIMING TO CUT COST ETC.

last four years, 15,312 Canadians had returned.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) remarked that American immigration officials were reported as having said that to include the number of aliens "bootlegged" into the United States, the official figures should be multiplied by four.

Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, contested Col. Arthurs' statements. He read letters and accompanying statements from officials of the United States Labor Department to show that over 43,000 Canadians had returned to Canada, receiving refunds on the $8 head tax paid on entering the United States, during each of the last two years.

Sources of Information.

There was some friendly disputing between Col. Arthurs and Mr. Murdock, as to which had the correct information. The latter had sent his documents over to Col. Arthurs, who, amid some amusement, pointed out that they were merely memoranda supplied by a "second assistant secretary" of the U.S. Department of Labor, while the document from which Col. Arthurs had been reading, was a printed report signed in the name of Secretary of Labor Davis himself.

Then Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William and Rainy River) referred back to Mr. Murdock's assertion that more Canadians had returned from the United States in the last few months than had for some years. There were two reasons for this, said Dr. Manion. First, there were more Canadians there now to come back; second, these Canadans who had been driven to the United States to look for jobs, had heard there was an election impending in Canada, and were coming back to vote against the Government, whose policy had caused the unemployment.

Mr. Robb was of the opinion that there would always be a flow of population between the United States and Canada. These neighboring countries had much in common, and few Canadian families were not represented in the United States in some way. Sometimes the drift of population was from Canada southward; at another period, it would be from the United States to Canada, and Canada had recruited many fine citizens in that country.

Consolidate Departments.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg Centre) asked if something could not be done towards consolidating the colonization departments of the Canadian Government and the Canadian National Railways. These two departments were being paid for by the public of Canada, and they were duplicating activities in many quarters.

The naturalization of aliens was not handled well in Canada, said Mr. Woodsworth. Alien applicants were examined by mounted policemen respecting their memberships in Labor organizations, and it was reported that some were refused naturalization because of membership in some bodies.

J. A. Clark (Conservative, Burrard) urged that it should be made easier for Canadians who had become American citizens but had come back to the Dominion, to become British subjects again. They now had to wait five years and if they married Canadian women upon their return, the women had no citizenship until their husbands became British subjects.

Imperial Agreements.

Hon. A. B. Copp, Secretary of State, said that the naturalization regulations were the result of Imperial agreements, and the Imperial Parliament would have to be consulted though the proposal of Mr. Clark would be very welcome.

Donald Sutherland (Conservative, South Oxford), referring to the land settlement provisions of the Government, complained that Canada had too much "nursing legislation."

E. J. Garland asked "how about the industries which were being nursed all the time."

Mr. Sutherland retorted that some of them were pretty sick just now.

Mr. Garland suggested that might be the result of too much nursing.

Mr. Sutherland thought it was more probably the result of an overdose of the sort of medicine the Progressive group had compelled the Government to administer to industries in the last two years.

G. G. Coote (Progressive, MacLeod said that if the Government persisted in encouraging immigration it should at least participate in relief for unemployment.

Hon. G. P. Graham suggested that the House had been listening to this sort of talk for about three months. He thought some progress should be made in estimates.

Donald Sutherland said that argument might hold good at any other time, but the duplication of work by two Government agencies was too serious.

Working For Canada.

Mr. Robb said it should be borne in mind that the Immigration Department had nothing to do with the Canadian National Railway. His Department was "not working for the C.N.R., but for all the railways and all the interests of Canada."

Mr. Meighen admitted this was perfectly true, but there would not be three colonization agencies.

Mr. Robb replied that they were now working together in the hope of co-ordinating their activities.

The item carried at six o'clock and the House adjourned until Friday.

WEDDING BELLS.

BADGLEY—MILNE.

CAMPBELLFRD, May 21. — A quiet church wedding was held in St. Andrew's Church, at 12.30 p.m. yesterday, when Dorothy Drew Milne, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Milne, Rear Street, was united in marriage to Walter E. Badgley. Rev. C. F. McIntosh, formerly pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman. The young couple were unattended. The bride was married in her going-away costume. Only the immediate relatives were guests, but a large number of friends were in the church to witness the ceremony.

After a luncheon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Badgley motored to Havelock and took the train for Toronto. On their return they will be at home in their residence at Dam 8, Mr. Badgley being manager of the power house there.

On Tuesday evening, the members of the Mission Circle of St. Andrews, of which Mrs. Badgley had been a member, tendered her a shower, and many handsome gifts were received yesterday by the bride and groom.

MADE "HOLE IN ONE."

BROCKVILLE, May 20.—A. F. MacPherson, professional at the Brockville Golf Club, gained membership in the coveted hole-in-one club yesterday by making the sixth hole upon the local course with one drive of 115 yards. The feat has been duplicated but once on the Brockville course.

Tourists saw Tilden remove his coat at the head of Luna Island and then wade into the rapids. Three tourists saw the man carried under the Luna Island bridge by the swift current.

FARMER COMMITTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Arson and Attempt To Commit Bodily Harm to Neighbor.

BOWMANVILLE, May 21 (Canadian Pess).—Francis Stoker, a farmer of Kendal, was at Bowmanville police court yesterday committed to stand trial on charges of arson and attempting to commit grievously bodily harm to a neighbor, James H. Lawson. The acts with which the accused is charged are alleged to have been committed by him on Sunday evening, May 10, last. THE NEW BEVERAGE.

By the time this article is in print the "great experiment" will have been started.

Mr. Nickle's 4.4 beer, "a refreshing, palatable beverage," the Attorney-General described it, and representing the policy that the Premier declared would please everybody, went on sale this morning.

It is much too early to tell how it will work out.

Possibly old timers failed to like the new brew today—but it may necessitate an acquired taste just as olives are said to need.

To those who were like the Swede who refused to take a chance on moonshine, saying that he didn't want to fly but merely to hop around a bit, the new beverage may have appealed.

Men who want their tipple strong may have been disappointed, because they did not feel like singing tenor after the second glass.

On the other hand, extreme temperance people may have been also disappointed, because the streets were not filled with reeling men an hour or two after the "beverage rooms" opened.

However, 4.4 has arrived—and time will tell what effect its advent is gonig to have on the industrial and business and social life of the community.

Nothing can be proven by the first few hours' experience under the new policy.

LEARN THESE TODAY.

"Begin today to drive and walk carefully," is another piece of excellent advice offered by the Ontario Safety League, addressed, it should be noticed, to both motorists and pedestrians, because both classes sometimes cause accidents by their negligence.

It should be remembered in this regard that most street accidents occur when people are on their way home at the end of the work day and are tired and less alert, both mentally and physically.

Safety rules must be practised not only while at work but when the street is reached.

Four points emphasized by the Safety League are given for the benefit of Examiner readers generally.

It is better to spend money for gasoline comforts and happiness than for hospital bills, repairs, court fines and cemetery lots.

To cause a death takes the joy out of your life—to be killed brings sorrow and hardships to others.

There are two ways to reduce accidents—drive with less speed and more care; watch your step when walking.

A second of carelessness may destroy a lifetime of carefulness.

CADET TRAINING.

Miss Agnes MacPhail, M.P., is to the fore again with her opposition to cadet training in the schools—which seems to be the chief plank in the platform of the only woman member of the House of Commons.

The contention that such training gives the boys of Canada a militaristic spirit is so far wide of the mark that the persistency with which it is offered seems amazing.

A similar argument is used in attacking the Boy Scout movement, and one indictment is just about as nonsensical as the other.

The cadet training received in the public schools and high schools of this country is not extensive enough to do more than give the boy pupils a little exercise in the open air and to teach them the rudiments of moving around as a unit rather than as a mob.

If there was more of it the drill would have a most beneficial effect upon the physique of the students, giving them a more erect bearing and a more manly walk.

Unfortunately, the training is not sufficiently extended to give the best results in that direction.

To say that this smattering of military drill will develop a generation that will want to go out and declare war on somebody is sheer nonsense.

The cadet training is perfectly innocuos, and there is not the slightest reason for Miss MacPhail's misgiving.

ONE HURT—ALL FEEL IT.

Two London men were walking down to work on Monday morning. Naturally enough they discussed the frost of Sunday night, which was severe enough to make itself felt on early beans and adventurous tomato patches, although the latter had been covered, says the London Advertiser.

One of the men, who works in a downtown stote, made this remark: "Well, I'm glad I'm not out on a fruit or vegetable farm facing a frost like that. It must be fierce to face a situation where your work would be wiped out in a night."

Of course, he meant that remark to be sympathetic. In his own garden he had seen his few rows of early beans and his little patch of tomatoes smitten, but he failed to see that even in his own business he would have to share in the loss of a frost that had inflicted damage on the district in a larger way.

It does not take much reasoning to see that a frost, storm or drought that hits the district is going to hit the stores where the men in the city work. Anything that adversely affects the prosperity of the people in this district does the same thing to the business places in this city, or to any other place that depends for its existence on the trade of the district.

It is a more local application of the larger truth that makes it difficult for us to connect the troubled condition of Europe with business defects here. The plan is not right up on the surface where we can follow it like a road map, but it is in existence just the same. None of us moves in circles that are self-centred and all-sufficient. A man's arms and head may be all right, but if he has a sore foot the rest of the members are going to feel the effect because they will be brought down to the pace of that injured member. So it is with the business of the world.

MADE-IN-PETERBORO.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition in which the manufacturers and citizens generally are co-operating so enthusiastically will be a display of made-in-Peterboro goods, exhibited on behalf of a made-in-Peterboro organization—the Health Association—that has done much to make this a health city.

The proceeds will all go to the work of the association, and it is confidently expected that the financial returns will surpass the best record of the various Motor Shows, splendidly successful as these were.

There is no doubt as to the merit of the Exhibition itself.

Practically every industry in Peterboro is to be represented, and the displays will be a revelation not only to local citizens but to the many visitors from out-of-town of the big part this city plays in the industrial life of the country.

The entertainment features are to reach the same standard of excellence as the exhibits themselves.

With the Kiwanis and Rotarians combining their forces to provide amusement, there is no danger of there being many dull moments at the Armouries during the first week in June.

The tickets for this unusual event should be in great demand; it promises to be a memorable occasion.

BRITAIN'S ANSWER.

When the Conservative party in Britain was confronted with the task of issuing a declaration of faith at the time that Labor made its forced appeal to the electorate, Mr. Stanley Baldwin pledged his party to the introduction of a comprehensive scheme to cover both old-age and widows' pensions and the carrying of the plan into effect as soon as practicable.

The Prime Minister has lost little time in redeeming his pledge. During the course of the Budget speech the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that provision would have to be made for the cost of a scheme framed along munificent lines. The details of the plan are now made known in a White Paper and they reveal that it is drafted with a largeness of view and a generosity that if it is assailed at all will be attacked on the grounds of its extravagance.

The scheme is worthy of a great nation. Only a people that had confidence in its own virility and industrial future could bring down a measure at a time of trade depression, involving as it does an enormous outlay and not coming to full fruition until 1965. The scheme will apply at its inception to fifteen million employed persons and will increase regularly for the next eighteen years at the rate of about 50,000 per year. Actuarial figures are the basis for the statement that next year 196,000 widows and 386,000 children will benefit by receiving the prescribed pensions, although not a single penny will have been paid on their individual account. This, with an additional 18,000 contributory cases, will bring the total of those receiving benefits in 1926 to over 600,000.

It has been the parrot cry of the Labor party not only in England that "Capitalism has broken down." The measure of the Conservative Government is in itself a direct contradiction of the libel. This is no attempt to embark on any reckless schemes of State Socialism which Labor offers as a substitute and which came so near to bringing disaster on Britain, but it is the practical application by the State of principles of social reform on sound lines.

The scheme makes the contributions compulsory within the range of its application in order to assure that the negligence or slip-shod dilatoriness of the individual shall not be allowed to rob him or her of its undisputed benefits. It is also contributory with the object of encouraging and stimulating the virtue of thrift and self-esteem of which the recipients of the dole are robbed.

The three contributories to the scheme are the State, the employers and the employed. It is an application of the true partnership in industry which is so insistently forcing itself upon men's minds and acceptance of responsibility by all three partners of the industrial world. It will remove at once that debasing and haunting fear of old age spent in poverty and suffering which has been a millstone round the necks of so many millions of workers.

The tests now required by the recipient of an old age pension as to means, residence and nationality, are eliminated under the new plan and the age at which the pension may be claimed is to be 65 in place of 70, as at present. This means that the employers and employed will be called upon to contribute $100,000,000 a year for the first ten years, and of this sum the employers will pay slightly the larger share. Criticism may be raised that in the present industrial depression such a sum taken out of the profits of industry will have a depressing effect. To accept such a conclusion is to set small store on the reaction of such a scheme on the people themselves. —Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The question of the hour—"What do you think of 4.4?"

With the bar-room now officially designated as the beverage room, it is prestined that the bartender automatically becomes the beverage man.

At least the absence of the bar prevents your change from being dropped into the suds on the counter as in the good old days.

Mr. Nickle's contention, it is rumoured, has been already justified to the extent that hardy old connoisseurs have shown no signs of being intoxicated with joy over the advent of 4.4 beer.

Every week seems to be clean-up week with Hon. W. H. Price, the Provincial Treasurer.

The Federal Government is not expected to go to the country this summer, and judging by the length of the session the Progressives won't go there much either.

Mr. Kyte intimates that there won't be a Federal election this year—but a lot of people seem to be preparing for one just the same.

"Lose a minute and save a life or a limb" is the Ontario Safety League's advice to motorists. It is well worth remembering.

Mr. Woodsworth, M.P., objects to the singing of "Rule Britannia." Strange talk for a member of the Canadian Parliament.

The five-cent steins of pre-war days are not coming back. It will cost 10 cents for the curious to investigate the merits of 4.4.

HAD BAD SPELLS WITH HER HEART

Mrs. C. Martin, R.R. No. 2, Orillia, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my heart for a long time and very often had bad spells with it. I would take fainting spells, and my husband had to have somebody to stay with me all the time. He got me everything he could think of to see if they would do me any good, but nothing seemed to help me. One day a friend was in to see me and advised me to try

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

My husband went and got me two boxes, and after the first one was finished I felt like a different woman. I cannot recommend them enough to all those who suffer with anything wrong with their heart or nerves."

Milburn's H. & N. Pills have been on the market for the past 30 years and are put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 20.—Increased activity and higher prices stood out to a notable extent in the wheat market today. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled 1 3-8 to 3 cents net higher; May $1.69 1-2 to $1.69 3-4, and July $1.55 to $1.55 1-8; with corn unchanged to 5-8 cent lower; oats 1-8 to 1-4 cent up, and provisions varying from the same as yesterday's finish to a rise of 20 cents.

A factor which tended to lift wheat values today was notice taken of unusual wide extremes of temperature in the Spring wheat states during the last few days. Lack of moisture northwest was also complained of. New adverse crop reports from the domestic winter belt, too, were likewise current.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, May 20.—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:
Sterling demand $4.85 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.86 3-8.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 20.—The foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was better than it has been of late, and as some of the prices bid for oats and barley were in line with exporters' views, sales of a few loads were mad for May-June shipment.

There was an improved demand from grocers and other dealers for eggs, and a more active trade was done in a wholesale jobbing way, but as supplies were ample to meet all requirements there was no change in prices to note. The receipts today were 2,719 cases, as compared with 2,513 for the same day last week, and 2,053 for the corresponding day a year ago.

A firmer feeling has developed in the market for potatoes and prices of late have advanced 10 cents per bag which was attributed to the improved demand for supplies and the smaller offerings. Sales of car lots of No. 1 Green Mountains were made at 65 cents per bag, and Quebec varieties at 55 cents per bag of 90 lbs. in bulk, ex-track.

The receipts of butter were 95 packages, as compared with 55 for the same day last week, and 1,003 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no important change in the condition of the market to note. The demand from local buyers for supplies of fresh made goods was steady and as the offerings were none too large to meet the requirements of the trade a steady feeling prevailed and prices were unchanged.

The receipts of cheese today were 3,067 boxes, as against 2,016 for the same day last week, and 3,580 for the corresponding day a year ago. Thre was no improvement in the foreign demand for cheese here and the market was quiet with no special features to note. The feeling was steady and prices were unchanged with Western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 17 3-4 to 18 cents per lb., and Eastern No. 1 white and colored at 17 3-4 to 17 7-8 cents per lb.

Beans were quoted at $2.70 per bushel.

EARLY CLOSING HASTINGS SHOPS

Municipality May Pass By-law For One Half Weekly on Petition.

NO ACTION YET.

HASTINGS, May 21.—Nothing definite has as yet been done as regards the early closing by-law which was presented by the merchants to the village council, at the last council meeting. The clerk was appointed to look into the arrangements and see what could be done.

Reeve J. H. Hess and Alex Wilson, clerk of the village, went to Peterboro and received advice and the following is the letter which was received from the solicitor of the village.

As requested by you we are giving you in substance of the provisions of the Amendments of 1925, to the Factory, Shop and Office Building Act, in so far as it affects by-laws to be passed by Municipalities on petition, referable to early closing, and to the incidental requirements of the Act boding up thereto.

If the Council of a Municipality, within the contemplation of the Act is petitioned to pass a by-law requiring the closing of any shops situated within the Municipality, the Council shall see first, that at least three quarters in number of the particular class of shop owners have signed a petition requesting the passing of a by-law by the Council closing that particular class of shops during such portion of that day extending from the period from twelve thirty o'clock noon to five o'clock of the following morning and during such part or parts of the year as are named in the petition; the petition itself to specify the particular class of shops so closed, specify the day of the week, and subject to the above limitations the time of that particular day, upon which it is requested that the shops of that particular class shall be closed and specifying particularly the part or parts of the year which the petitioners desire the by-law to be effective.

It may be that there are shops in your Municipality, which carry more than one line of merchandise, or which in others words, come within two or more classes. If such is the case, and a by-law is passed closing one particular class of shops, then the shop carrying that particular character of merchandise or engaged in that particular business would be bound by the by-law, in so far as the business carried on in such shop was covered by the by-law.

The petition that you have shown me does not specify the character of the business to be effected, consequently it is not feasible to draw a by-law closing any particular class of shops, founded on the petition.

Eel Flies Bad

Swarms of what are commonly called eel flies are around the bridge and streets and the water front. This is the first that have appeared in such large numbers as yet this season and although not destructive, they are very annoying to everybody.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . but no work or children.

She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she swamps Dick with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazzy" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR ,warns her not to be seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with JIM CAREWE.

Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia.

Stan was almost always cheerful, full of pep, ready for a good time. The wilder the time the better it suited Stan' . . . He cheered Gloria up like a jazz band.

"You're a great little worrier, Russet," he said now, showing his white teeth in a grin. "Why can't you make up your mind that you and I enjoy being together . . . and let it go at that? Why must you worry yourself about the other women I know? . . . You know I think you're the 'some baby' of all the world, don't you? Isn't that enough?"

He took her hand in his and pressed it tight, for a moment. Then let it drop.

"Perhaps you do think that. But you don't love me," Gloria cried. "You don't love me enough! When a man has cared for a girl the way Dick has for me, she can never be fooled by imitation love again. She knows the real thing. . . ."

"Tragedy queen!" Stan said, with a mocking light in his eyes.

Gloria stamped her foot. Why couldn't he take her seriously once in a while?

They walked on in silence for a few minutes.

Then Wayburn spoke again.

"Look here, Russet! What do you want to bother with me for, any longer?" he asked. "You quarrel with me all the time we're togehter, anyway. It doesn't make you happy to be with me any more, does it?"

Gloria frowned thoughtfully.

"It makes me awfully unhappy not to be with you," she said simply. "And Stan, I don't quarrel with you."

"You nag me about other women, though," Wayburn said, "and I don't deserve it. I'm no sheik."

Gloria brightened.

"You do like me, don't you?" she asked, comforted.

Wayburn nodded. "And there's something else I want to say to you, Russet. . . . You know, I have a hunch that you care for this husband of yours a lot more than you think you do. What you hate is married life—being tied down. Isn't that so?" he asked.

Gloria stopped dead. She turned to Wayburn in a blaze of anger.

"So that's it! You're tired of me!" she declared. "You want to kid me into thinking I'm crazy about Dick, I won't bother you any more, don't you? . . . Well maybe I am crazy about him! . . . But you, you oil can! I'll bet you have some new girl on your string this minute . . . some cheap Sonya Chotek or other!"

A wild passion of shame and self-disgust swept over her.

She turned to run away from Wayburn. But he caught her by one arm and drew her to his side with a strong steady pull.

"You young wild cat!" he laughed. "Who could be tired of you?"

But Gloria was not to be soothed. She jerked herself from Wayburn, and dashed furiously down the street.

A minute later she was sorry she had lost her temper.

She violently wished that Stan would call her back, or come after her. But he did not.

She walked on toward the center of town with her head held high. Hot tears stung her eyeballs. But she blinked them away.

The sun had set. And the chill of early evening crept into the still air.

Gloria went into a drug-store and bought a theatrical magazine. She read it, sitting on a high stool, as she slowly sipped a chocolate malted milk.

On the cover was picture of Kit Cameron, a Peterborough girl, who had become a chorus girl.

Gloria knew Kit Cameron. She and Kit had gone to business college together four years ago.

"And here she is on the stage!" Gloria said to herself, "and I'm still here in the same old rut, wondering what it's all about!"

She looked longingly at Kit'c picture, wishing her own were in its place. Then she raised her eyes to the mirror at the back of the soda fountain.

Her own reflection smiled back at her, adorably.

"Why, I'm twice as good looking as Kit!" she told herself. "I'll bet I could land a job on the stage in fifteen minutes, if I half tried!"

The thought was comforting to her wounded vanity. She felt much better as she left the drug store and stepped out into the darkness. She walked home, trying hard not to think of Stanley Wayburn.

When she got home, Mrs. O'Hara was playing solitaire in the living room. She looked up as Gloria came in.

"Ranghild left your supper in the warmer for you," she said.

"I don't want it. I just had a malted milk, and I'm so afraid of getting fat," Gloria answered. "How's Dick tonight?"

"He seems a little better. Wouldn't you like to stop in a minute to see him? He's awake," said Mrs. O'Hara in her sweet voice, that was so like Miss Briggs' lovely accents.

"I think I will," the girl answered. She went upstairs and took off her wraps. With unfailing coquetry, she powdered her nose and fluffed up her hair before she went across the hall to see Dick.

He was lying in bed, perfectly still. Only his eyes moved. They turned to look at her as she came into the room. They lighted up as she came nearer. His lips moved. But he was too weak to speak.

Gloria sat down on the edge of the bed. She took one of Dick's hands in both of hers. Her heart ached with pity for him.

She leaned over and kissed him on the forehead, much as a mother might have kissed her sick child. Dick closed his eyes contentedly. That was what he had wanted.

In a few minutes he was asleep.

On the table beside Dick's bed was a jar of heavy roses that were beginning to wilt.

As Gloria looked at them a petal fell from one of them. Then another, and another, dropped down upon the polished wood of the table.

. . . Life was like that. One by one the petals fell from it, leaving it bare. First youth went. Then love . . . and happiness.

At that moment Gloria was sure that life was a sad thing. She got up and tiptoed out of Dick's room. She threw herself down on her own bed and cried as if her heart would break, because she had lost Stan Wayburn. . .

Had she ever had him, she wondered. Had he ever honestly cared for her?

Really, hadn't she, herself, pursued Stan? In her heart of hearts, Gloria knew that she had. . . .

Well, she had learned her lesson! She would never telephone him again, or meet him again, anywhere! . . . She would not even speak to him if she met him on the street!

Dick's recovery was very slow. The town was gold and green with April before he was allowed to sit up in his chair beside the window.

At first he was contented to just sit and watch life and movement in the street below him.

But as he grew stronger he called for books. So Mother Gregory and Mrs. O'Hara took turns reading aloud to him.

One afternoon when Gloria was passing his door he called to her.

"Will you see if you can find Stevenson's 'Treasure Island' for me in the book-cases downstairs?" he asked. Gloria brought it.

"This," he said to her, "is the greatest book for boys that was ever written. Wait until I have a kid of my own to read it to. . . ."

He broke off, and looked thoughtfully at his wife.

His response to her beauty quickened every day. He would find something new—a wave in her red-gold hair or the long line of her neck—that made an exquisite discovery.

He put out a hand now, and closed it around her wrist.

"You're like a little flame," Dick told her. "They said something when they named you 'Glory.' You are a glory!"

Gloria moved away from him.

She was thankful when the telephone rang, at that moment.

"Hello, Russett!" It was Stanley Wayburn's voice.

"Hello," Gloria cried, trying to keep her sudden gladness out of her own.

"I'm homesick to see you," Stan said frankly. "And I have a fine bit of news for you, too. If I promise to hide all the pictures of my old sweethearts, will you come over to see me this afternoon?"

Gloria hesitated.

"Come on . . . be a sport and say 'Yes'," Stan urged.

"All right, I will," Gloria answered. She hated herself for yielding.

But her longing to see Wayburn swept everything else from her mind. . .

He greeted her jauntily. He tried to put his arms around her, as he helped her off with her coat.

But she slipped out of them.

"What's your wonderful news?" Gloria asked. She took refuge in a dignity that was new to her.

"Nothing except that I think I've landed a job in New York," he said carelessly, dropping into a chair opposite her.

Gloria felt as if he had dropped a bomb-shell at her feet.

"Well, of all things!" she cried. "In New York!"

This was the end, then! Stan's luck had changed.

He would have his chance on Broadway. And, of course, he would make a hit. And she would never see him again . . . except from across the footlights.

"Oh, I can't bear it. . . . I can't bear it!" she cried, suddenly bursting into tears. She put her head down on the arm of her chair and sobbed. Her heart seemed to be breaking.

Stan came over to her, and lifted her head. He looked into her tear-stained face.

"I haven't gone yet," he said. "There's many a slip 'twixt the man and his job, you know! . . . But you do love me a little, don't you, Russet?"

He looked down at her intently.

"Do you know you're an awfully sweet little kid?" he murmured into her hair.

Gloria couldn't speak. There was nothing in the world for her at that moment but the sound of Stan's voice, the blue of his eyes that looked down into hers, and his arms that held her. . . . These, and the aching thought that soon he would be gone away from her.

"You do care for me a little," he repeated. He kissed her long and clingingly upon her heavy lips.

Gloria didn't resist him. She seemed to be under a spell, an enchantment. Her head drooped like a flower that is too heavy for its stalk. Her eyes fastened themselves on Stan's hand where it grasped her arm so tightly that it had whitened along the knuckles.

Suddenly she noticed that the sleeve of his gray coat was shiny and frayed along the cuff. She gave a little gasp of pity.

He freed her, and stood looking at it with a rueful smile.

"I have a suit for every occasion, and this is it!" he said lightly.

Gloria laughed.

The spell that held her was broken.

"It's getting late," she said. "I must go."

Wayburn gripped her by both wrists.

MANUFACTURERS SHOW INCREASES REACHING 566 P.C. IN OCEAN RATES: SERIOUSLY CURTAILING EXPORTS

Current Charges on Automobiles 156 P.C. More Than Rates in 1914.

EGGS AND BUTTER

Farm Produce Under Handicap in Competition with New Zealand and Denmark.

OTTAWA, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—A statement filed before the Parliamentary Committee on ocean rates by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association yesterday afternoon, showed increases ranging as high as 566 per cent. in rates this year, as compared with 1914.

S. R. Brown, of Toronto, manager of the transportation department, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, tabled the statement. It showed an increase of 566 per cent. in the rate on shoe lasts over the 1914 rate; 132 per cent. increase in the canned goods rate; 161 per cent. on the oatmeal rate; 156 per cent. in the automobile rate, as well as a number of other increases.

Counsel for the steamship lines pointed out that he had not been given an opportunity to check the statement, and that it might possibly contain errors. Finally, it was agreed to print the statement in the records of the committee on the understanding that the steamship lines might submit corrections if they saw fit.

Conservatives Object.

Conservative members of the committee objected to the method of examining certain witnesses put forward by the steamship companies, when H. J. Symington, K.C., counsel for the Government, was cross-examining Thomas H. Thompson, accountant for the Cairn Line of steamships. "It looks to me as f you were intimating that these gentlemen are falsifying their accounts," said W. A. Black, of Halifax, to Mr. Symington. Hon. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, agreed with this. Mr. Symington denied that there was any such suggestion, and said he was merely seeking information required by the committee's auditor. He was supported by Chairman McMaster.

Howard B. Clemes, of Toronto, general manager of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, and W. A. MacKay, of Truro, secretary of the Dairymen's Association of Nova Scotia, gave information regarding the increase in ocean rates on eggs and butter respectively.

Comparison of Rates.

Mr. Brown produced a statement based, he said, on figures given him by the steamship companies, comparing rates on a large number of commodities in 1914 and 1925. The rate on starch showed a 75 per cent. increase, sugar 108 per cent. increase; corn syrup 108 per cent.; cane syrup in barrels 66 per cent.; automobiles 156 per cent.; shoe lasts 566 per cent., canned goods 132 per cent., cheese in boxes 161 per cent., oatmeal in barrels 75 per cent., butter (ordinary storage) 210 per cent., common soap 132 per cent., etc.

Mr. Brown submitted a letter written by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, protesting against an increase which the steamship companies proposed to put into effect on March 1st, 1924.

This letter, which was dated Jan. 29, 1924, emphasized the serious effect of the increase on Canadian export business. In reply, the C.P.R. and Canadian Government Merchant Marine both said that they had lost money in 1924, but promised consideration of complaints.

Freight on Butter.

Wm. A. McKay, of Truro, N.S., secretary of the Dairymen's Association of Nova Scotia, complained that it cost the Nova Scotia producer 2½c to put a pound of butter in the British market. He was informed that New Zealand butter could be brought to the British Isles and then over to Halifax at a cost of 1 3-4c. A lower ocean rate would help the export business of Nova Scotia.

Howard B. Clemes, of Toronto, general manager of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, told the committee that his company exported eggs to the United Kingdom. Prior to the war, the ocean rate had figured out at 9 cents a cubic foot, or 3-4c a dozen. The present rate was 35c a cubic foot, or 3 cents a dozen. The Canadian egg was in competition with Danish and Irish eggs in Great Britain.

Mr. Clemes had no criticism to offer of the conference system of setting rates. Stability of rates was important to his business, he said. What he complained of was the rate of 35 cents a cubic foot. He had no complaint to make of the service given by the liners.

The committee adjourned until Friday.

STATE WITNESS SPIRTED AWAY

Testimony of Robert White Was Important in Shepherd Trial.

BRIBE ALLEGED.

CHICAGO, May 21. — Aroused by the disappearance of one of his star witnesses in the prosecution of William D. Shepherd and charging that the witness was "spirited" away by either bribe or fear of violence, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, threatened "drastic action" yesterday if a plot is exposed.

The witness, Robert White, who was considered important to the states case against the man who is accused of murdering Billy McClintoc in order to get the $1,000,000 McClintock estate. White was the only person able to corroborate the testimony of "Dr." C. C. Faiman, that Shepherd came to Faiman's correspondence school of medicine in search of germs.

"We'll take drastic action against anyone found tampering with witnesses," Crowe announced. "We'll carry the case to the grand jury if we get evidence that White was spirited away."

White's disapearance was discovered yesterday. Crowe's investigators learned that he had quit his position and moved away from his south side residence.

White's wife left a note with a neighbor teling her that she and her husband were leaving a note asking the neighbor to take care of their household goods.

"Lives in Danger."

"We had to leave there; our lives were in danger," the note stated. "We are living in a hotel until after the trial."

While Crowe was investigating the insinuation that White had been warned of violence, another "tip" came to his attention. A blind newsboy in the neighborhood declared White had told him he was going to Florida—that $25,000 and a furnished cottage was waiting for him there if he left Chicago.

"Whether it was by bribe or fear of violence this man has been tampered with," Crowe said. "We'll prosecute any one guilty of tampering."

GOLD MEDAL TO ORIGINATOR OF MARQUIS WHEAT

Dr. Charles E. Saunders Lauded as One of Greatest Canadians.

FLAVELLE MEDAL

Presented by Royal Society of Canada—Country Proud of Him.

OTTAWA, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—One way to increase the national wealth of Canada would be to wipe out the wheat rust, declared Dr. J. C. McLennan, of Toronto, president of the Royal Society of Canada, yesterday, in presenting the Flavelle gold medal for scientific discovery to Dr. Charles E. Saunders, originator of marquis wheat, which, the president declared, had produced more wealth for this country than any other discovery.

Referring to some remarks made at a luncheon Tuesday by Senator C. P. Beaubien, as to the possible service the scientists could render in reducing the national debt of Canada by increased production, Dr. McLennan said he thought it was only right to point out to the Parliamentarians that they might stop sending millions of "beautiful seawalls, etc.," that might be all right for a country of a population of 50,000,000 instead of one with a little more than 8,000,000.

Infected Cattle.

After advocating steps to stem the destruction of wheat by rust, the president went on to say that he thought there was unnecessary slaughter on the ground of infection of cattle, some of which could be saved because the progeny of infected cattle were not necessarily affected. More rigid scientific tests were needed, he said. Better use of fertilizer might also bring greater yields of grain.

"Canada has learned to grow black fox. Why stop there?" Dr. McLennan asked. "What is wrong with the beaver?"

Should Coke Anthracite.

He also stated that Dr. Charles Comsell was right in stating there was national waste in burning Pennsylvania anthracite, which, he said, should be coked.

In presenting the medal to Dr. Saunders, the president said Dr. Saunders was one of the greatest men Canada ever had and one of the best things he did was to leave a fine family. The country was proud of him, he said.

STRANGERS GET MAN'S EARNINGS

HIS $240 GONE

STRATFORD, Ont., May 21—Tony Streika is thoroughly convinced that the bank is a much safer place to keep money than cash box. Tuesday he thought differently, and it cost him just exactly $240 to change his mind. It happened thusly. Two "confiding" strangers came to his house. One of them in the course of a conversation produced a wallet or bag which was apparently stuffed with money.

Stroika observed that this was a poor way to carry money. The strangers agreed with him and said they were going up town to buy a cash box. They went and Stroika went with them. After the box had been purchased and the wallet duly placed therein the strangers suggested to Tony that he put his money in the box also. He therefore went to the bank and drew out $240 which he placed in the box.

One of the strangers complained of being ill and said he wanted to go to see a doctor.

"Here," he said, thrusting a box into Tony's hand, "you take this box home and we will be there later. You are an honest man and we trust you."

They did and Tony did, but it was a mistaken trust as he found to his sorrow later. When they did not turn up he opened the box and found the "wallet" stuffed with paper and three bank bills on the outside but of his $240 there was no sign.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

FINE HERD OF SHORTHORNS IS OWNED BY RICHARD MATCHETT SUCCESSFUL CAVAN BREEDER

Twenty-Six Animals Comprise Stock Built Up By Breeding.

FEEDS ALFALFA

Careful Feeding Responsible for Many Prizes Won By Herd.

MILLBROOK, May 21.—Mr. Richard Marchett, of Cavan, is probably the only farmer in this neighborhood who goes in for the raising of pure-bred Shorthorn cattle, having at present twenty-six animals, of the favorite red and roan color, in his herd.

Mr. Matchett has grown up with the business, his father, the late Richard Matchett, laying the foundation of the herd, which has ever since been kept on the farm, when his son was but a boy. Experience is the best of teachers, and the opportunity of gaining first-hand knowledge has not gone unimproved during the past twenty-five years.

Occasionally Mr. Matchett purchases one or two animals to augment his stock, but on the whole it has been built up by breeding.

"Browndale Joe," registered Number 172635, is the present herd sire. A young animal, dark red in color, he conforms to the type demanded by breeders—body thick, level, on short legs; horns fine, and flat; face short and broad, with strong muzzle; chest full and deep, with good distance between forelegs; general conformation smooth, but showing great vigor, and constitution.

He was bred by Howard W. Beavis, of Peterborough, Ont., and was purchased by his present owner on January 30, of this year. A study of his pedigree shows that on his dam's side there are seven of the famous "Miss Ramsdens," whose progeny have many noted qualities, and are much prized by breeders and dealers.

The dual purpose Shorthorn is the type favored on the Matchett farm. It may not be generally known that cows of this kind furnish the milk supply for the city of London, England.

Not a Sideline.

With Mr. Matchett his cattle are not a mere sideline, but are regarded more as one of the central factors on the farm. Growing the proper feed is an item of first importance when cattle raising is looked upon not simply as a chore to be done when the day's work in the field is finished but as part of the routine work of the farm.

Alfalfa, which is about equal to bran for milk production, is grown to a considerable extent, the Grimm, and Ontario Variegated being the varieties favored. Mr. Matchett has one field of alfalfa now in crop for the sixth successive year. He follows the practice of cutting twice a season, and then using the field for pasture. Small areas cut at a time, and put in coil, has been found the most satisfactory method of harvesting, saving the loss often experienced through unfavorable weather conditions, and the consequent dropping off of leaves.

Alfalfa and mangels form the staple feed during the winter months, and this, with a stated grain ration, oats, oil-cake, etc., is used when fattening animals for the show-ring. Cattle which have the latter purpose in view are not allowed to run in pasture in the hot months, but are kept in the barn, plenty of space for needed exercise being provided.

Won Many Prizes.

In 1922 Mr. Matchett won eleven first prizes, four seconds, and two thirds at the Millbrook Central Exhibition, and last fall two calves at the local fair which took first prize, were sold the following January at his own figure. This has been found a successful method of advertising, and so well known has Mr. Matchett become that prospective purchasers come to him when Shorthorn cattle are in demand either as the foundation of a herd, or for re-sale.

A member of the Dominion Shorthorn Breeders' Association, Mr. Matchett has such faith in the future of the cattle industry that he held on during the depression of the past three or four years, and has consistently followed the practice of having every cow on his farm registered at Ottawa. He believes that "now we have turned the corner, and brighter days are ahead."

While not following either the Record of Performance, or Record, of Merit, tests, nor, so far, attempting to have his herd put on an accredited basis according to government regulations, Mr. Matchett has the satisfactory record of having never lost any animal either through disease, or accident, during the years he has been in the pure-bred Shorthorn business.

Leicester Sheep.

The raising of Leicester sheep is also a feature on the Matchett farm, and this spring the owner has his first experience of losing one of the early lambs from a wool ball in the stomach, the result of swallowing small particles of wool while feeding. Evidently early shearing is to be recommended as one of the practical lessons learned from the unfortunate incident. Dual production of both mutton and wool is the object in view in keeping the Leicester breed, and government regulations are followed closely both in breeding and marketing.

It is probably not generally known that Leicesters were the first pure-bred sheep to be imported into Canada, George Miller bringing in the initial lot in 1834. Eighteen years later this breed was the only one shown at the Upper Canada Provincial Exhibition, at Toronto,—the forerunner of the Canadian National of world-wide fame, held each year in the same city.

Evidently following the cattle industry runs in the Matchett connection since Mr. Richard Matchett, of Cavan, is a cousin of Mr. "Sandy" Matchett, of Otonabee, the well-known breeder of pure-bred Holstein and Shorthorn cttle.

Small Black Hen Has Produced Large Egg

EDMONTON, Alta., May 21—(Canadian Press).—A small black hen has stepped into farmyard fame here with the laying of an egg that would do credit to a healthy lady ostrich.

Careful weighing and measuring indicates that the black "biddy's hen fruit balances the scales at four ounces and measures 8¼ inches in circumference. This is no rare performance for the little black hen. She has been doing her stuff regularly and provided her owner with a healthy breakfast daily.

SEEDING WELL ADVANCED NOW

Rain Did Great Deal of Good to Crops at Bailieboro.

PREPARE FOR ROOTS

BAILIEBORO, May 21.—Spring seeding for this season is about completed in this district. The land has been well worked and in the majority of cases the seed has been sown in a well prepared seed bed. During the latter part of last week while the weather was warm the fall wheat, new seeds, and spring grain all made a rapid growth, and Saturday night's rain was much needed to moisten up the hard surface that had formed over the newly sowed grain, but it would have done much more good had the weather come out nice and warm afterwards.

Mostly all the farmers have turned their sheep and cattle out to pasture. As yet the grass is not very plentiful, but a few warm days and there will be a big improvement upon the pasture lands.

Farmers are now busily engaged preparing their root grounds for roots, and ploughing and cultivating their summer fallows, as well as hauling out their barn yard manure. Some are also engaged in building new fences.

FARM FINANCES MUCH IMPROVED

Problems Being Worked Out Without Credits From Government.

NO INTERFERENCE

With the definite proposal for government farm credits in the recent Tory report of the federal department of finance, this project seems certain to come before parliament during the present session. When the report was made public The Financial Post expressed the opinion that in the present situation, whether or not action was taken along the lines recommended, the effect could not be anything but unfortunate, despite the best intentions—and subsequent developments have tended to strengthen this opinion.

All news bearing on the farming industry is moderately and healthily optimistic. Material progress has been made in the recovery from the post-war depression, which was the inevitable sequel to inflation based on temporarily extravagant values. Further progress is being made in the same direction. Prices have recovered to a level to insure a good profit on the well-managed farm. In Western Canada debts are being more freely liquidated, stock-raising and mixed farming are being adopted on a steadily increasing scale, farm values are rising and there is in evidence a new era of confidence.

Bankers, representatives of mortgage companies and business men generally who have been in Western Canada in recent months report very real indications that an economic readjustment is being worked out. Bank debts are being liquidated, as indicated by the contraction in current loans; payments of interest and principal on mortgages are being more freely met; there is evidence of a much better feeling of confidence in all circles; values of farm land are rising and there is more interest in sales than for some years.

The improvement which has taken place does not indicate that there is not still an agricultural problem—particularly in the West. But it is submitted, and there is general support for the contention to be found in the opinions expressed by agriculturalists and business men as reflected in the press, that the progress which has been made is very real. And it is submitted, too, that, as this progress is the result of the practice of sound business principles, combined with the adoption of mixed farming and the application of thrift, initiative and energy, it is not ime to revert to the idea that the government can provide some magical cure-all through the granting of agricultural loans on the national credit.

Experience of both federal and provincial governments has conclusively shown that money borrowed from the state is repaid with great reluctance—if at all—and inevitably there is a burden to be borne by the taxpayers in general. On the other hand the record of agricultural development in the older provinces of Canada, as in other countries, is that where the credit basis is sound—when borrowers establish a reputation for paying interest and principal promptly and when governments do not interfere between borrower and lender—then the price of money comes down in accordance with the ever-present laws of supply and demand.

Flowers for Farm Garden

PLANTING ROSES.

For the successful growing of roses there are three or four essentials: a good position, proper soil, good plants and the application of a little common sense. Rose roots do not wander far afield; hence, the necessity for intensive cultivation. It is generally agreed that heavy soil is the best practically any soil can be brought into use if plenty of food is provided and that placed right near the roots. Dig is a word to remember to dig to a depth of eighteen to twenty-four inches. Good digging is hard work but it pays. If the soil is very heavy break up the lower foot of depth and leave it there, also using at this lever a liberal supply of well decayed manure. Where the soil is not so heavy digging may be done to the same depth but the lower soil may be brought to the surface, the manure being dug in as previously suggested. An open position is by far the best for roses and it pays to secure this wherever possible.

If the plants to be put in appear to be dry or shrivelled it is a good plan to bury them, tops and roots, for a day or two in moist soil, this treatment often repairing the damage. In planting, above everything avoid leaving the roots exposed to drying winds. Half an hour of this treatment is sufficient to kill the strongest plant. Make the hole for the plant wide enough to take all the roots when spread out and sufficiently deep for the crown (or the place where the plant is budded) being two inches below the surface of the soil. Work in amongst the roots the cleanest soil available, allowing no manure to come into actual contact with the roots. Air spaces must be avoided, the idea to be kept in mind being good soil in close contact with every bit of root on the plant. Firm planting is a necessity, for which purpose tramping with the feet is perhaps the best method. In very dry weather a good soaking of water should be given and to finish leave the top two inches of soil loose. Soon after planting pruning should be done, this being necessary to help balance up the loss of roots.

MILLIONS OF TREES SUPPLIED FARMERS

Dominion Forestry Farms Are Sending Them Over Prairie Provinces.

INDIAN HEAD, Sask.—May 21—More than five million seedlings and cuttings are being supplied by the Dominion forestry farms at Indian Head and Sutherland, Sask., to 6,500 farmers in the three Prairie provinces. This represents the annual output of these two forestry farms.

The season opened with a huge shipment of more than a million and a half trees from the Sutherland farm, for distribution among farmers in the Northern parts of the province.

Shipments of evergreens now has commenced from the local farm, with 90,000 spruce and pine transplants for distribution among 508 applicants. Fifty thousand others are to be shipped to government reserves and forest plantations throughout the West.

At the present time the forestry farm carries a list of 9,000 names for inspection during the summer, by the eight inspectors who will start on the road early in June.

The United States has 142 telephones per 1000 inhabitants, while England has only 26. Eleven countries have more telephones per 1000 than England.

SEVERAL POINTS IN SELECTION

Breed Chosen Should Predominate in Locality of Farm.

MUST HAVE MARKET

Good individuals of whatever breed is selected should have first consideration by the man about to launch himself into the dairy business or replace grade cattle with purebreds. As between breeds, there are three points that should be considered: (1) The breed that predominates in the locality where the new herd is to be located; (2) personal preference, and (3) market requirements for the product.

There are a number of advantages to a dairyman in having the same breed as his neighbors. A dairyman just starting with purebreds may feel that since his neighbors have one breed of cattle, he should get another breed so as to have a monoply in the business of selling breeding stock There is no question about the monoply, but there would be no business to monopolize. It is difficult for an isolated small breeder to dispose of his stock to advantage, while if there are many breeders with the same breed, buyers are attracted to the locality because of the better chance to get the desired animals from one or more of the several breeders. Other advantages in having the same breed as the neighbors are the opportunity to exchange bulls, or to own good bulls co-operatively; to take advantage of breed sales of surplus stock; and lastly, the advantage of bringing the community together in other endeavors which usually result where there is but one breed.

Because a man will usually do best with a breed that he likes, it is well to give this personal preference the right of way when there is no other breed already established, providing, however, that just as high-quality animals are available in the preferred breed as in some other breed.

Market requirements for the product should not be overemphasized, says the bureau, for the reason that these requirements may fluctuate from one year to another, and obviously, the dairyman can not change breeds with every change of market requirements.

In summing up the matter of which breed to select, the bureau says this point should be kept in mind—there are good cows and poor cows in all breeds, and, other things being equal, the breeder or dairyman who gets good individuals to begin with will have a good chance for success, no matter what breed he selects.

The several breeds most popular as dairy breeds in Canada are the Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian and Jersey. Although much alike in what is known as general dairy conformation, these breeds differ to some extent in certain characteristics. What these character istics are, the factors to consider in selecting a breed, and the history and origin and development of the breeds, are questions of interest to both the beginner and the established breeder of dairy cattle.

PHOSPHATE TRAPS NITROGEN

Acid phosphate may be sprinkled on the manure in the gutters of the stabe or scattered about in the stalls. If this has not been done, 40 pounds of acid phosphate may be added to each load of manure. The fertilizing materials are in this manner added to the soil, but before being so used they have entered into combination with the ammonia or nitrogen of the manure and tied it up, so to speak, that it may not escape into the air. Go into a stable and note by smell this daily load of nitrogen into the atmosphere. Why not use acid phosphate for trapping it?

FARMERS DON'T CARRY ENOUGH FIRE INSURANCE

Say That Rates Are Excessive and Companies Are Unfavorable.

RATES COMPARED

Insurance Man Says Farmer Pays Less on Some Buildings.

CAMPBELLFORD May 21. — A farmer living on the outskirts of Campbellford lost his home by fire last week and on this building, a substantial brick structure erected some years ago, he carried only $1,000 of insurance, a sum hardly sufficient to rebuild a kitchen in these days of high prices for material and labor. The cost of building that house was probably less than half of what the farmer would be called upon to expend if he replaced the building, so that his loss is really greater than the original outlay less the amount he will receive from the insurance company.

Farm Insurance.

This circumstance has given rise to a discussion on insurance among the farmers of this district. Some of them say that it is almost impossible to get a company to take a risk on a farm building and that if the place is insured the rates are excessive, these rates having been almost doubled within the past few years. The insurance companies regard farm property as a heavy risk as the farmer has no fire protection. If his barn or residence is struck by lightning or set on fire from any other source the loss is almost certain to be total. All the prevention available in such cases is the volunteer work of the farmer's neighbors, which is usually confined to efforts to save the contents of the burning building.

Comparison of Rates.

A local insurance agent says that the farmer pays less for insurance on some classes of buildings than the rate charged town residents. On a frame farm dwelling the standard rate is $1.50 per hundred if the owner takes out a paid policy for three years. If he pays by the year the premium is 60 cents per hundred a year. If the house is equipped with lightning rods and a metal roof the owner is given a reduction of 10 per cent on these charges.

On a solid brick house with a shingle roof the premium for three years is 40 cents for one year or $100 for threee years. If such a house is protected by lightning rods and metal roof the owner gets a reduction of from 10 to 25 per cent.

The farmer's residential insurance may be higher than it is to a town resident, but he pays less than the rates charged owners of mercantile buildings even though the town in which the latter structures are situated may possess a well equipped fire department.

A Real Grievance.

Perhaps, after all, the farmer has a real grievance If on a one hundred acre farm he erects a $6,000 residence and modern outbuildings costing almost as much, the assessor on his annual rounds never fails to note the fact and boost the assessed value of the property. Let that farmer offer his farm for sale and the chances are that he will not receive for it more than the actual cost of the house alone.

The town resident with a building on a small lot, when he puts his property on the market comes near than this as a rule to realizing the actual cost.

THREE NOXIOUS WEEDS.

White top, the bane of hay farmers, can be checked by spring plowing. Heavily infested meadows should be clipped early in May with a mowing-machine; set the cutter-bar high to miss the grass. In pastures, cut the plants with a mower just before seeds are formed. Pasturing with sheep will kill lots of weeds, for sheep like the tender plants of white top.

Red sorrel is a sign that soil needs lime and manure. A good growth of grass will crowd out sorrel. Mowing sorrel twice a year before seed forms, in connection with liming, manuring and crop rotation, will soon get rid of it.

Prickly lettuce will soon disappear if no seeds are allowed to ripen, for it is an annual plant. A few plants in a fence corner may seed a large field—hence keep down all weeds in fence corners. The same goes for other weeds, too. One of the best ways to keep your farm clear of weeds is to sow clean seed.

Read the advertisements to-day. They tell you when, where and at what price you can best buy the things you need to-day. Thrift consists as much in thinking carefully about the things you have to buy as in bargaining closely.

Stirling Gardener Still Uses Pioneer Method

STIRLING, May 21.—(By a staff reporter)—A glimpse of Adam Cooney, a well known resident of the village at work preparing his garden for planting, is as good as a view of a moving picture of a pioneer farmer putting in his crop before drag or harrow was invented, so far as the early Canadian farmer knew. Mr. Cooney has the large limb of a tree which he drags patiently over his land after it has been plowed. He harnesses himself to this improvised drag by means of a stout rope and when he finishes his labors the surface soil of his garden has been completely pulverized.

Mr. Cooney formerly owned a farm on the outskirts of the village and had modern machinery of all kinds. The use of the limb now recalls the fact that such a contrivance was formerly used by up-to-date farmers, even if they owned harrows, to cover clover seed after it had been sown in the Spring, the iron teeth of the harrow being considered too harsh for the finer variety of seed.

SOWING BARLEY WITHOUT HULLS

Farmers in Vicinity of Meyersburg Experimented Successfully Last Year.

STILL HAS EARS

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21.—Thomas Dilworth and other farmers in the vicinity of Meyersburg, have gone extensively into the sowing of hulless barley this spring, a grain with which they successfully experimented last year. In 1924 Mr. Dilworth raised 40 bushels of this barley on less than three-quarters of an acreof land. The kernel is plump and dark colored, looking like a good sample of wheat that has been scorched and it makes excellent feed. The hull on the old variety of barley is missing but, the heads are still ornamented with the beards, or awns, that are the terror of all farmers and thresher men. The experimenters, however, hope to produce a type of barley mithout this appendage.

ORLAND FARMERS BUSY

Seeding Nearly Done—Hoe Crop Next—Fine Showing of Onions.

ORLAND, May 21.—Most all the farmers will finish seeding this week and will then be busy for a while with getting in the hoe crop.

Mr. W. Huycke has about half an acre of Danvers onions up about an inch high and they are looking fine.

The continued frosty nights are making the farmers look blue as crops are very much behind last years, considering the time seeding commenced.

ORLAND, May 18.—Dr. Anderson of Wooler has purchased a new car.

Frank Cooper has purchased a car.

James Tackaberry is having his barn reshingled this week.

Cold Water Bath Is Necessary

If you want good health, a clear complexion, and a well-toned system, take a cold water hand bath every day of the year, Mr. Mann of Anytown was told by the family doctor.

About half the accumulated impurities of the body must be thrown out through the skin. An unclean skin often is the parent of much illness, and many so-called contagious diseases.

The water for a bath should be of a temperature to suit the body. If a person is of vigorous constitution, or wishes to be, the water should be cold.

If the body can not stand cold water, begin by taking baths in lukewarm water, and have it less warm each day, as the body gradually becomes accustomed to it.

Rub the body vigorously while bathing. Too vigorous rubbing after the bath is not wise, especially if one does not remain in a very warm room afterward. Vigorous rubbing causes one to perspire and then to become chilled after dressing.

If a hot water bath is taken, end it with a rinse in cold water. And one should feel neither too chilled nor too warm after leaving the bath.

A Friend

You are a friend, just an old-fashioned friend who has stuck to me year after year. You've built up your rep; I can always depend that, when needed, you're bound to be here.

I've treated you tenderly; laid you away and tried to use best of discretion. You've served me for years and you serve me to-day in a regular morning time session.

When roughness comes to the point of my chin and spreads to my cheeks and my neck, 'tis then your dependable labors begin. When you're through I'm no longer a wreck.

The world likes to look on a man who is neat; who tends to his tidiness, aye. Forgetting to shave is a thing indiscreet, so you come to my rescue each day.

You're keen and you're sharp and you're cutting, 'tis true, but I'll grant that you're wise to your line. You do just the things that they meant you to do. And you're just an ol' razor of mine.

FOURTEEN BACON HOG CLUBS RECENTLY ORGANIZED AMONG FARMERS OF HASTINGS COUNTY

Total Number in Operation in County is Now Twenty.

SIRE FURNISHED

Department of Agriculture Will Aid Any Club With Ten Members.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

STIRLING, May 21.—District Representative Ray Atkin has recently organized fourteen new Bacon Hog Clubs among the farmers of Hastings County, and this brings the total in operation up to 20. The members are already beginning to realize on their enterprise, as the price which they now receive for their hogs shows.

The live stock branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture will furnish any club with a pure bred sire of the required type. The conditions are that the club must have a membership of not less than 10 breeders, and that these members must own at least twenty dams. The members are required to provide a competent caretaker for the sire, which is to be kept at some place convenient to the club, and the only expense incurred for the sire is the caretaker's salary and the feed of the animal.

It has already been decided to hold a fair next fall at which bacon hogs will be exhibited. The live stock branches at Ottawa and Toronto have each donated $100, the money to be awarded as prizes for the best exhibits.

Plowmen to Meet.

A meeting of the Hastings County Plowmen's Association will be held in Stirling on the evening of Tuesday, June 9, to make further arrangements for the annual plowing match. At this meeting the farm on which the match is to be held will be decided upon or a committee will be named to make the selection.

The officers of this association are: T. W. Thompson of Stirling, honorary president; Fred Mallory of Frankford, president; R. Bunnett of Hollaway, first vice-president; Samuel Wallace of Stirling, second vice-president; Ray Atkin of Stirling, secretary-treasurer.

Plowing has not yet become a lost art in Hastings as it has in so many counties of Ontario.

School Fair Dates.

There will be ten school fairs held in Hastings County this year and District Representative Atkin has announced the following dates:

At Rimington, September 11; Tweed, September 10; Queensboro September 14; Melrose, September 15; Cannington, September 17; Ivanhoe, September 18; Springbrook, September 22; Wallbridge, September 23; Buncroft, September 29; Wilberforce, September 30.

There will be no school fair at Stirling as these annual events are designed for the rural sections, but the pupils of the local school will hold a demonstration at the fair held by the Agricultural Society and will compete for the prizes offered by that society for the best exhibits of produce raised in a school garden in Stirling.

HIGH PRICE FOR APRIL CHEESE

Factories Are Paying Patrons 8c Per Pound More Than Last Year.

FEEDING GRAIN YET

BURNBRAE, May 21. — Cheese factories are paying off for April at over 41 cents per pound butter-fat which is about 8 cents per pound ahead of April, 1924. Local factories shipping through the N. D. C. sold April coloured cheese at 17 1-16 cents per pound, being three cents per pound better than last season's start. This is a decided boon to the farmer as grass is late in coming this year and more expensive grains must be fed. Several herds of cattle are already on pasture, some having been out for over a week, while a few herds have been remained outdoors at night. With the exceptionally cool nights this spring, the best milk flow can only be obtained by keeping the cows in the stable over night.

Crops Late.

With a week of warm, sunny days the country is taking on a greener shade than was evident at the first of the month. In spite of the predictions of early spring, the crops will be later than usual. Early sown grain is just growing nicely now, with some yet to be sown. Fall wheat seems to have made a steady growth throughout the cold spell but the hay fields have been at a standstill. A warm rain would be of great benefit to the hay crop which will be short should the remainder of May prove to be dry. Some nice stands of alfalfa and sweet clover are noticed throughout the district and at least one case of cattle bloating on sweet clover has already been reported. Timothy will probably be light as several fields are looking quite patchy at the season when they should be making rapid growth.

Immigrants Hired.

A number of immigrants from the Old Country have hired with local farmers for the year. These boys are adapting themselves to Canadian methods of agriculture and several show indications of becoming good farmers.

HOW TO HANDLE SHEEP

Wool Was Not Intended as a Natural Hande on Animal.

To many sheep raisers and farm hands the wool appears to be a natural handle. If the torture inflicted by catching a sheep by the wool could be appreciated, says J. B. Spencer's bulletin issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture on "Sheep Husbandry in Canada," doubtless many would seek a better method. The examination of a carcass of a newly-killed sheep that has been listed by its wool reveals an inflamed and congested area resembling the effects of a severe jam or bruise at every point over which the wool was pulled.

The proper method of catching a sheep is by the hind leg or the head, the bulletin proceeds to say. If in a close pen in which the sheep are crowded it is an easy matter to secure the selected animal by the head, holding it fast until the others have moved away. In a larger pen or yard a sheep should be caught by the hind leg just above the hock or gambrel joint. A properly made shepherd's crook, having a handle six or more feet long,can advantageously be used for this purpose. Whencaught by the hock joint, the sheep is drawn back until it is easy to grasp it by the neck. Another advantage in this method is that stampeding the flock is largely avoided.

To convey a sheep after it is caught the shepherd should place his left hand beneath the jaw. If the animal plunges it should be gently grasped by the wool on the farther cheek, the right hand being used to grasp the side of the tail or the end of the stub. In this way the sheep is not injured and theshepherd avoids trouble.

BURNING PASTURES DOES'NT HELP

Many farmers have the idea that setting fire to the dry grass in woods and rough fields improves the grazing. On the contrary, such burning reduces the grazing capacity of the pastures and destroys the young trees that are trying to help redeem such lands. Usually this burning over is done in late winter or early spring, but the results are harmful, regardless of when the burning over is done.

For the most part, old cut-over areas, unfit for or generally not desired for cultivation purposes, will restock themselves with valuable timber if the young seed stocks and young trees are not destroyed or injured by fire. Avoiding this abuse, therefore, improves the pastures and gives the young trees a chance to develop into great usefulness in the coming years

CROP GROWING WELL IN WEST

Plenty of Moisture and Increased Warmth Favorable to Growth.

WHEAT WELL ROOTED

By E. CORA HIND,
Commercial Editor, Manitoba Free Press.

WINNIPEG. — Weather conditions over the Prairie West show a very distinct improvement during the past few days in the matter of increased warmth, and growth is making fair progress. Wheat seeding is probably 90 per cent. completed in Manitoba and coarse grain seeding is well under way, though farmers are rather holding back on barley until the ground is a little warmer and giving the land that much more cultivation. Winter rye, seeded on stubble, is looking very good, but there has been considerable killing out of winter rye on summer fallowed land in some of the districts. This is attributed to the fact that fall growth was rank and the plant somewhat soft going into the winter.

Wheat seeding has progressed pretty steadily in Saskatchewan and in a number of districts is completed, or almost so, while in some of the territories, more particularly in the north there is probably 25 per cent. of the wheat still to be seeded. In Alberta, wheat seeding is pretty well completed in the south and centre with probably a little more than 50 per cent. completed in the north. Reports from the northern part of Alberta claim considerable increases in wheat acreages this season but have yet to be confirmed by the government returns.

In all the Prairie Provinces the cool weather has tended to a good root and very good stooling and where wheat is up three inches or so, it is a healthy vigorous plant and should stand considerable adversity later in the season, should the dry hot weather predicted by Foster come along.

Farm help is reported sufficient and on the whole of better efficiency than for some years, with wages running from $40 to $50 per month, where hiring is for the season.

G. A. BRETHEN'S RECENT SPEECH IN DEBATE ON DOMINION BUDGET

Reprinted from the House of Commons Debates Official Report.

WHAT IS WRONG?

Member For East Peterborough Says There is Lack of Team Work.

Mr. G. A. Brethen (East Peterborough): Mr. Speaker, I have listened with much pleasure to the address which has just been delivered. It stands out very brilliantly in comparison with much of the partisan debate that we have heard so far. I will try to follow the ideal set by the hon. gentleman and in doing so will endeavour to speak without prejudice, actuated by the sole desire to examine the question "What is wrong with Canada?" and if possible suggest an answer.

Canada is so diversified in its interests and outlook that no solution can be arrived at unless a spirit of sympathy and genuine co-operation holds sway. Lacking such co-operation between the different units that make up the Canadian commonwealth and between the different classes in each community any fiscal policy is certain to fail. Enjoying such sympathy and co-operation I believe that under almost any fiscal policy Canada is certain to succeed.

"What is wrong with Canada?" Answering this question I would say a lack of team-work; an attitude of pulling part rather than one of pulling together: a lack of sympathy and understanding between rural and urban interests within the community, and a prevalence of sectional interests within Canada herself. What is the remedy for this condition? Some few years ago when the thought laid hold of the people of Canada that the Canadian National Railways were our railways, that we the people of Canada were vitally interested in their success or failure, things began to happen to the Canadian National Railway—it gained the greatest asset instrumental to the success of any organization, the good will of the people. So with the industrial and commercial life of this country. Let the people feel that Canadian industries are our industries, that Canadian farms are our farms that the interests of both are immutably joined together, that one cannot succeed if the other fail, and that both are worth saving. When the people of Canada are actuated by such a feeling, Canada as a whole will move forward. In this connection the Farmers Advocate of April 16, last, under the editorial "The same road and the same gait" has this to say:

Capitalists, manufacturers, tradesmen, labour and urban people generally were never more convinced than now that poverty and prosperity are closely associated with the economic status and well being of the farmer. It has taken more than words and oratory to make the lesson understood. Only decreased sales, lack of employment and a general slowing down of business could persuade the other classes of people that whether they like it or not they will have to keep step with the farmer.

What is throttling the life of some of our Canadian industries to-day? Lack of sales. With increased sales follows increased production, lower overhead costs and, with efficient management, more profitable returns. Develop in Canada the morale that will boost the purchase of Canadian products. That does not mean to apply only in a limited sense to made-in-Canada boots and shoes, hats and caps and farm implements, but just as truly to Canadian eggs and cheese, butter and bacon, apples and fish. Let Canada do her best along these lines, and such a revival in trade will result as will make every legitimate industry in Canada as busy as a Canadian beaver.

The heart of the Canadian people is sound. What stands in the way of this much-to-be-desired condition? A cloud of misunderstanding seems to exist in the minds of some people that, given the privilege to enforce a system of still higher taxation upon the consumers of this country that industry and Canada as a whole will prosper. Such a system will always be resented by the people taxed. Such a system will always prove a barrier to that bond of sympathy and co-operation that would ensure maximum sales within the country. When you tax the over-burdened taxpayer of East Peterborough on the implements he uses and the clothes he wears, to give the benefit of such tax to some gentleman in Toronto or Montreal, you do not add to the taxable wealth of Canada. You do hamper and prevent the just and equitable distribution of such wealth.

The United States of America has often been referred to in this debate because of the success it has attained, supposedly to the policy of protection. Mr. Coolidge, making his maiden speech in Washington on December 6, 1923, has this to say regarding United States agriculture, then and still in a deplorable state of distress:

No complicated scheme of relief, no plan for government fixing of prices, no resort to the public treasury will be of any permanent value in establishing agriculture. Simple and direct methods put in operation by the farmer himself are the only real sources for restoration.

If such words were true of agriculture in 1923, have they not been proven equally true to-day? The American farmer was hoodwinded, or hoodwinked himself, into believing that high protective tariffs would alleviate his conditions. Apparently the very reverse has been true, and he is compelled, as have farmers in Canada, to fall back on simple and direct methods of organization and co-operative marketing.

But if the statement of President Coolidge is correct concerning agriculture, is it not equally true of industry? In Canada we have the spectacle of some industrial concerns, notably the binder twine industry of Brantford, working under simple and direct methods, put in operation by the industry itself, and buying their raw materials in the open markets of the world, working overtime, expanding its operations to the point where it is acknowledged to be the greatest of its kind in the British Empire, and is paying regular dividends to its shareholders. Side by side with this industry in the city of Brantrfd, we have other industries enjoying special privilege in the sale of their products and given practically free trade in the purchase of their raw material. Yet according to my hon. friends to my right, these industries are closed or in a very unhealthy condition.

What conclusions can we draw from such a situation?

1. That altogether too much emphasis has been placed upon the effect of the changes made in our tariff during the past two or three years. These changes averaging between one and two per cent are so insignificant that they could not possibly be responsible for either the good effects claimed by the government or the bad effects claimed just as vigorously by the opposition.

2. That the real cause—and admitted so by the representatives of industry themselves—is lack of sales.

I remember during the past year that in our caucus room we met representatives of the implement manufacturers of Brantford and they proceeded to place the industrial situation in Brantford before us. They made the statement that many factories were closed, and I asked one of the gentlemen, the spokesman of the party, "Are all the factories in Brantford in that condition?" And he said, "No, there is a binder twine industry, for instance, that is working night and day." But, he said, "Of course they have a good sale for their product." I said, "Is the question, then not one of lack of sales in all these industries?" And he admitted that it was. Well then would the proposed increase in the protective tariff alleviate or would it aggravate that situation? Would charging a higher price enable them to sell more, to increase their sales, or would it not? There was no answer to that question.

Now just on the side, in leaving that meeting I was informed by a gentleman from the city of Brantford that the spokesman of that party started in some years ago—and he was still a man in his prime—with practically nothing and had recently sold out a one-half interest in his business for half a million dollars. He claimed that he got very little assistance from the protective tariff, that he did not use the tariff to fix his prices in any way, and yet he had made good in his particular industry in Brantford.

Developing this conclusion that the problem is one of lack of sales I will go further and state that I do not believe the increased tariff imposed by the United States against Canada and the world helped very materially in bringing about conditions in that country, as they exist to-day. I admit it hurt us by dislocating our trade, but it certainly did not benefit the American farmers, and I repeat that I seriously question if industry in the United States reaped any material gain. We are accustomed to this argument advanced by some hon. members; "The United States has a high protective tariff; the United States is prosperous; therefore high protective tariffs bring prosperity." But here I would like to remind my hon. members that during the past winter in the highly industrialized city of Detroit the Ford motor plant, one of the most highly financed, highly organized and efficiently managed industrial concerns in the world, was running, but three days a week and thousands of unemployed were almost on the bread line.

Conditions in the United States have, by way of comparison with those in Canada, entered so frequently into the discussions in this House that I will be pardoned if I refer to them. From first hand information received through personal interviews with people across the line, real estate dealers, bankers, contractors, workers in motor plants and allied industries, I have drawn the conclusion that the happy conditions in the United States we so often hear about from our friends to the right are due, not to highly protective tariff, but to the following reasons:

1. To the tremendous financial advantage gained by the United States by her late entry into the world war.

2. To a commendable reduction of some $5,000,000,000 in taxation during the past four years.

3. To an immense building boom—suspended during the war period—of some $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000 spread over the cities of the central and northern states.

4. To a system of financing the very reverse of that practised in Canada, whereby credit instead of cash sales are encouraged. Fully 90 per cent, I believe, of the sales in real estate and business contracts, in fact, almost every commercial transaction is performed on the basis of a cash payment down of 10, 15 or 20 per cent, with the balance on paper.

5. To the fact that apparently everybody in the big cities, the real estate dealer, banker, doctor, lawyer, worker in the factory, even the nurse in the hospital, subscribes to this financial practice.

Thursday, April 30, 1925.

Mr. Brethen: Mr. Speaker, yesterday I referred to the lack of team work and the need of better understanding among the many elements in Canada. When the House rose I was dealing with the argument advanced by some hon. members thus: The United States has high protective duties, the United States is prosperous, therefore high protective duties bring prosperity. In this connection I referred to the situation during the past winter in the highly industrialized city of Detroit, where the Ford motor plant was running but three days a week, and thousands of unemployed were almost on the bread line.

Referring to conditions in the United States and Canada I drew the conclusion from personal interviews with residents of the United States that the happy conditions there that we so often hear about were due not so much to a highly protective tariff as to certain other factors, namely: the tremendous financial advantage gained by the United States by her late entry into the World War; the commendable reduction of some five million dollars in taxation; the immense building boom suspended during the war period and running up to some five or six billions of dollars; also to their system of financing, the very reverse of that practised in Canada, whereby credit instead of cash sales is encouraged. Fully ninety per cent, I believe, of the sales in real estate as well as business contracts, indeed almost every commercial transaction is performed on the basis of a small cash payment down—ten, fifteen or twenty per cent—and the balance on paper. Further, there is the fact that apparently everybody in the big cities, doctors, lawyers, workers in the factories, and even nurses in the hospitals, subscribed to this financial practice.

The nature of practically every commercial transaction in the big industrial cities in the United States is well illustrated by this familiar example. A purchaser in the city of Detroit can go into the shop of a Ford dealer, pay $12.50 down and promise to pay 5 a week, and drive out a fully equipped Ford car. Such a system in the final analysis is costly, wasteful, and vicious to the country at large. As the inevitable result we find the big industrial cities of the United States in the very midst of an inflated condition, with the rural districts experiencing a corresponding depression, due to the inflated values of everything the farmer has to buy and to world market prices for everything he has to sell. In other words, the big industrial districts of the United States, which have attracted so many of the best of our young manhood during the past few years, are experiencing a situation very similar to that experienced in western Canada some years ago—unbounded optimism, easy credit, inflated land values, immigration pouring into the country, and men and women in every walk of life leaving the beaten paths of stable industry in an effort to get rich quick and at any cost—all the earmarks of seeming prosperity.

I will not attempt to refresh the minds of hon. gentlemen of this House with what ultimately followed such a financial practice, the results are too vividly in the minds of our people to be easily forgotten. Is such a system of finance sound? Is this the system that we are asked to strive for, to emulate? Given the same or similar premises, similar results are certain to follow, and with mathematical precision. If the industrial centres of the United States do not soon take stock, cease their fictitious trading with one another, and build on the more permanent basis of the stable prosperity of the country as a whole, then should any serious deflation occur, and it [illegible] States, the [illegible] we experience [illegible] some years ago with [illegible] ided against itself cannot [illegible] reat Britain, the United States of America, the Dominion of Canada, France or any other country cannot go forward to permanent prosperity unless as a united people—united we stand, divided we fall. Developing this thought further, the Farmer's Advocate editorially says:

A movement is on foot in the United States to bring about a better understanding between industry and agriculture and conferences with this end in view are held from time to time. The organizers look at it in this light: "Better results mean better times for manufacturers; better markets for farmers, better times for farmers; better markets for manufactured goods, better employment for labour." It is realized on every hand that the first step in the right direction is a "better understanding."

And that applies as well to Canada as it does to the United States. It goes on:

There is too much meaningless criticism offered in place of constructive suggestion, while both industry and agriculture are often the victims of demagogic attacks that are sometimes not even correct in theory. Considering the lack of understanding between classes and industries, between rural and urban people, and between labour and employer, it is remarkable that so much progress has actually been made

Is it not time that the various organizations representing agriculture, manufacturing, finance and labour held fewer meetings by themselves and took a little time off to get acquainted with the other fellow's viewpoint and the other fellow's conditions?

As showing the need of a better working understanding, among this great family, the Canadian people, I am reminded of the story of a young man whose trousers were too long. He went to mother and requested her to shorten them, but mother was too busy. He went to sister. Sister was too busy. Thrown upon his own resources, he decided to do the job himself. He took a generous slice off each leg, and hung the pants away for Sunday. Later mother regretted that she had not acceded to his request, and she also took a slice off the already diminished trousers. Sister's conscience bothered her and she repeated the operation, and when the young man on Sunday glanced ruefully at the abbreviated pants he remarked, "What this family needs is less operation, and more co-operation."

The politicians of France and the United States are putting everything they have in the way of indications of prosperity in the front shop window Great Britain is plugging away in the background, but still going down to the sea in ships. Canada is divided. Some of us are working earnestly to bring about permanent prosperity on the basis of "equal opportunities to all and special privileges to none," while others are just busying themselves flashing 4 4 beer in the window or sulking in the cellar of pessimism. Is it any wonder that our Canadian boys turn from this drab picture of steady Canadian progress to the flashy picture of American boom and bustle and seeming prosperity?

But why should we be downhearted? The pound sterling is crowding the top perch with the American eagle. The Canadian dollar is at par, and John Bull and Jack Canuck, with the earnest patriotic support of every Canadian citizen, will some how paddle through.

How can we help to bring about happier conditions in Canada? By taking a few leaves from the book of our friends to the South. Put some of Canada's real assets to the fore. In this connection I should like to pay a compliment to the hon. member for Muskoka (Mr. Hammell) who refusing the other night, to be led aside into mere partisan debate, proceeded to put before this House and the world the revenue producing possibilities of the tourist traffic of Canada. We are all acquainted with the importance of the Swiss watch industry—everybody has heard of the Swiss watch a great industry. But when compared to the tourist traffic of Switzerland the relation is $15,000,000 for the watch industry to $300,000,000 for the tourist traffic. Of course the Swiss people are a sane, frugal, efficient people. A story is told by a traveller of Swiss efficiency. When up among the mountains in that country one day, he came to a herdsman's cottage. Through the open door he saw the mother in the home with a book from which she was singing, in one hand, the other hand working a churn, and her foot rocking the cradle; and as the traveller looked into that window he soliloquized "What an illustration of efficiency; mind, eye, voice, hands and feet all working." But to his amazement when the woman in reply to his summons left her chair he saw she also had been pressing a Swiss cheese. I repeat, let us put the assets, the real assets, of Canada to the fore; put them in the front shop window. Let us tell our wealthy American friends who annually spend hundreds of millions of dollars in sightseeing the world about this wonderful country at their very doors; about our sparkling lakes and rivers filled with the gamest, sportiest fish in all the world; its ease of access by railroad, by motor, and launch through scenery unsurpassed; about her snow-capped mountains, crystal streams, and hidden lakes which I have heard world travelled Americans describe as unsurpassed even by the Alps themselves. Here is a source of revenue whose fringe has scarcely been touched. I will support a largely increased expenditure for development here. Let us tell the world about our fertile fields, an empire in extent; our No. 1 Northern that commands a premium on any market; about the wealth of our forests, our fisheries and minerals. Let us tell them about our wonderful water powers developed and undeveloped, and how they operate the wheels of industry; about our sturdy, reliable Canadian workers; our stable system of financing and sound economic practices in commercial transactions. We have been knocking Canada before the world long enough: let us boost some.

Let us take another leaf from the book of our American neighbour: Reduction of Federal taxation. By a system of economies in small things as well as by eliminating expensive duplications in the service the United States has been able to reduce her federal tax from $54 to $27 annually. Since the war the United States has reduced her debt by over five billions.

How has this been accomplished? By old fashioned thrift, actually saving the pennies rather than talking about saving the millions: By co-ordination in the public service. To illustrate what can be accomplished here I should like to refer to the situation when President Coolidge became governor of the state of Massachusetts. When he entered that office he found departments which aggregated 118 in number. He was successful in getting a bill through the legislature which allowed a reduction of not more than 20 and was given three years to do it in. The number was reduced to 18, and the thing seemingly impossible was actually accomplished in less than one year. Friends and enemies alike, said, "This is the death knell of your political future. These disgruntled partisans that have been turned out of office will spell your defeat." He came into office as governor of Massachusetts with the majority of 17,000 and was returned with a majority of 125,000, proving that, the great mass of the people, will support any government htat has the moral courage to attack and correct this duplication and wasteful expenditure in the public service. Reduction of taxation by avoiding every unnecessary expenditure. How this may be brought about is well illustrated by the inaugural ceremony that has recently taken place at Washington. Formerly the outlay upon such occasions amounted to about $100,000. This year it cost but $5,000. This saving may not have pleased the elite at Washington, but looked good to the people who pay the taxes. President Coolidge has this to say:

"I am interested in this policy of economy not because I want to save money but because I want to save people."

Another saving was effected through the creation of the Bureau of the Budget. This was referred to yesterday by the hon. member for West Lambton (Mr. LeSueur) in detail, and I take this opportunity of again congratulating that hon. gentleman upon his contribution to the debate. General Lord, who succeeded General Dawes as the director of the budget at Washington, has this to say: "Little or no saving was achieved in the public service prior to the budget." Since its inception the government has been enabled to reduce taxation some two billion dollars annually according to President Coolidge's statement in Washington, on January 26.

Reduction in taxation, federal, provincial and municipal, can only be accomplished when the government receives the whole-hearted support of the individual elector. The people can no longer reasonably expect to continue to receive lavish expenditures for public services from the government, and at the same time enjoy any drastic reduction in taxation. It can't be done! I know of no surer way of bringing this home to the people than by the practice of refusing every request for the expenditure of public money that cannot be ear-marked "solely in the public interest." "Resolve every doubt in favor of the taxpayer." New post offices such as the one referred to by the hon. member for Yale (Mr. Stirling) at Penticton, or the building of a wharf similar to the one at Belle River, whose existence was dependent solely on the return of a government supporter, would not be considered legitimate under this policy.

I have no personal grievance with anyone in the civil service, and any words I have to say concerning that service will be directed against the policy and not against the individuals. I would suggest, in order to reduce taxation, a vigorous cutting-down of the civil service. This would not be a popular movement right here in Ottawa, but the government that had the moral backbone to effect such an economy would have the lasting gratitude of the people of Canada. The most effective way to accomplish such a reduction would be to remove the "haven of rest" idea with which the service is enveloped and place the service on a business basis. Lengthen the hours in the inside service from an average of less than six hours a day to a commercial eight-hour day. I believe by this means a real saving of possibly $10,000,000 annually can be made. The departments would not suffer any in efficiency, and such economy in the public service would be appreciated by the over-burdened tax-payer who works eight, ten, twelve or fourteen hours a day. If such action interferes with any section of the Civil Service Act I would scrap or amend that section. The Civil Service Act was made for man and not man for the Act.

Another suggestion would be the co-ordination of the departments. Will any hon. member offer any serious objection to the uniting, say, of the office of Solicitor General with that of the Minister of Justice? In a little by-play in the debate the other day we learned that one of the best arguments for retaining the office of Solicitor General was that the now right hon. leader of the opposition (Mr. Meighen) at one time filled the office very ably. After the practical demonstration given by the sixty-seven-year-young Minister of Railways (Mr. Graham) in administering three departments, and acting as premier simultaneously, why should we be nervous if a $14,000 per year minister were entrusted with the combined offices of say Secretary of State and National Defence or Trade and Commerce? Great savings were accomplished in the United States along these lines. The people of Canada will appreciate a saving here.

I have never been very critical of the Senate, believing that with some minor reforms the upper house could well serve a very useful purpose. After a larger acquaintance with the working of parliament, with all due respect to the hon. gentlemen of that august body I am frank to admit, however, I am a convert to the idea of abolition. At present the good services that might be performed by the Senate in initiating good legislation and checking ill-advised legislation are largely offset by the practice of the elected representatives of the people in the house as a smoke screen behind which they may hide in dealing with questions that may be of peculiarly lively interest to certain sections of our people. I believe every hon. gentleman now adorning the Red Chamber whose ability and physical condition would permit

COUPLE HELD IN BAIL OWING TO INQUEST STORY

Woman Said Dead Man Had Been a Close Friend of Hers.

DECEIVED HUSBAND.

Said That Deceased Had Shot Himself Outside Her Bedroom Window.

MONTREAL, May 21—(Canadian Press).—Mr. and Mrs. George William McIntosh Reay, of Lasalle Road, Verdun, were ordered held by the police by Coroner McMahon in $10,000 bail. Their detention followed the testimony of Mrs. Reay at the resumed inquest yesterday into the death of Ernest Stockham, who was found dead with a revolver beside him near the home of the Reays early last Sunday morning. The inquest was adjourned until Monday afternoon. Bail was furnished later. Mrs. Reay testified that she had been an intimate friend to Stockham, and she had led her husband to believe that Stockham was her step-brother. Her husband, she swore, had been visiting a sister in Westmount on Saturday night, and Stockham had gone to her home, said the witness.

After leaving the house and returning, Stockham called through her bedroom window, asked for her hands, and she put her fingers through an opening in the shutter. Stockham kissed them, counted three and shot himself.

Two landladies testified that Mrs. Reay had visited Stockham daily since November, 1924.

The witness denied that she or her husband had killed Stockham or that her husband had ever threatened to kill the deceased.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Empire Day tomorrow gives us an opportunity to survey the greatness of the common wealth of nations of which Canada forms a part. Plans have been made in the schools for a special programme to mark the occasion, and parents are invited to join with their children in the afternoon session, when patriotic songs, recitations and addresses will be given.

There is not much flag waving and horn tooting in the make-up of the men and women of the Empire. Probably we are somewhat aloof, condescending to smile upon those juveniles in the game of nation building who become carried away by the enthusiasm of their own activity.

The British Empire is firmly grounded on the solid quality and permanent characteristics of the British race. These overseas Dominions, those dependancies that will some time be Dominions, have added their best development and their finest impulses. And it is not easy to tear down a structure like that.

There is no need for the citizen of this British Empire to shout its glories to the world. Wherever the British navy scours the seven seas, wherever the red or blue or khaki of Britain's armies has passed, and wherever the Union Jack unfurls, there is the truest freedom that the world can know.

It is well, however, that the children who are growing up in these Dominions, so far from the hub of the Empire, should learn of the history of centuries that has made our complacency possible, and such programmes as are prepared for tomorrow should be encouraged. The Board of Education's invitation to parents to be present at the celebration of Empire Day should meet a ready response.

Be just and fear not; let all the ends thou aimest at, be thy country's, thy God's, and truth's.

G. A. BRETHEN'S RECENT SPEECH

could serve his country better as an elected representative of the people in the House of Commons, and I have no doubt he would be welcomed as such. The British North America Act is evidently not perfect and an amendment to permit of such action would I believe meet the hearty approval of the people of Canada.

I doubt if much saving can be accomplished under the present practice of administering the departments of the government. The system savours too much of the cost-plus species of remuneration with the inevitable result, gradually growing departments with higher administration costs. To me the only feasible method of reducing the ever-growing cost of departmental government is by way of a reduced allotment for each department by a body independent of government heads of the departments. I have no doubt that under such a system the head of each department would accommodate his work to the reduced expenditure, without any serious loss in efficiency, the same as the farmer and others have had to do under falling revenue.

Now I come to the consideration of this House itself;—economy like charity should begin at home. I am heartily in favour of the suggestion of many hon. gentlemen that the membership in this House should be materially reduced. This would seem an opportune time to give this matter serious consideration, in view of the expressed intention of considering at a near conference amendments to the British North America Act that would enable such changes to be made. Another change that is quite within the powers of parliament and which I seriously recommend to members of this House is a reasonable reduction of the indemnity. While many good arguments can be advanced against such action, the truth remains that no drastic economies can be effected without the members of this House demonstrating their willingness to give a lead. Some say that with any reduction there would be no inducement for good men to enter public life. Answering this I should like to say "the lure of the dollar can never attract the best man in Canada like the call of service," and I am sure no hon. member would suffer any permanent inconvenience when the good effects of such action are measured. The indemnity is not a salary but is supposed to be given to secure hon. members against financial loss. I recognize that members coming from the extremes of Canada, on account of their inability to give personal supervision to their business, suffer a greater financial loss than the member within a stone's throw of Ottawa, and therefore I would favour as fair and reasonable the payment of indemnity under a graduated scale or a zone system. Coming from Ontario I can suggest such a change with more freedom than could an hon. member from those parts of Canada who would be favourably affected by such an arrangement.

I do not purpose referring to our uncontrollable expenditures such as interest on national debt, pensions, and so on, further than to say that while some hon. members of the late government might be seriously criticized for their lack of vision in failing to reduce the capital expenditure during the period of good times following the war, the fact remains that these debts are with us, we must bend every energy to prevent them expanding and devise some means for their substantial reduction.

I have suggested some practical economies in the public expenditure that can and will be appreciated by every taxpayer in Canada. I would now like to refer for a few minutes to methods that might be employed to raise the necessary revenue with the least hardship to the people at large. What then should be our souces of taxation?

First: Death duties carefully and stiffly graded. This is the fairest of all taxes. When a man has had a life use of the money which the country has helped him to make, the country has a right to a share of it at his death. Of course, the interests of the widows and orphans must be safeguarded to a reasonable extent.

Second: A graded income tax, beginning well down and after a certain sum—say $10,000 a year—is reached, rising very sharply on large incomes. This is getting the money from where it exists. But I would make a distinction favourable to incomes reinvested in industrial enterprises over the latent or dormant income. Such a tax on a man's income is easily collectible and it is preferable to the tariff which is a tax on the poor man's needs.

Third: A sales tax which might be largely excise in its character, bearing most heavily on luxuries and on such Canadian manufacturies as enjoy the highest protection. Automobiles, for instance, would be considered as in such class.

Fourth: A tariff for revenue. This, of necessity, must be flexible and levied as far as possible on the non-necessities of life and luxuries. Tariffs are usually costly taxes, troublesome to collect and in my opinion, an implement of taxation warranted only by dire necessity. When levied as protective, tariffs are unjust and ruinous taxes; they are a privilege granted to the few to bleed the many; they drain the country without filling the exchequer; they are heaviest on the best citizens, the men who are rearing worthily families whose needs have to be supplied; they are harsh on the poor. These are taxed out of all proportions to their means with every purchase. It is the purchasing power of the mass of the people that makes trade prosperous. It is the worker's needs, supplied that makes work for workers.

I have been rather surprised during this debate to hear our friends to the right advocating almost with one accord reciprocity with the United States—reciprocity of tariffs, not of freer trade. Our Liberal-Conservative friends are not always protectionists; sometimes they are more Liberal than Conservative, and a few nights ago they were almost Progressive in their leanings. A certain private bill was proposed by the member for St. Lawrence-St. George (Mr. Marler) which was to extend for six years a certain patent enjoyed by a manufacturing concern in Montreal. When it was strenuously opposed by the hon. member for Norfolk (Mr. Wallace) and others in this part of the House, to our surprise the only apparent support that came from anywhere in this House for the company seeking this particular protection came from that doughty protectionist, the sponsor of the bill. He was like "a voice crying in the wilderness." I am opposed to protective tariffs. They have been given a fair, reasonable trial in Canada for well-nigh fifty years. Successive governments, as was shown by the hon. member for South Winnipeg (Mr. Hudson) have made insignificant downward changes; yet when we point to the impoverished farmers throughout the country, when we point to the strikes of labouring men for higher wages, to seasonable unemployment and to the suspension of protected industries our protectionist friends in this House say this is all due to a reduction or threatened reduction of the tariff. Such a charge I defy my protectionist friends to sustain. On the contrary they but discredit themselves by advancing such a baseless argument and by seeking to avoid responsibility for conditions, for which they are clearly and undeniably responsible.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I would say that if there is any man in Canada who really believes that, under a democratic form of government where the people rule, where laws should be made for the good of all, any party has the right to impose taxes or to put burdens on one class in order to benefit another class, then that man is unworthy of a place in the free country in which he lives.

I have tried honestly to answer the question: What is wrong with Canada? and to offer some humble suggestions by way of remedy. In so doing, I have endeavoured to avoid unduly harsh or destructive criticism, believing that Canada needs at this time, as in the war-time crisis, the united, unbiased, whole-hearted, patriotic efforts of every member of this House to bring Canada through.

JAMES JOHNSTON PAYS $200 FINE

Apsley Man Convicted of Having Liquor Illegally at Picnic.

James Johnston, of Apsley, was convicted yesterday of an infraction of the O.T.A. under section 41 which deals with the possession of liquor in a place other than the private home and paid a fine of two hundred dollars and costs, which amounted to about $35.00.

Mr. McElderry represented the accused and Mr. Strickland the prosecution. Magistrate Langley delivered sentence after a session of two hours.

On November 7, 1924, a school social was held at Rickles school. Johnston had a supply of home brew near the roadside which he doled out to passing youths, the evidence showed. It was not proved that he sold the liquor.

Joseph Stewart, license inspector, served the papers at the beginning of April, but the desired parties were in a logging camp.

Last week Mr. Stuart returned and surprised Johnston in bed at the early hour of 5.30 and brought him to Peterborough to await trial.

The fine was paid.

LAKEFIELD HAS NEW CHIEF OF FIRE BRIGADE

A. H. Clarke Succeeds W. L. Webster — Department Needs More Equipment.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Records Appreciation of the Valuable Services of Chief Webster to Village.

LAKEFIELD, May 20 — Mr. A. H. Clarke has been appointed Fire Chief to succeed W. L. Webster who left town last week. Mr. Clarke has had considerable experience with volunteer brigades and the appointment is a popular one. He finds the brigade well trained and a loyal organization both to their village and to each other. They are fairly well equipped, although the fire on Tuesday night of last week demonstrated the need of more hose and a water supply conveniently situated for the north east and eastern part of the village. The long talked of tanks would solve the problem and enable the brigade to do better work in the event of fire in these localities. An insurance inspector who visited the town last week gave as his opinion that no measure to provide adequate fire protection is an extravagance in a municipality.

While the fire fighters could easily do with a greater supply of hose they could do without the unsolicited advice from the idlers who thronged the scene of Tuesday's fire. The crowd blocked the way for the firemen who were bringing in equipment and the ubiquitous small child wandered about very much in the way and responded to no word of authority, parental or otherwise. A wisé course of action and one which would be much appreciated by the brigade, would be for the citizens to act as a silent bystander at a reasonable distance from the scene of the fire.

Council Minutes

The regular monthly meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening last. The members present were Reeve J. C. Strickland in the chair and Councillors W W Leonard, W Madill, N A Moore and E A Tanner. Fire Chief W L Webster was present and tendered his resignation as he was leaving the village.

Moved by Councillor Tanner, seconded by Councillor Moore, That the resignation of Fire Chief Webster be accepted with regret and that the Council desire to place on record their appreciation of the faithful services performed by Mr. Webster and their regret that he finds it necessay to retire owing to his departure from Lakefield. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Tanner seconded by Councillor Moore, That the Council sit as a Court of Revision on the Assessment Roll on Friday, May 29th, 1925, at 7.30 p.m. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Madill, seconded by Councillor Leonard, That Mr. Allan H. Clark be appointed Fire-Chief. Carried.

The following accounts were passed: Lakefield News, printing, $17.75; Bell Telephone Co. $6.27; N. A. Moore, band stand, $285.00; W. J. Charlton, fuel, etc., $104.00; W. J. Charlton, street rent, $10.00; Pay roll, $86.40; F. Boyce sand, $7.00; J. Edwards work, $28.70; N. A. Moore, lumber, $3.60; W. L. Webster, flushing drains, $15.00; W. J. Webster, man holes, $45.40; H. B. Taylor, tile, $7.70; T. J. Wood, rent of road, $5.00; Draft for sewer $459.55; Fire Brigade pay roll, $41.40; Total, $1122.97.

The council then adjourned.

St. John's Church Tea

The Junior Auxiliary of St. John's Church held an afternoon tea and sale of homemade cake and candy in the Sunday School room on Saturday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. Mrs. Sanderson, the superintendent of the Junior Branch, was in charge and despite the rain, which fell in torrents about the tea hour, the tea was very successful and was a very pleasing social event besides enabling the little girls to augment their funds by a substantial sum. Misses Ione Sanderson and Winifred Payne presided over the homemade cooking table in a very capable and business like manner while Misses Madeline Junkin, Mae Oliver and Mary Webdale were in charge of the delectable display of home made candy. Misses Coleen Junkin, Olive Edwards, Kathleen and Patricia Wannamaker were in charge of the fish pond which was as usual a strong attraction.

Mrs. A. Wannamaker and Mrs. Stenner were in charge of the tea room and did a thriving business.

Rev. and Mrs. W. Cox received the guests with Mrs. Sanderson.

New Instruments

The Citizens' Band have purchased a bass horn and a large bass drum with part of the grant given recently by the Council and now have a very good equipment of instruments. With these later additions they expect to give some band concerts during the summer evenings. These will be a great attraction to the village and one can be quite certain of the genuine appreciation of the citizens.

The village park, better known as Hague's Point, is being put into good shape for the summer season and it is expected that it will be a very great asset to the village and one which will be the means of bringing motor campers as the situation is beautiful and decidedly one of the beauty spots of the locality.

Celebrate July 12th

The committees have commenced work on their duties to fittingly celebrate the 12th of July in Lakefield this year. Twenty-three years have elapsed since there was a similar celebration in the village.

YOUTHS ROBBED STORE.

Three Sarnia Boys Go to Reformatory for Thieving.

SARNIA, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—Three city youths drew reformatory terms from Magistrate Henry Goman yesterday in connection with a series of burglaries and thefts to which they pleaded guilty. Edward Spearman, 16, was given four to eight months at Guelph; John Archer, 16, was given six months. Sentence was suspended on Thomas Paradis, 18. The exploits of the four included the breaking and entering of the Senders grocery and theft of a number of bicycles. They used an old barn as storehouse for stolen goods and dismantled the bicycles to sell the parts to a second hand dealer.

JOHN HOLGATE IS PROMINENT LAYMAN

Has Been an Active Methodist For Nearly Sixty Years —A Local Preacher.

BOWMANVILLE, May 21—One of the most outstanding layman of Methodism, is John A. Holgate, of Bowmanville, who recently celebrated hs 73rd birthday and who has been an active member of the Methodist church for neary sixty years.

Mr. Holgate was born in Hastings county, near Belleville, on May 1, 1852. He is a product of the christian home and throughout practically all his lifetime, he has given himself without stint to that public service in both chruch and state that counts for most in the determining of a noble character and a useful life.

When nine years of age, with his parents, he moved to Foxboro, where for seven years after he united with the church and became a Sunday school teacher. Seven years after this, at the age of 23 years, he became a class leader and has now closed half a century of service in that capacity. After serving for nine years as teacher in the Foxboro school he was chosen superintendent, which position he held for 38 years until his removal from the village. For the past 34 years he has filled the position of local preacher with acceptability.

In 1874 he was instrumental in organizing a choir in village church where he resided, of which he was the chosen leader for 41 years. He was a member of the last General Conference before the union and of the United General Conference in 1883 which was held in Belleville, and he has been a member of every General Conference since that time, with the exception of two, and a member of all the annual conferences without a break for the past 41 years. He is a member of the Bay of Quinte annual conference, which meets in Belleville on June 3rd and a member of the First Council of the United Church which meets in Toronto on June 10th.

His sound judgment and sterling character won him a place in municipal affairs. He was warden of Hastings county in 1902 and a candidate for the local legislature in 1914 when the supreme issue was the abolition of the bars.

HEAVY VILLAGE RATE.

Point Edward Adds 6 1-2 Mills to Cover Arrears.

SARNIA, Ont. May 21.—(Canadian Press).—While most municipalities faced this year a lower or at least an even tax rate, the rate for the village of Point Edward was struck at 45½ mills which is six and a half mills higher than last year's rates. Heavy payments due in interest on debentures decided the council to make one big effort to clean up arrears of interest. Hence the added burden on the taxpayers of the village. The total assessment value of the village is $506,584, while the expenses of the year are $27,300.

MAKE PLAYGROUND.

Deloro Residents Are Fixing Up Field For Outdoor Recreation.

MARMORA May 21.—Progress is being made with the fixing of the field which will serve as the Children's Park. Many forms of outdoor recreation are to be followed by the juveniles: The venture is regarded by the residents as an excellent thing, for children will thus be able to play without exposure to danger and will be the easier located if their presence should suddenly be required at home. Several bees have been put on, rendering valued assistance to H. R. Haacke who was responsible for the idea.

TO REPAIR PEKING'S WALLS

PEKING, May 21. — (United Press).—Peking's ancient city walls, erected just before Columbus discovered America, are at last showing signs of wear and tear, despite their sturdy construction. The Minstry of the Interior has just presented a claim for funds which will enable repair work to be undertaken. Built of large bricks which will enable repair work to be undertaken. Built of large bricks which are like stone, the outside walls are 40 feet high, 60 feet wide at the base and 50 feet at the top.

RURAL SCHOOLS DISCUSS UNION

Ratepayers Hear Address on Consolidated Schools From Inspector Lees.

LARGE MEETING.

APSLEY, May 21.—The Consolidated school movement here advanced another stage on Friday evening when R. Lees, Public School Inspector addressed a fairly large and representative meeting of ratepayers who are interested in the matter, at St. eGorge's Institute. Five different school sections in the district were represented, and it is safe to say that the majority, if not the whole, of those present went away convinced that it was too good a thing to be turned down. The Rev. J. W. Ogden presided at the meeting, and gave a brief resume of the steps that had been taken since last fall, which had resulted in two sections voting favorably for consolidation. Mr. Lees then gave an address dealing exhaustively and minutely with every phase of the question, and was listened to with the greatest interest and attention. At the close of his speech Rev. C. Spence proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker, which was enthusiastically carried and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

A very pleasant dance was given in the Parish Room on Thursday evening in honor of Miss Phyllis Spence's twenty-first birthday. The guests numbered about thirty-five. Mr. John Coones and Mrs. Stanley Windsor very kindly provided the music for the set dances.

The Chandos Council has had the road grader at work on the East Road from the boundary to Davis' turn at Lasswade, and also between Apsley and Chandos Post Office and these roads are now in very good condition for motoring. Several tourists from the States have already come through on their way to Loon Lake, and others are looking for site on this and on Long Lake.

The lawn tennis court on the parsonage grounds has been put into condition, ad although the cold evenings have not been conducive to the game a few enthusiasts have started practising.

On Saturday last a ploughing "bee" was held on Mrs. Grant's farm at the call of Mr. Spence, when five team, favoured by fine weather turned up a good expanse of ground. The teamsters who so kindly and willingly gave the day's work were: W. Earnshaw, Herb Lean, Tommy Lean, George Tanner and E. McKay.

TEN THOUSAND MILE RIDE ON HORSEBACK

Argentine Schoolmaster Will Make Journey From Buenos Aires to New York.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 21.—(United Press).— The longest journey on horseback ever undertaken commenced when A. H. F Tschiffley, a former schoolmaster, with two horses, left Buenos Aires for New York City on April 16th. The purpose of the trip is to prove that the Criolla horses of the Argentine are the staunchest in the world.

The mount on which Senor Tschiffley rode is 16 years old, while the other horse, which will carry camp pharaphernalia, is 14. Both animals were bred on the famous Estancia of Dr. Emilo Solaned who presented them to the traveler. The Argentine Criolla Breed Society is sponsoring the journey, with the purpose of advertising throughout many countries the superiority of Criolla horses.

Senor Tschiffley expects to complete the entire trip, more than 10,000 miles, within a period of from three to four years To do this he must ride from seventy to eighty miles a day in order to keep up with his schedule and permit periods of rest along the way. He will first go to San Francisco via Panama and from the Golden Gate he will go direct to New York. His intentions are to remain in San Francisco for a month or two before starting on the final leg of his journey over the Lincoln Highway.

The journey that he will make on horseback will take him through some of the most beautiful and historic spots in the world. In South America he will pursue a course that will take him along the old Inca trail, glorious with the memory of a great Indian civilization and from thence towards Ecuador over the ancient Spanish causeway and from there to the Panama Canal. In North America his path will lead him through the Yellowstone National Park and through the historic lands of the Civil War.

The hardships of the journey hold no terrors for Senor Tschiffley, who is well known in athletic circles here, having participated in football and amateur boxing. His constitution is rugged and he anticipates no delays from sickness. His pack is provided with a shelter tent and bankets for cold nights.

FRASER RIVER THREAT.

Low Land Already Flooded in Parts of British Columbia.

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 21. — The flood waters of the Fraser river continued to rise on Wednesday and at 8 o'clock yesterday morning the guage at Mission, 45 miles east of Vancouver, registered 19 feet 11 inches. With warm weather continuing throughout the interior little prospect is held out for any immediate lessening of the danger.

Between New Westminster and Mission considerable low lying land has already been flooded and in many cases farmers are preparing to move their belongings to higher ground.

Reports indicate that conditions in the Cariboo and along the line of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway are bad but as yet no considerable damage has been done by the rising waters.

Empire Day in Peterborough Schools

INVITE PARENTS TO CELEBRATION

City Schools Are Open Tomorrow Afternoon — Attractive Programmes.

ORIGIN OF DAY

PETERBOROUGH Schools, in common with schools all over the British Empire, will tomorrow celebrate Empire Day in special programmes of study and addresses. The forenoon will be devoted to special consideration of the history and geography of the British Empire. The afternoon session in the schools will be open to parents, and suitable musical programmes will be given, with addresses by prominent citizens. In another column will be found a typical programme to be modified to suit conditions in the several schools. Particulars of the local observance are kindly given by the Public School Inspector, A. Mowat.

The Empire Day movement had its origin some years ago, and its object is best expressed by the Earl of Meath, who was a prominent sponsor.

"It's object," he said, "is to raise a generation of British citizens, alive to their family, municipal, State and Imperial responsibilities, devoted to duty, sympathetic to their fellow-subjects, and prepared to sacrifice self in the general interests of the community, of the State, and of the Empire. It may briefly be said to preach "the gospel of good citizenship." Its watchwords are "Responsibility, Duty, Sympathy and Self-sacrifice." It appeals to the four hundred millions of people who owe allegiance to the King, irrespective of race, colour, creed or politics, to excel in the practice of good citizenship, faith, duty, fair-dealing, even-justice, loyalty, patriotism and sympathy, and urges them by their individual action to aid in elevating their own characters, an consequently the corporate character of the citizens of the British Empire."

STERN ADVENTURE BUILT THE EMPIRE

Freedom of the World Saved Many Times By British Forces.

We must also ponder deeply the story of our Empire achievements. Starting centuries upon centuries ago in these small islands in the Northern Seas, gradually working its way by stern adventure and intrepid enterprise, it has set up its outposts in the remotest parts of the world, and cast its spawn on every continent. From these have grown prosperous settlements, great flourishing dependencies, important and progressive colonies, a circlet of young overseas nations with incalculable possibilities. Into all these have been projected and perpetuated the cardinal characteristics of the British race—love of liberty, love of justice and fair play, responsible self-government on democratic lines, and institutions which incarnate these principles in practical and progressive action. This Empire, in its long progress, has touched native and backward races on every hand and at her touch the chain has fallen from the slave, and the path of freedom and uplift been opened and broadened. Not once, but many times, have her fleet and armies saved the freedom of the world when threatened with extinction. In the last great war we have but to reflect a moment on what would have happened to the world but for her invincible navy and her millions of armed men rushing from every continent to the successful defence of its liberties. And now, when a spent and burdened world is struggling back towards normal peace and security, the British Empire influences and steadies the swaying fabric as no other world force.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

Comprises About One-Fourth of the Whole Surface of the Earth.

This Empire of ours stretches over the whole habitable globe and occupies in every part wide domains and positions of strategic importance. It has, within its boundaries, about one-fourth of the whole surface of the earth, and that portion of the globe which belongs to the British Empire is probably the most fruitful, the most productive, and the most promising held by any country or nation in past or present history.

—Sir George Foster.

At present the greatest League of Nations in the world is the British Empire, and it will be for many years to come.

VICTORIA I.

Queen of Great Britian and Ireland and Empress of India.

Victoria was born on May 24th, 1819, ascended the throne in 1837, was crowned in 1838, married in 1840, and died 1901. She was succeeded by her son, Alber Edward (Edward VII).

Queen Victoria's period was so marked by literary progress and political an industrial development that it is spoken of appreciatively as the Victorian era as a counterpart of the Elizabethan era. A striking feature of the Victorian era was the rapid development and extension of the British colonies, laying the foundation of the great commonwealth of nations that now form the British Empire.

AFTERNOON PROGRAMME.

(Parents are invited to be present)

1. Chorus: May God Spare Thee, Canada.
2. Three-part song: Come Thou Almighty King.
3. Address by some prominent citizen.
4. Chorus: Our Own Canadian Home.
5. Recitation by a pupil.
6. God Save the King.

(Subject to change in the individual school)

LAND OF HOPE AND GLORY.

Dear Land of Hope, thy hope is crowned,
God make thee mightier yet!
On Sov'ran brows, beloved, renowned,
Once more thy crown is set.
Thine equal laws, by Freedom gained,
Have ruled thee well and long;
By Freedom gained, by Truth maintained,
Thine Empire shall be strong.

Thy fame is ancient as the days,
As Ocean large and wide;
A pride that dares, and heeds not praise,
A stern and silent pride;
Not that false joy that dreams content
With what our sires have won;
The blood a hero sire hath spent
Still nerves a hero son.

Land of Hope and Glory, Mother of the free,
How shall we extol thee, who are born of thee?
Wider still and wider shall thy bounds be set;
God, who made thee mighty, make thee mightier yet.

OSHAWA OPENS WITH A VICTORY

Motor City Beat Belleville 13 to 10 in League Opener.

SWAT FEST.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., May 21—The Central Ontario League opened its gates for the season yesterday afternoon with the Motor City Crew of Oshawa as opposition of the Grand Trunks, to whom winning pennants has become a habit, and in a regular swat-fest, Oshawa won by a score of 13-10. Duke Dainty, good southpaw, had the better of Hughie Keon during the early frames, but Keon pitched remarkable ball towards the end, and had the Trunks hit in the pinches, a different verdict might have been rendered. Hagerman, for the Trunks, was the outstanding batting hero, hitting the southpaw for four singles, two of them being of extra base variety, besides catching a swell game. H. Mills, first sacker for the Trunks, provided the fielding feature by spearing a bad throw from Rutherford on third. The game was rather free from errors but both teams showed lack of practice due to continued cold weather through May. The teams:

Oshawa—W. Fair, rf; Dineen, 1b; Rawden, 2b; Tyson, c; Roddick, lf; Morrison, ss; Warde, 3b; R. Fair, cf; Dainty, p.

Belleville—Ross, cf; Rutherford, 3b; Weir, ss; W. Mills, lf; H. Mills, 1b; Hagerman, c; Meagher, 2b; Casey rf; Keon p.

BRITISH EMPIRE IS TRULY GREAT

Not What It Took From World Counts, But Its Gifts.

STIRRING MESSAGE

THE following is a message sent by the Department of Education to all pupils:

To-day, all over the British Empire, Empire Day is being celebrated. Over 600,000 children in the Public and Separate Schools of our own Province are taking part in this celebration.

At no time in the history of the British Empire has there been such an opportunity for both boys and girls as there will be in this period following the war. You who are still going to school must think of the future. What are you to do to help the Empire? Even you who are younger must regard your lessons as preparing you for serious work for the British Empire. All of us must be united in a new spirit of service.

Patriotism is a duty not for war time alone, but for all time. True patriotism can never be satisfied by fighting foreign countries. It must fight against every evil within our Empire. When this is done, the lesson of patriotism will have been learnt, and righteousness established in the land. The greatness of a country depends on the greatness of spirit with which every kind of duty is undertaken by its citizens. The homemaker is as essential as the defender of homes.

True Greatness.

Patriotism demands self-sacrifice. When we look at the map of the British Empire we should be filled not only with feelings of pride, but also with a deep sense of our responsibility. It is what Britain has done for the world, not what it has taken from it, that makes her greatness. We must work to be good citizens of the Empire. Our country will be what we make it. We must see to it that it is a great country. Then will it be worth while for us to bring to it the greatest of sacrifices.

And here you are on the threshold of a new era. It is for you to fashion. God gave us Men and Women at our need, and now must you children of the Empire, press forward to carry on the work they consecrated and bequeathed to you. May your deeds reflect the homage of your hearts at this solemn hour of rebirth in the history of the world!

Every One's Part.

All the citizens of the Empire must be united. The Great War has bound all of us together. The call of danger and the appeal of right have made us feel that we belong to one community. As one community we must secure the safety, well-being and the glory of Great and Greater Britain.

Do not allow the day to pass without learning something about the flag of the Empire, the good old Union Jack, its form, its colours, the several crosses, the way they are placed and why they are so placed, what the colours and crosses stand for and how the flag gradually came to have its present form; not forgetting the most important part of all, namely, what the flag means to us and to all our fellow-citizens.

The Toast Of Empire.

To all the loyal hearts who long
To keep our English Empire whole!
To all our noble sons, the strong
New England of the Southern Pole!
To England under Indian skies
To those dark millions of her realm!
To Canada, whom we love and prize,
Whatever statesman hold the helm.
Hands all round!
God the traitor's hope confound!
To this great name of England drink, my friends,
And all her glorious Empire round and round.

—Tennyson.

ORDERS OF THE DAY.

Department of Education Says Empire Day Shall Be Celebrated.

"EMPIRE DAY, the last school day before the 24th of May, shall be duly celebrated in every school, the forenoon being devoted to a study of the greatness of the British Empire, and the afternoon to public addresses, recitations, music, etc., of a patriotic type."

—Department of Education for Ontario.

A movement like that of Empire Day in which the teachers in the schools, on a day set apart, seek to inculcate in the minds of their pupils a love of the British Empire based upon the highest ideals of citizenship must have a profound influence on the future of that Empire.

SPECIAL SERVICE ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Rev. W. Allan Asks Meaning of Doctrine of Predestination.

The special services in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church were continued last night, Rev. William Allan again addressing one of the largest meetings so far during the week-night campaign.

The subject dealt with was one of interest to all, but especially so to Presbyterians at this crisis in the history of their church—a peculiarly Presbyterian doctrine, as Mr. Allan referred to it at the outset. The subject was in the form of a question, "Does Predestination Mean That Some Have Been Foreordained to be Lost?" The text he chose was found in 1st Corinthians, 10th chapter, 32nd verse: "Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Gentiles, nor to the Church of God."

The question we are dealing with is, are some foreordained? Some believe this is the case, others do not believe it is so. At the outset it was pointed out that the Word of God makes a threefold division of the human race. It speaks of them as "the Jew, the Gentile, and the Church of God," as in the text. And for each division there is a body of truth in the Scriptures, which, if not clearly observed will cause much confusion of thought. The giving of offence to none was misconstrued in meaning, and gave cause for stumbling. The real meaning was not meant as one offended, but not giving cause or excuse for stumbling, neither to Jews, Gentiles, or the Church of God. Paul did not say giving offence to mankind; this would have been too general, and the Word of God is too explicit and plainly worded to have any other meaning. God's division of the people—His chosen people, the Jews; those not Jews are Gentiles; and the third division, those who are Christians through the Word of God. The Gentiles were converted and became the Church of God. There are truths in every part of the Word of God. The human family was divided by God into three divisions, each having some particular claim for recognition. Nationally God is not dealing with the Jews to-day. The Jewish nation is no more. This dispensation in which we are now living is spoken of in the Word of God as "the times of the Gentiles." It is the day of Gentile supremacy. But individually He recognizes neither Jew nor Gentile as such, looking upon both as sinners and in need of salvation, provided by a saviour.

In the covenant with Abraham, which God has bound Himself with an oath to keep, the promise is: "In thee and thy children shall nations of the earth be blessed." But He has not kept either this one or the covenant with David yet. There is not a prince in all Judah on the throne of David. In this covenant with Abraham is included the cross, where we see God in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself. We are told in the Gospel of St. John that "God so loved the world—the whole world, not the chosen few—that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." In another place we are told "Christ appeared to put away sin by the sacrifice of Himself." In the death of Christ the question of sin has been settled for ever. Pilate dared not change the superscription over the cross, lest God had withered his hand or silenced his tongue forever. The wording was correct, and we are becoming more convinced day by day, the more we believe on God. He has promised us salvation through his death on Calvary. Like sheep we wander away to new pastures, to discover we are lost when day draws to a close. Our leaders have not watched over us. The leaders of the people at Christ's death nailed Him to the cross. Ministers today could listen and learn much of the real Gospel truth from such men as miners and fishermen in the Old Land. God has made these promises to all sinners, and He will fulfill them. God never contradicts Himself. You must take every part of His Word in the light of others.

We are told in I Timothy 4, 10, "God is the saviour of all men, specially of those that believe." He made provision for all—He is the Saviour of all, inasmuch as He has made provision for the salvation of all. He is not the Saviour of all men in practice. The Bible says, "Specially of those that believe."

Now as far as the question of salvation is concerned we have seen that "God is not willing that any should perish." This ought to be proof enough that Predestination cannot mean that "some have been foreordained to be lost." God never contradicts Himself, in nature or in revelation. The fault lies with us if one Scripture seems to conflict with another. We fail to understand it, and perhaps fail to relate the one properly to the other. Wherever you find the thought of Predestination or Election, it is always in that body of truth addressed to the Church of God. It is not that we have been prededestinated to be converted to the exclusion of others, but rather that some, who have accepted Christ as their Saviour have been predestinated to be "conformed" to the image of Christ.

Conformity to His image is God's purpose for every believer. It means that God wants to reproduce in us a character like unto that of His Son; and from that character will emanate conduct like unto that of our Lord. And if there is one thing more than another the world needs to-day it is a larger manifestation of these two things. This will be the desire of every true soul. And it is the object of God's dealings with us. What a difference it makes when we realize this.

In the last place it is the assured outcome of all life's experiences. The philosophy of the passage, "Even so, Lord, for so it seemeth good to Thee," should be carried into our daily life. "It doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when He shall appear we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is," was the concluding words of an interesting and clear discourse by Mr. Allan.

Miss Greta LeBar rendered the solo, "Face to Face," Mr. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O. presiding at the organ.

To-night's subject: "Some Startling Surprises After Death."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

CHURCHES CHANGING.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir—Great events do not as a rule come singly and certainly they are crowding in upon us at present. The Church of England is making renewed overtures to His Holiness the Pope for union with the Catholic Church. The present overture has been arranged by the Archbishop of Canterbury. There can be no doubt that the Church of the English Reformation is preparing to forget that event. The United Church of Canada has done or is trying to do the same thing for the Presbyterian Church which was the church of Luther's Reformation in Europe and became, through Calvin the Church of the Lutheran reformation in Scotland. With the disappearance of the Presbyterian Church which was the sole and only Church of the Reformation on the continent, in Scotland as elsewhere, goes the Reformation. Protestantism is preparing for great changes, the Church of England making overtures to the Pope and the Church of the Reformation being wiped out of existence with a new, as the Basis of Union of the United Church of Canada says to a still larger union ultimately. Modernism and absolutism are of course what is wrecking Protestantism, absolutism in the form of prohibition which denies the right of God to conduct the world as He has been doing it and given to them our conscience and modernism in the rejection of the Bible as the Word of God and, therefore, as the basis of protestantism. Protestants can not remain standing while the ground is cut from beneath their feet and if they will escape from the absurdity of Modernism and the impudence of Prohibition they must change their present condition. That it must come to this, anybody who has read the history of the past and the signs of the present, must admit.

—J. H. Burnham.

P.S.—Below is the despatch referred to:

BRUSSELS, May 18.—Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, announces the arrival at an early date in Malines of a delegation of British theologians. The delegation, which will be under the patronage of the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, will meet a group of Catholic theologians, with a view to studying together in a friendly spirit the problem of a union of Churches. The deputation will include Lord Halifax, Dr. Walter Freere, Bishop of Truro; Bishop Gore and Dr. Kidd, Warden of Keble College, Oxford.

CHAPLIN WINS SUIT.

Court Rules Charlie's Costume Is Distinctive.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—Charles Spencer Chaplin's balloon pants, snaky cane and flapping shoes, when used in conjunction with other characteristic touches of make-up, were declared to be his private property, in a court ruling here Monday that gave the film comedian a legal victory in his suit to enjoin Charles Amador from using them and the stage name of Charles Aplin.

The ruling of Judge J. L. Hudner granted Chaplin's application for an injunction to prevent Charles Amador from using the name Charles Aplin or using any advertising or make-up which the public might be deceived into believing was part of a Charles Chaplin film.

Judge Hudner said that it was difficult to define the point at which the imitation complained of started and finished, but he believed that Chaplin's costume, "when worn by him, was a distinctive bit of apparel and an accessory to his comic antics."

As to restraining alleged imitations in the future, the Court held that Chaplin might bring offenders before the bar on a charge of contempt of court based on Monday's decision and try his cases there on its merits.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

I.O.D.E. HEAR GOOD REPORT

Mrs. K. S. Wightman Reviewed Interestingly the Activities of the Order.

BUY AT HOME.

At the provincial convention of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, held in Hamilton, in April, many matters of interest to local members were discussed. A very full report of the discussions at the convention was presented to the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. at their last regular meeting by the secretary Mrs K. S. Wightman, who reviewed in interesting style many of the activities of the Order.

The Provincial Secretary, Mrs. Morden, in her report, stressed the importance of Canadians wearing Canadian-made apparel and reading Canadian magazines. She quoted a leading periodical as stating that thanks to U. S. competition Canada has been stripped of periodicals until the market available to our Canadian writers has been reduced to a minimum. They have been compelled to find a market elsewhere—usually in the United States. It is said Mrs. Morden, bad enough to lose our brawn to the United States, but to lose our brain also is a tragedy. She strongly denounced the reading of and subscribing to, such periodicals as the Ladies' Home Journal, Good Housekeeping and Cosmopolitan, and suggested as substitutes the better English and Canadian publications.

Interest in History.

Miss Gordon of the War Memorial Pictures Sub-Committee, urged the delegates to adjure their chapters to encourage in every possible way an interest in and knowledge of, Canadian history in the youth of the land, by giving prizes for the study of Canadian and British history, and prizes of books by Canadian authors on Canadian history, and prizes of pictures featuring historical events.

At a round table conference which followed a dinner at the Royal Connaught Hotel a proposal by one member was that Canada have a "land flag" of its own, separate from the Union Jack. A good deal of strong feeling was evident in the discussion which followed, and finally the incident was closed. One member, holding aloft the Union Jack, cried out, "This is the flag our boys died under. Shall we desert it now?"

Eternal Motherhood.

Mrs. Malcolmson, convenor of Child Welfare, gave a very interesting address on that subject. She enquired as to how many of the members were adopting babies, said that the meaning of the Order is eternal motherhood, and that this could be most nobly expressed by spending time, money and energy in ensuring to every Canadian child the right to be well born, mentally, physically and morally. She said that the status of every nation is determined by its conservation of child life. In Canada 1238 mothers die yearly in childbirth. Out of every hundred babies, ten die before birth. And in one year Canada lost 25,553 babies before their first year. Canada shares with the United States what is called by Milton the "bad eminence" of being the first of seventeen countries whose childbirth death rates are high.

A fine address was given the members by Hon. Howard Ferguson, the Premier of Ontario. He spoke principally on the subject of the extension of the Collegiate course to embrace two years of university work, so that students who by reason of lack of funds cannot leave home to attend the university, may have an opportunity to round out their education, and incidentally save the government some $500 per year per student, in addition to funds expended by their parents.

Mr. Ferguson also spoke of the school which is being established at Bowmanville, for the education and reclamation of delinquent boys. The Order has been honored by the appointment of Mrs. Malcolmson, convenor of Child Welfare, as the only woman representative on the Bowmanville school board.

An encouraging report on the War Memorial was made, and the report regarding Canadianization of foreign born residents, and on the work in India, showed that fine things had been achieved in both these sections of endeavor.

"An attempt should be made to harmonize and reconcile the different loyalties of our foreign born, a generous effort to educate these people to high standards and values of citizenship, remembering that "God has made of one blood every nation under heaven," and at the same time developing within ourselves the sympathy and insight and broad minded tolerance, which eradicates those narrow national prejudices and conceits and animosities, which have been at the base of friction between nations, world without end."

Mrs. Wightman concluded her report with the words:

"I believe, from my observation of others, and from my own meagre experience, that to be genuinely and wholeheartedly and unselfishly interested in such great aims as those represented by and subscribed to by this order, is to find an escape into realms where one can be reached by nothing that is sordid, nor petty, nor mean. It can be a 'golden key' which will open for each one of us a castle of enchantment."

UNIQUE SCARF.

Here is probably the most unique scarf that has come out of Paris this season. It fastens down the back with small pearl buttons and gives the effect of a choker in front. Or it can be worn the other way around if the wearer prefers. A scarf will do practically anything you want it to this year.

Twins Set To Music.

Sir Henry Wood, the famous musician, is responsible for a delightful little story concerning the baby twins who were so much alike that even their mother had difficulty in telling them apart. Not so their father, a piano tuner, who had his own profesional way of identifying his offsprings. He explained to the friend who was admiring them that he told the difference by pinching them.

"Good heavens! You must not do that. You'll make them cry."

"Precisely," replied the father, "that's the whole secret. Listen. This one"—nip—"is evidently William. He cries on the high C. The other, James"—nip—"is half a tone lower."

PEARLS HOLD CENTRE STAGE

Summer Jewelry Shows Improvement in Quality and Choice.

EARRINGS WORN

By HEDDA HOYT

NEW YORK, May 21.—(United Press).—Jewelry will be very popular this Summer and in compliance with the vogue for pastels, we are turning from cheap and colorful costume jewelry to white and pastel jewelry of semi-precious type.

Pearls are holding the centre of the stage at present. The range is from real seed pearls to huge imitation pearls. Those who can afford seed pearls are wearing them and of course they are far less castly than real pearls of large type, or even some of the better imitations of pearls. Seed pearls are woven in braided strands to form necklaces, chokers and bracelets. Often pendants of semi-precious carved stones are attached to the necklaces and bracelets. Such stones are carved jade, turquoise, turmaline, ameythst or acquamarine are popularly combined with seed pearls. Semi-precious beads which match the pendants are often used at intermissions on the seed pearl chain.

When one can't afford seed pearls, one turns to chokers of large-sized imitation pearls for day wear and to three strand necklaces of graduated pearls for evening wear. Pinkish pearls are much in demand lately. Older women sometimes prefer the soft grayish shades. Chokers are very popular with the street costume. Evening finds longer chains mixed with colored glass beads which add a color contrast.

Seed coral necklaces are among the popular youthful jewels for summer. Semi-precious chains of solid beads and pendants are popular in pastel shades. Thus, amethyst, turquoise matrix, light amber, apple-green jade, coral, rose quartz and acquamarine are leaders in the semi-precious type. Ivory roses hung on ecru cords are again in favor.

Earrings of pendant type are again being worn for evening. The tendency is toward daintiness rather than ornateness this year. Often seed pearls connect a semi-precious pendant to the screw earring. When chain is used it is silver or white gold. Jade leaves, suspended on tiny seed pearl rope, is a lovely combination.

Bracelets are more popular than ever. Antique types are being copied an done who has a semi-precious stone or cameo can have it mounted on a wide oxidized silver band adorned with silver leaves. It is nice to have two duplicate bracelets, so that one may be worn on each wrist.

Cynthia Grev Says

If you were a divorced woman...

Could you give up your daughter to your husband's second wife?

Could you look at yourself as in a mirror, and see yourself as you really are?

And would you be honest enough to admit that your husband's new wife was a better woman than yourself?

The problem is presented in one of the most significant books for women that has ever been written... "Stella Dallas," by Olive Higgins Prouty.

Samuel Goldwyn, the producer, says that the part of "Stella," will require the most forceful actress in the world.

Perhaps he's right, but I wonder...

I honestly believe that there is born in every woman who bears a child, an unselfish love that would permit her to do the thing "Stella" did for her daughter.

Most love is selfish. A man loves a woman and wants her because she interests and amuses him.

A woman marries a man because he interests and protects her. A child loves its parents for the care the parent gives it.

But the love of mother for her child has in it a strain of self-effacing devotion that makes of it almost a divine thing.

YOUR GARDEN

SPRAYS AND SPRAY APPARTUS.

Good appliances in perfect working order are half the battle in spraying also they should be adequate for the purpose. Struggling along with antiquated and broken down apparatus is exasperating, to put it mildly.

For the very small place a syringe or pump that can be used with a pail of the spray material or one having a receptacle holding about a quart attached may prove adequate. A fine mist is required with a good pressure under practically all conditions and for small gardens a compresed air pump sprayer with a two gallon capacity is the best possibe. One of this type is the No. 12 automatic sprayer of the Auto Spray Co.

Knapsack sprayers of 4-5 gallons capacity are a necessity for the larger place. These are worked by a lever pumped by hand and have a short spray rod which can be used on many plants.

For the place of 5 acres or more a barrel spray pump of twenty gallons capacity will be found very useful. The barrel may be mounted horizontally or vertically on various mountings. It may also be used in a cart or on a stone boat depending on the use to which it is to be put. Provided wheels with adequate spokers are purchased (at least 24 spokes in number) the horizontal wheel types are very satisfactory. It is especially useful for spraying the roads and ornamentals about the grounds.

It will pay to buy the best and then endeavor to keep everything in the best of shape. When finished spraying, the tank shoud be rinsed out and clear water pumped through the nozzle. When putting away wooden barrels a certain amount of water should be left in the barrel to preevnt it drying out. Should this not be done the staves will shrink to such an extent that live steam will be necesary to make it swell sufficiently rapidly. If the hoops are loose and have moved they should be carefully replaced or there is danger of having them broken in the swelling.

Owing to the fact that most work of this kind about the home grounds is conspicuous, care should be used in the selection of liquids for spraying. Bordeaux mixture, though an excellnet spray, is disfiguring and shoud not be used for roses on a wall as the wall will be conspicuously marked also. It sticks tenaciously to walls and windows and only disappears with the winter frosts. The clearer liquid of ammoniacal copper carbonate mixture or some of the trade mixtures are equally effective and have no objectionable features. With this form of conspicuous spray the cure is often worse than the cause from an artistic point of view. For this reason dusting, though very rapid and reliable, is conspicuous if overdone also care must be taken lest the dust drift on the street over to a neighbor's place or on his vegetables. A good hand-dusting machine, however, is very effective and can be put to a number of uses about the grounds provided these points are kept in mind. A certain amount of moisture is essential and either the dusting must be done very early while the dew is on the plants or they may be lightly sprinkled with water.

FINANCIAL NEWS.

Trading Even on Toronto Exchange This Morning

Toronto, May 21. — Trade was fairly even on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but Winnipeg, F. N. Burt and British Columbia fish were somewhat lower.

Twin City was the most active issue with approximately 500 shares changing hands, the closing quotations showing an increase of 1¼ points to 69 1-4. Smelters was next leading the market with an advance of 2 7-8, closing at 84 3-4. City Dairy was active, and advanced 3-4 o 84¼. Winnipeg was active but eased off 1-4 at 48, while F. N. Burt lost 7-8 at 53. B. C. Fish closed at 43½ minus ¼ form yesterday. C.P.R. gained 1-2 at 145 1-2.

Irregularities Shown On New York Market

NEW YORK, May 21. — Some irregularity cropped out as trading broadened on Wall street to-day but the main trend of prices continued upward throughout the forenoon under the impetus of aggressive bullish demonstrations. In public utilities, West Penn. power soared 9½ points and Havana Electric Ry. moved up 8 points. Baldwin Locomotive was pushed above 117 on expectations that the company would share generously in the prospective heavy equipment buying of the railroads. Under cover of these rallies however traders took an opportunity to unload other stocks with a result that American Can, Famous Players-Columbia Gas, Utah Securities and Willy's Overland developed marked heaviness. Jersey Central led an advance in the carrier stocks and there was good buying of Wheeling and Lake Erie, Rock Island and other so called "merger rails," increased public participation was reflected in heavy first hour's sales, which exceeded 600,000 shares. Call money renewed at 3 3-4 per cent.

Buying Of Hollinger Has Subsided On Exchange

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—The buying movement in Hollinger, which set in with the prospect of settlement of the power question, has subsided and less than one hundred shares changed hands this morning. The balance of the list was also quiet on the standard exchange.

Ophir, under heavy trading, opened at 4 1-8, being ¼ lower than the close yesterday. Cons. W. D. Lake 1-8 lower at 13 5-8.

McKinley Darragh opened at 29, declined to 28, being 1¼ lower. Clifton Con., opening at 7½, dropped to 7, being one point lower than the former close. Lakeside Lorrain opened at 10, being an advance of a half.

Price Of Wheat Takes Downward Trend To-day

CHICAGO, May 21. — Wheat turned downward in price to-day after initial gains. Reports were current that all through the western part of Kansas the wheat crop showed decided improvements and the present conditions indicate a yield above the average. A widely known expert was quoted as authority for the prediction that much of Western Kansas would yield 30 bushels to the acre. Opening prices unchanged to ½c higher; May 170, and July 155 1-4 were followed by moderate further gains and then a set back all around to below yesterday's finish.

Persistent selling weakened the corn market. Country offerings to arrive were reported to have enlarged after opening 1½c lower to 1-8c higher, July 115 1-8, corn prices underwent a decided general sag.

Oats were easy, sympathizing with corn.

Starting ½c off to 1-8c up, July 44 7-8 to 45, the market kept near to the opening figures. Provisions were a little firmer.

DISTRICT MEETING METHODIST CHURCH

Resolution Passed Favoring Total Prohibition of Alcoholic Beverages.

The Peterborough District of the Methodist church held its meeting in the George street church on Tuesday, May 19th, with the chairman Rev. C. S. Reddick, presiding. There was a large attendance of ministers and laymen.

During the session the following resolution was carried:

"Whereas, the Ontario Government at the last session of the Legislature made provision for the sale of 4.4 beer under certain restrictions and regulations, such beer to be sold by hotels, restaurants and grocers;

Be it Resolved—

(1) This district meeting place itself on record by declaring its unalterable opposition to such legislation, and reaffirm our unwavering conviction that there is no solution for the problem arising out of the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes except by prohibition legislation strictly and impartially enforced.

(2) That we wish to commend those hotel keepers, those who conduct restaurants, and grocers, who have declared their intention no. to handle the so-called 4.4 beer, and, further that we recommend to all the temperance people living within the bounds of this Peterboro district that they should patronize such hotels, restaurants and groceries who maintain their convictions and refuse to participate in the sale of the aforesaid beer."

Rev. Ogden moved the deletion of the last clause but failed to get a supporter for his motion.

Rev. Richards reported that the Presbyterian charge at Mount Pleasant and the Methodist appointment, had already united.

By a three-fourths vote (9 present not voting) a request was sent on to conference to detach Wesley appointment on the Bridgenorth circuit and to form a new charge of Wesley, Lakehurst and Buckhorn.

Secretary's report showed the following interesting facts:

Church membership, decrease 9.

Educational fund $678, decrease $91.

Social service, $474, decrease $95.

W.M.S., $3496, increase $1302.

Religious education $307, decrease $4.

Missionary $11,677, increase $266.

The decrease of church membership it was learned, was due to the revising of certain church rolls and proved that actually there was an increase by profession of faith.

Lay delegates to Conference. — B. F. Ackerman, Mrs. C. E. Smith, Mrs. E. W. Coon, J. M. Greene, R. F. Downey, J. Speer, T. M. Oke, T. Brown, T. Kitney, G. Burnham, Thos McIndoo, E. Dawson, A. E. Higgins, S. Northey, James Hawthorn, W. Jakeman, J. W. Glenny, Percy Udy.

Alternates — James A. Bell, T. Aiken, A. Stewart, Jas Clark, A. E. Carruthers, A. H. Monk.

A vote of appreciation was given to the chairman for his efficient faithful and loving services during the year.

Also to the Rev. Young expressing the sincere regret that he is leaving this conference and wishing him God-speed.

BRASS' STORE CROWDED TO DOORS YESTERDAY

Crowds Buying Out Silk Company's Bankrupt Stock.

The ladies of Peterboro certainly know values, said Mr. Caldwell, of the Brass store this morning. We were certainly jammed up all day yesterday.

As this stock must be cleaned up in a few days, we are going to cut the prices so low that the people will almost be stunned at the marvellous values we are going to give Friday.

Mr. Caldwell wishes to announce that the Brass store will not open until 10 o'clock Friday morning. "Don't ask any questions," said Mr. Caldwell to a lady customer to-day. He said, "Just be here when the doors open Friday and you will be repaid a hundredfold."—Adv.

ONTARIO'S BIG

The Examiner).—Local officers of the Canadian Pacific Railway stated this morning that to date no instructions had been issued with regard to the sale of 4.4 on the Trans-Canada and other long distance trains carrying dining, buffet or cafe parlor cars.

George Beer, assistant district passenger agent, said that the question was not one of profit alone but of desirability in point of service. Westerners who arrived here on the first eastbound Trans-Canada train of the season were naturally interested in the fact that their arrival synchronised with the sale of beer in the city, but as so many women and children travel alone nowadays, it is felt that many would be opposed to the sale of beer on the trains. In any case, he said, the company will make a survey of the desires of its patrons before making a final decision in the matter.

4.4 BEER MAKES

believe that the trade will remain brisk.

Late but Coming

Work was in progress at the Montreal House today when the old bar was being removed and a new stand being put up, equipped with all the latest gadgets for the sale of he new 4.4 beer. A supply of beer was in stock but as the table had not been installed nor the bar boarded up, it coud no be sold in the beevrage room. The deficiency will be remedied in a few days.

Broach Seven Kegs.

The Munro House 4.4 attendants broached seven kegs during the forenoon in the effort to appease the general thirst. Mr. Fisher said that the pump had been working all morning and that the legs of the waiters throbbed with pain due to the unaccustomed activity. Being in a facetious mood, he said that he was going to install fifteen more servitors. He didn't have time to read the label until the slack period of noon arrived.

Mr. Fisher expressed keen regret that the permits of other hotels had not arrived. He remarked that the permits for each city should have been mailed en masse so that all might have obtained their rightful share of the opening business. As it is now, there is certain to be ill feeling, which should have been avoided.

Immediately after dinner customers began filing in to get their portion of the potion. While a number buy by the bottle the majority prefer to get the smaller quantities and get them oftener.

Improve With Age.

There are a few complaints as to the quality of the beer and the hope that it will improve with age is quite generally expressed. The wood of the cask lends a bouquet which is heightened by the passage of time, it is said.

Art Johnston sees in the new beer a decided boom for business in all other lines. "People may come to Peterborough to buy beer but they will remain to buy other goods as well. We get our share and the merchants will get their's. Why, look at the crowd that is in the city to-day. Don't think that they are here to buy beer alone."

A Keg An Hour.

Mr. Johnston said that all of his customers appeared satisfied with the quality of the beverage and that from 9.30 to 12.00 two kegs had been drained.

One man, anxious to give the beer a fair trial, took ten glasses and denied any feeling of instability, which should prove that the beer is compounded accorded to specifications.

At first there were just the two attendants but later another man was added to the dispensing force which consideraby relieved the strain.

At present the tables are merely temporary as Mr. Johnston intends putting more improvements on his room and adding some good furniture.

He will soon have another room ready for use.

Mr. King has fifteen round tile topped tables in position surrounded by a galaxy of chairs and will be ready to administer the antidode for blues in large quantities when the permit arrives.

Provision is made for selling the bottled and draught beer.

FEZ, French Morocco, May 21. —(Canadian Press.)— It was admitted in military circles here today that the menace of the Riffians under Abd-el-Krim who recently invaded French Morocco from the Spanish zone, is more grave than had previously been stated. It was declared that every possible measure to deal with the situation at a minimum cost of life and money is being taken.

FOOD LEGISLATION.

British Government Will Introduce Large Programme Says Baldwin.

LONDON, May 21 (Canadian Press)—The British Government intends to present in the House of Commons, shortly, a large program of urgent and important legislation, in connection with the recent report of the Royal Commission on food, Premier Stanley Baldwin stated today in replying to a question. The query that prompted the announcement was whether it would give parliamentary facilities to a private member's bill for the control of trusts and combines.

REPORTS READ TO WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

All Saints' Delegates to Annual Meeting Bring Good Report.

At All Saints' Church on Tuesday evening a meeting was held when the reports were read of the 39th annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada. The meeting was held last week in Toronto, when delegates attended from the Anglican churches of this city. There was a gathering of about sixty members of the W. A., Girls' Evening Branch and Junior Branch combined, of All Saints' Church. The members of the W.A. of St. George's Church were guests. Mrs. Brown, their president, thanked the meeting for the invitation. Mrs. Elliot, president of the W. A., took the chair, and very ably presided. The general report was read by Mrs. W. MacWilliams, who covered all the meetings during the week, and handled the topics in a most interesting and enlightening manner. The main feature in Mrs. MacWilliams' report was the presentation on Tuesday to Miss Cartwright, the W. A. Diocesan president, of a cheque for 1,800 dollars which she has kindly given over to The Strach House, and a handsome brass altar cross which she will present to the Old People's Home, just recently opened. Holy Communion was celebrated at St. James' Cathedral on Thursday, when 1,300 members partook of the celebration. Miss Cartwright closed the session with thanks for her presentation.

Mrs. Connolly read the report for the Junior Branch, which was very encouraging, and showed what a great help the children are in the way of pledges. Mrs. Connolly had eighteen girls write on the mission study this spring, all of whom received certificates. Three were also awarded silver crosses and one a beautiful picture.

The reports were received with much applause.

Let 'er Rip

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

The best little tonic that man ever knew is one that is always right handy for you. It lends to good feeling, so here's a good tip—whenever you feel like a laugh, let 'er rip.

There's penty of trouble that's floatin' around, and gloom, when it's looked for, can always be found. The thing that we all ought to aim to turn loose is all of the laughter that we can produce.

You meet fellow men in the work of your day—they frown and they soon have you lookin' that way. The pleasure or sourness that people express is something that really is catching, I guess.

So try, every day, to give cheer to a friend by laughing; you'll find it reacts in the end. Your life can be made a real happiness trip if you'll give way to pleasure and let the laughs rip.

REDUCE DUTY ON SILK PRODUCTS

Also Reduced on Raw Silk, But Remains on Artificial Tissue.

CONFERENCE HELD.

LONDON, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—Announcement was yesterday made by the Treasury that as an outgrowth of conferences between Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and representatives of the leading silk interests and of the London Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Churchill purposes to reduce the Customs duty on made-up articles from 33 1-3 per cent. to ten per cent. where the value of silk or artificial silk does not exceed twenty per cent. of the value of the article and to 2 per cent. if it does not exceed 5 per cent. of the value. It is also purposed to reduce the duty on raw silk from four shillings to three shillings per pound, with proportionate reductions on silk yarn and waste, but the duty on artificial silk tissue will remain three shillings and sixpence per pound.

WOMEN RECOUNT YEAR'S EFFORTS

Millbrook Women's Institute Had 108 Members on Roll Last Year.

PUBLIC MEETING.

MILLBROOK, May 20.—A public meeting, under the auspices of the Women's Institute, was held in Grace Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening. Unfortunately only a comparatively small number of the members and friends availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing Mrs. R. Boyes, of Lefroy, who was the speaker for the occasion.

The president, Mrs. C. Thorndyke, occupied the chair, and the brief programme which preceded the address, included a vocal solo, "O, Could the Star Beams Stay," by Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and a song, "Where Are You Going, My Pretty Maid?" by Jean Stinson and Lawrence Rowland, with encores "In Berry-Pickin' Time," both selections in costume. Miss Ethel Richardson was the accompanist.

A short report of the year's activities, read by the secretary, Mrs. W. Thorne, proved of interest. There were 108 members on the roll last year, and 65 have paid their fees so far this year. The Institute provided flowers for the Soldiers' Memorial last season, and plants have been purchased again and will be set out as soon as weather permits. A quantity of fruit (in sealers) was sent to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, and this summer some children from the city will be given a two weeks' holiday, members taking two, or more, into their homes during the hot weather for the needed outing. Volunteers to assist in this worthy work are asked for. The Neighborhood Workers' Association has the matter under its auspices. The amount in the bank at the present time is $634.40, and the Institute, which exists for community welfare, is responsible for finding some local cause to benefit from its funds.

Girls' Advantages To-day.

"Sweet Sixteen—What of Her Future?" was Mrs. Boyes subject, her opening story of a Canadian girl's life over one hundred years ago showing, by contrast, the superior advantages of girls of the present day.

Three things were emphasized as necessary for each girl to take with her on life's voyage—the lily in her hand, typical of the priceless jewel of chastity; truth on her lips, for "truth is a force that can easily defend itself"; and the dews of youth in the heart, since "the flower of youth never appears more beautiful and is never so fragrant, as when it bends toward the Sun of Righteousness."

Wise leaders are needed for the 'teen age girls, who imitate unconsciously those of whom they make heroes and heroines, either in books, companions, parents, or teachers.

Dreaming, longing, and love have a place in every developing girl's life. Work and play are needed, a proper division being necessary, neither being carried to extreme, but recognizing the fact that both are required to develop character. "Toil is the price of sleep, appetite, health, and enjoyment."

Features for Meetings.

Mrs. Boyes, in her closing remarks, gave a general outline of Institute work, her suggestion of a well-planned programme including "something to see, something to hear, and something to do," with hints for special features, being particularly valuable.

"Grandmothers' Day," when each grandmother is asked to bring some keepsake—bit of jewellry, album, shawl, old-fashioned hat, etc:—and tell its history, has been found successful.

"Relic Day," when heirlooms which may include choice pieces of china, tea-caddies of varying design, rare manuscripts, or other cherished family possessions, is also worth trying.

"A Study in Samplers" leads to all kinds of interesting information, as does also a study of chests—hope chests, dower chests, English oak chests, etc.

Mrs. Hawthorne and Mrs. Eakins moved and seconded the hearty vote of thanks tendered Mrs. Boyes for her address. Every branch in the entire district is being visited by the speaker during her present tour.

The annual district meeting will be held in the town hall on Friday, June 5, when reports of the year's activities will be received, Mrs. T. A. Skitch, of Bailieboro, is district president, and Mrs. J. R. Eakins, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Lambert, and three children, Leonore, Venner, and Alvin, and Mrs. C. H. Millard, motored to Oshawa on Sunday. Mrs. Millard remaining for an extended stay.

Rev. F. H. Howard, Rev. Joseph Wilks, and G. E. Burnham attended the district meeting in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Jack Fitzgerald, who has not been in Millbrook for forty years, is home from St. Louis, and is visiting his mother, Mrs. John Deyell.

TO EXTRACT A SPLINTER

Most Annoying of Small Accidents—Steam Will Help.

One of the most annoying of small accidents is to have a sliver of wood stuck into the flesh of the hand.

Moreover the wound becomes very painful if the sliver is not removed. Sometimes it is possible to remove the sliver with a needle or other sharp instrument. But when the sliver is of soft wood this is very difficult.

Steam may, however, be employed without inconvenience or pain, and is very effective.

A wide-mouthed bottle, such as a milk bottle, should be filled nearly full of water as hot as the glass will stand.

Then the injured part should be placed over the mouth of the bottle, and pressed down slightly to prevent any steam from escaping.

This will cause the flesh to be drawn down, and in a minute or so the steam will extract the splinter, and at the same time it will relieve the inflamation.

OFFICIALS QUARREL ABOUT DISMISSAL

Soviet Manager Dismissed All Non-Chinese and Non-Soviet Employees.

By Randall Gould
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PEKING, May 21. — Chinese and Soviet railway officials at Harbin are in an open runture to-day as the result of the dismissal of white Russians employed on the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Russian Manager Ivanoff several months ago ordered the dismissals of all non-Chines, or non-Soviet employees, whereupon the Chinese railroad president, Pao Kwei Ching, nullified the order, asserting that Ivanoff exceeded his authority.

Thereupon Ivanoff received from Moscow notification to maintain his stand with a statement that the Soviets regarded it compatible with the Russo-Chinese treaty and would protest consequently to Peking against the Chinese official's "criminal and irresponsible act."

The affair is further complicated by the fact that the Russians are withholding cars, saying the Chinese militarists have abused the privilege of lowered rates for "private merchandise."

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

"SADDLE HAWK" HAS HAZARDS.

Hoot Gibson's Newest Universal Western Bristles With Action.

Persons who crave excitement and the thrill of danger, without, however, undergoing any personal hazard, will find an opportunity for gratification of this craving in the Royal Theatre, where "The Saddle Hawk," Universal production, opens to-day.

The action of the story takes place in the cattle country of the West when it was less addicted to settling its troubles through the medium of the courts than is the case at present. Quickness with a six-gun was the measure-unit of establishing a man's status in the sparsely settled community, and hard riding a part of man's daily task.

For the most part the story is one of rapid, tensely dramatic action, but it would seem that for a comedy relief the authors, Raymond L. Schrock and Edward Sedgwick, the latter also is the director of the picture, took advantage of their position of power and had some fun with Hoot Gibson, the star. They start him out in the picture as a sheepherder and what could make a real cowboy more uncomfortable than to be forced to portray such a part? And Hoot is a real cowboy, or was before he entered motion picture work and he retains all the convictions of the cowboy, even now.

Forunately for the peace of mind of all concerned Hoot does not spend much time in the placid occupation of herding sheep, for the aged Mexican for whom he works is the trusted friend of one of the richest cattle men in the country and summons the youth, equips him as any self-respecting cowboy should be equipped, and sends him forth on the dangerous mission of escorting to her father's home a young woman whose safety is imperiled by the leader of a band of cattle rustlers.

Universal's famous collection of former cowboys, known far and wide as Universal Ranch Riders, are given plenty of opportunity to distinguish themselves by some daring horsemanship in this distinctly Western story.

HANDLING CANOE IN DANGEROUS RAPIDS FEAT OF STRENGTH.

William Duncan, Star of Wolves of the North, Comes Down Swirling Frazer Rapids in Frail Bark — Rescues Woman—Swerves at Rise of Waterfall—Saves Two Lives.

Feats of skill and tests of strength are the rule, not the exception, in the action of the Universal's rousing chapter play, "Wolves of the North" at the Royal to-day.

It is a powerful play and the production was made right out there in the great wild Northland. It is trite to say, "Out in the wide open spaces where men are men," but it is true, for life there is a survival of the fittest—the weaklings die.

Transportation is by dog sled and canoe—dog sleds over the trails in the blinding snow and canoes by all water routes and carries. Duncan, the star, certainly can handle a canoe. There is much evidence of this fact. In the swirling Frazer rapids he comes down stream, dodging rocks, rills and whirlpools, by main strength, and when he rescues a woman being swept to her death over the edge of a treacherous waterfall—it isn't play-acting, not by a darn sight, it is heroic manhood at performing a medal-winning feat.

The cast includes the famous strong man, Joe Bonomo, who was seen here in "The Iron Man."

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

To-day is Thursday again, which means more fun and talent at the Royal. Among the line-up to-night will be found:

Earl Waterman: Irish songs.
Joseph Emery: Comedy jokes.
Issac Gilder: Sally.
George Houghton: Awful Little Row.
Leslie Dyer: Just a little song.
Catherine Gash: Moonlight Bay.

AT THE CAPITOL

JONES THRILLS FELLOW "TRAIL RIDER" PLAYERS.

Buck Jones, William Fox star, furnished Director Van Dyke and his staff a thrill during the production of "The Trail Rider" that was as unexpected as it was daring.

Buck was supposed to fall from his horse at a certain point in his wild dash down a mountain side. Everything was ready and Buck started from the high peak at a mad gallop. Down the trail he thundered. Then the horse tripped on a root. Buck and his mount were scattered all over the landscape.

When the dust cleared, Director Van Dyke found the Fox star and his mount badly cut and bruised, but still "among those present." One of the star's cameramen caught Buck's gyrations from the moment he fell until he stopped at the mine entrance.

Nancy Deaver, Lucy Fox, Carl Stockdale and Will Walling play other important roles in "The Trail Rider," which will open an engagement at the Capitol Theatre to-day.

AT THE REGENT

"THE CLOUD RIDER."

"The Cloud Rider," shown to-night at the Regent Theatre, is full of thrillers, but perhaps the most remarkable feat ever shown on the screen is the sequence in which the villain tampers with the landing wheel of the plane, before the heroine takes off. In mid-air, the wheels fall to earth, and seeing that his sweetheart can not land without certain death, Al. Wilson — star of the picture—flies up to the girl, with his plane, and standing on the top wing of his machine, adjusts a new landing wheel, while the two planes fly together.

Not every hero in film thrillers has the nerve to risk his own life (in preference to having a double) to save his film sweetheart from an ocean grave. But Al Wilson, star of "The Cloud Rider," shown at the Regent Theatre to-night, dives his plane into the ocean, swims over to the scoundrel's plane, rescues the girl and thrashes the villain as he deserves. This sequence is but one of many smashing moments in this picture.

PONIES INITIATE YOUNG PETES AND GRAB SEASON'S FIRST GAME, CAIRNS WINNING SOUTHPAW DUEL

Breaks Favored Kingston in Close Battle for League's First Decision.

PITCHERS STEADY

Swanston Made Feature Fielding Play—Opening Ceremonies Brief.

The Petes and Ponies pried the lid off the 1925 Central Ontario League season in Kingston last evening, with Joe Daley's crew grabbing a 7-4 verdict over the Petes and thus getting away on the right foot.

The winners were always in front, although a more equal distribution of the breaks of the game might have seen a reversed score.

It was a southpaw battle between Lefty Cairns, the Ponies new portsider, and Frank Whitehouse, the Lakeview left-hander, making his senior debut, and both youngsters acquitted themselves nicely. Cairns allowed but six hits, confined in the sixth and seventh innings while Whitehouse was touched for ten during the engagement but was the victim of two or three tough breaks on rollers that took an erratic bound and went for safeties. The Peterboro left-hander did not pass a man while Cairns supplied but one ticket and both hit one batter. It was a nice exhibition of control on the part of the two young southpaws, both of whom will be heard from often during the campaign.

The Ponies trotted out most of last year's team with Purvis, Somerville and Batstone in their old places in the infield and Cherry and Teeple in the gardens. The new comers were the battery, Cairns and Quinn, the latter with Deloro last season, Halbert, a portly looking individual who is far from being in Compeau,s class at short, but who played good ball nevertheless, and Scott, a new outfielder.

Ash Hurt and Retired.

The Petes were not at full strength, Wolfe, Ross, Collins and Gartner being unable to make the trip while Ash, who was slated for a trial in right field, was hurt by a ball from his own bat in the second innings and had to be taken out, McPherson replacing him in the outfield.

A big crowd saw the season opened. The initial ceremonies were brief, Mayor Angrove starting the game by walking up to the plate and cracking the first ball. Cairns threw over.

As the box score shows both teams made some costly defensive slips but to offset that both outfits turned in some nice fielding. Swanston's catch of Teeple's foul in the first inning was probably the feature. He tore back to the crowd, grabbed the ball as he fell over a fan, was upset but hung to the Spalding for a spectacular catch. Cherry in centre for Kingston and Legon and Hall in Peterboro's outfield contributed some pretty fielding plays.

Summary Of the Play.

In the first for the Petes Rose fanned. Legon popped to Halbert. Swanston was safe on Halbert's fumble. Harrison missed three.

Swanston made a great catch of Teeple's foul into the crowd. Legon took Halbert's drive on the run. Batstone hoisted high to Rose.

In the second Helson got a life on Somerville's miss of his roller. Ash tried to sacrifice and the ball was deflected off the bat against his eye. He had to be taken out of the game and McPherson finished his term at the plate, striking out. Hall fouled to Quinn and Whitehouse grounded to Quinn.

Two Lucky Runs.

The Ponies got a couple of cheap runs in their half. Somerville was safe on Harrison's fumble, but was forced at second on Cherry's rap to Marchen. Purvis singled through short. Scott grounded to Harrison, the runners advancing. Quinn's pop fly back of second, a lucky one-handed rap, scored Cherry and Purvis. Cairns fanned.

For the Petes in the third Marchen rolled to Somerville and Rose and Legon were both retired on strikes.

Teeple lined to Legon in left. Halbert struck out, and Marchen tossed out Batstone.

Pete's First Score.

The visitors got their first run in the fourth. Swanston was hit. Harrison rolled to Batstone, who threw well to first base. Swanston going to third and Harrison to second. Helson hoisted to Purvis. McPherson's sacrifice fly to Cherry scored Swanston. Hall rolled to Halbert.

The Ponies got two in their half. Somerville hit hard to right for a base. Cherry singled through short, Somerville going to third and Cherry reaching second on Hall's throw to Helson. Purvis singled on a fly to right, scoring Somerville and Cherry and going to second on McPherson's low throw to Harrison. Scott rolled to Whitehouse. Quinn hit one to Whitehouse and Purvis was caught trying to score. Cairns was thrown out by Helson.

In the fifth Whitehouse rolled to Halbert. Marchen's drive was captured by Cherry and Rose flied out to Teeple.

For the Ponies, Teeple was hit and was sacrificed to second by Halbert. Batstone's roller, which looked like an easy out, was turned into a hit, when the ball bounded high over Harrison's head. Teeple scoring on the play. Somerville's rap was deflected by Harrison to Rose, who threw him out at first. Batstone going to second. Marchen dropped Cherry's pop fly. Batstone registering. Cherry stole second and went to third when Whitehouse threw wide to second. Purvis flied to McPherson in short right.

Legon Picked Off.

Legon's bad luck in getting picked off first in the sixth cost the Pete's a couple of runs. He led off with the Pete's first hit, a single past Halbert, but started for second too soon for an attempted steal and was out Cairns to Purvis to Halbert. Swanston flied to Cherry. Harrison singled over second. Helson singled through short. McPherson singled to right, scoring Harrison and Helson and going to third on Teeple's wild throw. Hall was thrown out by Batstone.

For Kingston Scott scratched a hit past third, but Quinn popped to Rose and Cairns lined to Harrison, who doubled Scott off first.

After Whitehouse had hoisted to Halbert and Marchen had fanned in the seventh, Rose drew a pass and stole second. Legon beat out a single to short. Rose going to third. Legon stole second. Swanston lined to centre for a single scoring Rose, but Legon was called out at the plate when he also tried to score on the hit. Cherry making a nice throw to the plate.

Teeple flied to Hall. Halbert singled over short. Batstone flied to Legon. Halbert stole second. Hall came in fast and took Somerville's short fly on the run.

In the eighth, Harrison fanned. Helson rolled to Halbert and McPherson skied to Purvis.

Cherry led off for Kingston with a double to left. Purvis flied to Hall. Scott singled over second scoring Cherry. Scott stole second. Quinn fanned and Harrison took Cairns' high fly.

The Petes were retired in order in the ninth. Hall lifted one to Cherry in centre. Cairns tossed out Whitehouse and Heckman, batting for Marchen, was extinguished on a high fly back of first.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 81 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The reason the back swing must be reasonably slow is because the club must be kept under control. The slow back swing does not mean that laborious, stiff paralizing back swing we now and then see, yet it must be slow enough for you to keep an absolute control of the club. That is the whole guide to the speed of the back swing — keep the club in your control. This cannot be done when the back swing is quick and jerky. Let the clubhead be thrown back, largely, if not wholly, with the left arm and hand. You catch it up at the top. The club gradually gains speed as it goes back, but let it have time enough for a natural, rhythmic action going back.

USE 17 PLAYERS BUT LOSE GAME ANYWAY

The Pirates used 17 men in a game with the Phillies the other day—almost two full teams. But it proved futile, five McKechnie hurlers failing to check the Fletcher assault.

BELLEVILLE IN LOCAL OPENING

Al. Heckman Will Pitch Against Old Enemies on Saturday.

BOTH LOSE FIRST

The local Central Ontario League season will get under way on Saturday when Belleville and the Petes will clash at Riverside Park, the game to be called at 3 o'clock sharp. Both teams lost their opening starts yesterday and both hope to make up the lost ground by a victory on Saturday.

Although the Quinte gang have lost Jack Oulette they are still formidable opposition, and the Petes will have to be on their best behaviour to earn the verdict. It is likely that Jeffrey, Belleville's southpaw pitcher will be sent against the Petes in view of the fact that they succumbed to left-handed pitching in Kingston last evening. Al Heckman is slated to go to the gunning pit for the homesters who expect to be at full strength for Saturday's clash. The game will be handled by Umpires Geo. Sullivan of Kingston and Si Dell of Oshawa.

PARK SOUGHT BY MANY TEAMS

City and Mercantile Baseball Leagues and Lacrosse Club Apply.

TWENTY TEAMS.

Aderman Mel Turner, Chairman of the Parks Committee, Mayor Turner and Alderman Nagle Phelan have a great job ahead of them. They were appointed by their colleagues of the Parks Committee to arrange schedules for the teams who wish to play on James Steevnson Park. The agreement with the Central League club calls for them to have their playing dates and Monday and Friday nights for practice, which leaves Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights to be disposed of by the committee. With the City and Mercantile Baseball league and the Peterborough Lacrosse Club seeking playing dates there, the sub-committee will have a merry time trying to satisfy them all. The anteroom of the office was packed with various delegations wishing to wait upon the Parks Committee, who did nothing else during the meeting but listen to the spokesmen.

James Stevenson Park.

Requests for the use of the park were received from J. Sullivan, representing the City League of fifteen teams; H. Cressman, representing the Mercantile League of four teams; G. Mein, representing the lacrosse club. All the gentlemen put up a strong plea for their own clubs.

Aldermen Turner and Phelan will draw up a schedule and make arrangements with the various teams.

The Bowling Club.

Messrs. Elliott, Howden and Martin were a deputation from the bowling club to ask for a portion of King Edward Park. They estimated that they would spend $1,000 to fix it up and $500 a year thereafter so that they would like it for a long time. When Mr. Sedgwick came before the council he mentioned a lease for 99 years.

The committee will meet the bowling club on the grounds on Tuesday, May 26.

Victoria Park.

Robert Fair appeared on behalf of the residents on Dickson street to ask for a better walk across Victoria Park. He said that the cinder path washes away every year and recommended the building of a concrete sidewalk.

Alderman Turner called attention to the fact that the Park belonged to the county and that the city had never been reimbursed for any money spent on it. The Mayor, Chairman and City Engineer were appointed to look into the matter and bring in a report.

EIGHT STRAIGHT FOR TORONTO' A SEASON RECORD

Leafs Hammered Syracuse Pitchers—Kelly Hit Fourth Home Run.

TWO FOR BIRDS

Two Providence Fielders Collided, Both Being Knocked Unconscious.

TORONTO, May 20—The Leafs ran their string of successive victories to eight, a league record, this afternoon, by taking the second game from the Stars, nine to two.

Boyd, a right-hander, lasted less than three innings, while Reppy was rapped freely, especially in the seventh when Kelly homered and Carlyle and Harrington doubled and Heath singled for three runs.

The young first baseman had a field day, slapping three stinging singles through the infield. Gehringer also distinguished himself both with the bat and in the field. His contributions included two singles and a double.

Thomas was effective in all but the fourth, when the Stars bunched three hits after the side should have been out. It will be Syracuse again tomorrow.

BUFFALO, May 20—With the score tied and the winning run on first base, Jimmy Walsh slapped the ball up against the left field fence to get Kelly around to the home plate, Buffalo defeating Rochester by 7 to 6 in a whirlwind finish, two Bisons being killed off at the time. Horne had one bad inning, the third. Otherwise he was good. Lepard blanked the Tribe for the first four frames, no hits being made off his delivery. He was not so puzzling later on, Joe Maley being called upon to stop the hitting and tallying. Score:

FAST GAME IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

Prince of Wales Won Decision Over Queen Mary By 12-7 Score.

Yesterday afternoon, the baseball team of the Prince of Wales school met the Queen Mary bunch in a hot game which looked more like a "big-league game" than a Public School League. Some real good baseball was played by both teams but the outfield of Queen Mary was a little weak. At the start it looked like a tie game but in the sixth and seventh innings, Prince of Wales took the lead and came through on top by the score of 12-7. The game was played on Queen Mary grounds. The line-ups were:

Prince of Wales— Cotton, c; Holmes, p; Craig, 1b; Lucas, 2b; Hollingsworth, ss; Wilson, 3b; Rightmeyer rf; Golden, cf; Cuthbertson, lf.

Queen Mary—Hall, c; Sowden, p; Macdonald, 1b; White, 2b; Crary, ss; Dormer, 3b; Jones, rf; Merrit, lf; Smith, cf.

SCOTT' STRING LIKELY TO STAND.

Scott's Record of 1307 Consecutive Games May Never Be Shattered.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The sensational playing streak of Everett Scott, veteran shortstop of the Yankees, has come to an end.

For the "Deacon" was pulled from the regular line up in the recent series against the Athletics.

When Scott failed to get in that contest, it was the first time in close to 10 years that he viewed the proceedings from the bench.

Scott, who had come to be known as the "Iron Man of the Majors," started on his record-breaking streak on June 20, 1016. Since then he had been at his usual post in at least portions of every game until being benched by Huggins the other day. His consecutive record stopped at 1307.

In making his marvelous run, Scott overcame countless obstacles. Once a train wreck all but put an end to the record. But not to be outdone, Scott hired a taxicab, making a thrilling race to get to the ball park in time to get there for the last few innings of the game.

At other times illness and injuries all but kept the "Deacon" on the bench. But on each occasion he always managed to get into the fray, even though sometimes far from fit.

Scott's great mark will, no doubt, stand for all time. No other major leaguer in the past even came close to approaching it. And it's not likely that any pastimer in the future will either.

The next best record in baseball is held by Perry Lipe, old Southern Association star. Lipe participated in 1127 straight games, or from 1902 to 1911. Illness in his family, which called him home, stopped the streak.

The next best record by a major league player was that hung up by Fred Luderus of the Phillies. Luderus palyed in 533 straight tilts. Oddly enough, he started on his streak on June 2, 1916, or just a short time before Scott commenced his run Luderus' record ended in 1919, however.

FALCONS HAVE LOST VALUABLE MEMBER

Melville McNeely Has Left the City After Seven Years on Team.

The Fire Hall Falcons A.C. lose another very valued member in the person of Melville McNeely, who left the city recently.

McNeely joined the Falcons in 1918. Since then he has held the assistant manager's berth and also captained more than one of their teams. The Falcons certainly feel the loss of McNeely, not only as a member but as a player. In all his games he played to win and always gave stellar work. His departure leaves a gap in the Falcons A.C. that will be hard to fill.

McNeely was also a valued member of the All Saints A.A.

FAST GAMES ON VICTORIA DAY

City League Has Arranged One Morning and Two Afternoon Games.

TEAMS ARE STRONG.

The schedule committee of the Peterboro City Baseball League has arranged three good games for Victoria Day, which is an open date, as the Petes are playing in Belleville. At 10.00 o'clock the C.G.E. and Lakeview Juniors will play, and in the afternoon there will be a double header, Knights of Columbus and Dodgers Juveniles at 2 o'clock and Lakeviews and Hillcrest Juniors at 3.30 o'clock.

It is hoped that the League will be able to get Riverside Park for this date. Victoria Day is about the only chance the City League has to charge an admission fee, having to pass the hat at twilight games, so they are to a great extent dependent upon the funds received then to carry them through the season. As a large proportion of this year's Central League team came from the City League ranks, and others are being developed now, the fans should welcome the opportunity to give a little assistance and encouragement to the boys by their attendance and support on Victoria Day.

The balance of the schedule will be drawn up for the Junior and Juvenile series when playing dates have been assigned by the Parks Committee. The Midgets and Bantams play on a smaller diamond and will be accommodated at other fields.

JACK AND GEORGES BOW IN PARIS RING

Dempsey and Wife Dinner Guests of Carpentier.

PARIS May 20.—Jack Dempsey's new filmdom nose made its first appearance in a Parisian ring last night, when the heavyweight champion, hand in hand with Georges Carpentier, bowed to the public at Gaumont Palace prior to refereeing a bout between Debeve and Kelly.

Previously some portions of the populace had been able to get a glimpse of Dempsey and his new nose on his arrival in Paris with his bride, but only after they had had a battle with the police, who were pion from the onrush of admirers at pion from the onrush if admirers at the railway station.

Jack had an easy evening in the ring, because the bout he refereed, which was to have gone ten rounds, terminated at the end of the fifth when Debeve took a count of nine and refused to continue.

The champion's refereeing evidently was heartily appreciated by the crowd of seven thousand, who acclaimed him an expert on the fine points of the game. After his official duties had ended Dempsey went to the hotel and took his wife, known in the film world as Estelle Taylor, to a dinner given in their honor at a fashionable restaurant by Carpentier.

Dempsey's appearance in the ring brought him an ovation unparalleled in Gaumont Palace since Marshal Joffre appeared there to witness a film commemorating the first battle of the Marne. The champion, in an impeccable dinner suit, took the acclaim modestly and smilingly. He grasped Carpentier's hand in a most friendly manner and thus conquered the hearts of the French sporting public. Afterwards in refereeing the bout he clinched his claim to popularity, the gallic fight fans forbearing to favor him with their accustomed assortment of boos, catcalls and whistling.

ROYALS ARE STRONG IN MIDGET LEAGUE

West End Organization Has a Number of Good Lads Signed Up.

Yesterday evening the "Royals" of the Midget League held a practice in Prince of Wales school grounds. Some real good material was noticed and the team will no doubt issue some snappy ball when the league opens. The manager, Melville Baylis, is much interested in the welfare of his team and is doing all in his power to help his team along to victory.

The team is now lined up as follows: catcher, Doug. Hatton; pitchers, John Goodson, Joe Reynolds, Roy Wilson; 1st base, Joe Reynolds; 2nd base, Harold Holingsworth; short stop, Frank Carroll; 3rd base, Roy Wilson; Outfield, William Sproates, Elmer Spry, Stanley Jones, Robert Gamble, Jack Hole, Charles Evans, Vernon Feeley.

JUNIORS BEATEN BY KIWANIS JUVENILES

Practice Game at Oval Was Hot Contest Between Two Good Teams.

On Wednesday afternoon the Kiwanis Juveniles met the Lakeview Juniors at the oval in a fast exhibition game of ball in which the Kiwanis came out on top. Very good ball was played by both teams and the fans may expect some good amusement when these teams start on their league games. The line-ups were:

Kiwanis—C., Baker; P., Guiry; 1b Marshal; 2b, Nixon; s.s., Ted LeBarr; 3b, Graham; r.f., Allin; c.f., Gillespie; l.f., Wolfe.

Lakeviews — C., Holland; P., Woods, Donnelly Mein; 1b, McLeish; 2b, Scully; s.s., Collins; 3b, Johnston; r.f., Jack LeBarr; c.f., Nichols; l.f., Ash.

Gillespie for the Kiwanians made some very good catches in the outfield and Baker, the Kiwanis catcher, was hit on the knee with a foul and subbed by Koster.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

GOOD BALL CLUB.

"I have a mighty good ball club," remarked Connie Mack to me when I dropped in on his club at Ft. Meyers, Fla., during spring training.

"The stuff is there, all the boys need is the will to win. "The moment they are of the opinion that the Athletics is a mighty good club, it is going to be a hard team to beat.

"The A's have been a second division club for so many years, it is a difficult matter to get the players in a different frame of mind.

"My ball club this year is a first division aggregation. Any team that sticks around the first division has a chance to win a pennant.

"All the boys need is the will to win, the proper mental attitude."

Then the genial Connie excused himself, to lead the boys in skull practice, as all baseball gatherings are known, prior to going on the ball field.

WILL TO WIN.

The Athletics were to meet the New York Giants that afternoon and Mack wanted action.

In the two games prior to the contest with the Giants, the Athletics had been beaten, played sloppy ball. Mr. Mack was far from pleased.

What Mr. Mack said to his proteges that afternoon will always remain a mystery. Suffice it is to say that the words instilled into the noble athletes the will to win.

In the first two innings Simmons and Hauser hit for home runs, one of the wallops coming with two on, the other with the bases loaded. The Athletics won the game in a canter.

During the first month of the American League race the Athletics have performed with the will to win and have been in the first division all the way.

A continuation of such a brand of baseball would make the Athletics, the dark horse of the American League race, a pennant possibility.

GETTING BREAKS.

Getting the breaks help a club to acquire a will to win spirit.

On the contrary, a run of tough luck has the opposite effect.

For years, no matter how well Mack's team would get away, something would always happen to destroy the morale of the club.

When such a break came, the players seemed to regard it as something to be expected, took it as a matter of course, and instead of fighting back, gracefully accepted a drop into the cellar.

So far this year, things have been different. Timely base hits, sometimes in the form of a home run wallop, have been winning bitterly fought games.

The breaks that for years have been frowning on the Athletics, now appear to be in a smiling mood.

And so far, "Lefty" Groves, doped to be a big help to the A's, has failed to show the form that made him the most talked about pitcher in the minors.

Do you realise how well it pays you to learn about trademarks and brands that are advertised in your newspapers. The merchants stake their whole business reputation every time an advertisement appears. Advertising is your protection.

MUNN GETS CHANCE TO REGAIN LOST PRESTIGE.

Second Match With Lewis Will Determine Status of Ex-Football Star.

WAYNE MUNN DEMONSTRATING FAVORITE HOLD.

(By Art Carlson)

Last winter Wayne "Big" Munn was somewhat of an idol among followers of wrestling.

His defeat of "Strangler" Lewis had placed him atop the mat muddle. His startling victory shocked the fraternity. It was all the more noteworthy in that it was an ex-collegian who turned the trick.

Wrestling was in for a big revival was the general verdict. Munn's triumph would put the game on a new and better footing. All was well, apparently.

Came the Zbyszko disaster. With it went Munn's title. The Nebraska idol had fallen.

Munn, following the ethics of most college athletes, had disregarded the advice of his physician to cancel the match, due to illness.

He was in no shape for the encounter, reports said. But Munn jumped into the ring. And the result is history.

Some, in fact many, have opined the reported illness was but an alibi for his defeat. At any rate, the Cornhusker was laid up for quite a few days afterwards, ill abed.

On the night of May 30 Munn will have a chance to regain some of his lost prestige. He's down to meet Lewis on that occasion at Michigan City, Ind. The two will renew their feud started last January.

Munn's real status in the wrestling pastime will be known after the bout. If Lewis dumps the former football star, it can be taken for granted that Wayne was a much-over-rated person.

On the other hand, if Munn again defeats the "Strangler" he must be considered with the top-notchers once more.

To the victor will go another crack at the title, now fondly caressed by the aged Stanislaus Zbyszko, the patriot of Poland.

ITALY DESERVES SOME PRIVILEGE

Her War Losses and Poverty Entitle Her to Better Treatment.

MUSSOLINI'S IDEA.

ROME, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—Italy's sacrifices in the World War and her lack of riches entitle her to be placed in the category of privileged nations in regard to her war debts to Great Britain and the United States, in the opinion of Premier Mussolini, who spoke yesterday before the Senate on the foreign affairs budget.

Italy's war debt, said the Premier, amounted to 100,000,000,000 lire, half of which was due to the United States.

BABE RUTH TO JOIN YANKEES ON MAY 28

Recovered From Operation More Rapidly Than Was Expected.

NEW YORK, May 20. — Babe Ruth will be able to join the floundering New York Yankees when they return home after the first western invasion of the year The team will be back in the st on May 28, and Babe sroould be ready to do some bench duty.

His recovery from the operation he underwent was more rapid than expected but he is weak and soft from being in bed for more than five weeks. He is to be permitted to work out every day at the Yankee stadium but the doctors have warned him not to do too much.

"I think I have learned by this experience to take care of myself," the Babe said. "I was never sick before and I never want to be sick again."

Ruth's return to the game is almost certain to improve the Yankees who have been in a very low state of mind. It is not the actual fielding or batting of the Babe that is needed. It is the Babe threat and the moral effect of the Babe upon opposition. Ball players say that even the best of pitchers are worried when Ruth is in the game, and that the threat affects their pitching against the other batters. When Ruth is not in the game opposition clubs consider the Yankees merely as a baseball team and they have been treated as such this season.

The Yanks have not been going right at all. When the pitching is good they can't get runs. When the team is batting the pitching goes bad and when the batting and pitching are ordinary the fielding falls off.

The Yanks are the only eastern team that is failing to hold up its end through the first intersectional struggles over the season.

The Giants have lost only two games to western clubs—one to Chicago and one to St. Louis. The Brooklyn Robins are doing almost as well, having lost only three games—to Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Chicago. The furious Phillies have lost four games to the west—two to the Pirates and one each to the Cards and the Cubs.

The Cincinnati Reds took a bad tumble when they hit the east, losing four games to New York, three in Brooklyn and one in Boston.

The Philadelphia Athletics setting the pace in the American league, have lost only two games since they have been in the west, and they were both dropped to the Chicago White Sox. The Washington Senators lost four games—two in Chicago, one in Cleveland and one in St. Louis.

The Yankees left a trail behind them all over the west. They lost three in Chicago, one in St. Louis, and two in Detroit. The Red Sox dropped four in Cleveland, three in St. Louis and two in Detroit.

MANY TEAMS AT LEAGUE MEETING

Committees Were Appointed to Draw Up Schedule and Arrange for Grounds.

USE SPALDINGS.

The City League held a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock last night, at which a fairly large number of managers, players and fans was present.

Dr. J. J. Craig took the chair and called the meeting to order. Dr. Craig then introduced the secretary of the year, C. F. Holland and had the minutes of the previous meeting read. A roll call of all present was taken and a discussion on the subject of how each team is progressing took place. Following this, the subject of the schedule and opening game date was brought up and discussed. Lew Lebarr suggested that as no ball game had been scheduled for May 25, the City League should hold three games in Riverside Park. The subject next brought up was that of a schedule committee and of a grounds committee. Dr. Craig called for nominations for the Schedule committee and the following were elected: Dr. Craig, D. Loucks and C. F. Holland.

It was also decided that as the certificates have not yet arrived, each manager hand a list of the signatures of his players to Mr. Lebarr before Saturday at 2 p.m.

It was moved by L. W. Lebarr and seconded by F. Doughty, that the Spalding ball be adopted for the games this year.

The following were present: Dr. Craig, chairman; C. F. Holland, secretary; W. Bennett and F. Doughty, C.G.E. juniors; L. W. Lebarr, Lakeview juniors; J. Deannard, Young Cops, Bantam and Midget; H. Weston and Yeaman, Dodgers, juveniles; R. Brady, All Stars, Bantam; Frank Carroll and Roy Wilson, Royals, Midgets; F. C. McMahon and C. Perdue, Hillcrests, juniors.

It is astonishing that France has not called on Carpentier in her present financial predicament ..... That baby knows no equal for getting the dough.

Hughey Fullerton bemoans the passing of romance from baseball. And come to think of it there aren't many of the boys left who still chew tobacco.

HOUSE OF LORDS PREPARING TO SURRENDER OLD PRIVILEGE OF MEMBERSHIP TO TITLED WOMEN

Orientation of Upper Chamber to Women's Expanding Sphere Seen in Close Vote.

REJECTED BY TWO

Last Political Stronghold of Englishmen May Fall With Reform of House.

LONDON, May 22. — (Canadian Press).—That women will before many years be entitled to vote in the House of Lords as well as in the House of Commons is the conclusion drawn from the fact that Lord Astor's private bill to enable Peeresses in their own right to sit and vote with British Peers was rejected by a free vote of the House of Lords Thursday by a majority of only two votes.

Lord Salisbury, speaking in behalf of the Government, said he had decided to vote against the bill "with reluctance," while another Government member, the Earl of Birkenhead, who described himself as "an unrepentant opponent of woman's franchise," stated what may be regarded as the government attitude on the issue, namely, that such an important reform could not be properly dealt with by a private bill, but should be brought about with the overdue general reform of the House of Lords.

Reform Upper House.

Lord Birkenhead declared he thought the present Government could not fail to deal with the reform of the House of Lords during the lifetime of the present Parliament. And in that case, said Lord Birkenhead, since the country had overruled his advice and permitted women to sit in the House of Commons, he could conceive of no logical reason for refusing women the same privilege in the House of Lords.

Lord Banbury moved the rejection of the bill. The Duke of Athol supported the measure as did Viscount Cecil, but both thought the proper time for its adoption was when the House of Lords was reformed.

Wives In Commons.

Lord Birkenhead created considerable laughter by remarking that among the supporters of the bill were the husbands of women of high distinction who sat in the other House. This referenc applied to Lord Astor and the Duke of Athol. Lord Birkenhead said he was compelled to recognize the part played by these women not only in their Parliamentary efficiency, but also in their conjugal discipline.

KILLED BY WAGON.

Heat In Saskatchewan Sprouts Laggard Wheat

REGINA, Sask., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Under the spell of hot weather wheat seed did not germinate as it should, is expected to show an improvement, according to a crop report issued Thursday by the Saskatchewan Co-Operative Elevator Company. The wheat in some places, the report reads, has not, up to the present, germinated well and that which is showing above the ground, while apparently healthy, is thin in places.

Unsettled weather conditions are reported, with some showers and a few good rains, but generally, hot winds have absorbed the surface moisture to a large extent and good heavy rains would prove beneficial in all districts.

THREAT IS SENT TO SCHOOL HEAD

Latest Episode in Collegiate Institute Students' Strike at Smith's Falls.

INQUIRY BY BOARD.

SMITHS FALLS, May 22. — Threats against the life and property of Mr. G. E. Evans, principal of the Collegiate Institute here, have been made over the mysterious signature K.K.K.

The letter found under the door of Mr. Evans' house contained much obscene language. It read in part: "We will put you out of town. You said some of us had liquor in Perth, and you tried to have us fired. Now you try to fire the teachers we love, who always take part in our dances, and who will not tell on us. If we don't get our way, we will burn your house or murder you. Signed, K.K.K."

It is believed that investigations will be made to trace the author of the threatening letter. In connection with the school investigation, every member of the teaching staff, including those under order of dismissal, will be called upon to tell the board anything they know regarding events which led to the Board's action.

The Real Sensation.

The threat contained in the anonymous letter pushed under the door at the private residence of Mr. Evans was the outstanding development Wednesday in the serious school situation here.

It was discovered just before the strikers returned to classes after their protest against notices of dismissal of seven of their favorite teachers. The students are apparently satisfied that the Collegiate Board will give the dismissed teachers a fair hearing.

The three K's are said to indicate not the notorious Ku Klux Klan, but another and more local organization.

It is stated that there exists among the older students of the Collegiate a club known as the Kat Killers' Klub, an organization which holds a monthly dance in Smiths Falls or the vicinity. According to the students, three male institute teachers are patrons of the club and lady teachers have also attended the meetings.

OWNER OF BABY FARM INDICTED

Order Made By New York Grand Jury—On Charge of Manslaughter.

BABY IS RETURNED.

NEW YORK, May 22—The additional grand jury Thursday ordered the indictment of Mrs. Helen Augusta Geisen-Volk, "baby farmer" on a charge of first degree manslaughter in connection with the death of William Winters, a month old baby who died at her infantorium.

Shortly before, Mrs. Geisen-Volk had pleaded not guilty to a charge of baby substitution.

Witnesses whose testimony led to the order for a manslaughter indictment were George F. Krumm, undertaker, and his assistant, James McVey. Nature of their testimony was not made public.

Bought Boy for $75

NEW YORK, May 22 — Fear that revelations in the investigation of Mrs. Helen A. Geisen-Volk's baby farm would reveal the identity of the baby boy she had presented to her husband as his son, Mrs. Grace Bass, Wednesday, confessed that she secured the child from the institution.

Because her husband wished a baby Mrs. Bass, the wife of a wealthy clothing manufacturer, went to Mrs. Geisen-Volk, she told Assistant District Attorney Ryan. She stayed at the infantorium the customary two weeks, returning to her home with the child and a birth certificate signed by Mrs. Geisen-Volk and Florentine Vosahio, a midwife, which declared the boy to be Nat Martin Bass.

For eight months the boy lived in the Bass home and Bass believed that he was his son. Then Mrs. Bass became frightene at the accounts of numerous infant deaths charged to Mrs. Geisen-Volk. She told her husband the truth and now the little boy of unknown parenage must go back to a charitable institution, for the foster-father will have nothing more to do with him.

"I love the child," Mrs. Bass told Ryan. "I was afraid they would take it away from me when I read the statements in the papers. I love the baby and I would like to adopt it."

But the attitude of the deceived husband was different.

"I don't want it," he said. "I won't keep it. I did love it, but I have been deceived. It is all a lie and I don't want it."

The baby probaby will be turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruetly to Children, and instead of the beautiful surroundings of the home he was just learning to know, he will find himself in a big bare room, surrounded with other cribs and other orphaned babies.

The revelation of Mrs. Bass will be added to the maze of evidence already against the woman at whose baby farm 44 infants died after being put in her care.

DAUGHTER SHOT MOTHER'S RIVAL; WOUNDS FATHER

Humiliation Over Parent's Alleged Infidelity Motive of Girl's Retaliation.

HURT BY GOSSIP

Popular High School Girl Trailed Father to Tryst With Other Woman.

CHICAGO, May 22—Driven to childish desperation by taunts and ostracism, a fifteen-year-old girl, Lucille Wunsch, Wednesday shot and killed the woman, with whose name that of her father had been linked, wounded her father purposely and accidentally shot her mother.

Lucille proved herself a modern child. It was she, not the wife, who writhed at the gossip in Riverdale, a Chicago suburb, where her father was a member of the village trustees.

It was she who persuaded the wife and mother to trail the husband and the other woman. It was the girl, who secretly carried a revolver to the rendezvous. And it was the child, not the woman, who did the shooting.

Her Reasons.

This was her reason:

"Mother shared all the hardships and then this woman came along and stole mother's place.

"I could not stand it.

"At first the folks in Riverdale wouldn't ask me to their parties and I did not understand. Then I heard about father's affair with that woman."

The girl is a High School pupil, very pretty and very popular.

The woman she shot, and who lingered for hours before she died in a hospital, was Agnest Simneck, twenty-eight. Before she died the Simneck woman said that Mrs. Birdie Wunsch, the wife, not the daughter, did the shooting. This is contradicted by all, including the girl, whose confession, the police say they have.

Mother Consented.

Tuesday night Lucille asked her mother to go with her and confront Miss Simneck. She said:

"I want to do something to put a stop to this talk."

The mother consented. Unknown to her, Lucille slipped her father's revolver into the pocket of her coat. The woman and the girl went out. They waited hours in the darkness of a hedge in front of the house where Miss Simneck lived. Then a man and a woman came toward them.

It was Wunsch and Miss Simneck, walking arm in arm. They came to the point where the mother and daughter hid. Then, according to all stories, the girl, without a moment's hesitation, pulled the gun from her pocket and fired point blank at Miss Simneck.

Twice she fired and each bullet took effect. Miss Simneck crumpled up. As she fell the girl turned the gun on her own father and again fired twice. Wunsch staggered.

With a terrified scream, the wife and mother grasped at last what was transpiring before her eyes. She hurled herself in front of the girl, between father and daughter. At that instant Lucille fired for the fifth time.

The wife stopped the bullet. It struck her in the arm. She also fell. There was the daughter, fifteen, standing in the starlight, three persons at her feet that she had shot. Wunsch was hit twice in the legs.

Stood and Waited.

The neighborhood was aroused, though it was very early in the morning. Lucille stood and waited. She made no attempt to get to her home, a block or so distant. Police came, then ambulances. It was thought, at first, that Miss Simneck would survive. She kept declaring that Mrs. Wunsch had shot her.

It transpired later that the point blank shots from Lucille's gun had both taken effect in Miss Simneck's lungs. She died later in the day. The wounds of Wunsch and his wife are not serious. The man, however, will be laid up for some time.

In her cell Lucille is unrepentant.

WEATHER

There was frost again last night, the temperature going down to 30 degrees, 2 degrees below the freezing point. Many of the roofs were also covered with white frost. Whether any serious damage has been done will be seen later, though its effect on the blossom can hardly fail but be injurious.—W. P.

Second Death In Quarrel Over the Sowing of Grain

PEACE RIVER, Alta., May 22.—(Canadian Press).—With the death Wednesday night in the Waterhole Hospital of Alcide Sabourin, the closing chapter is written of last Saturday's double shooting at Bluesky. Louis Turcotto, aged farmer, enraged at Sabourins' refusal to sow wheat instead of oats on the land rented to Sabourin by Turcotto, shot Sabourin through the right breast at close range, after which he committeed suicide.

AUDIT OF 'VETS' BOOKS IS BEGUN

D.S.C.R. Staff Investigate Canteen Funds Payments on Senate's Order.

MacNEIL'S COMMENT

OTTAWA, May 22. — (Canadian Press).—Under the instructions of the special Senate committee appointed to investigate canteen and disablement funds, administration and payments, officials of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment audit staff commenced work on the books of the Dominion Command G.W.V.A., Thursday. The auditors of the association, Blatch and Sounsall, chartered accountants, have completed their statement, certifying that all accounts are in order and all payments made under proper authority. This statement was filed with the committee this morning.

C. G. MacNeal Dominion secretary-treasurer of the G.W.V.A., stated that advisers of the association had expressed an opinion that the committee had exceeded its powers in ordering a complete statement of all receipts and expenditures, assets and liabilities of the association. The resolution moved by Senator Griesbach and by which the enquiry was authorized, specifies the administration of the canteen and disablement funds and payments therefrom, and the manufacture and distribution of artificial poppies. Thus far, Mr. MacNeil pointed out, the enquiry had been directed solely at the G.W.V.A., although some six or seven organizations participated in payments from the canteen funds.

Mr. MacNeil stated that no obstacle would be put in the way of the D.S.C.R., and that the association and its auditors had already placed all books and documents at the disposal of the Department officials.

OASES WELLING IN MANY TOWNS THAT WENT DRY

Lively Demand in Premier's Own Town for the Stronger Beer.

PERMITS DELAYED

Beer Failed to Arrive in Some Places—Grocers Handling It.

OTTAWA May 22. — The following are excerpts from despatches received from points in Eastern Ontario concerning the commencement of the sale of 4.4 beer.

Only one hotel in Pembroke received its permit, but as the local distributor for the breweries had not received his permit he could not supply the one hotel from the supply contained in three cars waiting in the railway yards.

One permit has been issued so far in Almonte, and that ... the only standard hotel in town.

Two standard hotels in Carleton Place started selling Thursday morning and did a good business.

In Prescott, two standard hotels were dispensing the beverage to their patrons but there was no rush apparent. Two other hotels, four restaurants and four grocery shops have applied for permits, which are expected to arrive soon.

In Premier's Town.

Twelve cases sold in one hour at Kemptville, Premier Ferguson's home town, where two hotels sold 4.4 yesterday, and another opens to-day. There was a big demand. The town voted dry in the October plebiscite.

Three standard hotels in Arnprior received permits to sell but something went wrong with the delivery of the beer which did not arrive until late in the day.

Smith's Falls, which also voted dry in October, has not taken kindly to the new beverage. Two hotels are selling but only two of the fifty grocery stores in the town are handling it.

Cornwall sold the new beer in standard hotels but so far no other establishments have applied for permits, although it is understood some of the grocery stores will sell it later on.

Hawkesbury is still dry. No permits have been received up to last night although applications were made by hotelkeepers, grocers and restaurants. Prospective vendors anxiously await the arrival of their permits which are believed to be in the mails.

UNION IS CIVIL WAR IN CHURCH

Scottish Presbyterian Divine Deprecates "Unchristian Strife" in Canadian Church.

UNIONISTS' VISIT

LONDON, May 22. — (Canadian Press).—Rev. Dr. Archibald Fleming, of Edinburgh, one of the most eminent of the Presbyterian ministers in Great Britain, in an article in the British Weekly, earnestly pleads with the Scottish general assemblies not to arrive at a hasty decision on the question of Church Union on representations of Canadian denutations.

Dr. Fleming described the Church Union matter in the Dominion as civil war within the Canadian Presbyterian Church, which for bitterness and intensity and tragic acrimony, has no parallel since the Scottish disruption in 1843.

"The melancholy thing," Dr. Fleming states, "is that all this unchristian strife has been going on in the name of Christian unity, and without doubting their good motives it is permissible to question the statesmanship of those who in this sacred name have engineered so lamentable disruption."

A recent Canadian Press cable stated that Rev. Dr. Alfred Gandier, Principal of Knox College, Toronto, former Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and Rev. Dr. J. M. Duncan, editor of the Presbyterian publications, Toronto, were visitors at the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in Edinburgh. Both of these ministers favor the union of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches in Canada, which union is to become effective on June 10 next.

IRISH MAINTAIN STATE MANSION FOR GOVERNOR

Although Timothy Healy Would Prefer Modest Quarters in Own Residence.

NATIONAL REASONS

The Dail Refused to Reduce Cost of Vice-Regal Establishment.

DUBLIN, May 22. — That Governor-General Timothy Healy would prefer to live modestly in his own private residence rather than in the Vice-Regal Lodge with its trappings of a military character, was brought out in the Dail Eireann Thursday, when the opposition challenged what it considered the excessive cost of the vice-regal establishment. The sum was given as 27,860 pounds, which includes the Governor-General salary of 10,000 pounds.

The finance minister said that the governor-general would prefer to leave the Vice-Regal Lodge and live in his own house, but the government thought it good for political and national reasons that there should be an official residence for him as provided for in the Anglo-Irish treaty.

The government, the minister continued, refused to concur in belittling an office holder or demeaning his position, and the executive did not think it desirable to have a wealthy man able to meet the expenses from his own resources in the office.

The motion to reduce the cost in the governor-general's budget by 3,000 pounds, was rejected by a vote of 34 to 22.

When Is a Man Drunk. Is An Important Question, But Inspector Gives List Of Signs Apparent

When is a man drunk?

Inspector Reid believes that the answer to this query will grow rapidly in importance with the advent of the new beer. According to the Inspector it is quite within the realms of possibility that some, not content with the mellifluous 4.4 will imbibe quantities of a more potent fluid and heap the blame on the innocuous shoulders of the recently acquired beverage.

"If any figure on getting away with that they are due for a great shock," remarked the Inspector, "because we have been in the game long enough to enable us to distinguish whether or not a man is drunk, and if he is we can tell how he got that way."

When asked how a drunken person was distinguished, the Inspector said that the usual evidence of such a state were an unsteadiness of gait, a breath redolent with the unmistakable odor, eyes stary and bloodshot, a decided thickness of speech, an unwarranted familiarity, particularly with members of the police force, and there is usually evidenced an inordinate desire to spread good fellowshp thoughout the universe.

Results of to-day innovation are awaited with keen interest.

Made-in-Peterboro Bulletin.

NO. 3 PETERBORO, ONT. NO CENTS

THAT THERE ARE MANY WHEELS TURNING in the movement to get ready for the Made-in-Peterborough Fair is evidenced by a general review of the hustle and bustle going on throughout the city. The tidings of the Fair are being broadcasted for hundreds of miles around, and thousands of people are coming to see Peterborough and to this Exhibition. It is easily predicted that several times the number of people will pass through the turnstiles at this Fair than ever passed before. The citizens have been most generous in contributing to its success. Mr. Brownlee, the blind basket maker, has a booth at the Fair, and has donated 10 per cent. of the proceeds of his sales to the Health Association. It is a spirit such as this that will make the Fair a success and will enable the Health Association to continue its good work. The popular young ladies who are putting in their time and interests in the advance sale of tickets will not hesitate to remind you that Seven Admissions can be bought for $1.00. Tickets to a Popular Fair, at a Popular Price, sold by Popular Young Ladies. Their latest official standing will found on another page. Changes have occurred since yesterday, and Miss Pearson, the De Laval girl, is now heading the list.

COLONEL GERMAIN WON DISTINCTION

Former Omemee Man Commands Successful Moose Jaw Battalion.

OMEMEE, May — The following item will be of interest to the members of the 45th Battalion of Victoria county:

The highest honors in the military affairs of the province of Saskatchewan have been obtained by the 1st Battalion, King's Own Rifles of Canada, commanded by Lieut.-Colonel M A. Germain, a former Omemee boy. This Moose Jaw battalion obtained the highest number of marks in the competition of the Saskatchewan Infantry Association for the training year 1924-25.

In a communication received from Major A. G. Styles, D.S.O., secretary of the association, the officer commanding the 1st K.O.R.C., is informed that the President of the Saskatchewan Infantry Association, Brig.-Gen. Alex. Ross, C.M.G., D.S.O., desires to congratulate Col. Germain, the officers, non-commissioned officers, and the men of the unit, on the splendid showing made in the competition.

The competition which is open to all infantry battalions in the province, is based on the musketry returns, and the showing made at the annual inspections of the various units. Points are awarded both for practical work and for an oral examination of all officers and non-commissioned officers, and the 1st K.O.R.C. was awarded 369.2 marks of a possible 500 marks.

Arrangements are being made by the officials of the Saskatchewan Infantry Association for the presentation to the local battalion of the challenge trophy, which is the reward of the splendid showing made during the past winter's training.

Sale of Clothing.

On Saturday afternoon the ladies of the Methodist church held a bake sale on Mrs. C. L. Morcombes lawn. At 3 o'clock, the appointed hour for the sale to commence the tables were laden with an abundance of home made bread and buns, and a variety of other delicious looking baking, and in a very short time the supply was exhausted; in fact long before the many buyers had been supplied. Unfortunately a heavy shower of rain put a damper on the sale which had to be removed to the verandah, and much baking was not brought in until later in the evening when a number of orders were then filled. The proceeds which are to be used as a flower fund, amounted to about $14.

Fish Pond in Store.

The fishing was good in Omemee on Saturday night and although the season does not lawfully open until June 15th, there was not any interference on the part of the Fish Inspector. The fishing pool was the drug store window where anyone possessing one dollar and willing to part with it might hand out three "fish" for the amount. Many luscious fish and a few "maskinonge" were pulled out. Among the loot carried away by some of the young ladies who fished was a safety razor, a pipe, a spatula accompanied by a bottle of flavoring extract, a collection of French ivory, a No. 2 Brownie camera, and many other useful and laughable articles.

The whole purpose of advertising is to show you ways in which you can live better, more comfortably and more happily. Read the advertisements to find out how you may own many things you have always felt were beyond your means.

WOMAN TO JAIL IN LIQUOR CASE LACKING FUNDS

Mrs. Alfred Young Fined $221.67 at Campbellford For Keeping "Blind Pig."

NEAR MYERSBURG.

Two Years Ago She Was Caught Operating a Still.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22 — Three license inspectors, as many provincial constables and a representative from the office of the Crown Attorney were in Campbellford yesterday, the reason for the unusual gathering being the arrest of Mrs. Alfred Young on a charge of selling liquor. Officers arrived in town with their prisoner before 8 o'clock, and in the afternoon the case was heard by Magistrate Payne. Mrs. Young was found guilty and a fine of $200 with cost of $21.67 was added. In default of payment, Mrs. Young was taken to Cobourg Jail to work out a sentence of four months.

Mrs. Young lives with her husband and her son-in-law, Harry Griffith, on the gravel road between the town and Meyersburg. Two years ago the local police found a still on the premises and Mrs. Young was at that time fined $200 and costs for a breach of the Internal Revenue Act. The place has been watched by the police ever since, and Griffith, the son-in-law, was arrested recently on complaint of License Inspector Goodrich. During the hearing of the charge against him in the police court in Warkworth, he was overcome as a result of a gas shock sustained while overseas, and the case has practically been dropped.

Used a Spotter.

Provincial Constable Robert F. Davis of Belleville swore that he went to the Young home late one night, accompanied by a man named Rogers, who purchased two bottles of liquor from Mrs. Young. This liquor was turned over to License Inspector Nathan of Belleville, who had the contents of one of the bottles analyzed, the test showing a large percentage of alcohol.

Mrs. Young was arrested by Provincial Constable Cousans of Bowmanville, and at the hearing yesterday, A. Cochrane, a law partner of Crown Attorney Kerr of Cobourg, conducted the prosecution.

Mrs. Young made a vigorous denial of the charge, declaring that the constable and Roger bought no whiskey at her home, that they came there with a bottle of their own and drank some of it with her husband. Called in rebuttal, the constable declared that this testimony was untrue.

Magistrate Payne found the defendant guilty, and when she declared that she was unable to pay the fine, she was taken to Cobourg Jail by Officer Cousans.

After the Lawbreakers.

License Inspector Goodrich of Cobourg and his assistant, James A. Armstrong of Warkworth, are hot on the trail of violation of the O.T.A. Last week they found a still in the woods on a farm belonging to Charles Blakely near Castleton and a police court case is likely to follow.

The officers are working on a clue which may tend to the identification of the owner of a still that was found carefully hidden in the home of a local clergyman, where it had evidently been stored as a safe place in which to keep such an outfit during the cold weather.

BEER ARRIVED DURING EVENING

Campbellford and Warkworth People Waited Patiently For Beverage.

MANY IMBIBED.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22. — It was nearly 6 o'clock Thursday evening before the lid was raised and the Ferguson beer was placed on sale in the Windsor Hotel, the only place in town that has as yet received a license. License Inspector Goodrich of Cobourg was in town yesterday morning, and James Blute, proprietor of the Windsor, was vested with the required authority to sell. But there was no beer in sight, and the first consignment did not arrive until the afternoon freight reached the depot.

There was a large and expectant crowd awaiting the arrival of the decimalized beverage, and the waiter in the hotel, who was also given a license to serve in that capacity by Mr. Goodrich, was kept on the jump carrying glasses of the foaming stuff to the crowds that thronged the tables. It is probable that the majority of the customers were impelled to indulge more from curiosity than from thirst. No one imagines that the rush at the inauguration will be kept up even for a few days.

There was in evidence considerable difference of opinion with regard to the Governmental announcement that the beer is healthy, palatable and harmless. Even those who drank liberally showed no ill effects, and the hope was expressed by others that the beer would improve both in flavor and strength when it had acquired greater age.

Crowd at Warkworth.

The hotel at Warkworth was supplied by the Campbellford agent, and a truck loaded to capacity with cases left for that village about 8 o'clock. There, too, a big crowd waited for the service to begin, and just as in Campbellford, there was a rush for the first hour or two, with no casualties reported.

CONAN DOYLE WAITING DEATH

Looking Forward With Serenity, Even Eeagerness, Says Spiritualist.

AN AFTER LIFE.

By Webb Miller
(United Press Correspondent—Copyright 1925 by United Press.)

LONDON, May 22. — Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, writer and spiritualist, to-day sixty-six years of age, looks "forward to death with serenity, even eagerness."

In a special interview with the United Press, he declared his intention of devoting the remainder of his life "to spreading the psychic Gospel throughout the world."

That he did not fear death, but on the contrary, welcomed it, was explained by his statement: "I look forward to death with serenity, even eagerness, because of knowledge of the after-life."

Then continuing, he explained: "Persons without a knowledge and certainty of the continuity of life after death cannot imagine the serenity strong and happiness our knowledge gives in the present life here. I know that the life hereafter is not the old glorified idea of heavenly places and music, but that it resembles much our present life, except that it is on a higher plane. I expect to have a house, a beautiful garden, a library, my friends and pets and my work.

"Nature and everything there are much more beautiful than here."

NO CRITICISM WHEN COUNCIL BOUGHT ROLLER

Something Rare for Municipality to Spend Money Without Some Kick.

COST $8,800

Campbellford Now Has Complete Road-Building Equipment in Use.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22 — It has been the lot of few councils in Campbellford or elsewhere to spend $8800 for any particular object and yet escape at least some criticism from pernickety taxpayers. The town fathers here have expended the above sum in the purchase of a road roller, a scarifier and a stone crusher and their action has met with universal commendation. Even the chronic critics have been heard to say that this is an in estment that should have been made years ago.

Roller at Work.

The new road machinery was unloaded from the freight car on Wednesday and in the afternoon there was a demonstration of the work of the roller and scarifier. A large crowd gathered to witness the unloading, a feat that was worth seeing, and to watch the trial. A runway of railway ties was built at the end of the car and the crusher was run down there by hand, the huge engine reaching the ground over the same bridge under its own steam.

There was a fine demonstration of horse power given, when a team of horses belonging to Henry Abernethy hauled the five-ton crusher up a steep hill to the street. The team was attached to the rear and the crusher was steered by one of the men who came here to start the machinery. The hill was smooth and at one time it looked as if the horses would fail when one of them slipped and came to his knees, but he was up again and into the collar like a flash. They made the grade without coercion by their driver, giving one of the finest exhibitions of steady hauling seen here since the days when lumbering was the chief industry. One of these orses is 48, and the other over 20 years old, but both are in excellent condition.

The First Trial.

F. D. McIntyre of Peterboro, the local agent of the J. I. Case Company, from whom the machinery was purchased, accompanied by his son Art, a skilled engineer, was in town to help in getting the equipment in working order. There were also two representatives from the Canadian branch of the firm.

With the engine almost noiseless and running like clockwork, the roller which weighs 13 tons, was taken to the corner of Alma street and Grand road for a test. Some time was occupied in getting the scarifier in working order but when the picks were finally let down the roller started and proceeded to the bridge over the creek. It travelled at the rate of about 2½ miles an hour without a puff of the engine or a stop, the scarifier tearing up the surface of the street, as hard as cement, to a depth of three inches. When backed up over this torn up surface the roller part of the outfit pressed it down perfectly smooth.

The oil that had been poured on the street for years was still in evidence where the surface was broken and the result of this test the scarifier raised large flakes but where there was only gravel this was stirred up as fine as the soil in a well prepared garden.

Last Word in Engines.

Mr. McIntyre claims that the engine which operates this outfit is the last word in machinery of this kind. Instead of the usual steering wheel, like that in an auto and in traction engines of other makes this engine is steered by a steam apparatus that can be easily operated by the thumb and forefinger of the engineer.

Another feature of the new engine not found on other road rollers, is a large fly wheel, so that the engine can be used to draw machinery separate from it. When not otherwise employed the engine can furnish the driving power for the crusher. The latter machine will be given a trial to-day with the new engine driving it. The crusher has a capacity of 80 tons of crushed stone a day.

Have Engaged Operator.

Fred Atkinson, who holds a license as a stationary and hoisting engineer, and who has had experience as a driver of locomotives, has been engaged to operate the new roller. His pay is to be 45c an hour.

A Complete Outfit.

Campbellford now has a complete road building outfit, including a grader which can be used to level and grade the streets after the scarifier in preparation for the surface dressing of crushed stone. Taxpayers on the various streets that have been olled in the past will probably find that their share of the payment of the debentures for the new machinery every year is less than their annual oil tax in the past.

NEW PLANE SERVICE.

American Business Men Organize Huge Company to Operate Airplanes.

CHICAGO, May 22. — (Canadian Press).—A secret conference of nationally famous business men here yesterday organized a giant aircraft operating corporation to be known as National Air Transport Inc. It is capitalized for $10,000,000, and will establish immediately a New York-Chicago overnight plane service.

LUTHER'S OPPONENT WAS CANONIZED

Canonization of Petrus Canisius Took Place Before 60,000 People.

ROME, May 22 — (Canadian Press). Petrus Canisius, a Jesuit father who was one of Martin Luther's most powerful opponents in the Reformation, was canonized yesterday by the Pope at St. Peter's with all the solemn magnificence which marked the ceremonies for St. Therese of the Infant Jesus last Sunday.

With enormous numbers of Dutch, German, Swiss and Austrian pilgrims among the 60,000 who filled the vast Basilica and the throng in the huge square outside, the second canonization of the holy year vied with that of Sunday in mystic grandeur.

A HEAVY MEAL ACUTE INDIGESTION SUDDEN DEATH!

Doctors May Say "Heart Failure," But the Most Common Cause is Stomach Acidity—Gas!

Thousands of folks think they have Heart Trouble and live in constant fear of a sudden end, when, as a matter of absolute fact, 30 per cent. of their trouble is probably caused by a Sour, Gassy, Upset stomach!

When the stomach is too acid and the slightest bit of food sets up a fermentation causing Bloating and Gas, then the stomach distends and crowds the heart—and palpitation, shortness of breath, difficult breathing, pressure, dizziness and a feeling of exhaustion and oppression follows—a highly uncomfortable and often really dangerous condition, but not Heart Trouble!

So don't get excited and don't waste valuable time doctoring the wrong thing. Unless you absolutely know your heart is bad, you'll probably find the cause of all your trouble in your stomach—and here's a simple little test to help you prove it.

From any good druggist obtain a couple of ounces of pure Bisurated Magnesia (either powder or tablets) and beginning with tomorrow take a teaspoonful of the powder or 4 tablets immediately after each meal—and see what happens or rather what does not happen.

This is a pleasant, inexpensive test that seldom fails to relieve or ward off most stomach distress. Gas Sourness and Bloating—almost instantly. One day's trial proves its value. Be sure and get Bisurated Magnesia, safe and inexpensive.

VETERAN TAKES OWN LIFE.

LONDON, Ont., May 22.—George Oliver, 50 years old, an imperial army war veteran, committed suicide Wednesday night by swallowing a small quantity of rat poison. His body was found lying in a clump of bushes on Grosvenor street near St. George street.

NOT ENOUGH MEN TO SET TAX RATE

Campbellford Town Council Held Informal Discussion of Financial Affiars.

HIGHER THIS YEAR.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22 — A special meeting of the Town Council was held last night for the purpose of fixing the tax rate for the current year, but only six members were in attendance: Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson and Councillors Cole, Abernethy, Wiggins and Kingston.

The entire evening was spent in an informal discussion of the financial condition of the town. Last year the rate was 41 mills, but owing to some unforseen expenditures there was a deficit of about $3,000 at the close of 1924. The ratepayers were warned at the nomination meeting that they might expect an increase in the rate for 1925. This now appears unavoidable, but every effort will be made to keep it as low as possible.

It was decided to adjourn until this evening and to ask the Finance Committee of the Board of Education, the members of which are George O'Sullivan (chairman), D. W. Douglas and Dr. H. B. Longmore, to meet with the Council with a view to reducing the estimate of the amount required to carry on the schools.

STONE CRUSHER TESTED YESTERDAY

Machine Lived Up to Makers' Guarantee of 80 Tons a Day.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 22— The new road roller and the stone crusher were moved to the town's gravel pit yesterday morning where the new machine was given a workout which proved entirely satisfactory. There is a large pile of stones at the pits, sufficient to keep the crusher busy for the entire season. The new engine supplied the driving power and the test was sufficient to make good the claim of the manufacurers that the machine has a capacity of 80 tons a day. When the roller is being used on the streets any 10 horse power tractor can take its place driving the crusher.

The portion of Gravel Road already scarified was graded yesterday, dressed with crushed stone and rolled, a marked improvement being made on the street.

Fred Atkinson is now in charge of the outfit, all of the representatives of the company who came here to start the machinery having left town.

POWER EXPORT.

The crux of the whole question in regard to the export of electrical power from this country is that the people of Canada must be protected.

It may be that for the present there will be a surplus of power when the works at Carillon are completed, and that there will be no market at home just now for such a surplus.

There does not seem any sound business reason why the excess power should be disposed of outside of Canada.

But there must be a stout string on the surplus.

To allow power to be sold under a long-term contract that may shortly be needed by the Canadian people themselves would be a most unbusinesslike course of action—and one that would seriously cripple Canadian industry and leave it at the mercy of outside competitors.

Unless there is a safeguard adopted in the form of a provision for revoking the license at short notice it would be folly to allow power to be exported at all.

The Premiers of Quebec and Ontario are of one mind in regard to this matter, and any proposal that involves the export of Canadian power and injures Canadian industry will be certain to be strenuously opposed by the two Provincial Premiers, who are justified in their effort to see that the rights of the people of this country are safeguarded.

IT'S NOT YET CLEAR.

The first day's operation of the sale of 4.4 beer has failed to show any light upon the insistence of the Ontario Government that the bars must be removed or boarded up, and that the beverage must be served at tables.

Why, if this beer was to be sold at all it could not be sold over the bar instead of having all this ripping and tearing out of fixtures and equipment, still remains a mystery.

The bar as it was known in pre-prohibition days has disappeared, but what possible difference there is so far as the effect upon the customers or in the sales cannot as yet be detected.

Instead of the bar-room we have the beverage-room, as the Government describes the place where the brew can legally be served—"beer parlour" would have been an even more apt description, although grating somewhat upon the ears of those inclined to aridity.

The whole agitation has had one result, however. It has made 4.4 beer the most widely advertised brew that this Province has ever known.

Its fame had gone across and over the continent long before yesterday, and so much was published about the 4.4 that many a thirst was developed through the publicity that was in circulation.

ATHLETIC GROUNDS.

The number of applications received by the Parks Committee for accommodation at James Stevenson Park indicates that more than one athletic ground is needed in Peterboro to take care of the clubs engaged in the different summer sports.

Why the Exhibition Grounds should not be more largely used for such purposes is not clear to many citizens.

A splendid start was made last year when a fine baseball diamond was laid out, and many of the City League games and other fixtures were played there, to the satisfaction of both players and spectators alike.

This season, for some reason or another, the different sports seem to be drifting back to the Stevenson Park, a mistaken policy in view of the self-evident fact that they cannot all be taken care of there satisfactory, and in view, too, of the extreme likelihood that before long the grounds across the river may cease to be an athletic field and may be converted into a public park as part of the scheme of beautification of this civic property that will sooner or later have to be adopted and put into effect.

The Exhibition Grounds offers an athletic field that can accommodate all kinds of summer sports, and it use should be widened rather than lessened.

It is clear that one park is not sufficient for all the clubs in the city, and some provision may as well be made for the future.

SEEING OURSELVES AS OTHERS SEE US.

He was a stranger hereabouts. Even the oldest resident could not remember having seen him before, and why he had come to our town no one knew. He was standing gazing, apparently deeply interested in something before him, but what, puzzled those who saw him.

Before his gaze was a scenic picture which the trained eye had discovered. An earlier tourist had discovered a wonderful view and had passed the information along, with the result that one more visitor had come to the town. The picture had always existed, but it had not been recognized by residents, who had become so familiar with local conditions that what was a novelty to the visitor was but commonplace to them.

In many places throughout Canada just such conditions prevail, and quite frequently some outstanding feature must await the arrival of a visitor for discovery. Locality may in itself be an attraction; history may connect it with some event of importance, it may be that some mineral in general use is either mined or shows outcroppings, there may be a rippling waterfall not of sufficient volume to warrant development but of interest to the visitor. These are but a few of the very many features that holiday-seekers will stop to look at, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of Interior. If we will but seek to know our home town thoroughly, carefully catalogue our attractions and make them known, we will undoubtedly draw a heavy tourist traffic our way. Some of our visitors are very voluble when describing the advantages of their home towns. Canadians should likewise be in a position not only to answer questions, but should do all in their power, individually and collectively, to place their home towns and their country to the fore as much as possible with the many thousands of American and other foreign tourists who will be visiting us this season.

MR. E. W. BEATTY ON ADVERTISING.

Mr. E. W. Beatty, K.C., the President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is one of the cleverest, shrewdest, wisest and most experienced men in Canada, and by the exercise of his brilliant talents and his splendid work has raised himself to the honored position which he holds. Therefore, when he speaks it is well for people to listen and pay head to what he says, says the Kingston Standard. He has been speaking on advertising, and here his experience tells, as advertising is by no means one of the small details in the conduct of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

But in this connection he looks beyond his own immediate interests, and points out two of the greatest essentials in successful advertising. The first is when he said: "I suppose 90 per cent. of the things we purchase are selected, whether deliberately or instinctively, by advertisements we have seen in newspapers or elsewhere and these advertisements have greatly speeded up the development and advance of modern living conditions." The second point is one which naturally follows on the first. It is: "Every advertiser knows, and if he does not know it he will soon be taught by experience, that he must live up to the statements made in his advertisements. The advertisement is a challenge to the purchaser that what is advertised is worth the money. The soundest axiom in business is that the best of all advertisements is the satisfied customer. In our railway business we aim above all to secure a satisfied passenger and a satisfied shipper and we adhere rigidly to the policy of advertising only what we feel sure we can perform."

Mr. Beatty gave some illuminating details concerning the Canadian Pacific Railway advertising into which we need not enter, but merely say that he proved he is practising the precepts which is preaching. He also referred to the changes which have taken place in advertising. There has been plenty of time for this seeing that advertising is sometimes referred to as beginning in the 16th Century; but it goes farther back than that as recent discoveries have proved, and some people may be surprised to know that it is mentioned in the Bible. Look up Ruth, the fourth chapter and the fourth verse.

AMERICAN APPRECIATION OF THE BRITISH.

Chauncey Depew—who represents much that is best in American life, including a keen sense of humor—made a speech the other evening in which he said:

"The greatest of all the missions ever sent here from across the sea was that headed by Stanley Baldwin which announced that Great Britain intended to pay every penny of her debts. The war had shaken the economic structure of the whole world and people were in doubt as to what was going to happen, but when Great Britain said, 'We will pay our debt,' it had a tremendous psychological effect. If you understand psychology you can run the world. Nothing since the war has done so much to stabilize the world as that and the recent statement of Winston Churchill, saying, 'England is on a gold basis.' With the dollar and the pound at par, confidence is restored and, eventually, the currency of every other country will be back on a gold basis, too."

This is a note in American public utterances that is becoming increasingly frequent of late. The men who guide public opinion across the border are realizing, more and more as the world moves into the new orientation created by the war, that their detached and powerful nation is by no means so isolated and safe as it was when practically all war menace was confined to the Continent of Europe. A European war did not frighten them. But a Pacific war might. So the wiser and better informed among American leaders are looking about for friends; and there is just one nation which seems in every way to fill the bill.

The consequence is that "tail-twisting" has pretty nearly disappeared. They are much more apt to stroke the lion's mane. Even that old Briton-baiter, Hearst—who is also something of a wind-vane—astonished everybody last winter by printing editorials in his publications lauding "honest old England" who paid her debts in contrast with France who did not. There is clearly a change in the direction of the wind. And it is a change that makes for peace.

The truth is that the two groups of English-speaking nations are very much in the same boat at the present time. Nothing is at all likely to happen in Europe that can threaten them with any serious danger. That fear for the British Empire disappeared when the German Navy entered Scapa Flow. It disappeared for the United States—though they may not have known that it had ever existed to disappear—when the Allies won the war and prevented the creation of an ambitious and hungry German overlordship.

British anxiety today is in Asia. So far as the Americans feel anxiety—and they would feel more if they better understood the situation—it also is in Asia. The Americans are, indeed, in the front trench; for they are provoking an attack on the Philippines at the very time when the more sagacious British are placating Japan and seeking to soothe India. Thus the play of great world forces—which, after all, create most alliances and bring on most wars—is driving these two peoples together, whether they like it or not.

And they are beginning to like it. That little episode at Wembley the other day which seems to have stirred up some feeling in Great Britain where they do not always understand American psychology, was a straw showing the direction of the wind. Chauncey Depew speaks of it approvingly—and he is no woolly Westerner. He says when the Des Moines shoemaker said: "King, how are you. I want you to know my son"; and King George, with a swift and spontaneous tact, responded at once: "Glad to see you. Is your family well?" that this was an example of "kin across the sea."

Chauncey himself might not have felt that way if the Des Moines shoemaker had tackled him one day on Ffith Avenue, always provided that Chauncey was not running for anything at the time. Even Kings have some rights—as was shown when a couple of English radicals tried to repeat the dose. But King George's diplomacy was right in line with that of the Prince of Wales, and has pleased the great American nation all the way from Depew to Des Moines.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Don't let Clean-Up Week pass by without making sure that your home passes inspection.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition is taking constantly bigger proportions as June 1st draws near. It promises to be one of the biggest events of its kind ever held here.

The celebration of Empire Day so far as any ceremonies in connection with the occasion are concerned is left to the schools. It affords the teachers a chance to implant a love of the Empire in the hearts of their charges.

FRASER RIVER'S RISE SLOWS UP

Inundated Areas Increased Yesterday, But Danger Appears Less.

VANCOUVER, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—High water in the Fraser Valley continued to cause anxiety yesterday, but with much cooler weather in the interior and on the coast prospects for a lessening much excitement as a Victoria brighter. While more low-lying land was under water Thursday, the Fraser river is not rising so rapidly during the past ten days, a gain of six inches being reported for the 24 hours ended at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, the gauge at Mission registering 20 feet, five inches.

Toay it was expected the effects of the cooler weather in the interior will begin to show in a slackening of the water and once the river begins to fall, seepages in the dykes may be repaired and the danger of breaks averted.

Campbellford Personals

CAMPBELLFORD, May22.—The regular meeting of the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of St. Andrew's church was held on Tuesday evening in the church parlors. After the usual business it was decided to disband and later in the evening, the Mission Circle was reorganized with the following officers—

President—Miss Verna Hay.
1st Vice-President—Miss Lillian Hay.
2nd Vice-President—Miss Mary Watson.
Secretary—Miss Olive Hay.
Treasurer—Mrs. John Storie.
Pianist—Miss Jean Wallace.
Programme Committee—Misses M. Frame, M. Storie.

A pleasing feature of the evening was a presentation of a miscellaneous shower to one of the members, Miss Dorothy Milne, whose marriage took place yesterday. Miss Milne received a large number of beautiful and valuable gifts.

The many friends in this viciuity of Miss Jean Armstrong of Keene learned with much pleasure that she had completed her course at Queen's University and had graduated with B.A. honours.

Miss Armstrong, who taught for two years at S.S. No. 2, Seymour Township and who resigned to take up a course at Queens, Kingston, has a host of friends in Campbellford and in the township, who congratulate her upon her success.

Mr. Frank Davis has purchased from Mr. R. A. Linton a vacant lot, corner of Kent and Napier Street, and expects to erect a dwelling upon it in the near future.

Miss Nettie McComb of Morganston is spending a week at the home of her cousin, Mrs. George McComb and with other relatives in town.

Friends of Mr. Albert Phillips, operator at the Town Power Plant, near Crow Bay will regret to learn that he had the misfortune to fracture his arm in three places last Saturday while cranking his car at Meiklejohn's garage in town. The injured man was taken to his physician who considered the break rather serious.

Mr. Phillips is able to be about but will not be able to resume his duties for some time.

In the account of the Social Evening at the League on Monday the name of Miss Mary McGregor was inadvertently omitted from the account. Miss McGregor rendered a piano solo most acceptably.

Miss Sara Nevin spent the week-end at the home of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin at Norwood.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Adams, accompanied by the latter's sisters, Misses Emma and Mary MacArthur, motored to Kingston, Tuesday, to visit friends.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 21.—Owing to today being a holiday on the Continent and to the fact that United Kingdom importers have not been disposed to follow the late advance in prices for grain on this side, the export business in Canadian grain here was reported quiet, but there was some demand from American exporters for No. 3 Canadian Western oats, and sales of some fair sized lots were made at 11 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg July option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The market for baled hay was without any new feature to note, business being still rather quiet and prices about steady with sales of odd cars of good No. 2 timothy hay at $14 to $15 per ton, No. 3 timothy hay at $11 to $12 per ton, and clover hay at $10.50 to $11 per ton, f.o.b. cars here.

The receipts of butter today were 2,061 packages, as against 1,412 for the same day last week, and 2,212 for the corresponding day a year ago. A steady feeling continues to prevail in the market, and prices show no important change.

The receipts of cheese were 2,149 boxes, as compared with 2,633 for the same day last week, and 2,442 for the corresponding day a year ago. The export trade in cheese continues quiet.

17c CHEESE BID REFUSED

BROCKVILLE, May 21. — The offerings of cheese on the board were 1,020 boxes of which 380 boxes were white and 640 boxes colored.

Don't YOU Want to Help in the Salvation Army's Work?

THE social work of the Salvation Army, important as it is, plays only a secondary part to its spiritual work.

The Army first, last and always is evangelical in its aims. Conviction and conversion of souls from their sins to righteousness and the love of God is the grand object of the Army's work.

By contributing to the Self-Denial fund, you help this work. You do it even better and more effectively than you could do it yourself, even if you had the time, because the Salvation Army has the organization and understands the work.

We want a greater Self-Denial fund this year than ever because the Army's work is growing and expanding greater than it has ever been.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes ....but no work or children.

She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she swamps Dick with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazzy" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR ,warns her not to been seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with JIM CAREWE.

Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia.

Gloria pulled herself away from him and she put on her hat. From under its wide brim she looked at Wayburn with distress in her eyes.

"It was dreadful of me to let you know I noticed your raggedy sleeve, Stan," she said, finally. "But so long as I have. . . ."

She bit her lip in embarrassment.

"Well, go on. What were you going to say?" Wayburn asked impatiently.

"Only this . . . you can't go down to New York in that old suit. You've got to have some new clothes," Gloria answered. "The more prosperous you look the better job you'll land."

"Nobody knows that any better than I do!" Wayburn said harshly. "But new clothes don't grow on bushes, Russet. If they did, I'd have picked off a couple of new suits weeks ago, believe me!"

"If I were a man friend of yours, you'd let me lend you some money, wouldn't you?" Gloria asked.

Wayburn nodded.

"Well, think of me just as a friend . . . not a woman, then," Gloria went on. "If I could get hold of some money somewhere, to help you out, would you take it?"

"No, it would be out of the question," Wayburn answered. "No decent man ever borrows from a woman."

Gloria suddenly remembered the day at the tea-house, when Stan had borrowed five dollars from her, and forgotten to pay it back. She remembered the two $20 bills she had left in this very room a few weeks before, for him. And she hated herself for remembering.

"If you'd promise to let me pay it back with interest, I might consider borrowing a little money from you," Wayburn surprised her, "just to tide me over until I get my job in New York."

Gloria nodded.

"All right, Stan," she said. "I'll get it for you." And so the matter was settled.

For the next week Gloria racked her brain, wondering how she was going to get hold of at least $200 for Stanley Wayburn.

She looked at her engagement ring, her wrist watch, and the little platinum bracelet Dick had given her for Christmas. She wondered how much they would bring if she pawned them.

And besides, she hated the thought of giving up her jewelry.

There must be some other way she could get the money. . . .

She was wondering about it one afternoon, as she sat beside Dick.

"A penny for your thoughts, Glory," he said suddenly. He sat up in bed, and the book that he had been reading tumbled to the floor.

Gloria bent to pick it up. She laid it on the counterpane.

Instantly Dick's arms were around her.

Gloria wrenched herself out of them, and stood up.

"Don't do that!" she cried sharply. "Let me alone!"

The look of tenderness that had been in Dick's eyes, was blotted out. Gloria knew that she had cut him to the heart when she had snatched herself away from him. But she didn't care.

"Can't I kiss you any more, Glory?" Dick asked. "After all, you're my wife, you know."

"Yes, but I belong to myself first!" Gloria answered. "And I don't want to be kissed right at this minute, as it happens."

The minute she had said it she was sorry.

. . . How could she have been so brutal to Dick when he was still so weak and sick? It was not his fault that she had married him, without being sure of herself. His only crime had been that he loved her too well.

"Don't mind what I say, today. I'm in a fiendish mood, I guess," she said.

She was. She was in a frenzy of worry . . . wondering how to get the money for Stanley Wayburn.

"I'm sorry I was cross, Dick," she said softly.

But the gentleness in her voice only fanned the slow anger in Dick to sudden flame.

"There's something behind all this coldness of yours. I'm not blind!" he flared up. "You can't make a fool of me! . . . How about this guy, Wayburn? You still see him, don't you?"

Gloria gasped. At times like this, life with Dick was not lacking in adventure!

And Gloria, like all women, thrilled to adventure. She knew how to meet it. It was the breath of life to her!

Moreover, Dick as the Male Proper, in a jealous mood, was much easier to deal with than Dick the Model Husband. Gloria understood him. . . . She had learned all about jealousy from Stanley Wayburn!

She went over to Dick and laid her small hand against his mouth.

"Hush!" she said. "You mustn't get excited like this. You'll make yourself sick! . . . And you know that what you're saying is crazy nonsense, anyway!"

Dick's senses ached with the longing to take her in his arms. The warm nearness of her made his head go round. But he clenched his hands at his sides, until the nails bit into the palms.

"I'm tired," he said, "I think I'll go to sleep for a while. Perhaps you'd better go."

And to his relief, Gloria went. Dick heard the door of her room close, and the bolt slide into place.

But Gloria sat for a long time before her mirror.

"How long am I going on like this?" she asked her own face, as it glimmered at her from the silver depths of the looking-glass.

She couldn't go on being Dick's wife! Not while she felt as she did about Stanley Wayburn, at any rate. That much was certain.

She found herself facing a problem that women have faced since this world began.

She was chained to one man. And she was sure she loved another!

What was she going to do about it? Wasn't there some way out of it? There must be!

She knew Dick would never let her go without a struggle.

Of course, she could always go back to work.

But she shuddered at the thought of getting up at seven every morning, of gulping down a cup of coffee, and dashing downtown to hammer her fingers off on a typewriter all day.

Ugh, she had had enough of that! It was worse than housework.

That wasn't what she wanted to do. Not by a long chalk!

There was a verse pasted on her mirror. Gloria raised her eyes to read it, although she knew it by heart:

"Life is but once.
Drink the cup,
Wear the roses,
Live the verses."

* * *

That was Gloria's creed. She belived in getting all the happiness there was . . . to the last drop! She simply was not going to be harnessed to hard work and dullness if there was any way out!

She wanted laughter, dancing, music —the jazz of life. In her mind, Stanley Wayburn stood for those things.

When she thought of Dick she thought of meals to be cooked, socks to be darned, bills to be paid, long dull evenings by the living-room fire. He stood for Marriage . . . And Gloria was sick and tired of married life.

"If I'd only known what it was like, I'll bet a hat I'd still be single!" she said to her face in the glass. It looked back at her with brilliant, unhappy eyes.

Gloria was struck again with the fact of her own good looks.

Why, she didn't need any man! Not Dick, or Stan Wayburn, either! . . . Her face was her fortune!

Why should she be a household drudge, or an office hack, either? With a face like hers?

She could carve out a future for herself . . . just as Kit Cameron had! On Broadway. That street of stars!

Gloria snapped out her light and went to bed.

Against the darkness of her room Ishe seemed to see her name in electric lights above the doors of a theatre: 'Gloria Gordon Gregory."

Yes, if worse came to worst, she could go on the stage to earn her own living! . . . Kit was in New York. She could show her the ropes!

Gloria smiled as she closed her eyes and dropped off to sleep.

The next morning Dick was not so well.

"Something seems to have upset him. He'd better stay in bed all day and rest," Mrs. O'Hara said to Gloria at breakfast. "This is the day I have my afternoon off duty, too. So perhaps you'd better sit with him this afternoon, Mrs. Gregory."

Gloria had come downstairs hatted to go out. She drained her coffee cup and stood up.

"Alright, I'll be home early," she answered. "I'm just going to run over to Mrs. Seymour's for a little while."

She found May having breakfast at one end of the dining-room table. The morning paper was propped against the coffee pot. And a half-smoked cigaret was burning itself away at the edge of her plate.

"Have a cup of coffee?" May asked.

"No, thanks, I've just had breakfast," Gloria replied.

She came to the point at once.

"May, you don't happen to have any money knocking around that you want to lend to a friend in need, do you?" she asked bluntly.

May shook her head in a puzzled sort of way.

"Heavens, no, I haven't one sou to [illegible] nobody," she said. "I've just been [illegible]ring when they're going to throw [illegible] jail for debt! . . . What do you [illegible]oney for?"

Gloria [illegible]. She bit off a hangnail, nervously, before she answered. She wondered if May devined that she wanted the money for Wayburn.

"What does anybody need money for?" she asked, shrugging her shoulders.

May sat looking at her with narrowed eyes.

"Give me the low-down on this," she said at last. "If you just wanted this money for clothes you'd ask Dick for it, I know. What mischief have you been up to?" . . .

She broke off suddenly. Gloria's face was red with anger.

"Well, you're a fine friend!" she cried. "I lower my pride to ask you for a loan. And all you can do is to pry into my affairs, instead of lending me a little. You make me sick, May!"

Whites of Eyes Tinged With Yellow? Muddy Complexion? Your Liver is Out of Order!

Mrs. Wm. Bourque, Fox Creek, N. B., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a long time, and was so bad I could not do any work. I had severe pains in my stomach that were so bad, at times, I could hardly stand them. My tongue became coated; I had a bad taste in my mouth, especially in the morning; the whites of my eyes were tinged with yellow, and I had a muddy complexion.

I had read a great deal about

GERMANY ASKS COURT DECISION

Alleges Poles Have Violated Agreement Regarding Upper Silesia.

OTHERS EXPECTED.

GENEVA, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—Appealing to the world court for the first time, Germany is asking for a decision upon the Polish-German agreements regarding Upper Silesia. She alleged that the Poles have violated the economic arrangements and are confiscating rural and industrial properties, contrary to the convention. Germany's action is believed to presage submission to the court of a series of disputes arising out of the Versailles Treaty and other compacts. The decision of the court is unalterable and acceptance is obligatory. This makes the third time the court has been used at a last resort.

BRITISH HOUSE SAT TILL 6 A.M.

All Night Sitting to Discuss the Scottish Poor Law Bill.

ENDED IN ROW.

LONDON, May 21. — (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons rose at six o'clock this morning after an all-night sitting, which at times became stormy. The business at hand was the discussion of the Scottish Poor Law Bill, and this gave the Clydeside members an opportunity to deliver lengthy statements concerning unemployment in Scotland.

The session ended in a row due to the Conservatives charging the Laborites with breaking their agreement with the Government whips that the sitting would not be unduly prolonged. Tempers on both sides rose but the Speaker ordered a closure and the bill was passed.

Path Of City Dog Catcher Beset With Difficulties

A number of difficulties are about the path of the dog-catcher, which is not so rosy as it would seem. Besides the possibilities of a sharp-toothed bulldog or hound objecting personally to being captured, there are certain dog owners who do not appreciate Mr. Ferguson's activities and have threatened physical violence if their dogs are molested. One owner took other steps and went to the pound, where a board on the fence was found to be slightly loose and an exit for the dog was speedily arranged. As the number of the tag has been ascertained, the owner was approached and the dollar fee collected and the catcher was saved the trouble of returning the dog.

Up to the present time, Alderman Phelan has received report that ten dogs have been rounded up since Monday morning.

4.4 BEER MAKES BOW HERE WITH A MINIMUM OF FLURRY AND WITHOUT RUSH TO BUY

None of Expected Line-ups Were Seen at Peterborough Hotels.

PERMITS DELAYED.

Noon Time Business Taxed Staffs and Tables—Opinions Divided.

The long heralded 4.4 made its debut in Peterborough at 8.30 this morning when it went on sale at the Munro House. By nine o'clock the beer could be obtained also at the Windsor House and the Albion in Ashburnham.

Due to the fact that wholesalers were delayed because of the non-arrival of permits the beverage was not obtainable at 7.00, the official opening hour.

Four hotels had permits but no beer and two wholesalers had beer but no permits. The morning mail brought the missing licenses and deliveries were made at once.

There were many dropping in at the various hostelries from time to time wearing an expression of inquiry which quickly changed to one of disappointment when the sad news was conveyed.

However at 8.30 all cravings were satisfied and the three hotels mentioned above are doing a capacity business.

Al Johnston has his beer on draught as well as in bottles and his staff is kept busy supplying the popular demand. Mr. Fisher of the Munro house found that he has to turn in and help as his two assistants could not keep pace with the appetities of the consumers. The whole staff was rushing about, seven tables were occupied to capacity and a roaring trade was going on. At noon there were five waiters busy and a constant stream of thirsty workers passed in, critically tested the beverage, remarked on its goodness or badness according to their opinions, and went off to work.

Mr. O'Toole of the Albion reports that he also is doing a good stroke of business. In fact the industry of the three hotels is considerably greater than it has ever been since O.T.A. came into force.

Mr. Brooks was fortunate enough to get his permit early this morning where as the other wholesale dealers have been forced to wait.

Empress Has Permit

A permit has been received by the Empress hotel but the beer will not be offered for sale till the beverage room is renovated.

Permits have not yet been received by the Montgomery hotel or King's, but as repair operations have not been entirely completed in those places as yet the delay is not so keenly felt.

Mr. King avows that if the permit does not arrive today he will not commence selling 4.4 till Saturday. "I am just superstitious enough not to start anything like that on a Friday," he said.

When business does open up in this hotel, patrons will certainly find ideal surroundings as Mr. King is sparing no effort to have his beverage room beautiful and well equipped.

Opinions Vary

Opinions regarding the new drink are varied as some believe that it is all that could be desired while others are avowedly dissatisfied and deplore the absence of kick.

One said "As far as I can see it's no better than the beer we've had. I've had two bottles and they gave me heart burn."

This would seem to indicate that the liquid was rather potent.

A jovial farmer seated himself at a table and said "Bring on some of that new forty four."

Another made the cryptic remark "Mother's day was a couple of weeks ago; mine's today."

Didn't See the Point

A new joke on the Scotchman has gone the rounds. It appeared that Sandy believed that the alcoholic content would be forty four per cent and he didn't see the point till this morning. Which was tough on Sandy.

A number of gentlemen presumably from the rural sections have made a specia ltrip to the city this morning in order to appraise the value of the beer.

While it is true that a number are drinking the beer today merely for sampling purposes hotel keepers

WAS DEATH OF MANGIN DUE TO POISON BY REDS

"Liberte" Charges That Hero of Verdun Was Poisoned By Bolsheviks.

ORDERED BY MOSCOW.

"The Hour Has Come to Tell the Truth," Says Newspaper Article.

PARIS, May 21. — Late General Charles Mangin was poisoned, probably by the order of Moscow, is the startling charge made by "The Liberte," which begins an article on the subject with "The hour has come to tell the truth."

General Mangin, the hero of the smashing allied attack on Verdun and leader of the first, second and thirty-second divisions in the first important victory on the French, died May 12th.

"Liberte" calls on the government to order a thorough investigation of the circumstances of General Mangin's death.

Philadelphia 7.6, a decrease of 1.8.
Boston 5.1, an increase of 8.
Pittsburg 12.1, a decrease of 1.6.
Newark 6.3, a decrease of 1.
Newark 6.3, a decrease of 1.
St. Louis 21.7, a decrease of 4.4.

ONTARIO'S BIG BEER INAUGURAL IS ANTI-CLIMAX

Even Wet Toronto Failed to Provide Line-ups This Morning.

BORDER QUIET.

TORONTO, May 21.—(Canadian Press).—The four point four beer inaugural in Ontario to-day proved to be very much an anti-climax. There was no line up for the new beverage this morning at any place, even in Toronto, the home of the big wet battalions. Newspaper reporters, accompanied by cameramen, were on hand at the opening to record the rush, but the best obtainable were pictures showing fewer than half a dozen men seated at tables. Early reports from Windsor and Niagara Falls note the absence of the rush from across the border that was promised. One vendor in Niagara Falls did not make a sale before 9.30, and three hotels there up to eleven o'clock hd not sold a single glass. One hotelman said the new beer was dud anyway, and he was sorry he had spent the money on alterations.

No Border Rush.

Later reports from Windsor indicated a show of interest from the Detroit side, but nothing that might be called a rush. The sixteen hotels doing business had plenty of customers, most of them border cities folk.

Reports gathered by the Canadian Press this morning show that a large number of Ontario towns have not yet received permits, and in some cities only the smaller hotels have been authorized yet to begin sale.

This was the case in Ottawa, where the Chateau Laurier and Russel Hotels still await permits. Parry Sound and Gananoque have no permits yet. There are two carloads of beer at Owen Sound, but nobody has authority to sell it. Three hotels, however, are awaiting permits. Galt also was still arid this morning owing to the non-arrival of permits. St. Catharines, Stratford, Kingston, Chatham, Sarnia, Brockville, St. Thomas and other points reported no rush to speak of.

There was a fair crowd of customers assembled at Woodstock by the time the dispensers were able to do business at ten o'clock, permits having arrived by special delivery at that hour.

Opinion as to the quality of the new beverage was much divided, but the balance supports the view that it is an improvement on the 2.5 per cent. stock. A large percentage of men questioned admitted that they were drinking experimentally merely to see what the much advertised beverage was like.

Most Toronto hotels are selling the new beer at ten cents per glass, but a few of the larger places are asking fifteen cents.

Clubs Refused.

It is officially stated that 800 permits have been issued by the Department here. Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, said to-day that about a dozen clubs throughout the province had obtained licenses, but many athletic and recreation clubs applying for same had been refused. It was not proposed, he said, to grant permits to clubs with a dozen members and quartered over a store. Few grocery stores throughout the province are yet handling the new beer.

"For economy's sake I buy a supply and let it age"

—says Mrs. Experience, speaking of the economical use of soap.

"I always keep a good supply of Sunlight Soap on the shelf because I find that Sunlight actually improves with age. It becomes harder and so goes much further.

"With this added economy of lasting longer, I've learned that Sunlight is by far the most economical soap I can buy. The reason is that every particle of Sunlight is pure, cleansing soap—a little of it does a lot of work. Sunlight, you know, is guarar-teed to contain no injurious chemicals or harsh filling materials to make the bar large and hard. These filling materials, of course, are just so much waste as far as cleaning goes.

"To any woman who wants to get real cleaning value out of a soap for her money, I decidedly say, 'Use Sunlight,' and keep a good supply on the shelf." Sunlight is made by Lever Brothers Limited, largest soap-makers in the world.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, May 22.—At a very representative gathering of Liberals for the new Hastings-Peterbrough constituency held here on Wednesday afternoon, a new executive was formed to plan for the expected election.

The representatives so overflowed the committee rooms that Mr. Flynn's residence had to be appropriated for the ladies.

As more delegates arrived the town hall was secured and with much optimism and oratory, representatives from all parts of the riding brought excellent reports.

Some of the delegates noticed were: D. H. Munroe of Warsaw, president of East Peterborough's Liberal Association; Ed. Hawthorne also of Warsaw, ex-Warden and one-time Liberal candidate of East Peterborough, on the banish-the-bar policy; Rev. J. Robb and W. Richmond of Norwood; Ar. Gilroy of Coe Hill; B. O. Sott, John Marshall and W. H. Heath of Stirling; Mr. Alysworth of Madoc, and F. Bapty of Deloro.

These, with the help of others, turned the meeting into a genuine "love feast" of Liberal sentiments, which was interspersed in a free and easy manner by many brand new stories which caused roars of laughter.

Officers Elected.

The officers elected were: President—J. Marshal, Stirling. Secretary—Jas. Legrow, Stirling. Treasurer—F. Bapty, Deloro.

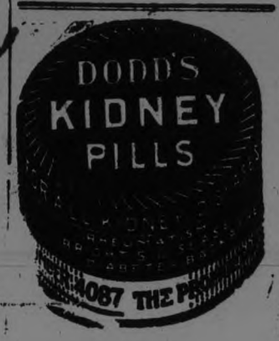
Two vice-presidents for each municipality were elected, of which only a partial list was secured, as follows:

Marmora, W. Flynn, Mrs. (Dr.) Thomson; Rawdon, W. W. Heath, Miss M. Heath; Norwood, Mrs. Lawlor; Deloro, Mr. Paquet, Mr. Crawford; Marmora township, H. Maloney, Mrs. Caverly; Dummer, Dr. Munroe; Madoc, Mr. Childs, Miss Lowe; Havelock, Mr. Curtis; Coe Hill, Mrs. Gilroy.

All the municipilaities were well organized with a good staff of workers.

REFRIGERATOR STOLEN

WINNIPEG, May 22.—(Canadian Press).—Police today are looking for two burglars who invaded a downtown house, and escaped with a refrigerator and all it contained, leaving a sign: "Yes, we will have no ice today."



DETROIT POLICE HOLD CANADIAN

Connected With Murder of Italian on Saturday Night.

SHOT FROM ALLEY.

DETROIT, May 22 (Canadian Press).—Hugh Winslow, 30 years old, of Brantford, Ont., is held by the police here in connection with the murder Saturday night of Joseph Marucci. His assailant fired from an alley. With a bullet through his heart, Marucci staggered a few feet and fell.

Winslow said he met Mrs. Marucci early that night at a downtown intersection, but it was purely accidental. He came to Detroit from Brantford about six weeks ago, he told the detectives who arrested him.

Mrs. Marucci is held as a material witness.

Mrs. Marucci was married when 13 years old, she told the police. Later Marucci was convicted of bigamy, she said, and sentenced to serve 18 months. After his release he followed her to Detroit.

NEW SCHEDULE WAS DRAWN UP

Warkworth Dropped Out of League Due to Lack of Players.

SIX TEAMS LEFT.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, May 22—Every club in the Northumberland Baseball League was represented at the meeting of the executive which was held in the Community Hall last night when President C. W. Varcoe of Roseneath, called the gathering to order. Those present were as follows:

Roseneath — Bart Thackeray and Clifford Leach.

Warkworth—Harry Beswetherick and Harry Zufelt.

Brighton—Gordon Lapp and Dr. E. C. McKee.

Campbellford — Charles Holmes and Alex McGregor.

Frankford—W. J. Hatterick, D. G. Simmons and J. E. Finnegan.

Hastings—C. P. Doughty and C. Runnels.

Warkworth Drops Out

President Varcoe explained that Warkworth had decided to drop out of the league as it was found impossible to secure the requisite number of players. For that reason it had been decided to call a meeting of the executive in order to draw up a new schedule..

On motion of Dr. E. C. McKee the $10 deposit made by Warkworth at the annual meeting was returned to Kory Zufelt who had personally put up the money.

The Schedule Adopted

The following schedule was drawn up and adopted:

May 25—Frankford at Colborne.

May 30—Campbellford at Hastings.

COMMISSION TO PLUMER CAUSES ARAB SURPRISE

Name of Successor to Sir Herbert Samuels Withheld to Last Moment.

OPINION DIVIDED

New Era in History of Jewish Palestine Predicted by Many.

JERUSALEM, May 22 — The news of the appointment Wednesday of Field Marshal Plumer as High Commissioner of Palestine came as a complete surprise to both Arab and Jewish public opinion in the country. Among all the names of candidates mentioned as possible successors to Sir Herbert Samuels, the name of Lord Plumer was withheld until the very last moment. Opinions are divided as to the new high commissioner.

Well-informed political circles state the resignation of Lord Allenby, conqueror of Jerusalem and high Commissioner of Egypt, which was announced the same day as the appointment of Field Marshall Plumer, was made known are closely connected. It is being emphasized that the strategical importance of Palestine in view of the present situation in the Near East, came into the foreground and the cause of the resignation of Lord Allenby, who has had a purely military career, and the appointment of Field Marshal Plumer, who is a military leader, was a strategic as well as political necessity for the "guard on the Suez."

Views are also divided with regard to the results of the new appointment on the provisions of the Palestine mandate to establish a Jewish national home in Palestine. Many declare that a new era will enter in the history of Jewish Palestine with the appointment of Field Marshal Plumer.

FRANCE BLAMED FOR RIFFIAN WAR

Communist Organ Says Poincaire Let Abd-el-Krim Purchase Arms in Paris.

TO BREAK SPAIN.

PARIS, May 22 — (Canadian Press).—France herself is responsible for the war in Morocco, declares the Communist organ, Humanite, by permitting Abd-el-Krim to obtain credit and arms in France. The newspaper, which has been carrying on violent propaganda against the French in Morocco, declares Abd-el-Krim came to Paris in 1923 with Premier Poincaire's knowledge and arranged to get arms with which he fought the Spaniards.

Humanite says the motive for letting Abd-el-Krim arm was to break the Snanish hold in Morocco through Abd-el-Krim, and then break Abd-el-Krim, giving France the complete control of Morocco, including the mines of the Riff.

DURHAM BRANCH OF PROHIBITION UNION CONVENED

Delegates Were Present From Every Municipality in the County.

ELECT OFFICERS

Will Have Pledge Cards Signed so That People Will Forget Party.

MILLBROOK, May 22.—The annual convention of the Durham branch of the Ontario Prohibition Union was held in Orono Town Hall on Wednesday at 1.30 p.m., the retiring President, R. J. Rowe of Newcastle, taking the chair.

Delegates representing the majority of the municipalities in the county were present, and the prevailing spirit was one of determination to further the temperance sentiment and education and obtain definite results along this speucific line throughout the entire riding.

Rev. J. W. Rae of Orono led in the opening prayer and K. E. Courtice, Secretary of the West Durham Association, was appointed Secretary protem.

The Chairman, in his opening address, announced that the annual field day in all the churches of the county would be held on Sunday, May 31, each minister to occupy his own pulpit, make an exchange with a brother pastor or if necessary an outside speaker, provided by the Toronto office, would take the service.

The peculiar importance of the present time, in relation to the temperance situation, was pointed out. Not in twenty-five years have conditions been so critical, nor the questions for consideration been fraught with such tremendous consequences.

However, utter rout and final destruction are the inevitable results of a wrong policy, and though the fight may meet with apparent defeat and be faced with exceptional difficulties, in the end complete victory is assured.

Our neighbors to the south, said the speaker, who have written real prohibition on their statute books, are the greatest influence in promoting the cause of temperance, but the speaker stated he was ashamed of the part our country has played toward the United States in this matter.

Thousands of places will this week be opened for the legal sale of liquor within this Province, in spite of the fact that over thirty thousand of a majority of the electors expressed their wish that no such legislation be enacted. "Either the Ferguson Government is ignorant or it is playing into the hands of the liquor people. The Premier promised a liquor policy that would please both wets and drys, but it cannot be done. The United States has made it clear that the first person bringing a bottle of the new beer across the line will be arrested. Our objective is to retire into private life every member of the Legislature who voted to sanction the return of liquor to Ontario."

Demand a Pledge.

The Chairman also suggested the policy of demanding a pledge from each candidate offering himself for re-election to support temperance legislation irrespective of party, and that every candidate's record regarding the keeping of former pledges be thoroughly looked into before the prohibition voters cast their ballots in his favor. "That we may conserve the fruits of the labors of the past fifty years for the good of our Province."

Following the recent redistribution bill the ridings of East and West Durham are now one politically, and on motion of Rev. G. S. Gervan, Millbrook, and J. Percy, Bowmanville, it was decided that the two ridings be formed into one for purposes of organization, one county executive, instead of two, being responsible for the carrying on of the work.

After considerable discussion as to the personnel of the executive, the Chairman named the following committee to prepare a slate and present it to the meeting for ratification: J. Percy, Bowmanville; F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope; A. Knox, Orono; A. Colwell, Newcastle; Rev. R. T. Richards, Cavan.

Fifteen minutes recess was granted while the committee was out to enable delegates to become acquainted with each other or discuss some business item in district groups if desirable.

New Officers.

The list of officers is: President, R. J. Rowe, Newcastle; Vice-Presidents, P. H. L. Quinn, Bowmanville, and F. W. Galbraith, Port Hope; Secretary, Kenneth E. Courtice, Courtice; Treasurer, B. Oliver, Port Hope. The latter resigned and W. Jakeman, Bethany, was appointed in his place.

Vice-Presidents for each municipality are: Bowmanville, John Percy; Darlington, R. J. McKessock; Cartwright, Jas. Marlow; Clarke, Andrew Knox; Newcastle, Dr. Corbin; Port Hope, H. Fulford; Cavan, T. W. McIndoo; Manvers, William Lee; Millbrook, Geo. E. Burnham; Hope, H. Lawson.

It was moved by Messrs. Gervan and Galbraith that the Secretaries of the East Durham and West Durham Associations give a brief outline of the organization effected and work done during the last plebiscite campaign.

Riding Reports.

claimed any of the credit for the excellent results obtained in the

Rev. R. T. Richards modestly disclaimed east section of the county when a majority of 1,661 was rolled up in favor of the retention of the O.T.A. Every constituency was well organized, and polling subdivisions at first considered unfavorable gave majorities supporting the Act. Only in three polls in Port Hope was there an adverse majority, and even in that town the expected majority in the wets' favor of two or three hundred votes was reduced to but thirty-six.

"I believe we should organize now, so when the opportunity comes, whether in Dominion, Provincial or municipal elections, our county will ring the changes through on the temperance question," he said.

A. Knox, Orono, stated that all the municipalities in West Durham "measured up with their old-time majorities," and introduced the question of adopting the voters' pledge suggested by the Ontario Prohibition Union. He believed it was not possible to take for granted that a candidate for either the Federal or Provincial House was temperance in principle.

"We can't trust any man who isn't an out-and-out prohibitionist, and we want to create a block of voters that will scare the life out of any candidate who goes against them. Along any other line we will not interfere with party politics, but this question whether Ontario is to be permanently dry must be settled once for all."

A very animated discussion was precipated by the motion of Rev. C. C. Washington (Courtice) and Rev. G. S. Gervan (Millbrook), "That this convention endorse the use of the pledge cards, prepared by the Prohibition Union, throughout the riding.

Pledge Cards.

By request Mr. Washington explained that such cards (the signing of which makes one automatically a member of the Ontario Prohibition Union) have on one side the promise to endorse the principles of the O.P.U., and on the reverse side a statement that the signee is in favor of total prohibition, and subscribes to the necessity of not supporting any man not pledged to freedom from his party on the temperance issue and to the support of the cause of temperance when such questions come before the Government,

Each candidate should be challenged: "Will you give us a pledge to support temperance legislation? And it will also be necessary to see that each municipality is lined up in support of the temperance candidate."

The motion finally carried, and the convention proceeded to discuss the method of raising the $600.00 assessment placed on the county by the Prohibition Union. This amount is to be raised annually and a stated sum will be alloted to each municipality sufficiently large to permit a working balance being in the Treasurer's hands to meet current expenses after the initial levy is remitted to Toronto.

Final arrangements were made in connection with the field day on May 31, when it is possible the canvass to secure signatures to the pledge cards may be begun. No membership fee is to be collected when the cards are signed. The excutive will be responsible for having a sufficient quantity of the cards on hand at each church by that date.

Rev. J. U. Robbins of Bowmanville dismissed the gathering with the benediction.

PETERBORO KNOWN AROUND THE GLOBE

City's Manufacturers Break the Bounds of City Limits With Their Wares.

Peterborough, on the map, has an area of 2,850 acres The moment a citizen, or a visitor, steps across the surrounding boundaries, he is in other territory. This sounds like a very circumscribed area, and physically it is so, but Peterborough, through its industries, extends to nearly every part of the civilized globe, and the name is known to thousands in many climes who look for the trademark bearing the name of the city. They have never seen Peterborough, and never will, but they know it for the goods it manufactures. And so the boundary of the city cannot be set around these 2,850 acres.

The Made in Peterborough Exhibition that opens a week from next Monday will give citizens some idea of the far-flung operations of Peterborough mnufacturers, and of the goods which have made this city known so well.

These exhibits will show, as no letterpress or pictures could show, the influence on Peterborough in the industrial activities of the world.

A. BRETHEN'S RECENT SPEECH IN DEBATE ON DOMINION BUDGET

printed from the House of Commons Debates Official Report.

WHAT IS WRONG?

Member For East Peterborough Says There is Lack of Team Work.

Mr. G. A. Brethen (East Peterborough): Mr. Speaker, I have listened with much pleasure to the address which has just been delivered. It stands out very brilliantly in comparison with much of the partisan debate that we have heard so far. I will try to follow the ideal set by the hon. gentleman and in doing so will endeavour to speak without prejudice, actuated by the sole desire to examine the question "What is wrong with Canada?" and if possible suggest an answer.

Canada is so diversified in its interests and outlook that no solution can be arrived at unless a spirit of sympathy and genuine co-operation holds sway, linking such co-operation between the different units that make up the Canadian commonwealth and between the different classes in each community any evil policy is certain to fail. Enjoying such sympathy and co-operation I believe that under almost any fiscal policy Canada is certain to succeed.

"What is wrong with Canada?" In answering this question I would say a lack of team work: an attitude of pulling apart rather than one of pulling together: lack of sympathy and understanding between rural and urban interests within the community, and a prevalence of sectional interests within Canada herself. What is the remedy for this condition? Some few years ago when the thought laid hold of the people of Canada that the Canadian National Railways were our railways, that we the people of Canada were vitally interested in their success or failure, things began to happen to the Canadian National Railway—it gained the greatest asset instrumental to the success of any organization, the good will of the people. So with the industrial and commercial life of this country. Let the people feel that Canadian industries are our industries, that Canadian farms are our farms that the interests of both are immutably joined together, that one cannot succeed if the other fail, and that both are worth saving. When the people of Canada are actuated by such a feeling, Canada as a whole will move forward. In this connection the Farmers Advocate of April 16, last, under the editorial "The same road and the same gait" has this to say:

Capitalists, manufacturers, tradesmen, labour and urban people generally were never more convinced than now that poverty and prosperity are closely associated with the economic status and well being of the farmer. It has taken more than words and oratory to make the lesson understood. Only decreased sales, lack of employment and a general slowing down of business could persuade the other classes of people that whether they like it or not they will have to keep step with the farmer.

What is throttling the life of some of our Canadian industries to-day? Lack of sales. With increased sales follows increased production, lower overhead costs and, with efficient management, more profitable returns. Develop in Canada the morale that will boost the purchase of Canadian products. That does not mean to apply only in a limited sense to made-in-Canada boots and shoes, hats and caps and farm implements, but just as truly to Canadian eggs and cheese, butter and bacon, apples and fish. Let Canada do her best along these lines, and such a revival in trade will result as will make every legitimate industry in Canada as busy as a Canadian beaver.

The heart of the Canadian people is sound. What stands in the way of this much-to-be-desired condition? A cloud of misunderstanding seems to exist in the minds of some people that, given the privilege to enforce a system of still higher taxation upon the consumers of this country that industry and Canada as a whole will prosper. Such a system will always be resented by the people taxed. Such a system will always prove a barrier to that bond of sympathy and co-operation that would ensure maximum sales within the country. When you tax the over-burdened taxpayer of East Peterborough on the implements he uses and the clothes he wears, to give the benefit of such tax to some gentleman in Toronto or Montreal, you do not add to the taxable wealth of Canada. You do hamper and prevent the just and equitable distribution of such wealth.

The United States of America has often been referred to in this debate because of the success it has attained, supposedly to the policy of protection. Mr. Coolidge, making his maiden speech in Washington on December 6, 1923, has this to say regarding United States agriculture, then and still in a deplorable state of distress:

No complicated scheme of relief, no plan for government fixing of prices, no resort to the public treasury will be of any permanent value in establishing agriculture. Simple and direct methods put in operation by the farmer himself are the only real sources for restoration.

If such words were true of agriculture in 1923, have they not been proven equally true to-day? The American farmer was hoodwinded, or hoodwinked himself, into believing that high protective tariffs would alleviate his conditions. Apparently the very reverse has been true, and he is compelled, as have farmers in Canada, to fall back on simple and direct methods of organization and co-operative marketing.

But if the statement of President Coolidge is correct concerning agriculture, is it not equally true of industry? In Canada we have the spectacle of some industrial concerns, notably the binder twine industry of Brantford, working under simple and direct methods, put in operation by the industry itself, and buying their raw materials in the open markets of the world, working overtime, expanding its operations to the point where it is acknowledged to be the greatest of its kind in the British Empire, and is paying regular dividends to its shareholders. Side by side with this industry in the city of Brantrfd, we have other industries enjoying special privilege in the sale of their products and given practically free trade in the purchase of their raw material. Yet according to my hon. friends to my right, these industries are closed or in a very unhealthy condition.

What conclusions can we draw from such a situation?

1. That altogether too much emphasis has been placed upon the effect of the changes made in our tariff during the past two or three years. These changes averaging between one and two per cent are so insignificant that they could not possibly be responsible for either the good effects claimed by the government or the bad effects claimed just as vigorously by the opposition.

2. That the real cause—and admitted so by the representatives of industry themselves—is lack of sales.

I remember during the past year that in our caucus room we met representatives of the implement manufacturers of Brantford and they proceeded to place the industrial situation in Brantford before us. They made the statement that many factories were closed, and I asked one of the gentlemen, the spokesman of the party, "Are all the factories in Brantford in that condition?" And he said, "No, there is a binder twine industry, for instance, that is working night and day." But, he said, "Of course they have a good sale for their product." I said, "Is the question, then not one of lack of sales in all these industries?" And he admitted that it was. Well then would the proposed increase in the protective tariff alleviate or would it aggravate that situation? Would charging a higher price enable them to sell more, to increase their sales, or would it not? There was no answer to that question.

Now just on the side, in leaving that meeting I was informed by a gentleman from the city of Brantford that the spokesman of that party started in some years ago—and he was still a man in his prime—with practically nothing and had recently sold out a one-half interest in his business for half a million dollars. He claimed that he got very little assistance from the protective tariff, that he did not use the tariff to fix his prices in any way, and yet he had made good in his particular industry in Brantford.

Developing this conclusion that the problem is one of lack of sales I will go further and state that I do not believe the increased tariff imposed by the United States against Canada and the world helped very materially in bringing about conditions in that country, as they exist to-day. I admit it hurt us by dislocating our trade, but it certainly did not benefit the American farmers, and I repeat that I seriously question if industry in the United States reaped any material gain. We are accustomed to this argument advanced by some hon. members; "The United States has a high protective tariff: the United States is prosperous; therefore high protective tariffs bring prosperity." But here I would like to remind my hon. members that during the past winter in the highly industrialized city of Detroit the Ford motor plant, one of the most highly financed, highly organized and efficiently managed industrial concerns in the world, was running, but three days a week and thousands of unemployed were almost on the bread line.

Conditions in the United States have, by way of comparison with those in Canada, entered so frequently into the discussions in this House that I will be pardoned if I refer to them. From first hand information received through personal interviews with people across the line, real estate dealers, bankers, contractors, workers in motor plants and allied industries, I have drawn the conclusion that the happy conditions in the United States we so often hear about from our friends to the right are due, not to highly protective tariff, but to the following reasons:

1. To the tremendous financial advantage gained by the United States by her late entry into the world war.

2. To a commendable reduction of some $5,000,000,000 in taxation during the past four years.

3. To an immense building boom—suspended during the war period—of some $5,000,000,000 or $6,000,000,000 spread over the cities of the central and northern states.

4. To a system of financing the very reverse of that practised in Canada, whereby credit instead of cash sales are encouraged. Fully 90 per cent, I believe, of the sales in real estate and business contracts, in fact, almost every commercial transaction is performed on the basis of a cash payment down of 10, 15 or 20 per cent, with the balance on paper.

5. To the fact that apparently everybody in the big cities, the real estate dealer, banker, doctor, lawyer, worker in the factory, even the nurse in the hospital, subscribes to this financial practice.

Thursday, April 30, 1925.

Mr. Brethen: Mr. Speaker, yesterday I referred to the lack of team work and the need of better understanding among the many elements in Canada. When the House rose I was dealing with the argument advanced by some hon. members thus: The United States has high protective duties, the United States is prosperous, therefore high protective duties bring prosperity. In this connection I referred to the situation during the past winter in the highly industrialized city of Detroit, where the Ford motor plant was running but three days a week, and thousands of unemployed were almost on the bread line.

Referring to conditions in the United States and Canada I drew the conclusion from personal interviews with residents of the United States that the happy conditions there that we so often hear about were due not so much to a highly protective tariff as to certain other factors, namely: the tremendous financial advantage gained by the United States by her late entry into the World War; the commendable reduction of some five million dollars in taxation; the immense building boom suspended during the war period and running up to some five or six billions of dollars; also to their system of financing, the very reverse of that practised in Canada, whereby credit instead of cash sales is encouraged. Fully ninety per cent, I believe, of the sales in real estate as well as business contracts, indeed almost every commercial transaction is performed on the basis of a small cash payment down—ten, fifteen or twenty per cent—and the balance on paper. Further, there is the fact that apparently everybody in the big cities, doctors, lawyers, workers in the factories, and even nurses in the hospitals, subscribed to this financial practice.

The nature of practically every commercial transaction in the big industrial cities in the United States is well illustrated by this familiar example. A purchaser in the city of Detroit can go into the shop of a Ford dealer, pay $12.50 down and promise to pay 5 a week, and drive out a fully equipped Ford car. Such a system in the final analysis is costly, wasteful, and vicious to the country at large. As the inevitable result we find the big industrial cities of the United States in the very midst of an inflated condition, with the rural districts experiencing a corresponding depression, due to the inflated values of everything the farmer has to buy and to world market prices for everything he has to sell. In other words, the big industrial districts of the United States, which have attracted so many of the best of our young manhood during the past few years, are experiencing a situation very similar to that experienced in western Canada some years ago—unbounded optimism, easy credit, inflated land values, immigration pouring into the country, and men and women in every walk of life leaving the beaten paths of stable industry in an effort to get rich quick and at any cost—all the earmarks of seeming prosperity.

I will not attempt to refresh the minds of hon. gentlemen of this House with what ultimately followed such a financial practice, the results are too vividly in the minds of our people to be easily forgotten. Is such a system of finance sound? Is this the system that we are asked to strive for, to emulate? Given the same or similar premises, similar results are certain to follow, and with mathematical precision. If the industrial centres of the United States do not soon take stock, cease their fictitious trading with one another, and build on the more permanent basis of the stable prosperity of the country as a whole, then should any serious deflation occur, and it [illegible] United States, the [illegible] we experience [illegible] some years ago with [illegible] divided against itself cannot [illegible] Great Britain the United States of America, the Dominion of Canada, France or any other country cannot go forward to permanent prosperity unless as a united people—united we stand, divided we fall. Developing this thought further, the Farmer's Advocate editorially says:

A movement is on foot in the United States to bring about a better understanding between industry and agriculture and conferences with this end in view are held from time to time. The organizers look at it in this light: "Better results mean better times for manufacturers; better markets for farmers, better times for farmers; better markets for manufactured goods, better employment for labour." It is realized on every hand that the first step in the right direction is a "better understanding."

And that applies as well to Canada as it does to the United States. It goes on:

There is too much meaningless criticism offered in place of constructive suggestion, while both industry and agriculture are often the victims of demagogic attacks that are sometimes not even correct in theory. Considering the lack of understanding between classes and industries, between rural and urban people, and between labour and employer, it is remarkable that so much progress has actually been made

Is it not time that the various organizations representing agriculture, manufacturing, finance and labour held fewer meetings by themselves and took a little time off to get acquainted with the other fellow's viewpoint and the other fellow's conditions?

As showing the need of a better working understanding, among this great family, the Canadian people, I am reminded of the story of a young man whose trousers were too long. He went to mother and requested her to shorten them, but mother was too busy. He went to sister. Sister was too busy. Thrown upon his own resources, he decided to do the job himself. He took a generous slice off each leg, and hung the pants away for Sunday. Later mother regretted that she had not acceded to his request, and she also took a slice off the already diminished trousers. Sister's conscience bothered her and she repeated the operation, and when the young man on Sunday glanced ruefully at the abbreviated pants he remarked, "What this family needs is less operation, and more co-operation."

The politicians of France and the United States are putting everything they have in the way of indications of prosperity in the front shop window. Great Britain is plugging away in the background, but still going down to the sea in ships. Canada is divided. Some of us are working earnestly to bring about permanent prosperity on the basis of "equal opportunities to all and special privileges to none," while others are just busying themselves flashing 4-4 beer in the window or sulking in the cellar of pessimism. Is it any wonder that our Canadian boys turn from this drab picture of steady Canadian progress to the flashy picture of American boom and bustle and seeming prosperity?

But why should we be downhearted? The pound sterling is crowding the top perch with the American eagle. The Canadian dollar is at par, and John Bull and Jack Canuck, with the earnest patriotic support of every Canadian citizen, will some how paddle through.

How can we help to bring about happier conditions in Canada? By taking a few leaves from the book of our friends to the South. Put some of Canada's real assets to the fore. In this connection I should like to pay a compliment to the hon. member for Muskoka (Mr. Hammell) who refusing the other night, to be led aside into mere partisan debate, proceeded to put before this House and the world the revenue producing possibilities of the tourist traffic of Canada. We are all acquainted with the importance of the Swiss watch industry—everybody has heard of the Swiss watch a great industry. But when compared to the tourist traffic of Switzerland the relation is $15,000,000 for the watch industry to $300,000,000 for the tourist traffic. Of course the Swiss people are a sane, frugal, efficient people. A story is told by a traveller of Swiss efficiency. When up among the mountains in that country one day, he came to a herdsman's cottage. Through the open door he saw the mother in the home with a book from which she was singing, in one hand, the other hand working a churn, and her foot rocking the cradle; and as the traveller looked into that window he soliloquized "What an illustration of efficiency; mind, eye, voice, hands and feet all working." But to his amazement when the woman in reply to his summons left her chair he saw she also had been pressing a Swiss cheese. I repeat, let us put the assets, the real assets, of Canada to the fore; put them in the front shop window. Let us tell our wealthy American friends who annually spend hundreds of millions of dollars in sightseeing the world about this wonderful country at their very doors; about our sparkling lakes and rivers filled with the gamest, sportiest fish in all the world; its ease of access by railroad, by motor, and launch through scenery unsurpassed; about her snow-capped mountains, crystal streams, and hidden lakes which I have heard world travelled Americans describe as unsurpassed even by the Alps themselves. Here is a source of revenue whose fringe has scarcely been touched. I will support a largely increased expenditure for development here. Let us tell the world about our fertile fields, an empire in extent; our No. 1 Northern that commands a premium on any market; about the wealth of our forests, our fisheries and minerals. Let us tell them about our wonderful water powers developed and undeveloped, and how they operate the wheels of industry; about our sturdy, reliable Canadian workers; our stable system of financing and sound economic practices in commercial transactions. We have been knocking Canada before the world long enough: let us boost some.

Let us take another leaf from the book of our American neighbour: Reduction of Federal taxation. By a system of economies in small things as well as by eliminating expensive duplications in the service the United States has been able to reduce her federal tax from $54 to $27 annually. Since the war the United States has reduced her debt by over five billions.

How has this been accomplished? By old fashioned thrift, actually saving the pennies rather than talking about saving the millions: By co-ordination in the public service. To illustrate what can be accomplished here I should like to refer to the situation when President Coolidge became governor of the state of Massachusetts. When he entered that office he found departments which aggregated 118 in number. He was successful in getting a bill through the legislature which allowed a reduction of not more than 20 and was given three years to do it in. The number was reduced to 18, and the thing seemingly impossible was actually accomplished in less than one year. Friends and enemies alike, said, "This is the death knell of your political future. These disgruntled partisans that have been turned out of office will spell your defeat." He came into office as governor of Massachusetts with the majority of 17,000 and was returned with a majority of 125,000, proving that, the great mass of the people, will support any government htat has the moral courage to attack and correct this duplication and wasteful expenditure in the public service. Reduction of taxation by avoiding every unnecessary expenditure. How this may be brought about is well illustrated by the inaugural ceremony that has recently taken place at Washington. Formerly the outlay upon such occasions amounted to about $100,000. This year it cost but $5,000. This saving may not have pleased the elite at Washington, but looked good to the people who pay the taxes. President Coolidge has this to say:

"I am interested in this policy of economy not because I want to save money but because I want to save people."

Another saving was effected through the creation of the Bureau of the Budget. This was referred to yesterday by the hon. member for West Lambton (Mr. LeSueur) in detail, and I take this opportunity of again congratulating that hon. gentleman upon his contribution to the debate. General Lord, who succeeded General Dawes as the director of the budget at Washington, has this to say: "Little or no saving was achieved in the public service prior to the budget." Since its inception the government has been enabled to reduce taxation some two billion dollars annually according to President Coolidge's statement in Washington, on January 26.

Reduction in taxation, federal, provincial and municipal, can only be accomplished when the government receives the whole-hearted support of the individual elector. The people can no longer reasonably expect to continue to receive lavish expenditures for public services from the government, and at the same time enjoy any drastic reduction in taxation. It can't be done! I know of no surer way of bringing this home to the people than by the practice of refusing every request for the expenditure of public money that cannot be ear-marked "solely in the public interest." "Resolve every doubt in favor of the taxpayer." New post offices such as the one referred to by the hon. member for Yale (Mr. Stirling) at Penticton, or the building of a wharf similar to the one at Belle River, whose existence was dependent solely on the return of a government supporter, would not be considered legitimate under this policy.

I have no personal grievance with anyone in the civil service, and any words I have to say concerning that service will be directed against the policy and not against the individuals. I would suggest, in order to reduce taxation, a vigorous cutting-down of the civil service. This would not be a popular movement right here in Ottawa, but the government that had the moral backbone to effect such an economy would have the lasting gratitude of the people of Canada. The most effective way to accomplish such a reduction would be to remove the "haven of rest" idea with which the service is enveloped and place the service on a business basis. Lengthen the hours in the inside service from an average of less than six hours a day to a commercial eight-hour day. I believe by this means a real saving of possibly $10,000,000 annually can be made. The departments would not suffer any in efficiency, and such economy in the public service would be appreciated by the over-burdened tax-payer who works eight, ten, twelve or fourteen hours a day. If such action interferes with any section of the Civil Service Act I would scrap or amend that section. The Civil Service Act was made for man and not man for the Act.

Another suggestion would be the co-ordination of the departments. Will any hon. member offer any serious objection to the uniting, say, of the office of Solicitor General with that of the Minister of Justice? In a little by-play in the debate the other day we learned that one of the best arguments for retaining the office of Solicitor General was that the now right hon. leader of the opposition (Mr. Meighen) at one time filled the office very ably. After the practical demonstration given by the sixty-seven-year-young Minister of Railways (Mr. Graham) in administering three departments, and acting as premier simultaneously, why should we be nervous if a $14,000 per year minister were entrusted with the combined offices of say Secretary of State and National Defence or Trade and Commerce? Great savings were accomplished in the United States along these lines. The people of Canada will appreciate a saving here.

I have never been very critical of the Senate, believing that with some minor reforms the upper house could well serve a very useful purpose. After a larger acquaintance with the working of parliament, with all due respect to the hon. gentlemen of that august body I am frank to admit, however, I am a convert to the idea of abolition. At present the good services that might be performed by the Senate in initiating good legislation and checking ill-advised legislation are largely offset by the practice of the elected representatives of the people in the house as a smoke screen behind which they may hide in dealing with questions that may be of peculiarly lively interest to certain sections of our people. I believe every hon. gentleman now adorning the Red Chamber whose ability and physical condition would permit

DANGER CAUSED BY CLOSED CARS

Drivers Do Not Realize Extra Hazard From Unfamiliarity.

WILL DECREASE

Misuse of closed cars and unfamiliarity with the rules of safety for the new "closed car era" are declared to be an unrecognized cause of many automobile accidents, according to a bulletin just issued by the Ontario Motor League.

In the opinion of Ontario Motor League officials, accidents will decrease as soon as the motoring public learns to operate closed cars more safely and at the same time revises its ideas of caution to fit the new conditions.

Coming at a time when the auto industry is preparing to meet an unprecedented spring demand for closed cars, which are becoming more and more popular, the Ontario Motor League bulletin is expected to be the subject of considerable thought and discussion among safety advocates who are said to have overlooked the significance of the public changeover from the open car to that of the inclosed type.

"A leading cause of the high automobile accident rate," the Ontario Motor League paper states, "is the failure of the average driver to recognize the new type of caution necessary with the new type of motoring.

"Accidents will be on the decrease as soon as the public learns to operate closed cars more safely. At present, hundreds of thousands of drivers are misusing their closed cars and ignoring the new rules of safety that go with the new type of motoring. As a matter of fact, they do not appreciate the fact that the new rules are necessary.

"They have gone suddenly from their open models to their closed cars without appreciating the new type of danger that is always associated with anything one is not familiar with. They feel that what they have learned with regard to safety in its connection with open car driving will suffice for their new type of motoring. They allow this ignorance to win for them the reputation of being careless.

"Visibility in closed cars is actually better than in curtained open cars, but the closed car's shortcomings are of a different kind. The problem is for each driver to discover this difference and act accordingly.

"By taking undue liberties with the advantages of the closed car much of its inherent safety has been nullified. Drivers have felt that because they were shielded against the elements they were immune from danger. Thus we have found thousands of motorists venturing forth in storms that would not take so great a toll of human life if motordom were still on an open car basis.

"Motorists have taken great liberties with the speed which closed cars make possible by reason of their extra weight and their ability to shield against the wind. Many persons are driving far faster than they imagine and are thus unprepared for the dangers which invariably accompany one's ignorance of speed. The Motor League agrees with engineers that highway speeds will be materially higher within a very few years, but such increased speed cannot be safe until drivers are prepared to handle it.

"The landslide to closed cars is in full swing, but accidents will not be materially lessened until the average motorist becomes familiar with his new surroundings."

With a view to familiarize the motorist with these changing conditions and to emphasize the point that it is ignorance more than carelessness that occasions the present high rate of accidents and fatalities, the Ontario Motor League outlines the following suggestions for the average driver who buys a closed car:

"Learn that you may be travelling at a higher rate of speed without realizing it, particularly where the grade is slightly downward. Speed is always a hazard when you are not aware of your actual speed.

"Learn that physical comforts offered by the closed body in adverse weather do not alter the highway hazards. Your hands may be warm, but there may be just as much ice on the road as when you formerly shivered in your open car, or stayed at home.

"Learn that though you can see out better in your closed car than you could through rain curtains the few obstructions to vision, such as the body posts, are at points you are not accustomed to.

"Learn that other drivers in closed cars are usually as unfamiliar with the new conditions as you are, and that the safest plan is always to give a bit to the 'other fellow'."

MEMORIAL SERVICE TO BISHOP REEVE

Tribute By Rev. Walter Cox to Pioneer Anglican Divine.

LAKEFIELD, May 21. — On Sunday evening the service in St. John's church took the form of a memorial service to the late Bishop Reeve, who died last week in Toronto. Hymns appropriate to the occasion were sung both morning and evening.

Rev. Walter Cox took as his text the dying words of our Lord, spoken from the cross, "Father into Thy hands I commend My spirit." William Day Reeve was born in Lincolnshire, England and early in life heard the call of our Lord to service in the mission field. He entered college at the age of 21 and in 1869, sailed for Canada with his wife. Landing at New York they made the long journey to Fort Garry, now Winnipeg, under conditions which tested their courage. From there by waggon and canoe they journeyed till they reached Fort Simpson, taking up work in a parish of 90 thousand square miles. There they worked, often with apparently little success and there a little family grew up around them. Service and sacrifice for Christ and the church was their portion for many years. For two years they lived entirely upon fish, with a few potatoes; bread was a treat for Sunday only. On at least one occasion he travelled 320 miles to and from seeing a sick parishoner, and on his return found his wife nursing ten children who had fallen ill. Later they removed from Ft. Simpson to Ft. Chipeywan, which lay further south. Bishop Reeve was consecrated Bishop and succeeded that great "herald of the Cross," Bishop Bompas, who gave his life to the great work among the Indians and Eskimos of the far north. There are now three dioceses in that diocese where Bishop Reeve worked so long and so faithfully and there will shortly be a fourth.

He finally moved to Toronto, where in recognition of his wonderful work he was made assistant to Archbishop Sweatman and for the past fifteen years he has been the assistant of Bishop Sweeny. He made several visits to this parish on the occasions of confirmations and his upright form, clear voice and benign presence were beloved by all. We can hear in our hearts his beautiful voice singing alternate verses of the familiar confirmation hymn, "Come Holy Ghost, our souls inspire."

His funeral service was as he desired it, simple and without any oratorical tribute. The beautiful words of the burial service were read by the Archbishop of Algoma, himself well stricken in years and loyal service to his God.

This wonderful life of Bisho Reeve is not ended, but is goin on in the wider sphere which open to us after death and which knows not time. We can think of God's voice saying, "Well done thou good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy reward."

PRISONER FREE OF KIDNAPPING

Strange Tale Unfolded By Ex-Convict Brings Not Guilty Verdict.

WAS HUNTED MAN.

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., May 22.—Earl Woodward, who only four weeks ago was hunted through the Vermont hills by armed posses as the kidnapper of 11-year-old Lucille Chatterton, of Granville, yesterday walked from Addicon county court free, while the crowd in the court room cheered. From the beginning Woodward, former convict, contended that he took the child from the farm on which he was employed so that she might have opportunity for education and advancement, not possible among the crowded conditions in the lonely farm home which housed seven other children.

On the night of Friday, April 24, word came out of the little Vermont backwoods town of Granville that Earl Woodward, 27, an ex-convict, had kidnapped Lucille Chatterton, 11, daughter of Walter Chatterton, on whose farm Woodward was employed.

From that moment until the following Friday at dawn, there followed a man-hunt unparalleled in the history of New England.

Feared for Lives.

Hundreds of armed Vermont hill-folk, augmented by 125 crack cavalary cadets from Norwich University, at Northfield, scoured the deeply wooded hills of central Vermont to bring back Lucille Chatterton alive, and Earl Woodward "dead or alive."

For six and one-half days the search continued, with Walter Chatterton, the father, always well up in the van, openly avowing death to Woodward on sight. He had taken the ex-convict into his home when Woodward was released from Windsor State Prison, and felt he had been betrayed by the man he had befriended. Fear for the life of Lucille was generally expressed, as she had left home suffering with a heavy cold. Woodward was known to have left the Chatterton farm with a rifle and a supply of ammunition in his possession.

On the sixth day of the hunt, George Jerd, keeper of an antique store at Randolph, Vt., sighted the pair, and shot at Woodward twice. Woodward and the girl, to Jerd's amazement, dashed back into the woods together. He then noted that Lucille made no effort to escape from her supposed desperate companion.

About an hour later, other searchers came upon two blankets and a supply of food, cached in the town of Brookfield, 10 miles from Granville. This later proved to belong to Woodward and the girl.

Dog Secured Trail.

That night it rained hard, driving to cover the bulk of the searchers. At 4 a.m. the next morning, however, Jerd, with Ray L. Chase, of Randolph, and Winfield Dubois, a veteran guide, with "Decka," a German police dog, struck off into the woods west of Brookfield.

Shortly after the sun came up "Decke" picked up the trail of the hunted man on Brookfield Mountain, and led the three searchers to an old barn on the top of the mountain. There, sleeping in a hayloft, Lucille Chatterton and Earl Woodward were found.

From that moment, Earl Woodward, the "kidnapper," became Earl Woodward, the protector of Lucille Chatterton. The girl pleaded with her captors not to let any harm come to Woodward, and declared he had treated her with the utmost kindness.

Jerd, Chase and Dubois placed the pair under arrest, and took them by automobile to Randolph, 10 miles over the mountains. Word of their capture had preceded them, so that when they arrived hundreds of back-woodsmen were on hand to witness their surrender to Attorney-General Frank C. Archibald, High Sheriff George Farr, and Deputy Sheriff E. H. Ford.

But the most incredible part of the backwoods drama was yet to be enacted. With a childishly coherent story of parental abuse and pathetic home life Lucille Chatterton, in the space of a few short minutes, literally expelled from the hearts of hundreds all trace of hatred for Earl Woodward, the ex-convict. There was no outward show of feeling against the man.

Woodward himself corroborated her story, and a physician called in to examine the child pronounced her uninjured in every respect. Woodward and the girl were taken to the county seat at Middlebury. The ex-convict pleaded not guilty to a formal charge of kidnapping, penalty for which in Vermonts is 20 years in prison, $10,000 fine, or both.

Was Ready for Jail.

Lucille Chatterton was placed in the home of Deputy Sheriff Noboe Sanford, warden of Addison county jail, where Woodward was lodged. There she was held pending disposition of the case. While waiting for Woodward to come to trial, the girl was placed in Middlebury grade school, in the fourth grade, although she is 11 years old.

During the entire time Lucille was here, she expressed no desire to return to the home of her father at Granville. Woodward, the ex-convict "kidnaper," declared he was "ready for jail, and would be satisfied if Lucille Chatterton was given a good home and a chance to go to school."

Regardless of his guilt or innocence, Earl Woodward appeared to have accomplished his purpose, as several wealthy Middlebury families made Lucille Chatterton an offer of a permanent home.

NEW YORK, May 22—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. Helen Auguste Geisen Volk, owner of the "baby farm" in East 86th Street, to-day was indicted for first degree manslaughter by the grand jury after an investigation which showed that William Winters, six months old, died in the woman's place after his skull had been fractured. CANADIAN MONEY SPENT FOR THE BENEFIT OF CHICAGO IN REPAIRS TO HARBORS OF THE GREAT LAKES

Hon. Arthur Meighen Suggests Government Should Consider Change

$100,000 AT OSHAWA

Public Works Estimates Reduced $2,000,000 This Year Dr. King Says

OTTAWA, May 23 (Canadian Press).—"This vote might be called a vote to provide water facilities for the City of Chicago," said Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, in the House of Commons Friday afternoon, when a vote of $1,215,875 for harbors and rivers in Ontario was under discussion.

It was an example of the public works Canada was carrying on at a cost of untold millions to provide water for the people of the Chicago district—water which was taken from the Lakes which were common property of the two countries, Mr. Meighen added. It was time for a "show down."

Hon. R. J. Manion (Conservative, Fort William), said that in view of the heavy taxation on the country, the Government might well consider holding up expenditures of public works, as a means to economy.

Hon. Dr. J. H. King, minister of public works, said that generally speaking, the Government was trying to hold together only such works as were already in existence.

Only Necessary Repairs.

But Dr. King did not believe that Canada should "board up the windows" and go out of business altogether. A certain amount of repairing and restoring was necessary in public works. He remarked, by the way, that if the Federal Government was going to take any part in unemployment relief, the construction of essential public works was the obvious way of doing so.

On an item of $2,100 to restore a warehouse at Blind River, Ont., Hon. T. A. Crear (Progressive, Marquette), questioned the propriety of government expenditure on a warehouse for a "private firm."

Several Liberal members took up the discussion and argued that since it was a government venture on government property, it was just as much government business as the restoration of a railway station was railway company's business. There was a good deal of discussion of the point, before the committee adopted that part of the vote.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River), enquired why it was necessary to spend $12,000 for harbor improvements at Cobourg, Ont. Dr. King replied that it was to repair damages caused by decay.

An item for $150,000, covering harbor repairs and improvements at Goderich, Ont., included in the Ontario vote, elicited an inquiry from W. A. Boys (Conservative, Simcoe South) why such extensive improvements were required at this particular lake port. Mr. Boys pointed out that he had absolutely no desire to reflect on Goderich. There were larger lake ports, however, on which very little money was being spent, while there appeared to be an abundance of money to spend on smaller ones.

Dr. King pointed out that there was great activity at this point, especially in the grain trade. The improvements would be of vast advantage to the shippers, and also not only to Goderich, but to the whole Dominion of Canada. He considered the proposed improvements absolutely essential.

Mr. Boys called the attention of the minister of the effect that Collingwood required the expenditure of money for the completion of a breakwater, for the removal of certain obstructions from the channel, and other improvements. The people there were clamoring for this work to be done. Collingwood was a national port and the work would be for the benefit of the whole of the country.

Dr. King pointed out that $20,000 was expended at Collingwood last year, in connection with the breakwater, and $30,000 on dredging.

Effect of Lower Levels.

Turning again to general policy, Mr. Meighen asked if it was not time that the government should consider the whole question of harbor and river improvements in view of the lowering of levels by Chicago.

Engineer Tied Up Line But Saved Two From Fire

EGG HARBOR, N.J., May 23.—Charles Wright, of Camden, engineer of a fast freight on the Philadelphia and Reading, saved Mr. and Mrs. Harris Livingston, of Egg Harbor, from burning to death in their home at 4.30 o'clock yesterday morning.

It was necessary for him to tie up traffic on the Atlantic City division while he went to their rescue.

Passing through the town, he saw flames in the Livingston bungalow. He stopped his train, tied down the whistle to give the alarm and ran to the house.

He forced an entrance by battering down a door. In a bedroom were the Livingstons fast asleep.

He awakened them. They had barely time to flee in their night clothes before the roof fell.

WAR VETERANS TO GREET HAIG

800 Branches of G.W.V.A. Urged to Send Delegates to Convention.

BROADER POLICY.

OTTAWA, May 23. — (Canadian Press).—A call was sent out Friday to more than 800 branches of the Great War Veterans' Association throughout Canada to assemble for the seventh national convention of the association at Ottawa on June 24th continuing for six days. The convention is being held concurrently with the visit of Field Marshal Earl Haig and the conference of the British Empire Service League. Besides the accredited delegates, a general invitation has been extended to veterans to come to Ottawa for the reception to Field Marshal Haig and the Empire visitors.

The G.W.V.A. convention will consider an expansion of its activities on the basis of a clearly defined programme of national service. A general guide to community activities for local branches will also be drafted.

The convention will be asked to formulate a policy on the question of world peace. In view of the continued migration of Canadian veterans to the United States, considerable time will be devoted to the discussion of this problem, as well as the question of immigration generally.

Relations With Alliance.

Future relationships of the G.W.V.A., with other veterans' organizations in Canada will be decided, in view of the recent recommendation of the chairman of the Dominion Veterans' Alliance that the alliance should be dissolved. Members of the G.W.V.A. claim the alliance has been maintained almost entirely by their association for the past three years and that they have done everything possible towards attaining the objective which was to establish unity among war veterans in Canada.

The outcome of soldier legislation now before Parliament will greatly influence the consideration of pension and re-establishment problems, which have taken up the great proportion of time at past conventions.

United States war veteran organizations have been invited to send fraternal delegates to both the G.W.V.A. convention and the British Empire Service League conference.

Peterborough Barrister Is Not In Court Case

The Ozias de La Plante mentioned in the police news yesterday as being arrested on charge of having liquor illegally, is not J. Ozias de Laplante, barrister, of 378 Water street, and 73 Locke St., nor any other local resident of this name, of which there are several.

The accused man is, the police say, a commercial traveller who makes his home here, but travels extensively out of town.

Mr. de Laplante, the well-known Peterboro lawyer, has been and is at present, confined to his bed through illness, and as might have been supposed, had no connection whatever with the police court case.

EXPERTS THINK AMUNDSEN HAS LANDED AT POLE

Continued Absence Gives Rise to Opinion That He Has Found Landing.

LANDING DANGEROUS.

Restart Would Be Even More Hazardous—May Stay a Year.

OSLO, Norway, May 23 (Canadian Press)—The Shipping Gazette reports that weather conditions for Captain Amundsen's polar flight continue very favourable and that there is every hope of the expedition returning safely.

A despatch to the paper says the temperature is mild. The steamer Farm is not in communication with the other expedition vessel, Hobby, as the latter is not equipped with wireless but the members of the crew are confident that Amundsen and his companions will be able to return unharmed.

Those whose arctic experience or other expert knowledge warrants an expression of opinion appeared today to think that Amundsen's contiued absence indicated that he has landed at the Pole or had discovered an intermediate body of land upon which he had descended for closer investigation and more accurate location.

Take a Year

Should Amundsen be obliged to land near the North Pole, Capt. Hansen said he would probably attempt to proceed to Cape Columbia on Grinnell Land, north west of Greenland, and in that event would have to remain there for a year, because the crossing from Capt Columbia to Greenland is over an extremely difficult and dangerous portion of the Arctic seas, with much open water. The journey from the North Pole to Cape Columbia is also most difficult, Captain Hansen said.

An actual landing at the Pole from flying boats would be most dangerous, in Captain Hansen's opinion, and the restart would be still more hazardous. Another prominent Danish Arctic explorer, Peter Freuchen, expressed the opinion that Amundsen would descend if he discovered what seemed to be a good landing at the Pole.

In the event of foggy or cloudy weather, Freuchen said he believed that Amundsen would desire to remain there until the sun came out again so he could make scientific observations and accurately fix his location.

No Visit to Alaska.

NEW YORK, May 23 (Canadian Press).—Captain Amundsen had no intention of returning from his North Pole expedition via Alaska. This statement was made today by Loring Pickering, general manager of the North American Newspaper Alliance, who gave out a cablegram he received on May 4 from the captain bearing on this point, which read: "Despite rumors, under no circumstances do we contemplate continuing our flight into Alaska."

Would Drop Flag.

COPENHAGEN, May 23 (Canadian Press).—Danish Navy Captain Godfred Hansen, companion to Amundsen and second in command of his 1920 Arctic expedition on the sloop Gjoa, today expressed the opinion that Amundsen would not attempt to land at the North Pole, but would drop the Norwegian flag there from his flying boat.

Capt. Hansen said he thinks Amundsen's chances of success depend entirely upon the weather conditions and his gasoline supply.

DEBATE DIMMED REPUTATION OF EARL OF YPRES

His Criticism of Smith-Dorrien's Tactics at Le Cateau Brought Sharp Reply.

IN MONS RETREAT.

British Troops Escaped From Perilous Position Under Von Kluck's Drive.

DEAL, England, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—The death here yesterday of the Earl of Ypres, who as Field Marshal Sir John French was one of the most outstanding figures in the early years of the war with Germany, came at a time when his great reputation was somewhat beclouded by the controversy surrounding his military strategy during the trying months subsequent to the opening of the war. The Earl, who was 73 years old, had been ill since March 19, when he underwent an operation for appendicitis in London.

The controversy concerning the Earl of Ypres has been before the British public particularly since he published his book on the war entitled "1914," which contained much outspoken and adverse criticism of his subordinates and some French Generals, and which did not except Lord Kitchener. The argument has been especially bitter concerning the battle of Le Cateau and General Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien's part therein.

Smith-Dorrien's Defence.

Just about the time of the operation on the Earl of Ypres, Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien published a book of "Memoirs," in which he devotes twelve chapters to the operations in France and makes a spirited defence against the Earl of Ypres' attacks on him in connection with the battle. Le Cateau was an incident that followed closely on the heels of the Battle of Mons, which had been fought August 23, 1914. The British troops in France at that period comprised only four divisions of infantry and one cavalry division, the whole commanded by Sir John French. These were grouped into the 1st and 11th Corps, under the leadership respectively of then Sir Douglas Haig and Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, the latter's formation being made up of The Third and Fifth British Divisions.

The bulk of the fighting on August 23 fell on Smith-Dorrien's corps which was forced back several miles. Late in the afternoon the Commander-in-Chief, Sir John French, heard of the disaster to the French Fifth Army on his right, followed by news of the fall that day of Namur, and he decided on a retreat.

Both the 1st and 11th British Corps were extricated skilfully from the enveloping operation of General Von Kluck, and retired from the vicinity of Mons to the general line of Le Cateau-Cambrai, the pressure from the Germans being maintained. The whole Allied line was then withdrawn and on the evening of August 25, Sir John French had to make the decision whether to continue the retirement next day or fight it out on the Le Cateau-Cambrai line. He decided on the former, and orders were issued accordingly.

Sir Douglas Haig complied with the order, but Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien, whose troops had been severely tried at Mons, and during the subsequent two days of retirement, came to the conclusion shortly after midnight that in view of the fact that many of his troops had only just arrived after over twenty hours of heavy and continuous work and that the enemy were close to his front, it was out of the question to continue his retirement at dawn. He therefore issued orders to fight on the ridge just south of the Le Cateau-Cambrai road.

Retreat Successful.

The battle of Le Cateau began at daybreak with Von Kluck under the belief that the entire British Expeditionary Force were opposed to him. The British positions were heavily shelled and the German infantry attacks became more and more powerful as the day advanced. Confused fighting took place in Le Cateau itself. The withdrawal of the 1st Corps under Sir Douglas Haig had further imperilled Smith-Dorrien's position, and in the midst of the engagement he had to arrive at the decision to break off the fight. This difficult operation was successfully carried out and the British force were able to escape and march swiftly back in the direction of the Somme, towards Ham. Their retreat was practically unmolested. Their losses had been heavy and 38 guns had been captured by the Germans, but by August 28, Smith-Dorrien was able to get all his troops across the Somme in safety.

It is considered a coincidence that only a week ago in a public speech the Earl of Oxford, formerly Herbert H. Asquith, paid tribute to the five great men of the war, Earl Haig, Viscount Jellicoe, Lord Kitchener, General Sir John Cowans and ex-Prime Minister Lloyd George, but made no mention of the Earl of Ypres. This significant omission was much commented upon at the time.

The Earl of Ypres' command of the "Old Contemptibles" as Great Britain's first small expeditionary force to France was known, will, however, always be remembered with gratitude by his countrymen.

RIFF TRIBESMEN ORGANIZED ON LATEST LINES

Strongly Entrenched and Driven Out Only at Point of Bayonet.

FORMIDABLE FOES.

French Position Improved By Successes, But Enemy Is Still Dangerous.

RABAT, French Morocco, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—The Riffian tribesmen are standing their ground stoutly against the forces seeking to oust them from the French zone, and although General Count de Chambrun's success in Thursday's and Friday's operations is unquestioned, Abd-el-Krim and his followers still loom as formidable foes.

French military men at the headquarters here say the Riffians have shown themselves to be thoroughly organized along lines developed during the Great War, and that the French everywhere in de Chambrun's operations captured the enemy's positions only by bayonet charges.

The French columns fell back after revictualling and strengthening a number of posts in the path of the recent advance.

Position Improved.

The situation of the French forces opposing Abd-el-Krim's Riffian tribesmen is reported to have been greatly improved by the brilliant operation in the central sector under the direction of General Count de Chambrun. The operation, the objective of which was to relieve the region of the Upper Ouergha Valley, was participated in by two French columns supported by artillery and aviation. These forces advanced against a desperate resistance from the Riffians, who were established in trenches, and from other numerous contingents which hurried from the north-east and counter-attacked furiously.

Rebels In Flight.

The rebels were put to flight, according to the official French communique, and one tribe which had been won over to Abd-el-Krim by the Moorish leader himself is reported to have submitted to the French.

The fleeing rebels were pursued by airplanes, which are effectively taking the place formerly occupied by cavalry in such operations.

The tribesmen's losses were considerable, the communique declares, while those suffered by the French were "small, considering the effectives engaged."

KURDS ATTACK BRITISH FORCES

Severe Fighting Resulted in Defeat of Kurds By British.

NATIVE SOLDIERS.

BAGDAD, May 23 (Canadian Press).—The British forces in Irak repelled an attack of Kurds on Tuesday, infecting severe casualties, dispatches received here today said. The British cavalry, composed of natives of the mandated territory under the command of British officers, had only slight losses, it was stated.

Intermittent fighting between the troops in the British service and the Kurds has been under way for some time, according to reports here.

CROSS STRUCK FROM ST. JOHN'S IN FIERCE LIGHTNING STORM

Memorial Was Shattered on Church Lawn Eearly This Morning.

LITTLE DAMAGE.

Tulips in Park Riddled By Hail and Few Wires Down.

The fierce storm which swept over Peterborough this morning dismantled the cross from the chancel of St. John's Church and as it fell to the ground, it shattered into many pieces.

It is thought that the cross was broken by lightning, as it has been in position since 1907 and showed no sign of defect from weathering.

Eighteen years ago the stone memorial, about five feet in height and three and a half feet in width, was placed on the chancel at the north of the church as a memorial to the following pastors who had given loyal service to St. John's Church.

The names on the dedication manuscript are:

Mark Burnham.
J. W. R. Beck
Vincent Clementi
P. Clementi Smith
T. B. Angell
E. V. Stevenson
J. C. Davidson

The cross had been cut from sandstone and was mounted on an iron spike. The trefoil design had been used.

Small Other Damage.

Curiously enough little inconvenience has been caused in the city with the possible exception of injury done to plants.

The tulips in Victoria Park are sadly riddled by the hail. Many have been beaten into the ground while the petals of a great number have been stripped from the stems.

The Bell Telephone Company reports that some lines in the rural districts were seriously affected, more particularly around Hastings, but the city has not been seriously affected excepting on the western extremity of the Charlotte Street cables.

Many customers are phoning in the wire department and reporting bad lines.

Escaped Well.

The Hydro reports that while a few lines have been disturbed, the trouble is not nearly as great as might be expected.

Great quantities of earth were carried along by the flood and deposited on the streets, even stones of a considerable size being rolled along with the general debris.

In some localities north of the city, it is reported that the hail lay to a depth of an inch or more and cars were noticed driving in leaving a burden of the icy pellets which gave ample proof of the statement.

ROYAL BANK'S PURCHASE OF THE UNION BANK RECEIVES APPROVAL OF ACTING MINISTER OF FINANCE

Must Be Ratified by Shareholders of Both Banks—Union's Earnings Drop

CUT IN DIVIDEND

Two Union Shares to Be Exchanged for One of Royal

OTTAWA, May 23. — (Canadian Press).—Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, announced last night that he had given his consent to the purchase of the Union Bank of Canada by the Royal Bank of Canada. Before the agreement can finally be approved by the Governor-in-Council, it requires ratification by the shareholders of both banks as provided by the Bank Act. Shareholders of the Union Bank are to receive one share of Royal Bank stock for each two shares of Union Bank stock.

Mr. Robb stated that in asking his consent to the agreement of sale, the directors of the Union Bank had represented that in view of substantially reduced earnings, with no prospect of early improvement, and the difficulty (despite most rigid economies) of curtailing proportionately the cost of operation, they were faced with the necessity of making a drastic cut in the annual dividend, which would result in a substantial drop in the value of the bank's shares and, further, might adversely affect the general standing of the bank. To obviate the possibility of such a serious situation, and in order to protect the shareholders and the public, as well as in the interest of general financing stability, the directors if the Union Bank, after exhaustive consideration, deemed it their wisest course to obtain the consent of the Acting Minister of Finance to a sale to the Royal Bank.

Inasmuch as the head office of the Union Bank is in Winnipeg and as it has more branches in the Middle West than any other bank, the Acting Minister of Finance stated he was glad to be able to announce that the Royal Bank of Canada has given assurance that in future its executive offices in Winnipeg will be made much more important than in the past. More Western directors will be elected and an additional assistant general manager will be appointed, with headquarters at Winnipeg, to take charge of Western business. These changes, taken in conjunction with the large resources of the amalgamated banks, will ensure that general banking facilities to the agricultural and other interests of the Prairie Provinces will not only continue unimpaired but will be greatly augmented.

Minister Fasts Before Opening Cranberry Bog

CARVER, Mass., May 23.—The Rev. C. W. Hidden, Baptist minister of this town, yesterday entered upon a fast preparatory to his dedication of "God's Cranberry Bog" here Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Hidden, who believes he has "the gift of answered prayer," declares it will be impossible for him to accomplish what he desires without preparation upon Biblical lines."

Some time ago the clergyman appealed for some one to donate one of the cranberry bogs, of which this town is the centre, to the service of God. Mrs. Annie Shurtleff Boardway offered a quarter of an acre of her holdings. Another cranberry farmer made a similar proposal.

DEFECTS C.N.R. SYSTEM REMAIN

Thornton Has Failed to Correct Them Because of Political Influence.

ROTARY SPEAKER.

KINGSTON, May 23.—Discussing the question of the suggested amalgamation of the Canadian National Railway with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company before the Kingston Rotary Club Friday, Mr. J. L. Payne, Ottawa, former statistician of the railway department, stated that it was one of the most important problems confronting the Canadian people. Mr. Payne thought amalgamation was feasible, but said in event of its materializing that the eyes should be taken to safeguard the C.P.R., which was the only sound railway system in Canada.

A complete shaking up of the Canadian National system was in order, said the speaker, and he was of the opinion that a corporation could do this better than the Government. Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways had failed to correct the defects of the system, and Mr. Payne felt that the reason was purely political.

The speaker pointed out that if the two roads in Canada were amalgamated there could be no monopoly, as the sanction of the railway board would be required in the charging of rates. Mr. Payne suggested eliminating all parallel lines, reducing the main lines and adding more branches, and wiping out duplicate services and wasteful competition.

ASSOCIATES ON VISIT TO BECK

Hon. J. R. Cook and Hydro Officials Guests of Convalescent Chief.

A FRIENDLY CALL.

LONDON, Ont., May 23.—Further improvement in the condition of Sir Adam Beck made possible his first contact Thursday and Friday with a number of those who have been most closely associated with him, as a result of which Hon. J. R. Cook, an associate of Sir Adam on the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario; W. W. Pope, the Commission's secretary, and F. A. Gaby, the chief engineer, are now guests at Headley, Sir Adam's London home.

It develops that the sojourn of the Hydro party is more a friendly than a business visit, and while it is not doubted that Sir Adam would be interested in hearing how affairs have been carried on, this phase of their stay is purely incidental.

Yesterday Sir Adam personally showed his visitors about the beautiful grounds at Headley, and brought out Melrose, his old favorite hunter; Vulcain, a four year old now reveloping in the Beck stables, and a number of the younger hunters and jumpers which Sir Adam's trainers have in charge.

NO. 4 PETERBORO, ONT. NO CENTS

ONE WEEK FROM TO-DAY THE EXHIBITS for the Made-in-Peterboro Fair will be placed in position, so that everything will be in readiness for the doors to be thrown open Monday, June 1st. This is going to be not only the largest affair of the kind that Peterboro has ever witnessed, but will be one of the largest and most attractive ever held in this Province. The advance sale of tickets, backed by the popular young ladies, who are devoting their energies to it, is going like wild-fire and is being generously supported by the public. Mr. Crowe, the popular manager of the Capitol Theatre, has made himself still more popular by promising to give a one month's pass to all those who, at the close of the contest, have 100,000 votes or more to their credit. This is something to work for. It would be impossible for all to win the three grand prizes, but every contestant would have a chance for a month's free admission to the Capitol Theatre. Much time, energy and hard work is being put out by those who are behind the Made-in-Peterboro Fair, and it is shaping up toward a big success.

HASTINGS PLANING MILL LOST AND A DWELLING DESTROYED IN SEVERE LIGHTNING STORM

Many Buildings Threatened in Strong Wind—Fire Fighters Busy.

OTHERS STRUCK.

Trees and Telephone Poles Caught By Blaze and Partly Burned.

Lightning struck Doxsee Bros. planing mill during a severe electrical storm that passed over the village on Friday evening and Saturday morning, causing a disastrous fire. The planing mills are completely destroyed. A strong direct east wind was blowing and the home of Jack Daynard, next to the mills, was also destroyed. The fire engine and brigade and many fire fighters were on hand, but the buildings surrounding the planing mills were also destroyed, and some of the lumber pile. Mr. Daynard's furniture was saved, but all the buildings including hen house and meat house were lost. Streams of water were steadily plied on the nearby buildings which were in great danger. Trees and nearby telephone posts were also caught by the blaze and partly destroyed. The electric storm broke over the village about 8 o'clock and continued to rumble until 1.30 this morning, when it began in renewed severity.

During the storm the home of R. C. Doxsee on Bridge Street was struck by lightning and no ignition was caused.

The storm broke severely again at 5.45 a.m., and this was the time that the planing mill was struck. The storm was dying down by this time, and another flash of lightning struck the top of H. M. Fowlds Co. elevator, which was built newly last summer, after being burned a little over a year ago. This would have meant a serious fire had not Ben. Armstrong gone into the building and extinguished the flames. The planing mill was owned by the H. M. Fowlds and Sons Co., but was called Doxsee Mills. The loss was partly covered by insurance. The burning of the mill will be a serious loss to the village, not for the number of men employed there but for the kind of material and work turned out.

MOST OLD FOLKS REQUIRE A HEART AND NERVE TONIC

After middle age little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly as the heart action becomes weak and uncertain and the nerves are not as steady as they were in the younger days.

Now is the time when all aged people who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy unimpaired should use

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, and fainting spells. I was advised, by a friend, to try Milburn's H. & N. Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since. I am 80 years of age and I always keep them in the house, and feel that with their help I will see many years yet. I always recommend them to anyone who is suffering from heart trouble."

For sale at all druggists and dealers.

TUG OF WAR TEAM COMPETES MONDAY

Seven of Ten Members Were in Team of 16 Years Ago.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23. — Of the ten men who will compose the tug of war team from Burnbrae that will pull against Warkwork on Monday, there will be at lease seven who composed the original team that 16 years ago made their first public appearance at a field day held in Madoc under the auspices of the Sons of Scotland. The Burnbrae men won their first contest and have never yet met with defeat, their closest call being at Warkworth Fair last fall, when they went to a draw with Warkworth. That is the issue to be decided when the teams face each other on Monday, and as both have been practising steadily the men on each side will be in the pink of condition. The men who have dropped out of the original team are A. G. Watson, Bert Third and William Doxsee. Mr. Watson, who has been in business in Campbellford for about seven years, was one of the most formidable members of the team in his day although his weight never exceeded 185 pounds, which made him a light weight in a team of giants. The original members who will be seen in the lineup Monday are: W. W. Harold, and Frank Little (the first-mentioned being the anchor man), Roy Walker, Victor Taylor, Lindsay Watson (a brother of A. G.), Bert Hay, Will Dummett and Alex Milne.

One of the new members is Wilt Hume, regarded as one of the best, although he weighs less than 150 pounds.

A resident of Percy was in town yesterday with a roll of money which he was anxious to place on the team from that township. He was advised to wait until Monday as he would then be able to secure odds.

MEETING PUT OFF UNTIL TUESDAY

Conference Between Council and School Board on Finance Postponed.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23.—The joint meeting of the Town Council and the Finance Committee of the Board of Education, called for last night, has been postponed until Tuesday. Secretary Wesley Stephens, of the Board, is out of town, so that the books are not available, and it has been decided to await his return.

The Board this year asks for nearly $7,000 more than it did a year ago, an increase that would add nearly five mills to the tax rate. The object of the joint meeting is to endeavor to make a reduction in these estimates.

News Notes.

The Salvation Army will hold a tag day on Monday in town in the morning, and at the Fair Grounds during the afternoon.

The dancing pavilion at Trent River will be opened for the season Monday night, under the auspices of the Leonard Orchestra of Campbellford, the six members of which will furnish the music.

VICTORIA DAY CELEBRATION

Seymour Agricultural Society Sponsors Big Event For Monday.

SEVERAL GAMES.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23.—The Victoria Day celebration on Monday under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society will begin promptly at 12 noon. The opening number on the programme is a football match between the Thistles of Peterboro and an all-star team of Campbellford players, the prize being a silver cup donated by Rev. Father Phelan.

At 1.30 the lacrosse games will begin, the teams to play being the Hastings-Campbellfords, and the amalgamated teams from Havelock and Norwood, the prize for this being a silver cup donated by Mayor Meyers. There will also be a game of junior lacrosse between Hastings and Campbellford.

Secretary Stone has received a large number of inquiries concerning the two horse races on the bill, the free-for-all and the 2.30, trot or pace, the prizes for which are $150 and $125 respectively, divided in the usual proportion. George H. Kingsley will act as starting judge, and this assures a fair show to all entries. The track has been put in excellent shape by the committee in charge.

The Tug-of-War.

No part of the programme is likely to excite greater interest than the tug-of-war between teams representing Seymour and Percy Township for the district championship.

Mayor Meyers, who is captain of the Campbellford team that has been selected to try conclusions with the winners, will give his men a workout this afternoon on the lot behind his garage.

ANNUAL DINNER BAR ASSOCIATION

Political Animosities Laid Aside as Toasts Were Proposed.

MANY SPEAKERS.

TORONTO, May 23 (Canadian Press).—Political animosities were laid aside last night at the annual dinner in Hart House of the Ontario Bar Association, when Hon. William F. Nickle, Conservative, Attorney-General for Ontario, in a particularly happy speech, proposed the toast of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Liberal Minister of Justice for Canada, who responded by a half hour address, which roused his hearers to round after round of tremendous applause.

In addition to these speeches, a scholarly address was delivered by Rt. Hon. Lyman P. Duff, member of the Supreme Court of Canada and a member of the judicial committee of the Privy Council, and the audience of lawyers also was stirred to enthusiasm by the judicious mixture of eloquence and humor which constituted the speech of Mr. Justice Alonzo G. Hinkley of the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

FIRE DESTROYED BARN IN DUMMER

Fred Morden Lost a Fine Structure Which Was Hit By Lightning.

HAY AND IMPLEMENTS.

WARSAW, May 23.—Fire, supposedly caused by lightning, totally destroyed the large frame barn owned by Fred. Morden, near Quarry Lake, at one o'clock this morning. The fire was first noticed by two men returning from Lakefield, who roused the neighborhood. Mr. Morden was not living on this farm but on another one some distance away, and was unaware that his property was being destroyed until he had covered a considerable part of the way in answer to the alarm.

The barn was a fine frame structure and contained a large quantity of hay. There was a hay fork and track installed in it, and a large number of small implements, which were also lost. A pile of lumber, sufficient for a kitchen which Mr. Morden was preparing to build, was consumed too.

Insurance was carried on the building and contents, but were not enough to cover the loss, which was considerable.

BEER SALE FELL ON HALF HOLIDAY

No One Intoxicated in Campbellford In Two Days of Sale.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23. — As Friday was a half holiday, when every person who owns a car leaves town with a load of friends in the afternoon, business was abandoned for the day at 12.30 and the trade in the new beer fell off as a result. There is still a difference of opinion as to whether the beverage is or is not intoxicating, although the majority appear to be on the negative side of the proposition. One resident has suggested that a practical test be made by taking three case hardened veterans and as many of less rugged experience, these to be furnished free of charge with all the 4.4 they can drink, and the effects at the end of the trial to be carefully noted. The idea was abandoned as it was feared that the number of volunteers would probably be excessive.

There has not been a single sign of intoxication in town since the beer was placed on sale, and the gatherings in the beverage room of the Windsor hotel are as orderly as if the guests were indulging in nothing more exhiliarating than ice cream.

SATURDAY, MAY 23, 192[illegible]

VICTORIA DAY.

Victoria Day, always one of the most popular holidays in the year to Canadians, will be observed on Monday, although tomorrow is the actual anniversary of the birth of the Empire's late beloved Queen, Victoria the Good.

The people of this country are likely to continue the celebration of this anniversary for many years to come, not only because of the recollections of older Canadians of the days of Victoria, but also because, coming as it does at the threshold of summer when all outdoors is calling, the date seems a most desirable one for the first summer holiday.

Peterboro's citizens are planning various ways of spending the day, many of them making their first pilgrimage of the year to river or late resorts.

The motor traffic over the holiday week-end will undoubtedly be heavy, and the Examiner suggests that wherever they spend the holiday the people of Peterboro should resolve to make it a safe and sane occasion by remembering safety first principles and doing their utmost to avoid accidents.

The danger of careless driving is multiplied when the roads are black with motor traffic, but Victoria Day can be made a really happy holiday if common sense and courtesy govern the conduct of everybody who sits at a wheel on Monday.

TILTING AT WINDMILLS.

The temperance forces are considering the running of candidates in the next Provincial elections, if the choice of the existing parties cannot be regarded as prohibitionists.

If their only platform is to be opposition to 4.4 beer there is little need of nominating such candidates.

The Ferguson-Nickle brew is not being taken seriously as a beverage with a "kick."

So far it has proven almost as innocuous as the Attorney-General said it would be, and while its sale has served to show that a large proportion of the population is ready to try anything that promises to furnish an old-time thrill, the new beer, according to the testimony of hard-shells who have experimented persistently and with a determination worthy of a better cause, will not produce the results the temperance people feared and many people hoped for.

The 1925 beverage-rooms are not likely to resemble the 1914 bar-rooms in any respect, and the prohibitionist who takes the field against four-point-four is tilting at a windmill.

GREATER CARE NEEDED.

Soon after Save-the-Forest Week comes the news that extensive forest fires are raging in the vicinity of Fort William, destroying large areas of valuable timber and burning the homes of settlers who have had to flee for their lives.

The Fort William despatches calls fresh attention to the need of the greatest care on the part of those who are called into the woods by pleasure or business.

Perhaps, for the average man, the most important point to remember is the necessity of being careful about selecting a safe spot for a camp-fire and of being sure that it is extinguished before moving on to a new location.

Nearly 6,000 forest fires every year are caused by public carelessness, either through a neglected camp-fire or a lighted match or cigarette stub carelessly thrown aside.

The slogan, "One tree may make a million matches, one match may destroy a million trees," is not only catchy but it is true, and everybody who visits our forests should bear it in mind as a guide to his conduct.

It may seem a small matter, this throwing down a lighted match, but the act often leads to a forest fire that sweeps over many square miles of country.

In a year Canada has had 600,000 square miles of timber destroyed by fires, for which carelessness on the part of somebody was responsible.

Surely it would pay us all to be on our guard in this respect.

THE DUTY OF PARENTS.

In the larger centres where traffic accidents are more frequent than in Peterboro coroners' juries continue to pass resolutions in which parents are advised to take greater care in warning their children of the perils of the street.

In a number of fatal accidents in Toronto recently it was shown that the motorist was in no way responsible inasmuch as the little victim in each case had suddenly rushed in front of a passing car.

Even here, where the motor traffic is not so great as in the bigger cities, it cannot be too strongly emphasized that the street is no longer a safe place for children to play.

On many local thoroughfares somewhat extensively used by motorists it is not an unusual spectacle to see groups of children engaged in playing ball or other games in which there is a great deal of running and not much attention paid to passing traffic.

It is this kind of thing that leads to accidents, and makes the conscientious driver old before his time as he realizes that even although he may exercise the greatest care there is still the danger that one of the little tots on the roadway will suddenly run in front of his car.

It is the duty of parents to educate their children to avoid accidents—and the first step is to see that they are kept from playing on the street where peril is always lurking.

At the same time the present conditions put an added responsibility on motorists to drive with every care in city streets.

FAR NORTH FARMING.

Steadily data are being accumulated regarding the agricultural possibilities of the Canadian Northland, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. Year by year further evidence is obtained showing that the limit of profitable production extends far nearer the Arctic circle than was at one time taken for granted. The latest official department commentary on this subject is furnished by the report of the experimental sub-station at Fort Vermilion, Alberta, for 1923. Fort Vermilion is farther north than any part of Ontario, and at times the thermometer falls to more than 60 degrees below zero. The mean temperature during the crop season ranges from 6 to 10 degrees lower than during the same months at Ottawa.

Wheat seeding began at the sub-station farm on May 7, and nine varieties were sown on test plots. At harvest they yielded at the rate of from 37 to 59 bushels per acre. The results of the experiments with potatoes were even more remarkable. They show that, in the northern regions, early, deep planting produces the best results. The seed was planted from May 8 to 10, and one variety yielded as high as 419 bushels per acre. Irish Cobbler, a well-known variety, produced 339 bushels per acre.

One variety of garden corn produced a fair percentage of fully-matured though rather small cobs. Garden beans were quite successful, and a large number of other common vegetables produced excellent crops in a very short time. In fact, the short period between the dates of seeding vegetables and the dates when they became fit for use is a striking feature of the rapid growth in the north country, made possible by long hours of warm sunshine. Fine yields of sunflowers for silage were obtained, while the growing period was favorable for hay and a heavy crop harvested.

All these results are obtained under more favorable conditions and by better cultivation than is generally found on farms. Yet they distinctly show that there is a great field for the northward extension of agriculture.

MONTREAL PESSIMISM.

The Montreal Star, generally pessimistic these days, is unusual so in the following article, which is headed "Drifting Toward Disaster":

"Not even in Parliament could anyone be found yesterday with the hardihood to defend the extravagant waste that lies upon the very surface of our existing system under which we have three competing 'immigration and colonization' organizations abroad. There is the Government establishment, costly enough in all conscience whatever we may say for its efficiency. Then there is the network of agencies for the Government Railways, paid for out of the same purse, fishing in the same rivers and presumably dropping its catch into the same national basket. And then there is the C. P. R. system, undoubtedly in the past the most effective of the lot.

"But why three?

"They are bound to overlap and interfere and compete. They all want to fish in the most promising pools, leaving the leaner areas either untouched or but casually 'whipped.' Duplication is inevitable; and duplication means a duplication of expense.

"This was all very well at a time when the country was prosperous, carrying its light debt with ease and paying its way with unfelt and indirect taxation. We could afford extravagances. Moreover, if a little lively competition between private and Government agencies brought us more immigrants, that was all to the good. But today the country is neither prosperous nor paying its way with taxation, felt or unfelt. We are living off the money-lenders. We add a mortgage every year. And any farmer can tell us what that means.

"Our immigration activities should be co-ordinated. The saving policy of co-operation could be applied here, without interfering with either railway entity at home or decreasing the effectiveness of the work. No one would blame the Canadian Pacific authorities if they should point out that their privately-controlled agents have been more effective in the past, and that they would be very loth to see them exposed to the enervating influences of Government control. But that need not happen. Co-operation and not combination is what is proposed.

"Certainly something must be done — not merely in this comparatively limited field of immigration effort, but all along the line.

"Our people are growing visibly and dangerously uneasy. Such exposures as that of Col. James Arthurs yesterday of the appalling drain of our population into the United States, especially since 1910, is shaking the confidence of the stoutest.

"They see the debt piling up year after year; and they ask: 'Who is going to pay it?'

"They see the Government Railways running behind more than a million a week; and no one comes forward with a plan to cure it.

"They see our income tax stay up while the American income tax goes down. They see Great Britain balance her Budget, while Canada —far less hard hit by the war—fails to do so. They see many of our best industries closing down, and others putting their people on half-time. They see that philanthropic citizens must maintain 'soup kitchens' throughout the winter.

"No wonder that they are shaken in their souls, and that the exodus has reached alarming proportions.

"Population would save us; but we are neither getting nor keeping population to a saving extent.

"A mere shift from one political party to another will do little or nothing. They have all shown themselves to be helpless, powerless and planless. They are too afraid of petty local greed and sectional selfishness to adopt a great plan if they discovered one."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A lot of people have reluctantly had to agree that Mr. Nickle was right when he described 4.4 beer as non-intoxicating.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition begins a week from Monday. Everything points to a display that will be a revelation to the citizens generally.

To the many citizens who have caught the spirit of Clean-Up Week and whose premises reveal that fact, the Examiner extends its congratulations.

Police officials from 44 different countries have been visiting Toronto, not, however, to study the effect of the sale of 4.4 beer.

ANGLERS TAKE MANY TROPHIES

Hastings is Favorite Fishing Ground in This District for Motorists.

ABOUT WALTON

It would be telling tales out of school to say how many pickerel a party of local men brought home from Hastings last night, but they brought enough to show that the little town where the Trent River drains Rice Lake is justly famed for its attraction to anglers. They didn't have to tell any exaggerated stories to show their prowess.

And it seems as though fishermen may be under an unjust cloud of suspicion in this story telling. George Washington may have won his reputation through his truthfulness about chopping down a cherry tree with his little axe, but lovers of fishing lore argue that his fame for truthfulness is rightful, due because he never told a fish story. He was a great fisherman too, from all accounts.

There have been other successful fishermen among great men too, St. Patrick for instance, and Michael Angelo, and Wallace, the great Scottish hero, and Lord Nelson. The victor of Trafalgar even fished with his left hand after his right had been lost. And no one would have the temerity to brand any of these national idols as prevaricators.

All followers of Izaak Walton, however, seem to share in a general cloud of suspicion.

Just who was this fellow Walton? Every fisherman designates himself a follower of the fisherman sage, and innumerable societies have taken his name.

A great many of these disciples are not aware that Walton is the author of "The Complete Angler, being a discourse of fish and fishing not unworthy the perusal of most anglers." This volume was published in England in 1653 and so great was its popularity that it went into five editions before his death. The first editions are rare and are now highly prized by book collectors.

Perhaps the great charm of this book is due to Walton's belief that fishing is an art and the fact that he writes of it as such. He calls fishing "the contemplative man's recreation."

The book is aglow with human interest and yet has a charming serenity. This in spite of the fact that Walton was living through the horrors of the English civil wars between Royalist and Parliamentarian forces. He himself was an active loyalist.

Born August 9, 1593, in the town of Stafford, England, he early took to fishing in the neighboring brooks, carrying a hazel rod and horsehair line. At 16 he became an apprentice to an ironmonger and for a while fishing was set aside. As more leisure came, however, he again took up his art, buying a horse to take him in pursuit of streams.

Walton taught the use of a great variety of bait. He mentions worms, a curious sort of paste, wild fruits, and even berries. How he would be startled at the artificial baits used by today's angler. As to his methods of fishing, however, and some of the fisherman's lore he unfolds, many of his ideas are just as good today as they were then.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes ....but no work or children.

She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she swamps Dick with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazzy" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR ,warns her not to been seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with JIM CAREWE.

Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia.

That afternoon, when Gloria went into Dick's room to sit with him, he held a letter out to her.

"Would you mind running down to the corner to mail this for me?" he asked.

Gloria looked at the letter. It was addressed in Dick's find dashing hand to "Miss Susan Briggs."

Gloria went into her own room after her wraps to go out and mail Dick's letter.

The day was cold and there was a tiny jet of steam hissing out from the radiator beside her dressing table.

It gave Gloria a sudden idea.

She picked up the envelope and held it against the little jet of steam. The edges of the gummed flap began to curl back slowly.

. . . She would just open that letter and read what was in it!

She would find out what Dick was writing to Miss Briggs about! He had no business to be writing to her anyway.

Didn't Miss Briggs telephone him every morning from the office to tell hi how things were going there? If he had anything important to say to her, why didn't he say it then instead of utting it into a letter, for goodness sake? . . . Unless it was something that he didn't want anyone to hear. Ah, that must be it! . . .

Gloria picked up her nail file from her tray of toilet things. She slipped its sharp point under the loosened flap of the envelope.

Then she stood still, looking down at the sedate syllables of Susan Briggs' name.

She was filled with sudden self-disgust.

Gloria flung the envelope down on her dresser as if it had been a live coal. She pressed the flap down tight.

Then she snatched it up and went back into Dick's bedroom.

"Looky here, Rikky," she began. "Do you think it's fair of you to write a letter to Miss Briggs and ask me to mail it for you? Particularly when you give it to me all sealed up for fear I might take a peek at it . . . Here it is! I'm not going to post it for you!"

She tossed it down onto the covers of Dick's bed.

"As if I care a snap of my fingers what you've written to your old Miss Briggs!" she added scornfully. "You flatter yourself!"

Dicj threw back his head and laughed.

"By jove, I believe you do care, at that!" he said. "I believe you do!" The thought that she might be jealous of Miss Briggs seemed to please him immensely.

He ripped open the envelope.

"Here's the letter I wrote to her, Glory," he said. "Want to see it?"

Gloria took the two sheets of paper that he handed to her.

One was a bill for a hat that Gloria had bought two or three weeks before on one of her shopping trips with May.

The other sheet was a note to Miss Briggs.

Gloria read it with frank curiosity.

"Dear Miss Briggs," it ran. "This bill is okeh. Will you please send a check with it? Sincerely yours, Richard Gregory."

Gloria looked at it dumbly.

"What did you think I was writing to Miss Briggs? A love letter?" Dick asked good-naturedly. "Did you think I was having an affair of the soul with her?"

His wife nodded and hung her head.

"I'm afraid I did," she said in a shamed undertone

Dick took her hand and held it in one of his.

"Well, you need never be afraid of that sort of thing," he answered her. "I'll never cheat, Gloria. No matter what I do, I'll be honest with you. If ever I find a woman I care for more than I care for you, I'll tell you all about it . . . even before I tell her!"

Gloria looked at him thoughtfully with her wide, brown eyes.

"You don't suppose you ever will care for anybody but me, do you?" she asked, startled.

She was surprised to feel the surge of jealousy that swept through her at the thought of Dick ever falling in love with any other woman.

"Not a chance in the world," Dick answered. "You know I'll never care a rap about anybody but you. But I'm just telling you that you needn't worry about letters I write to Miss Briggs or any other woman living, so that you won't worry. See?"

Gloria couldn't answer him. A lump rose in her throat.

Dick was so honest. So decent. He was too good for her!

What would he say if he knew that she had let Stanley Wayburn make love to her? She raised a pointed finger and rubbed it hard across her lips. She felt as though they were soiled by Stan's kisses.

She made a little movement with her hands almost as if she were wringing them. She was terribly afraid she was going to cry. And she turned away and looked out of the window so that Dick shouldn't see her face. . . .

"I'll never cheat," he had said to her. What an ugly word "cheat" was!

Gloria saw now that she ought to have told Dick how she felt about Stanley Wayburn from the moment when he had kissed her in his dressing-room. That would have been the square thing to do!

But the whole affair had happened so gradually . . . that she had not realized that it had completely separated her from Dick until it was too late.

But was it too late, after all, to put Wayburn out of her life? Couldn't she forget him and try to be a good wife to Dick?

. . . After all, what were a few kisses, a few automobile rides with Wayburn? There had been no real harm in them—and Stan was going away soon.

Gloria stared out into the street, thinly veiled by gray April rain.

"I'll try to get that money and give it to Stan and then I'll never see him again. . . . I'll never think of him again!" she said definatly. It was as if she disputed something with herself.

She put her handkerchief up to her eyes and brushed the welling tears away.

. . . The telephone buzzed loudly in the quiet room.

Gloria glanced at her wrist watch.

It was 2:30. And 2 o'clock was the time that she usually met Stan at the corner of Park and Charlotte Streets for a drive or a hike! He was probably phoning to ask why she had failed him!

"Shall I answer the phone, honey?" Dick asked.

"No, no! Let me do it!" Gloria rushed across the room like a small whirlwind and took the instrument from his hand.

"Hello," she said nervously. To her relief it was not Stan's voice that answered.

"This is Maggie, ma'am," the grim voice at the other end of the wire said. "Will you please go up to Nicholl's Hospital right away? Dr. Seymour has just taken Mr. Dick's mother there to operate on her for appendicitis!"

Dick's mother! Gloria could scarcely believe her ears.

Mother Gregory with her bright eyes and the blown roses in her cheeks was the last person in the world who looked like a hospital case.

"Mr. Dick's father is out of town," Maggie went on. "And I do think someone of the family should be at the hospital when they operate on poor Mis' Gregory. . . . Please don't let Mr. Dick know about it, ma'am. It might kill him the way his heart is, and all!"

"Of course, I won't," Gloria snapped as she hung up the receiver.

But how to keep Dick from knowing about his mother. That was the question.

She couldn't go away and leave him all alone in the house, sick and helpless as he was!

And there was no one to stay with him. It was Mrs. O'Hara's day off. Ranghild had gone to the dentist and wouldn't be back before 5 o'clock.

Suddenly Gloria thought of Miss Briggs. . . . Yes, she would have to ask Miss Briggs to come and stay with Dick in her absence. There was nothing else to do.

"That was my dad on the phone," Gloria fibbed to Dick. "He says my mother's sick and wants me to go over to the house right away. . . . Would you mind if I phoned Miss Briggs to stay here with you while I'm gone?"

Dick considered.

"Oh, I can stay here alone, can't I?" he asked, after a minute's pause. "There's no need to bother Miss Briggs."

"That's nonsense! You can't stay here by yourself!" Gloria cried. She picked up the telephone and called Dick's office number.

Miss Briggs' low, sweet voice answered at once.

"Could you leave the office for an hour or two and come out here to the house?" Gloria asked her. "I've had some bad news from my mother and I've got to leave Mr. Gregory for a little while. It's your sister's day off duty, you know."

"I'll be there right away," Miss Briggs answered. Gloria was sure she could hear a note of eagerness in her voice.

"Did Miss Briggs say she'd come?" Dick asked.

"Did she say she'd come?" Gloria laughed with cutting sarcasm. "Oh, boy, did she! Why you couldn't keep her away with wild horses! Her idea of a perfect time is taking care of you for an afternoon. . . . You flip it from me, Rikky, she has a real crush on her boss! And don't you forget it!"

"Why don't you phone mother to come instead?" Dick asked, ignoring Gloria's remarks about Miss Briggs. "I'd rather have her. She hasn't been here for an age."

"Oh, she's not at home to-day," Gloria replied. "I happen to know." She had a sudden vision of Mother Gregory in the white operating room of the hospital.

"I've got to hurry!" she said. "Here, put your arms into your bathrobe! And let me brush your hair. . . . I must doll you all up for Miss Briggs!"

• • •

She straightened the covers of Dick's bed and laid the volume of Stevenson's "Vailima Letters" on his bedside table.

AFRICAN HILLS JOIN CHIEFS IN GREAT WELCOME

Veldt Re-echoed Tumultuous Cheering When Prince Was Greeted "Shining Sun."

THRONG OF NATIVES.

Forty Thousand Natives at Enthusiastic Reception to "Our Earthly God."

UMTATA, Union of South Africa, May 23.—(Canadian Press).—Forty thousand natives gathered on the open Veldt here Friday to witness the reception given by the native chiefs to the Prince of Wales. It was a unique, impressive ceremony, and the Prince was attired for the occasion in one of his most imposing uniforms, the full dress of a Colonel of the Welsh Guards. The red tunic and white helmet with flashing gold spike, greatly impressed the native assembly.

The Prince, standing on a small temporary platform, faced a great semi-circle of thousands of natives, while in fields and on sloping hills, thousands on thousands of horses stood unattended with reins thrown over their necks, peacefully browsing.

The leading chief made a speech in honor of the Prince, saying:

"Great Chief. You are our earthly God: our life will be happy because we have seen Your Royal Highness. There is no single one who feels bad in his heart because our God has descended from Heaven and is on earth. O Sun, shine on us."

The conclusion of the speech was the signal for tumultuous cheering.

The head of the chiefs then bestowed on the Prince the name of "Langa Likakanva," meaning "Shining Sun," by which the Prince will henceforth be known throughout South Africa. The bestowal of this honor was acclaimed by assembled chiefs and natives and was immediately shouted from hilltop to hilltop.

LITTLE HOPE OF REDUCING RATES FOR IMMIGRANTS

C. P. R. Steamship Traffic Manager Says Assurance of Large Flow Needed.

LOSING MONEY.

Immigrant Rate Now Equal to First Saloon Passage Cost in 1914.

OTTAWA, May 23 (Canadian Press).—Colonel Walter Maughan, steamship passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told the special parliamentary committee on ocean rates Friday that he could hold out absolutely no hope for lower immigration rates under present conditions.

"The only way a reduction in rates can take place is by an increase in the number of immigrants," said the witness. "If we were definitely assured that we were going to have a large flow of immigrants, we would be very glad to consider a decrease in rates."

'What would you say if a number of boats were put on the North Atlantic which decreased the immigrant rate from $80 to $60?" asked William Duff, of Lunenburg.

"They would get some business," replied Col. Maughan.

"Wouldn't the conference lines reduce their rates?" persisted Mr. Duff.

'I don't think so," was the reply.

Colonel Maughan stated that voyage accounts now in the hands of the committee would show that 1924 had not been a profitable year in the North Atlantic passenger business, for his line. The present year, thus far, had also resulted in a loss.

Rates Set in Britain.

Passenger rates on the conference lines were set in Great Britain because most of the big steamship companies had their head offices there, the witness explained to the committee. Minimum rates only were fixed. He admitted that the immigrant rate today was approximately the same as the first class saloon passenger rate in 1914, but pointed to the improved service and accommodation given in partial justification of the increase.

W. T. R. Preston was called to the stand and examined by Sir Henry Drayton on the correspondence, tabled some days ago, between Mr. Preston and Hon. T. A. Low. One letter from Mr. Preston to Mr. Low contained a sentence which had been deleted with ink.

Mr. Symington explained that this had been struck out because it was merely a personal reference which should not be made public. He produced the text of the sentence which had been delated, for the members of the committee to see if they so desired.

Made Fortune During War.

Sir Henry read the sentence, as follows: "The gentleman made a large fortune during the war in shipping interests."

The reference was to Sir William Petersen.

In communications which passed between Mr. Low and Mr. Preston Sir William Petersen was sometimes referred to as "X" and sometimes also as 'Jones." Mr. Preston explained that it was thought advisable to keep Sir William's name private during the negotiations.

Before adjournment, Sir Henry Drayton informed Chairman McMaster that the file of letters tabled was not complete, and that one important letter in particular was missing.

The chairman promised to draw the attention of Hon. T. A. Low, minister of trade and commerce, to Sir Henry's statement.

BRITISH REJECT LABOR MEASURE ON EMPLOYMENT

Proposed Immense Annual Grant For Employment Scheme in Empire.

LOST 216 TO 118.

Lloyd George and David Kirkwood Enlivened Debate With Personal Clash.

LONDON, May 23 (Canadian Press Cable) — There was a little passage-at-arms in the House of Commons Friday between Lloyd George and David Kirkwood, Labor member for Dumbarton, in the coarse of a discussion on a bill for the prevention of unemployment which measure was fathered by the Labor party and was finally rejected by a vote of 216 to 118.

The bill provided for the establishment of a national employment and development board with a state grant of £10,000,000 yearly, the board to consist of ministers of the crown who would be empowered to make advances to the dominion and colonial governments and to local and public authorities and to spend money anywhere for empire purposes calculated to provide employment.

Great Areas Idle

G. H. Oliver, labor member for Ilkeston, in moving second reading of the bill said that great areas of land in Great Britain were idle and could be used to produce much meat, butter and sugar which were now imported. British craftsmen were going to the United States, Mr. Oliver said, although here was ample opporunity for them in the dominions and colonies if these were developed as they could be developed.

Lloyd George declared that nothing could be done under the bill which the cabinet was unable to do without it. He urged a thorough survey of the problem of unemployment and greater co-ordination of effort in trying to lessen unemployment.

Lively Passage

David Kirkwood asked by Lloyd George did not do this when he was in office, and then some lively passages between the two began.

Lloyd George declared that Kirkwood was trying to bully and terrify him.

This sally was greeted with laughter.

Kirkwood replied that Lloyd George had tried to terrify him in wartime.

Said Lloyd George: "I did my best to keep you quiet but did not succeed."

More laughter followed (the former premier's reference to his trying to keep Kirkwood quiet during the war presumably being in connection with Kirkwood's deportation from the Clyde district.)

Lloyd George proceeded to recall that he initiated schemes of real development and trade facilities while he was at the head of the government. He said he hoped that the member for Dunbarton would have he decency to apologize for what he had said.

Kirkwood signified his intention to reply if he had the opportunity. Subsequently, after Lloyd George had to leave the house to keep an engagement elsewhere, Kirkwood said his reply must wait until Lloyd George was in his place in the house, "so that the greatest enemy of the labor class in his generation" could hear what he (Kirkwood) had to tell him.

However, Kirkwood then proceeded to attack Lloyd George, but the speaker stopped him before he had got very far.

MISS MacPHAIL'S QUERY.

Asked Whether Government Maintained Any Peace School.

OTTAWA, May 23. — (Canadian Press). — "Are there any peace schools maintained by the Dominion Government, or do they just teach one line of national policy?" asked Miss Agnes MacPhail (Progressive, South-East Grey) in the House Friday afternoon, while questioning an item for the expenditure of $1,800 at the Royal Military College, Kingston, for "wharf repairs and protection work."

Hon. J. R. King, Minister of Public Works, did not reply to this query.

"Is it customary for schools to have wharves?" further enquired Miss MacPhail.

Dr. King replied that the Royal Military College was a Governmental school, and that the wharf in question was used by the cadets and by the school.

ANAEMIA

A remarkable discovery has enabled thousands of worn-out, tired, nervous, anaemic people to increase their strength and energy, often in two weeks' time, and to quickly change their leaden pallor and listless look to the pink skin, rosy lips and sparkling eyes of glowing health. Formerly they were given the old-fashioned tinctures and pills made from mineral iron, which many doctors now say are scarcely assimilated at all, and so give little benefit. But since the discovery of a new combination of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which, being like the organic iron in our own blood, is promptly taken up by the blood, thousands have found that they can banish every trace of tiredness and distress, these peculiar pains and that nervousness incident to old age, in a few short weeks. Furthermore, Nuxated Iron does not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. It quickly helps build up rich, red blood that carries new strength, vitality and youth to your whole body.

No matter how weak and ill you feel, or how many other medicines you have tried in vain, make this convincing test: Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and if you do not notice a wonderful improvement in strength and energy and look years younger, the druggist will promptly refund your money. Nuxated Iron is sold under this absolute guarantee by all good druggists.

COOPERATION IN CITY AND NATION.

MONTREAL, May 22—Ryerson Ritchie of Peterborough was the speaker at the luncheon of the Civic Improvement League of Montreal on Wednesday afternoon in the Windsor Hotel.

Co-operation in city and nation was Mr. Ritchie's theme, the new City Manager plan of government being especially referred to.

His address in part is as follows:—

Modern development in city and nation is the business of co-operative intelligence and enterprise, supported by high ideals of integrity and of purpose. The future of Canada rests largely with the class of men that represents her culture and strength. If this class be united in speech, opinion and action for the common welfare, it will express itself in a national policy of expansion—big, broad, constructive; it will reflect the individuality and ambition of agreat people.

Referring to the state of mind in the Dominion, the editor of one of our foremost newspapers said that, "Canada is so immense and so rich in natural resources and is at such an early state of development, it is natural her people should feel her future to be secured. But blind confidence that fails to protect the future from needless exactions may betray the country into serious trouble."

The Canadian people are building great metropolitan centres. Each of these should be a dynamic force in the national advancing movement. In these cities, as well as in the open spaces, mines and forests, you should find the same spirit that animated the pioneers of Canada. That spirit should now find ways and means to set the forces of organization at work upon a greater development than was conceivable in the early days.

The Basic Problem.

Nationally there are perplexing problems to be solved, grave difficulties to be surmounted. It seems to me that our basic problem is the exodus of our people to the United States—a problem in which Montreal must be keenly interested.

When will Canada have the foresight to open opportunities at home for the exercise of those qualities that have distinguished Canadians abroad? The social and occupational conditions that promote that exodus are of our making. They must be converted into conditions that will make life equally worth living in Canada. When that is accomplished, then patriotism will have become a living entity.

The Transcontinental Railways.

Next in importance to the fiscal problem—the heavy burdens of debt and taxation—there stands out in bold relief the problem of the Transcontinental Railways. A lot of time is being spent upon investigations by courts of enquiry in full public view, as if the country needed more information regarding the integrity of their management than about the use of them as instruments in nation-building. How did these great railways come to be built? What were they built for? There is but one answer. They were built because of Canada's natural and industrial wealth, of her certain promise and anticipated rapid development.

The American railways when built Westward, through mountains across plains and deserts, followed the trails of the pioneer. The settlers followed the construction gangs, and with unbounded enthusiasm and confidence, built towns and even cities almost "overnight." If we measure the achievements of a decade—from the Mississippi to the Pacific—we may ask if that was all done without planning. It was the outcome, the natural sequence of comprehensive designing by the railway investors, backed by the genius of a pioneering people. It was done by means of an intelligent admixture and use of all the elements of individual and collective enterprise. These railways became the instruments of greatest value in an unprecedented national development. Why shouldn't ours?

National Organization.

Does Canada need re-awaking? Some of our editors think so. Not long ago a great newspaper of Montreal performed a clever and brave act when it blared a "whisper of death" in the ears of Canada. It took a finer courage than that of partisanism to carry that headline, for it was "flying in the face" of all precedent; besides it wasn't good psychology from the newspaper or party standpoint.

The editors knew all that but they did the job just the same, because they had tried everything else without raising a disturbance. I, for one, hope that that progressive journalwill, with equal sincerity and purpose, startle Canada with a Whisper of Life.

Progressive journalism is not satisfied; business is not satisfied; nor is the tax-paying public satisfied with the trend of events without exception, the annual reviews of the banks gave the country impressive reasons for serious thinking and reconstructive planning. Serious thinking and reconstructive planning is of little use unless it be merged into an organic body possessing functional means of making itself effective in city and national reconstruction.

The Americans have a way of taking the affairs of commerce and those of public concern into their own hands They do not look to state legislatures or congressfor initiatory planning or leadership. The United States is the most prosperous nation in the world, because, among other reasons, it is the most intensively organized. We have noted the effect of organization in almost every field of human life and action, particularly in the ascendancy of the cities. In the important field of city planning, much of the original and continuing work has been done by voluntary association such as the Civic Improvement League of Montreal, but it is commonly undertaken by chambers of commerce.

The progress of the greater American cities gives many suggestive examples of the effect of unity. In these cities the main objectives are: first, the increase of manufacturing and employment and second: the better planning and government of the city.

Anyone who knows the heart of American urban development during the last three decades, will confirm the assertion that the most positive and far-reaching public influence is that of the modern chamber of commerce. Men of the highest ability and integrity of character concern themselves with their procedure The influence of such bodies is an organized influence which is crystalizing, more and more into motives and object for the national welfare.

The modern chamber of commerce is of course, the representative of commerce and industry, but it is also a community clearing-house. It has no rivals, no opposing organism; it is the sole occupant of the field. That it so because its members only concern themselves seriously about public affairs. Public opinion is recognized as a concomitant influence, hence the policy of these chambers is to keep the people fully informed.

The cities of Kansas City, Cleveland and Detroit interest us, because their growth in business and population, within the present generation, has largely been attained by means of the pull-together spirit, which animates the city's ambition at every point of conservation and improvement. Growth and prosperity have invariably followed.

The pull-together spirit was not adequate merely as a mouthpiece, consequently an association was created and equipped to give that spirit force and effect. The modern chamber of commerce is the creature of that class of men that is in action—alert, far-seeing, resourceful. In character it is far removed from the spectacular, flamboyant, boom-and-boost clubs that were the lineal ancestors of some of the clubs and lodges of to-day.

Urban Development.

For several years, the Chamber of Commerce of Cleveland had critically studied the government and out of that study grew an insistent desire for reformation. The movement culminated in the adoption of the so-called "City Manager Plan" by vote of the people. Cleveland was the first of the greater cities to adopt that plan. After a year's experience it's promises have been more than realized.

Kansas City (Missouri) had also made a thorough study of the new system and was the first large city to follow Cleveland's example, not because the former had suffered much from the abuses so common under the old regime, but because the new system was directly in line with the growing desire for betterment. Kansas City had been one of the best governed cities in the Union. Kansas City (Kansas) had previously adopted the commission form of government.

Thirty years ago Kansas City was a rough western town, ugly and unsightly, built upon the muddy bluffs and flatlands on the borderline of Missouri and Kansas. The leading men organized to "Make Kansas City a Good Place to Live In" as well as to do business in They conceived an ambitious plan and engaged that distinguished city planner, George Kessler, to carry it out. There Mr. Kessler completed his greatest work of "City Planning." It transformed Kansas City into one of the most beautiful cities of that country. The cost was great, but the reward was greater.

Cleveland, the fifth largest city of the United States, is located a thousand miles from the iron ore mines and is distant from the coal fields of Ohio and Pennsylvania, yet she has a greater variety in manufactures of which iron is the base, than any other industrial centre.

Organized public spirit, civic ambition, private munificence and city planning have each played important parts in enabling Cleveland to carry forward plans that will fit into her greater future. Everywhere one sees evidence of the work of the city planner. Cleveland is an advanced and advancing city.

Detroit is first among the fast-growing cities to have profited from city planning. The city was designed about one hundred and thirty years ago and was probably the first western city that was planned for a greater future. The French and English commoners and gentry formed an alliance and worked unitedly to win distinction for their city.

The city's formation was designed by Major l'Enfant, who had come from France to serve in the American Continental Army. He was a distinguished French engineer and made the wonderful plan of Washington. The plans of Washington and Detroit were similar, though Detroit failed to follow the design in its entirity.

The French city of Detroit was beautiful long before the invasion of Yankee enterprise. But the French and English coalition had overlooked the Yankee; maybe they didn't know he was to exist. At any rate they did not impose restrictions or limitations upon him and when he arrived he spoiled about half of the classic plan of l'Enfant—with his axe. The rights of property and the blights of avarice, exploitation, opportunism and adventure finished the job, inflicting injuries upon Detroit that have left sores to disfigure her beauty for all time.

Twenty years ago the more prominent men of Detroit associated themselves for the purpose of making it a greater manufacturing centre. Soon the once staid, conservative, slow-moving city had an awakening and she has since shown an unexampled spirit of progression.

Conspicuous Civic Achievements.

The extraordinary growth of Kansas City, Cleveland and Detroit stands out conspicuously among the fast-growing cities of the United States, not so much because of the material prosperity of the people, but because of the refinements and privileges that have been planned and realized, thus enhancing the attractions of life in these cities.

The growth of Cleveland and Detroit in manufacturing, within three decades, is among the phenomena of American industry. In little more than a decade, ending with 1900, Cleveland had passed a score of cities, including Boston, Cincinnati and Buffalo. In the last decade she passed St. Louis.

Detroit's automotive industry accelerated her already rapid growth. During the last twenty years she rose from the fifteenth to the fourth position in population.

City Planning and Administration.

In many American cities a new civic consciousness has grown out of the activities of chambers of commerce and with it an insistent desire for the application of business principles and rules to the business of the city. An administrative system has been instituted, by means of which the business of the city may now be conducted as competently and economically as that of any great privately-owned corporation.

This system, with it's single head and departmental executives, allows no uncertainty as to responsibility in the public service. The lines of integrity are drawn with precision, each division having it's latitudes and longitudes.

Under the "City-Manager Plan" city planning will have it's place and because, even if applied only in the physical shaping of the city, it must take into account all the elements and factors of communal development and will, in a broad sense, help to educate and form public opinion—that potent, sovereign force in democracy.

"The Love that Never Dies"

YOUR VACATION.

By Hugh S. Cumming.

When a drowning person has been brought to land or to some other safe place, if he is unconscious, the first procedure should be to get the water out of his lungs

To do this, roll him on his face; stand astride of the hips and clasp the hands over the lower part of the abdomen. Lift up the hips and abdomen by straightening the back. This will place the head lower than the lungs and the water will run out of the mouth.

Hold the person in this position for a few moments, or as long as any water comes from the mouth. Give the body several slight shakes. Then you should see that the throat is not clogged with sand sea-weed, or other matter. Remove tight clothing and begin artificial respiration immediately.

The patient should be laid on the ground face downward. The arms may be raised above the head, one arm fixed so that the forehead rests upon it. The face must be turned slightly to one side so that the nose and the mouth will not be closed by ressure against the ground. Stand or kneel astride the patient. Place your hands close together, one on each side of his backbone about the region of the short ribs, that is near the middle of the body.

Having taken hold of the patient in this manner, you now lean forward and throw your weight on your hands which are against the patient's back. In this way the lower part of the patient's chest is pressed against the ground and to a certain extent the belly contents are forced up against the diaphragm. The effect of this procedure is to diminish the capacity of the chest and force out the air.

The pressure should be applied firmly, but gently, and then removed. To remove the pressure simply send your body backward and take the weight off your hands. This removal of pressure causes the chest to expand and the organs of the abdomen to recede. This expansion of the chest cavity draws air into the lungs and through the windpipe.

You then pause for about three seconds to allow the fresh air to become mixed with the blood. Then you repeat the process. This procedure is continued regularly until the patient begins to breathe. The movements are performed at the rate of 12 to 14 times per minute. This, with the three seconds' pause, makes a total of five seconds for the complete cycles.

You should allow your hands to remain in the proper position upon the back after the pressure has been relieved but no weight should be placed upon it. Swing your body backward and forward with the least possible exertion. This movement can be kept up for a long time without undue fatigue. It may be necessary to perform artificial respiration for several hours or longer. In any event it should be tried for at least an hour and a half.

A good rule is to perform respiration until it is certain that the individual is dead and then continue for an hour and a half longer. Many people who are apparently lifeless have been restored by long continued effort.

When the patient begins to breathe voluntarily in a regular manner he should be turned on his back. As soon as revived and breathing is satisfactory, he should be given suitable remedies. When he becomes conscious and can swallow, stimulants such as black coffee and aromatic spirits of ammonia may be administered.

When breathing is surely established and the general condition becomes good, put the patient to bed, cover warmly and if cold apply external heat. Care should be taken to see that he has plenty of fresh air.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Thursday was clean-up day for the hotels in Peterborough that put in four-point-four promptly, and there was a visible slackening up of interest yesterday evening. Still and all, the proprietors weren't grumbling, and though there was not the rush that characterized the initial wild plunge there were few tables without their bacchantic quartets.

Clean-up Day

Under the new regulations the beer dispensaries resemble closely the "Cafe" of France, where coffee is a side line to the sale of beer, and the "Estaminet," where red and white wine and variegated liquers are served on trays at tables.

Passing glances into Peterboro beer parlours yesterday evening revealed a patronage that has not been since the days of the bar, although the habitues seemed nervous as they sat in the full glare of public inspection.

It's a good thing to have a backdoor to even a circle, Cap. Corsan showed in his exhibition at the Y. W. last night.

A letter came back from South Africa to the employees of a Peterborough cereal mill who had put her name in a package, and another came from Hong Kong to a moulder who had worked on and written his name on a casting. In the first letter, the correspondent said he had heard of Peterboro because the name was printed on his canoe. These are the real boosters of the city—these far-away places where her products go. That is why that is known all over the world for one good product cannot fail to prosper, and Peterboro manufacturers turn out many articles from their factories of a quality that cannot be duplicated anywhere.

Of Wide Influence

That is what they will try to put across at the "Made in Peterboro" Exhibition that is just a week away. And in co-operation with them the Examiner will publish a special edition in which will be told interestingly the story of their factories and what goes on there. Wonderfully entertaining are these articles, describing in non-technical language how products of everyday use are fashioned from the raw material by dexterous hands and marvellous machinery.

If you seek a new viewpoint of life or if you merely want entertainment, you should not fail to take in the "Made in Peterboro" Exhibition. And you should read the stories in the Examiner's special edition, and send copies to friends in other cities in Canada and overseas. They will be interested in the city of your adoption.

The kind of "wetness" last night's storm brought at an opportune time is the only kind the farmers are willing to vote for.

Gin Pills relieved her headaches and backaches

Headaches and backaches frequently indicate kidney trouble, and may be the forerunners of dangerous illness. Read how one sufferer was relieved.

"My trouble has been very bad headaches, backaches and dizzy spells. I started taking Gin Pills and only used a little more than half a box when my headaches and backaches stopped and now I feel like a new girl. I am well and have had no return of those distressing headaches and backaches."

CRISIS FOR LEAGUE NATIONS SEEN BY E. BENES OF CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

Must Either Gain Strength to Meet Europe's Problems or Fail.

GERMANY'S PLACE.

Sees Dangerous Reaction in Election of Hindenburg as President.

The meeting of the League of Nations International Conference for Control of the Traffic in Arms, is a forerunner of the Assembly meeting at Geneva next September. In the opinion of Dr. Benes, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, the League is at the cross roads. It must either gain strength to meet Europe's political problems, or lose support. In the following interview, which occurred before the election of Hindenburg as President of Germany, Dr. Benes expresses the opinion that in the event of his election, dangerous reaction would be manifest in all the countries of Europe and that the political mind of Germany would stand revealed.

HAMILTON FISH ARMSTRONG.
PRAGUE.

Edouard Benes, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, one of the new and smaller States stringing down from the Baltic to the Aegean, has not acquired a European reputation without possessing qualities of an unusual sort. I should say his chief merit is energy—perpetual, tireless, dominating; and that just after that merit, and making it useful and effective, is an ability for directness of thought and expression. He is the most practical man imaginable—and his career is sheer romance. The son of a peasant, a boy field worker, self-educated, and with Masaryk a chief creator of the Czechoslovak State, Benes today at 41 has been Foreign Minister for a longer term than any man holding such office in Europe. He is ranked in every capital as one of the very small group of first-rate political minds.

It is the conviction of Dr. Benes, expressed to me with much earnestness just before Hindenburg's nomination as candidate of the German junkers, that a crisis of the first magnitude is arriving in the affairs of the League of Nations. He expects the Assembly at Geneva next September will be the most momentous meeting ever held. A turn will be taken' open-eyed, either toward its strengthening and amplification, or definitely backward, with an ensuing loss of confidence in it by a large proportion of its membership. To explain why Dr. Benes thinks this meeting will be so momentous, and should be prepared for with care and energy, we must go back for a moment and follow his discussion of some of the special problems facing the countries of the Danube basin.

"The political and economic organization of Central and Eastern Europe is far from finished," he began, "whereas the situation in the West may be called stabilized. That is why I think the Pact of Guaranty proposed by Germany fits the actual existing situation. As in physics, so in politics, expanding forces follow directions where there is least power of resistance. The 'drang nach osten' was the pre-war manifestation of this law; the same manifestation will mark Germany's future evolution. Her desire to dominate this part of Europe is natural; but it is fatal. It is not chauvinstic to say so, it is merely stating a fact. Seventy million Germans—eighty millions tomorrow—blocked by the established boundaries of the West, wish to maintain the possibility of turning again toward the East.

Position of Austria.

"It is with this situation in mind that we must view all the problems of this part of Europe. You ask whether Austria is to be allowed to join Germany. What would that union mean? In the first place, it would mean that Germany would become a neighbor of Italy; and that, to Italy, implies the reopening of the South Tyrol question with a great instead of a small State, and the imminence of German pressure toward Trieste. The union would also mean that Germany would have a common frontier with Hungary. Czechoslovakia, surrounded on half her frontiers by a united German State, would find Hungary also at her flank, bound even more inexorably than Germany to the idea of revenge and the restitution of her ancient privileges. Rumania and Jugoslavia, today far enough removed from this disturbance to pursue with some calm their processes of internal consolidation, would also become directly menaced.

"In other words, the pre-war policy of Germany would inevitably begin again. And its end would inevitably be the same.

"In the name of European peace, then, it is necessary for Austria to retain her independence. It is often asserted that this injunction is contrary to the self-determination of nations. I say the question rather is one of political advisability, of comparing one good with another, and that the larger good must govern the smaller. It is not as if Austria were the slave of Czechoslovakia or Italy or Jugoslavia. We do not hate her or wish to exploit her. She has a fair opportunity to live and prosper as she is. We simply say that, in view of past history, we are justified in demanding that if (as is far from certain) the majority of her population soberly and consistently desire union with Germany, the sacrifice which they must bring to the cause of European peace is to do without that union."

I inquired whether it were not conceivable that the union of Austria with Germany might strengthen German democracy rather than German reaction, adding that Dr. Frank, the Austrian "Gross Deutsch's leader, had said he was unalterably opposed to union in a Hohenzollern monarchy.

"You are right," replied Dr. Benes, "in thinking Catholic Austria is disinclined to domination by Protestant Prussia or Protestant Hohenzollerns. But the Austrians are like weathercocks, veering about in every political gust. Therefore, though quite sincere in saying they would accept union only with a democratic or Socialist Germany, we must recollect that in character they are essentially reactionary, and that between them and the conservative strongholds of South Germany there is the bond of religion and temperament."

It was the same question I had put earlier to President Masaryk. I had received much the same answer, except that Masaryk had gone further, speaking of the possibility of the erection of a strong Catholic and conservative State in Central Europe, including Hungary and perhaps Coatia, as the dream of more than one wire-puller high in the direction of politico-religious policy. And Masaryk said my intimations that there is support for such a move in certain French circles, by no means purely royalist and clerical, were not at all extravagant.

Dr. Benes resumed his sequence of thought:

"With these and similar problems before us we smaller States of Eastern Europe must come into collaboration. The Little Entente is often mentioned as the model for such collaboration, but as I shall show you presently that is an error. Nevertheless, the Little Entente represents a most useful preliminary step, which has tided us over a precarious period. Let me recall its raison d'etre.

"After the war it was common talk that the new succession States were doomed to early destruction. We had grave external problems, and we also had minority questions and difficulties with Communist elements. Projects for a Hapsburg restoration were taken up by our enemies as a means of destroying us, even the Communists joining in on the theory that by forwarding the aims of the reactionaries they would produce a conflict of which they themselves might be able to take advantage. The Little Entente, with its absolute prohibition of a Hapsburg restoration, was our answer to this menace.

"Today it is evident that there is no imminent danger of a Hapsburg restoration. If a Hapsburg is called back to rule at Budapest or Vienna it would be important not because he himself is a positive danger, but because it would magnify mistrust among all neighboring States and introduce an era of dangerous tension.

"So, you see, this Hapsburg question is not a mere internal question for Hungary and Austria to decide for themselves. Remember, we had the Hapsburgs here in Prague. I am not concerned whether Hungary is a monarchy or not, provided they take a different dynasty. But they must sacrifice the Hapsburgs (if, remembering how they struggled against the Hapsburg domination seventy-five years ago, it can be called a sacrifice) for the sake of European peace.

"Nor, in the same way, is there any longer a Communist danger in Europe. The day for that is gone. Moscow knows it. Can any one fail to know it?

"In every important European State the Communist parties are declining in vigor and power. Here is Czechoslovakia the Communist Party has disintegrated so far that it has practically vanished. The chief points of Communist attack were in Germany and the Balkans. In Germany Communism is dead. In the Balkans its activities continue, and difficulties of one sort or another may occur as a result. But the real danger of a Communist sweep in Europe is past.

"That is why," continued Dr. Benes, "the Bolshevists are looking now toward Asia. By stirring up trouble there they hope to frighten America into extending recognition, and similarly persuade Britain to trade off recognition in return for a promise to cease propaganda in India. Of course it is a hoax. How can it be anything else when one is asked to depend on the undertakings of a Government founded on the principle of social revolution and avowedly accepting the promise that dishonorable trickery of any sort is proper in pursuance of that principle? Does anyone really imagine that the paper a pledge to cease propaganda in Asia or anywhere else was written on would be worth putting away in the archives? Like everything else emanating from Moscow, it would be worthless—futile—a lie.

"Let me return to the thread of my remarks. When we of the Little Entente saw that there was no longer grave danger of a Hapsburg restoration, and no danger of a Communist or other revolution, we entered upon the second and more constructive phase of our work, in the course of which a basis has been laid for economic revival and internal stabilization. As a result of our success, we are sure that except in the case of a general European cataclysm no sort of external aggression can any longer hope to defeat our 45 millions, intent on the preservation of our charters of liberty and our national integrity.

"It is quite erroneous, however, as I have already intimated, to talk as though from this point the Little Entente could go on developing, taking in new members and gradually being transformed into a Danubian Confederation. The Little Entente is not a club to which new members can be added, merely if they are agreeable, without changing the club's constitution.

"The Little Entente was formed for a special defensive purpose, and to take in Poland or Greece, or any other State, would change its orientation and in fact alter its very substance. With Poland a member we should have to talk at our meetings about Dantzic, Silesia and Lithuania, and with Greece a member we should be occupied with Thrace and Saloniki. I favor the closest understanding with Poland and Greece. But the fact remains that we are not confronted by a situation demanding the enlargement of the Little Entente's negative idea, but demanding that it be replaced or supplemented by something else much more general and constructive.

"The first steps in this direction probably must be of an economic nature. But later, in the future, perhaps the long future, we can hope for something in the political sense also, something that one might speak of as a 'League of Small Nations.'

"I would stress the fact that every State in any such arrangement would have to be entirely equal one with another—no discrimination, no attempts at domination, nothing, in fact, of the sort which Budapest and Vienna no less than Bucharest and Belgrade fear lurks in the conception that is described in the words 'Danubian Confederation. In the League of Nations each member State retains its sovereignty, yet their collaboration is of a very important nature. I think of some such collaboration as that—only rather closer—for our part of Europe, not of discredited forms such as a Zollverein or a Danubian Confederation.

"In the past the great nations have not found their pretexts for wars chiefly in direct quarrels between themselves, but have used the difficulties of the small nations and suppressed nationalities of Eastern Europe and the Balkans for that purpose. We are still in danger of being used as pawns in world politics, where we cannot control our destinies but only suffer. We must look to the future, we must plan to escape from our traditional position of impotency, we must organize and find a guaranty for ourselves if one cannot be found for us."

Future of League at Stake'

Here Dr. Benes approached the subject of the Geneva Protocol, of which he was one of the principal creators, and the rejection of which following the change of administration in England prevented what he still thinks would have been one of the most promisi steps ever taken for European peace.

"The Geneva Protocol," he continued, "would have given us assurance that we should not hereafter be used as stalking horse in conflicts between the great powers. Following its rejection comes the proposal from Germany of a pact of guarantee of frontiers in Western Europe, to be signed by Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Belgium. I believe very strongly that it represents a step in the right direction, because if Germany is barred from making war in the west it will be difficult for her to make war in the east.

"With the new military technique, long-range guns, aviation, radio and so on it is hard to isolate war. Prague is nearer Paris and London and even New York that is often realized. That means that the repercussions of our troubles must be felt abroad and that in every Foreign Office of the civilized world steps must be taken to prevent us from being embroiled in war if the country for which that Foreign Office is working is not to risk being embroiled in some way in that war also.

"Therefore, if we in Eastern Europe can band together in some sort of way such as I have already described, to prevent our being exploited and manhandled, and if the pact of security is adopted in some form in the west, I think the future can be said to look fairly bright. For the moment the Geneva Protocol must remain in the discard. But it will continue to be the ideal toward which a road must eventually be found. Meanwhile, as I have indicated, there is concrete and immensely important work to be done.

"I am not exaggerating when I say that on the success of that work during the next few months depends in very large measure the whole future of the League of Nations. If the States immediately concerned are able to achieve the proposed pact of guaranty we in the eastern part of Europe will feel that something definite has been achieved for European peace. From that more secure ground we can begin talking about the question of disarmament.

"But suppose no such advance has been registered by the time we come to Geneva in September. The stark fact will confront us that all the hopes pinned on the Geneva Protocol have been cast aside and that nothing, absolutely nothing, has been constructed to take its place.

"That," said Dr. Benes slowly, "would be a most serious situation. Disagreeable discussions over disarmament would be certain to occur.

"Were Germany to ask for admission to the League under such circumstances the question of what should be done would be most delicate, and out of it might follow very grave consequences. As a member of the League, Germany would of course participate in the disarmament discussions, and they would naturally take a rather new turn. Would the States who had been left without a guaranty of any nature feel like collaborating in such discussions?

"You see at once the dangers of the situation. Therefore, I repeat, it is vital that some definite progress be registered before the meeting of the Assembly in September." A pause followed. "If no step is registered I cannot predict what may not happen."

Truth About Germany Revealed.

Dr. Benes was asked one more question to round off his remarkably complete and consecutive survey of the European situation—a question regarding the pending elections in Germany and the challenge presented by the candidature of General von Hindenburg. I suggested that it was a delicate subject, and that perhaps he would not care to discuss it.

"On the contrary," said Dr. Benes, "it is a clear and simple subject, and I want very much to talk about it. Hindenburg's candidacy is the most fortunate event imaginable. Whether he wins or is beaten much will have been accomplished

"If he wins, all Europe—America, too—cannot fail to see and understand the power of the secret forces in Germany against which we have been struggling. Here is the old war hero, pushed out with the Kaiser's blessing as the ideal of all good Germans. Well, we shall learn how many share those ideals. It will be a showdown between the republic and the monarchy.

"Suppose Hindenburg is beaten. Here, also, is a great gain. We shall know, if Hindenburg is defeated, that reaction and despotism are defeated, and we shall be free to draw our own conclusions and suit our actions to the more promising situation.

"There is no disguising that should Hindenburg win a new crisis in the affairs of Europe would be upon us. There would be a reaction of a most pronounced and dangerous sort in all countries. But it is always better to know what must be faced than to work in the dark, each with his own opinion. I prefer facts—above all, disagreeable facts—to suppositions and fears. The truth is simple. The truth about Germany will now, by her elections, be reduced to very simple terms.

"That is a great gain, no matter what the result."

Rheumatism and Lumbago are Banished by

Dr. William's Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality—and more

Some diseases give immunity from another attack, but rheumatism and lumbago (which is really muscular rheumatism) work just the other way. Every attack invites another.

There is scarcely any disease which physicians find more difficult to treat successfully than rheumatism. Long study, however, has shown that the seat of the disease is in the blood. By maintaining the quality of the blood, you are doing the best possible thing to prevent and combat rheumatism.

That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills has proved successful in thousands of cases of rheumatism and lumbago. These pills enrich the blood and enable it to throw off the poisons of the disease. And so long as the blood is kept pure and rich, there need be no fear of a return of the trouble.

Mrs. Annie Wright, Woolchester, Alta., says:—"I was a sufferer from rheumatism for six years and most of that time my life was one of misery. I tried several doctors but never got more than temporary relief. The trouble seemed to affect my whole system. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and through these I found complete relief. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from this trouble."

METHODISTS TO ASSUME DUTIES BEFORE JUNE 10

London Conference Ruling That New Charges Become Effective June 7.

SMALL MAJORITY.

Sunday, June 7 Emphasized as Day of Final Methodist Service.

LONDON, Ont., May 23.—(Canadian Press).—By a small majority the ministers of the London Methodist Conference voted Friday to make a conference ruling that all clergymen moved by the stationing committee this session be responsible for their new charges on Sunday, June 7. This decision expressed the wish of the conference that the ministers be established in their new fields of service prior to the consummation of Church Union. On the other hand, some 90 delegates did not want the change of circuits to take place until the end of June, but the ruling of the majority prevailed.

Sunday, June 7, was also set as a day in which the clergy were asked to give special attention to the fact that it was a day of final Methodist service, and a committee consisting of Rev. D. N. McCamus, Rev. H. J. Uren and John Elliott was appointed to proceed with the arrangements.

As a result of the presentation on Thursday by Rev. J. W. Graham of a proposed budget system for the first year of Union, the following conference committee was appointed: Revs. John Garbutt (convenor), H. J. Uren, R. H. Barnby, J. E. Holmes, J. W. Hibbert and these laymen: Charles Austin, F. B. Holtby, R. H. Fuller, S. C. Chown, John Joynt.

Carry On For Year.

It was the general policy of the committee to encourage churches and circuits to carry on present arrangements for at least another year in order that as many fields as possible may be available for the ministers of the United Church who will need to be provided for following June 10. It was found, however, that in certain special cases some immediate adjustments were desirable and the committee therefore recommended:

Dutton Circuit: That the Wallacetown and Tyrconnel appointments of this circuit be detached and with the Presbyterian Union minority of Wallacetown be constituted a charge to be served by a Presbyterian minister, and that the Dutton appointment with the Presbyterian Union minority of Dutton be constituted a charge to be served by a Methodist minister.

Oil Springs Circuit: That the Presbyterian Church of Oil Springs be received as part of this circuit and that the whole be in charge of a Methodist minister.

Oil City Circuit: That the Presbyterian Church of Oil City be received as a part of this circuit and that the whole be in charge of a Presbyterian minister.

Wyoming Circuit: That the Brooks appointment be detached from this circuit and that South Plympton Presbyterian Church be received in its place, a Methodist minister to be in charge.

Marthaville Circuit: That the Brooks appointment of the Wyoming Circuit be attached to this circuit and that a Presbyterian minister be placed in charge.

Teeswater Circuit: That the union Presbyterian minority of Teeswater be received to make a union charge at Teeswater to be supplied by a Presbyterian minister.

Armow Circuit: That the Methodist congregation of Armow be permitted to unite with the neighboring Presbyterian congregation and with the remainder of the present Armow circuit to constitute a charge to be supplied by a Methodist minister.

Tiverton Circuit: That the present Tiverton circuit with the addition of Underwood and Centre Bruce Presbyterian Churches be constituted a charge to be supplied by a Presbyterian minister.

CARS DAMAGED NEAR MARMORA

Tea Delivery Truck Wrecked by Board Tangling Steering Gear

TWO MEN HURT

MARMORA, May 23.—There has been quite a chapter of accidents to automobiles the past two days. Mr. K. B. Patterson of Deloro in returning from Marmora Wednesday evening was making the descent near Mrs. A. McInroy's, when the car got beyond control and struck a large stone on the side of the road, completely demolishing two wheels. On Thursday morning on Ocean Blend tea van delivering at Deloro accidentlly strnck a board which got into the steering gear, wrecking the car and causing serious injury to the two occupants. On returning home to Marmora Thursday evening from electrician duties at Deloro, Mr. M. W. Emmorey had the misfortunte of his sttering gear breaking. Travelling at a low speed, the occupants of his car were but little imperilled.

Beer Supply Arrived.

Thursday was Ascension Day in other than an ecclesiastical aspect. Beer here as everywhere ascended to a 4.4 standard. The local consignment arrived early by truck. At the price to which it has benerally ascended, local wets classify it as a luxury.

Booster's Banquet.

The second monthly banquet of the Marmora Booster Club was held at the St. James Hotel at noon on Thursday. Host T. E. Potts furnished an excellent fare. There was an excellent attendance. Reeve G. B. Airhart was the special speaker for the occasion, handling very capably his theme, "Hastings County."

A very handsome banner has recently been purchased by Harmony L.O.B.A., No. 600. This lodge is making excellent progress for the short time it has been in existence.

Marmora Dramatic Club, assisted by Mr. W. M. Lester, preesnted the one act comedy "Columbine," and the two act play "Her Son's Sweetheart," at Deloro Hall on Wednesday. Being held a little earlier than originally advertised, the attendance was not so good as the performance merited. The attendance at the dance which followed was rather better.

Margaret, widow of the late Charles Devine, passed away at her home at Deloro on Thursday evening at an advanced age. Though ailing for some time, her death came with great suddenness.

Harrington was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Clem Lynch, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lynch. Rev. Father Galvin performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of friends of both parties. The bride looked charming in a brown suit with hat to match and was attended by her aunt, Anna Harrington. The groom was assisted by Martin Carroll junior. After the ceremony the bridal party with the immediate friends motored to the home of the bride's father where all partook of a dainty wedding dinner. CANADIAN MONEY

The lowering of such levels was a very important consideration, although it did not seem to have dawned on the government at all. Insofar as there was any commercial object in making the expenditures, the country was entering upon a struggle to keep on digging while the water was sinking involving increased responsibilities. Would it not be wise, Mr. Eeighen asked to consider essential and keep points essential to business in condition?

Dr. King observed that that was the policy of the government.

Mr. Meighen replied that Dr. King knew the government was not doing anything of the kind. While revenue was declining, expenditure was increasing.

Expenditure Reduced.

Dr. King returned that there had been a reduction of $2,000,000 in public works this year.

The item carried and the House considered one of $100,000 for Oshawa harbor improvements. Mr. Meighen said that while Oshawa was one of th meost progressive towns in Canada, he questioned the wisdom of starting work on harbors which in later years would involve extensive expenditure.

A. Speakman (Progressive, Red Deer) spoke briefly, advocating a policy which would place upon the municipality and those using the harbor, certain responsibilities for the cost. "Harbors should be, he said, on a partly self-supporting basis. This vote also carried.

WEDDING BELLS.

STEPHENS—LITTLE

Burnbrae, May 23.—Wedding bells have begun ringing in Burnbrae already this summer. The first peal was heard on Wednesday last, when Kathleen Little, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Little, became the bride of Ross Stephens, also of Seymour. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. D. A. McKenzie, in the presence of the immediate relatives. On their return from a trip to Toronto, the young couple will reside on the farm owned by Mr. Stephens on the 4th Concession of East Seymour. The bride was one of Burnbrae's most popular young ladies, while the groom is also well known to the young people here. Everyone wishes them success in their new adventure.

ROBERTSON—McGARVEY.

MARMORA, May 23. — A goodly congregation of relatives and friends assembled at St. Paul's church at 4.30 p.m., on Wednesday, to witness the nuptial knot being tied between Iris Aldora, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan McCarvey of Marmora, and Donald, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Robertson, of Deloro.

The ceremony was performed by the Rector, the Rev. Philip Caiger-Watson. The bride, who was charmingly attired in a blouse of powder blue Georgette and suit of navy blue tricotine and wearing a poke bonnet of new rusk color, was given away by her father.

Miss Stella McGarvey, cousin of the bride, attended as bridesmaid whilst Mr. Floyd Robertson, brother of the bridegroom performed the duties of best man.

Prior to the service the organist, Mrs. W. R. Litt, played very sweetly Mendelssohn's wedding march. At its appointed place, the hymn, "O, Perfect Love," was sung by the congregation. During the signing of the register, the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal chorus were pleasingly heard. The presents were both numerous and costly, evidencing the popularity of the young couple. Both, it may be mentioned, are members of Marmora L.T.B. 177.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride, was a white gold wristwatch, to the bridesmaid a set of pearls and jade, and to the best man a set of gold cuff links.

The wedding banquet, at the home of the bride's parents, to which over 60 guests sat down was served, and at its conclusion a most enjoyable sociable evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Robertson will temporarily reside in Marmora.

CAVAN LIBERAL-CONSERVATIVES ELECTED WARDEN J. L. M'CAMUS AS PRESIDENT FOR TWO YEARS

Other Officers Moved Up a Step at Biennial Election.

TRUST LEADERS

Will Hold Picnic Soon to Discuss Policy of the Government.

MILLBROOK, May 23.—The annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of Cavan Township was held in the town hall on Wednesday evening, the retiring president, Mr. L. H. Winslow, in the chair.

The attendance was satisfactory, but owing to the unavoidably late hour when the meeting was called to order, no speeches of any length were indulged in.

Mr. Winslow, in his opening remarks, explained the reason why the meeting was called in May when the original plan was to hold it in November, and also made a brief reference to the present political situation as it affects the Conservative party.

Mr. A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., addressed the gathering, giving some account of what was accomplished at the recent session of the Legislature, and incidentally referring to the action of the government in sanctioning the sale of four-point-four beer. The Redistribution Bill was another point touched upon.

The suggestion that the Township Association hold a picnic in the near future when prominent speakers will be present, giving opportunity for further elucidation of the Government's liquor policy, and other important questions of the day, received favorable consideration.

In the course of a general discussion, resolutions of confidence in the two leaders of the Conservative party, Right Honourable Arthur Meighen, and Honorable G. Howard Ferguson, were informally passed.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Warden J. L. McCamus.
1st Vice-Presi.—W. W. Brown.
2nd Vice-Pres.—J. H. McGill.
Secretary—I. W. Larmer.
Treasurer—J. H. Paul.

The Township Association has found it advisable to change its officers after two years' service, and this happened to be the year the change was due. Warden McCamus was moved up from First Vice-President to the President's chair, and W.W. Brown, the former Second Vice-President, took Mr. McCamus' place.

An optimistic spirit prevailed throughout the gathering.

Young People's League.

The Young Peoples' League had a somewhat unusual programme for a literary evening this week, the president, Miss Estelle Hetherington, giving a practical demonstration of "How to study a Sunday School lesson", acting as teacher, and using the entire attendance as her class.

Each pupil was provided with Reference Bible, note-book, and pencil, and the study period lacked nothing in interest, attention or instruction.

The previous Sunday's lesson was reviewed, and the connecting verses read before the study of the lesson proper was proceedd with. The illuminative value of the reference passages was learned by some for the first time, while historical and practical points were brought out clearly, and given due emphasis. It is quite safe to predict that the young people would welcome a repitition of this programme at some future date.

Captured Young Foxes.

Mr. Wes. Williamson of Cavan, recently secured eight young, wild foxes in the vicinity of Pontypool, digging them out of their snug quarters, and placing them in captivity, with the object of carrying them over until fall when their pelts which are now quite valuable, will net good financial returns.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Westall, of Peterborough, have returned to Millbrook, and are making their home with her uncle, Mr. J. W. Gardiner.

Mrs. Edgar Burnham, who last week returned after spending some months in St. Petersburg, Florida, with her daughter, Mrs. A. C. Darling, and granddaughter, Betty, motored over from Peterborough on Thursday, and were guests of Mrs. E. S. Burnham. Mrs. M. Staples accompanied them to her home in Cavan, which she has now reopened for the summer months.

Among the delegates from this section of the county who attended the County Temperance Convention at Orono on Wednesday were: Rev. J. W. Baird, F.- W. Galbraith, H. Fulford, B. Oliver, of Port Hope; Rev. W. Wilkinson, of Pontypool; Rev. R. T. Richards, Cavan; Rev. G. S. Gervan, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Miss M. Needham, Millbrook; W. Jakeman, Pontypool.

Mrs. E. Todd, who has held the position of housekeeper with J. W. Gardiner for the past nine years, is taking a well earned holiday, and is visiting friends at various points. A plesant two weeks were spent with her neice, Mrs. C. Gillies, Oshawa, and the latter accompanied her aunt for a visit with her sister, Miss L. Porter, Pontypool.

Next week Mrs. Todd purposes going to Peterborough where she will make her home with her son, Mr. N. Todd.

Clergymen Called.

Some pastoral changes will probaby take place in this vicinity within the next two months, Rev. R. T. Richards has been invited to Mark Street church, Peterborough, succeding Rev. R. Bamforth, who expects to retire from the active pastorate this year. Rev. R. M. Paterson has received a call to Janetville, of which charge Rev. G. Ross is the present pastor, Cavan and Fraserville, the present circuits, respectively, of these two ministers, have not, as yet, extended calls to any other pastors. All invitations are subject to the approval of the stationing committee which meets in June, when the annual conference is in session at Belleville.

The men of St. John's church, Ida, held a successful "bee" on Thursday, about twenty-five being on hand, with nine teams, to assist in pushing forward the work in connection with the new community Hall.

The foundation was laid last fall, and it is hoped to complete the structure this summer. Ninety-five loads of gravel were drawn on Thursday, and the contractor will be on duty Friday, and construction work will be proceeded with. The hall is to be of cement blocks, the original plans of a frame building having been changed for the more enduring material.

The rector, Rev. Canon Allen, whose health is far from satisfactory, was able to drive out in the afternoon and chat with the workers, expressing his personal pleasure in the encouraging manner with which the work is progressing.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. John's church has labored indefatigably to raise funds toward the expense of building the hall which is a community necessity.

The building is right across from the church, and it is expected by next month the roof will be on, and the final stage of construction approaching.

Oswald Tells Some More About Four-Point-Four

Oswald, the Ancient Mariner, was interveiwed again yesterday, but in a different hostelry than the one that disappointed him on Thursday morning by producing no beer at the appointed hour.

"Well, this is the morning after the night before; how do you feel today?" the enquiring reporter asked Oswald, who was draped over the wicker table in the very similitude of a living interrogation mark.

"Not so bad," he replied with a more cheerful expression in his eyes than had appeared on Wednesday night, "not so bad."

He added a little salt to the amber colored fluid the waiter had provided at a sign, and watched it work its way through the bead and muddy up the clear liquid.

"And what do you think of four-point-four?" asked the reporter, who was in a hurry yesterday.

"Well, it might be better, and it might be worse," the Ancient Mariner admitted grudingly. "Anyhow, it's better nor that two per cent. Son, it looks just like real beer, an' it comes out of the tap with th' same creamy top, an' th' froth sticks to th' glass in th' ol way, but sen" —and he leaned over confidentially and whispered, "there ain't no kick."

After a lapse into silence while his glass was refilled, he continued: "I know I'm drinkin' more than water, but this four by four ain't any substitoote for real beer. Why, I'll tell you when a bunch of th' shantymen used ter come in here in their caulked boots an' start shimmyin' after three set-ups, them was th' days. It'd take a lot of this licker to make a real lumberjack do his stuff."

There was another punctuation mark in the interview while the bar-tender for 2.5 and waiter for 4.4 filled up the glass that emptied surprisingly fast to be so unattractive. A sudden "pop" brought the light of interest to his watery eyes until he was told it was a blow-out on the street.

"Just another false alarm like this four by four", he muttered accusingly. "It's the same all along, either some politician is puttin' it over on us working men or some plootocrat is foolin' us. Now you take this here Ferguson that makes this four by four, what does he know about beer, him what comes from a backwoods town somewhere an' likely never had th' soopreme joy 've chattin' with his fellow men over a sociable glass?"

"Di you see what Ben Spence said about it?" the inquiring reporter asked hurriedly in an effort to steer the Ancient Mariner away from the shoals of politics.

"No, what was that? He couldn't say anythin' worse than I'd say."

"Oh, he says it is quite innocuous, not intoxicating."

"How many glasses did he have" Oswald demanded suspiciously, "to make him talk like that? Me, now, I used to write po'try when I'd had a couple 'a shot of th' old stuff."

"Ben Spence doesn't drink it. He's the great prohibitionist leader."

"Huh!" said Oswald, dismissing Ben with a wave of his hand, and submerging his straggly moutache in the foam-flecked beaker.

After a prolonged silence during which the Ancient Mariner steered his schooner dexterously the while he idly watched the folk who passed on the street and glanced curiously into the beer parlor through unshaded windows, the inquiring reporter asked how the first day of the four-point-four had passed.

"It was like a holiday in th' Klondyke in '98", Oswald said reminiscently. "Everybody was lookin' for somethin' and somebody tried to kid themselves they had it. It was New Beers' day an' there wasn't a chair empty all day long."

"I'll tell you son," he said with a new interest evident in his eyes, "I'll bet the Government didn't want to put the strong stuff on th' market too sudden, but by th' time the toorists is comin' here it ought to be pretty good, eh?"

This last was said rather hopefully, but the inquiring reporter had no encouragement to offer. The four-point-four had been declared "cheering but not inebriating" without promise of change. The Ancient Mariner had been imbibing it two days in the hope that two glasses of four-point-four might approximate one of eight-point-eight and he was not intoxicated. He wasn't even cheerful.

So, ignoring Oswald's again empty tumbler, the reporter went out into arid Peterborough.

NO MOTH DAMAGE

KINGS WINNING IN BATTLE WITH REPUBLICANISM

Return of Monarchy Threatens in Six European Nations Now Republics.

OTHERS REMAIN.

Those That Remain Are Easily Riding Out the Storm.

By C. T. HALLINAN.

LONDON, May 23.—(United Press).—All through Europe the kings are winning.

Those on thrones and those temporarily off, are making gains in popularity, while the republicans, broadly speaking, are losing.

King George of England, King Alfonso of Spain and King Victor Emanuel of Italy have ridden out with ease storms which half a century ago would have destroyed them and their thrones.

And the six empty thrones in Europe, yearning presumably for the royal occupant, enjoy an extraordinary loyalty from millions of nominal republicans—millions of old-fashioned voters who long for the "good old days" before the war when kings were kindly, and queens were beautiful, and prime ministers respectful, and everybody had enough. These six empty thrones—the centre of the enthusiastic devotion of millions—are:

German Empire.
Russian Empire.
Hungary.
Austria.
Poland.
Albania.

Perhaps it doesn't sound like much, listed in that fashion, but it is a list full of trouble for the League of Nations and such well-meaning bodies.

These various monarchial movements in Europe have strange strengths and strange weaknesses.

They have money. They have, apparently, an amazing amount of cold hard cash. And they have queer unexpected, in calculable channels of influence, if not yet of power. They are the unknown of the algebraics of Europe. All the way from stodgy No. 10 Downing street through the Quai d'Orsay down to the chill corridors of the Palacio de los Consejos where the Parliament sat in Madrid, around through Rome and up to monarchical Berlin, these semi-underground king-movements are discussed day by day, sometimes anxiously, always seriously.

1. There are three candidates for the throne of the German Empire. One is the ex-Kaiser, who has his own following; the next is the ex-Crown Prince, who has powerful backing in monarchist circles; the third is Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria whose platform is simple and appeals to millions: "The Hohenzollerns have done their best, with the result that Berlin is a place of gloom and Germany a wreck; why not try the Wittelsbach family, who at least have made Munich a rival to Vienna for gaiety, and Bavaria a land of contented, prosperous homes?"

2. There are two candidates for the vacant throne of Russia — the Grand Duke Cyril and the Grand Duke Nicholas Nikolaivich. Each is revising, modernizing and humanizing his program with the idea of making it attractive to the Muscovite peasant after the latter has grown weary of his third or fourth famine.

3. Prince Otto, the fourteen-year-old son of the late Emperor Karl of Austria-Hungary, is the chief candidate for the vacant throne of Hungary; his mother, the ex-Empress Zita, is safeguarding his interests.

4. In Austria the monarchist movement is the extreme right wing of the Nationalist movement —composed principally of ex-army officers, aristocrats and great land owners. It has a sentimental interest in all monarchical movements, but its domestic strength is, as yet, doubtful.

5. Poland's throne is being nursed by the friends of Prince Sixtus of Bourbon Parma, a brother of the ex-Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary. He was the one who, during the Great War, was sent to Paris with an offer of peace from the Hapsburg dynasty in Austria-Hungary.

6. Albania badly wants a king, since the abdication of Prince William of Wied in September, 1914. At present it has a "regent," who represents primarily the religious element, but, wearying of this, it repeatedly offered the throne to Harry Sinclair, the American oil magnate, and to two rich Englishmen.

There are two other situations where monarchical movements count. One is storm-tossed Bulgaria. True, Bulgaria has a monarch, young King Boris, but thousands of Bulgarians regard him as a usurper; the man they want to see on the throne is the ex-King Ferdinand, now a refugee in Munich.

The other country where an ex-king matters is Greece. A few years ago they thought in Greece that they were all through, forever, with the Gluecksberg dynasty. Now, given the choice between a king with traditions and a Greek politician without traditions, there are murmurs from Greece that "a king might not be so bad!"

SPECIAL SERVICES ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Home and School Night Was Conducted By Rev. W. Allan.

On the second chapter of Hebrews thirteenth verse, "And again, I will put my trust in him," and again, "Behold I and the children which God hath given me," Rev. William Allan based his subject last night in St. Paul's church.

The audience was very large and owing to the announced special nature, there were many children in the audience. It was known as Home and School Night, and it was also the last week-night special service of the two-weeks' campaign Mr. Allan has conducted in St. Paul's church It marked the close of special 92nd anniversary services, and the interest has increased right up to the close.

Speaking on his subject, "The Greatest Day in the History of Mankind," Mr. Allan said, we can take the text in three ways, but its proper convictions apply to Jesus Christ. It takes us to a day which has not yet dawned when Christ will be the head of a new race, a new universe. It is no exaggeration to say this will be the greatest day in the history of mankind. The last shall be heard of the old order of things; there will be a new regime, and new life and laws. That will be a greater day than any yet heard of. When we think of our present world we we marvel at the creation of everything we enjoy; but compared with the first work of the Creator, when God put His words "Very good," on His handiwork, it pales into insignificance; and the grandeur and glory of the present is nothing to the grandeur and glory of that day which is coming when Christ shall rule over all men in peace and righteousness. It was a wonderful day in the Garden of Eden before in entered its precincts; it was another such day when Christ was born, when the angels sang "Peace on earth," and what wonderful days were the days of Christ's crucifixion, and resurrection from the dead, that Easter Day. Pentecost was another wonderful time, with the outpouring of the Holy Ghost; and what a day when Jesus will stand at the head of the new race, and say "Behold I and the children which God hath given me." What a privilege to be called His children. There are perhaps some who will neglect only, not reject this opportunity to become one of His followers, who have not been added to the company of saved people. It will not be because they have not heard the Gospel preached; they may hear it every Sabbath; they are not so far away from the Gospel. They have the promise of Jesus "I am the Resurrection and the Life."

There are two conditions, said Mr. Allan, laid down by Christ Jesus before you can be saved—to be saved in the company Christ mentions. Hear the Gospel—it is good news to the sinner. Every person outside of the very young folks, has heard the Word of God preached, and there is no excuse for them not being saved—only neglect. But what kind of faith is ours?

The first condition imposed, is: Hear the Gospel; second condition, We must be willing to have Jesus as our Saviour. We can tell whether our hearts are right. The sentiment of the text will go sweeping through our souls, as we think of the words of the hymn—

"Now to be Thine, yea, Thine alone,
O Lamb of God, I come."

We can call this church, with its 92 years of existence and good work, and the memories of those who have labored here, to testify to this condition.

Christian workers—some do not work very strenuously—had a big task, when they should examine themselves to find out whether they are worthy the positions they are filling.

Sunday school teachers especially have a responsibility of some magnitude to fill. Not only are they to teach the scholars, but they should try to win the scholars for the Lord Jesus. Don't try to have old heads on young shoulders, said the preacher, but have them remain young as long as possible. And with the younger folks the older people should mingle, and forget their grey hairs. Teachers should be examples to the pupils—always in their places, ready for a prompt start in the school, seeming to say to the superintendent, "Behold, I and the children which God hath given me." And the personal grip of the scholar, with his interest and attention, should be aimed for. A Sunday school teacher in Boston, very ordinary in his manner, took very sick, and not having a hope for recovery, set out one day to visit his scholars. He visited one working in a shoe store, and after a few minutes had the honor and pleasure of converting him. This boy turned out to be a great evangelist, Dwight L. Moody. This is the task before teachers.

This doctrine applies to parents, too. Children are either a blessing or a curse. It depends on the parents as to this condition. We should not look on them as so many encumbrances. This may not apply in Peterboro as much as in the United States. A woman wishing an apartment house told the landlord her children were all in the cemetery, and thus signed the papers. What was his consternation when the woman moved in with seven children. She had told the truth, but did not say they were dead and buried. It was a lesson she wished to teach him the children were God's gift, and were to be looked upon as such.

Presbyterians should revere their covenants, and live up to them. Bring up the child in the way it should go. It may wander later in life, but God will bring it back, and God will exonerate you since you have fulfilled His command. The childhood time of life is a very impressionable period, and demands the best surroundings and teaching of the home. Some people say they are too young to join the Church. Are they too young for the devil to catch? How much more should they be allowed to make confession of their faith in God? They may not have the same ability to love God as to love you. Don't keep them away; when they are old, they will not depart from following God.

Concluding a splendid discourse, Mr. Allan mentioned three things lacking in our present-day life: (1) The family pew, with the whole family together on the Sabbath day; it is needed, and is not too old-fashioned. (2) The family altar, which is being neglected, and should have its place in every home. (3) The religious training of our young at home. It would be wonderful to have an unbroken circle of God's children in heaven. The children of God will be "all in" through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

The choir were in their places last night and rendered suitable music.

To-morrow Rev. Mr. Allan will have charge of both services. The morning subject will be: "God's Wonderful Word and Fundamentalism versus Modernism." The evening subject: "A Plain Talk About Another Man's Wife." These will be the last services of Mr. Allan's visit to St. Paul's Church.

QUANTITY PRODUCTION

Brings the Famous Hudson Super Six Within Reach of All.

Hudson-Essex is closely approaching the 100,000th car for 1925.

When this car arrives, Hudson will have achieved the record of reaching the 100,000 mark first among all six-cylinder manufacturers. According to Hudson officials, this will be the second consecutive year in which Hudson-Essex has led the six-cylinder field in reaching the six-figure mark in production.

In 1924, it is said, the 100,000th car came in mid-summer, while this year's entry is strictly a spring-season achievement.

"This accomplishment," declares C. L. Brewer, Hudson-Essex distributor, "serves again to identify Hudson-Essex as the world's leading six-cylinder manufacturer. The simply astounding and still mounting success of the Hudson and Essex coaches has brought Hudson-Essex to the front. Yet I feel that we have only scratched the surface of the market for these useful, economical and attractive cars. The demand is growing every day.

"The coaches are proof that the public wants utility and value in motor cars. Novelties both in mechanisms and in body fittings have a limited appeal, but the broad usefulness and all-around value of the coaches fills the needs of the thousands and tens of thousands of average motorists.

"As a consequence of the Hudson price cut—certainly one of the biggest automobile surprises of the year—the rush of buyers for Hudson and Essex cars has grown into a regular stampede for cars. Our problem is to get enough cars to assure prompt deliveries.

"When continuous operation at capacity made it possible, Hudson passed along the benefit to the public and expects to benefit itself by ever-increasing business.

"This price cut is but one step in a general and established policy of Hudson to pass along to motor car buyers reductions in costs and general economies effected at the factory.

"It is Hudson policy to give high value and low prices; to step out aggressively, and to maintain its leadership by a vigorous policy of giving the utmost for the smallest amount of money."

DOLES IN BRITAIN INVOLVE A HUGE OUTLAY OF MONEY

Churchill's New Insurance Proposal Involves $3,000,000,000 if Capitalized.

STATE'S PROTEGES

Asquith's Old Age Pension Act in 1908, Started Spreading Scheme.

By P. W. WILSON.

For all who are watching the evolution of democracy, whether they be economists or employers or employed, or politicians whose careers depend on votes, the challening feature in the budget just introduced into the House of Commons by Winston Churchill is not the attempt to base a general tariff on silk and other commodities; not even the reductions in the income taxes; not even the decision to return to a gold standard; but the proposal to establish, here and now, a complete and compulsory system of insured pensions for the workingman's widow, whatever be her age, and allowances for her children. In addition, he offers old-age pensions at the age of 65 years instead of 70 years, which concession brings in 900,000 beneficiaries.

And will it end there? If 65 years, why not pensions at 60 years? Earlier superannuation may prove to be very expensive. The Churchill proposals, as they stand, involve a liability for the State which, if capitalized, would amount to $3,000,000,000.

Controversial From the Start.

We have here, indeed, a broad and formidable addition to the social policy in Britain which was inaugurated in 1908 with Mr. Asquith's Old-Age Pension act, and extended later by Lloyd George's famous budget to benefit for sickness, disablement, maternity, tuberculosis and even unemployment in certain industries—for instance, engineering. About this entire policy, in all its complicated ramifications, there has been, from the outset, an acute controversy.

To some of us, national pensions and insurance have seemed to be a long-overdue acknowledgment of social obligations habitually neglected, and we have asked ourselves how it was ever possible for Britain to get along without such organized provision for especial emergencies. But there have been others who have seen in this entire system a resort to "doles," a discouragement to thrift, a release from initiative among the workers, and an inducement to "slack" instead of maintaining output.

Since the war the issue has grown in gravity. Mobilization and demobilization threw the nation completely out of gear. Some kind of maintenance had to be arranged for the unemployed, who even today number 1,250,000. And despite the protests of the Labor Party in Parliament, Mr. Churchill is well within the facts in hinting that many of the unemployed living on the "dole," have become "chronic." It may not have been so much their fault as their misfortune, but where a man's faculties are in abeyance his character can hardly be unaffected.

America Watches the "Doles."

In the United States the condition of Britain—involving as it does her financial credit—is today closely observed. Just as Britain, on her side, is watching how prohibition is enforced, so are Americans scrutinizing the "doles." Pensions and insurance may not be definable strictly as socialism. The State in Britain has not assumed responsibility for the direct and daily conduct of industry. But the State has certainly determined the disposition of the fruits of industry, both capital and wages, on a scale which suggests a growing suzerainty over the realm of private enterprise.

It must be remembered that Britain, a small area, occupied by 43,000,000 persons crowded at about 600 to the square mile, has long since ceased to be, in the American sense of the phrase, a land of opportunity. A man who loses his job is literally out of work. There is no developing west to which he can migrate and make a fresh start. Migration for him means emigration to the United States or a dominion. Also, the country is under the absolute authority of one sovereign Parliament. There are no forty-eight States, all of them fortified against Parliament by State rights. Hence, a scheme of pensions and insurance can be made uniform and can be easily enforced.

For an employer or employed person not to contribute is an offense against the law, which not many are willing, for the sake of a few pennies a week, to commit. And the law also compels the taxpayer to add his contribution. By a series of statutes, therefore, Parliament has politely but firmly informed residents in Britain that, for the future, they must love their neighbors as themselves. The measure of this legal affection may be, at the moment, reckoned in sixpences. But as the system is perfected, the sixpences may become shillings and the shillings may become half-crowns.

Responsibility That Rests.

The same staff of officials can as easily deal with the larger as with the smaller scales of contribution and benefits. Nor is it politically possible to withdraw the benefits when once granted, or to diminish them. In cases where the workers have contributed to the benefits, there is a bargain which obviously the State cannot repudiate. And where, as in the case of old-age pensions, the individual has contributed nothing save his or her industrious citizenship, you can no more cancel the expectations of maintenance than the United States could cancel her recent bonus to veterans.

A simple statement of how the cost of these schemes has increased will illustrate possibilities. The old-age pensions granted by Mr. Asquith ran up to five shillings, or $1.25 a week, for persons who have reached 70, provided that their personal income does not exceed 10 shillings, or $2.50, a week. About a million persons received the pension, and the cost to the State was $60,000,000.

Let us see how the account stands today. The following figures, expressed in dollars, are sufficiently exact for our present purpose. In 1922-23 the cost of pensions to Britain was:

For War Veterans	$427,000,000
Army, Navy and Air Force	95,000,000
Old Age	113,000,000
Civil Service	25,000,000
Irish Police	10,000,000
School Teachers	10,000,000
	$680,000,000

Unemployment cost $231,000,000, and the ministry of health, which is responsible for sickness benefits, had a vote of a round 100 million dollars or more. In other words, adding these figures together, we find that, on benefits of every kind, Britain has been paying one billion dollars—indeed, more than that sum—every year.

Huge Expenditure For Future.

The war pensions are, of course, diminishing day by [illegible] this saving [illegible] cent [illegible]

[illegible] income limit. An [illegible] of over 100 million dollars [illegible] develop as years pass.

It had been hoped that these schemes of pensions and insurance would have diminished the expenditure in Britain on the destitute who come as paupers under what is there called the Poor Law. The cost of pauperism is met by "rates" or local taxes as well as by the Imperial Exchequer. And in 1917-18, the cost was $93,000,000—regarded as a diminished sum. Five years later, it had risen to $230,000,000. And this figure, or something like it, must be added to the ag[illegible]nsions and other benefits.

[illegible] these items and add[illegible] to the schemes [illegible] employers, it is quite [illegible] annual charge on Britain [illegible] law which is involved in this [illegible] amounts to $1,200,000,000, or $30 for every man, woman and child in the country. Between 50 and 60 cents per week would be, for each resident, a fair estimate. It is paid in direct contribu[illegible] in national ta[illegible] or in local [illegible] benefits.

The [illegible]

Let us next consider the [illegible] persons who receive money or maintenance from the State. There are, say, 2,100,000 war pensioners; there are 900,000 old age pensioners; there are 1,250,000 unemployed; and there are 1,500,000 paupers, receiving indoor or outdoor relief. This means that 5,750,000 individual allowances of one kind and another are distributed among 43,000,000 persons living in about 9,000,000 homes. The figure does not include the number of persons who on any given date are receiving the various sickness benefits, add widows and orphan children under 14 years.

It will be argued that this addition will withdraw many families from the Poor law; that is, from pauperism; but the new proposals can hardly fail to bring the number of benefits granted in any given week to a figure beyond 6,500,000. It appears to be an allowance of two such benefits, on the average, for every three homes of five persons.

For all this, there is beyond question one gravely contributing cause. That cause is drink. As long as Great Britain retains 100,000 public houses or saloons, and as long as there is in those saloons an average expenditure per home of say, $4 weekly, with all that this means of waste, degeneracy and lack of thrift, there is bound to be a desperate attempt by means of "doles" to make good the actuarial deficiencies so accumulated. The natural and automatic surplus on the family budget is drained, and the contributory schemes of pensions and allowances is an endeavor to salvage a part of the loss.

According to the standards of the United States, where a weekly wage of $50 is not uncommon, the contributions paid into these British schemes, like the benefits paid out, will seem absurdly small. Take the unemployment insurance. Men from 18 years of age contribute 18 cents a week, and boys below that age contribute 8 cents. The corresponding contributions by the employer are, for every man 20 cents and for every boy 10 cents. By women of 16 years and upward, the contribution is 14 cents, and girls under that age, pay 8 cents. Here the employer contributes sixteen cents on behalf of each woman and nine cents on behalf of each girl. The State contribution works out at about nine cents.

For the sickness insurance, the standard contribution is 10 cents a week by a man and 8 cents a week by a woman with the same sums, respectively, paid by the employer. The men and women who contribute to health insurance number about 15,000,000. A million or two of these—domestic servants, for instance, agricultural laborers, and State employes who have a job for life—are exempted from the unemployment scheme. They are to be included, however, in the Churchill additional scheme.

Role of the Post Office.

The method of collecting the money introduces us to an interesting feature in the British landscape—namely, the Post-office. It is the post office that manages, not only the mail but the telegraphs and the telephones, the savings bank, and the distribution of pensions. It is the post office that sells the special insurance stamps that are used by both employers and employed as the currency by which these schemes are worked. You purchase these stamps, moisten them and affix them to the contributors' card. Here again is an indication of how the schemes affect not only the material environment of the workers but their mentality. Into every home, the State has entered, demanding money and granting money. And this vast change has been wrought within a period of twenty years. Until the year 1909 there was not one of these benefits. The entire provision came from friendly societies, insurance [illegible] similar [illegible]

[illegible] 4.75 [illegible] ker con[illegible]. Perma[illegible] just under $2 [illegible] employed man, the [illegible] to 30.75 a week and for a woman $3. Boys and girls receive one-half the adult rate. And the blind qualify for old-age pensions at the age of 50 years.

Under the Churchill scheme the contributions, both by employers and by employed, are increased at the rate of 3 cents a week for women, rising with their present age, to 14 cents and 7 cents, respectively. Every widow whose husband dies after December 31 of this year will receive $2.50 for life or until she remarries. For her eldest child, until the age of 14 years, she receives $1.25 a week. For younger children, 75 cents a week. Thus a widow with four children would have an income of $6 a week.

Finally, the obligation to belong to the scheme is similar to the obligation which already applies to Health and Unemployment Insurance. All persons with an income not exceeding £250 a year, or, roughly $25 a week, must, by this method, make provision for the future. It means [illegible] two-thirds of the

FOUGHT DUEL IN NEW YORK STREET

Two Men Stood Up and Exchanged Revolver Shots —Both Wounded.

BROOKLYN, M[illegible]. — As a result of a duel they fought in a street here to-day, Thomas Nicholson and Charles Casimir are in a hospital and the former is reported to be dying.

Neither could explain the cause of the battle which might cost one his life.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Now that the latest great cloudburst of filth known as the Dennistoun case has fallen upon the young Christian America with the permission and approval of the self-styled "good people" of both sexes might we ask what the women's councils have done to stay this storm of rottenness and corruption?

Nothing, absolutely nothing. Why? Because it is good reading I suppose. What held back those thundering tones of the pulpits of the land? What do you think? What keeps the scarifiers from denouncing the plague of divorce? Not the dense population of divorces in the pews, especially in the U. S.? Oh! no. Nor are the women's councils raising a storm of indignation about that universal pollution of married life either.

It all makes a good story to read. So avid were these people for the story of Mrs. Dennistoun that it was republished again and again and wound up (we hope) with a signed copy of her concessions. If the readers liked whiskey as well as filth and drug-tonics and drug nerve-foods there would be no prohibition. What's 4.4 beer to this? They lash, as Hudibras says, the sins they have no mind to in order that they may enjoy those they are inclined to. A province of broken promises, a province whose manhood and womanhood are tied to the bed-post while their elders read Mrs. Dennistoun's dirty story which indeed she makes a virtue of, asserting her shamelessness is the necessity of the sex.

Respectable people are to be admonished by such as these? What next? What hope for the young? We'll cry softly about 30 per cent wine and 40 per cent home brew because we like it, but down with 4.4 beer and all decency and good faith. Waiter! Bring us another scandal.

Tired Nerves

Mrs. E. R. Walsh, R.R. No. 2, Navan, Ont., writes:—

"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food saved me from a nervous breakdown. I had been nervous, could not sleep and was always tired. The Nerve Food built me up and made me feel like a different person."

MODERN life brings a terrible strain on woman's delicate nervous system.

The continuous whirl of social life, charitable and church work, together with all the cares of home and family entail a burden that the nerves cannot hear.

Sooner or later physical bankruptcy must come and the inevitable break-down.

Why not guard against this by taking a reasonable amount of rest and building up health and strength with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food?

This great restorative has long since proven its merits as the most effective means of building up the exhausted nervous system.

WHAT'S COMING?

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Are we entering on a new age when business methods instead of religion and morals will be applied to the life of the people? Such is the contention of Mr. H. V. Sells, who sees in Prohibition the introduction of straight business methods to the main business of the people which is the reform of their daily lives. Will people be ruled from police-centres? A code of morals will be laid down instead of the present haphazard mode of life that is so unorganised and inefficient. We have a multitude of societies now such as the Salvation Army and countless rescue organisations, all of which can be done away with if salvation is given up for prohibition. Salvation consists in persuasion in pointing to the example of Jesus Christ and His atonement. That may be all very well for Heaven but it is not doing much good on earth where one policeman is worth four ministers.

Are we, as Mr. Sells says, on the eve of a great advance? The gradual weakening of Christianity as a creed and the adoption of the principles of love and forgiveness was only one step which marked the past 25 years. Now another comes on. It is better to keep ten out of ruin here than to send one to Heaven the old way. Instead of weeping and wailing and crying out for something that never comes isn't it far better and cheaper too to make people behave? Of course it is, even if it does away with liberty.

This Built-in Quality Means Lower Costs of Operation

The fast-increasing number of new good Maxwell cars on the streets is causing widespread comment. It is a perfectly logical happening, for no other four delivers the Maxwell combination of 58 miles an hour, 5 to 25 miles in 8 seconds, and 30 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

But there are still greater satisfactions for the Maxwell owner. The car is completely manufactured within its own great plants. This is an advantage of genuine importance to the buyer. In no other way could you be assured of the quality that distinguishes the new good Maxwell from all other fours.

It is this high quality that accounts very largely for the dependable nature of Maxwell performance, the car's durability and, above all, costs of operation and maintenance so low as to create a new standard of economy.

We are always eager to demonstrate the new good Maxwell, for a ride in the car proves at once that it offers more fine motoring than was ever before available at the price.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan. Maxwell dealers and superior Maxwell service everywhere.

LADIES' NIGHT KIWANIS CLUB

Dr. John L. Austin Gave Address on Quacks and Quackery.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME.

Kiwanis Ladies' Night, held by the club at the Empress Hotel last evening, was a very jolly affair. About seventy people, including club members, their wives and friends, were in attendance. A banquet at seven o'clock was served in the usual excellent fashion of the Empress Hotel, the tables decorated with pink and whit carnations. Hugh Nevin acted as song leader, with George Henderson at the piano. During the evening, two groups of songs were sung by Miss Mathilde Masson, in very sweet voice: 'Down in the Forest," "Perspicacity," "At Dawning" and "When Love is Kind." Accompaniments were played by Miss Isabel Donnelly. Bouquets were presented to both ladies.

President Charlie Cook presided and kept the ball of fun rolling, with the assistance of acting sergeant-at-Arms Art Moffat. Grace was pronounced by Rev. J. D. Paterson.

The giving of prizes for winning numbers was preceded by a brief talk by W. E. Conway, booster of the evening. Prizes went to F. C. Webber, Walter Byers, Walter Kidd, Arthur Moffat and Chas. Cook, the latter drawing an especially attractive article in a small rolling pin, which was immediately presented to Mrs. Cook.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Jno. L. Austin, professor of surgery at Queen's University, Kingston. The subject of his addrses was "Quacks and Quackery."

Starting with a quotation from Macbeth and ending with an aphorism, in the approved fashion, Dr. Austin spoke of the belief in charms as efficacious remedies, a belief held from the very earliest times and used to this day, in the fashion of the old gentlemen encountered by the speaker a few days previously, who was carrying around two seed potatoes in his pocket as a cure for the gout.

"All remedies at one time were more or less secret." Medicine as an art was first introduced by the ancient Egyptians, and passed on to the Greeks and the Romans, the latter, however, taking little interest in the science, which entered the hands of the Arabs, who were mainly instrumental in bringing it back to Europe.

The progress of medicine and of surgery was the product of the two scourges of the plague and the war, declared the speaker. And in that progress is outlined the influence of the quack. "A quack is one who is ignorant of the subject on which he speaks loudly."

In olden times, to remove an enemy by poison was just as easy as the modern method of displacing a politician by a libel action. But the poisons of the Middle Ages, reputed as so mysterious were mainly composed of arsenic.

The first person to take advantage of the credulity of human nature with regard to secret remedies was Queen Elizabeth, who commenced the system of collecting a tax on their sale. At present, this impost is calculated in the British Isles alone to amount to a sum equivalent to £2,000 per annum for every doctor in the Isles, if they could steer that sum their way.

Ordinary patent medicines were in one class, and "cure alls" in another. There were many that were sheer, absolute frauds, some were harmless, while others contained a large percentage of harmful habit-forming drugs. Others again contained a large amount of alcohol, and were usually very popular with teetotallers. Others were still worse, such as the so-called cures for such diseases as cancer, for which no real cure had yet been discovered by reputable scientists.

Advertisements for certain remedies for venereal diseases were often so subtly worded as to tempt unfortunate youths of both sexes into the habit of testing them, rather than going in time to a proper physician.

"The medical profession is a long way from being perfect, but if you look back upon the changes that have been made by it, acting upon the combined mass of humanity, you will find them amazing."

Vaccination was alluded to as being one of the posts on the highway of progress. And great advances had been made in the eradication to a great extent of various infectious diseases, such as typhoid and yellow fever. "You can also have a fly-proof community anywhere, if you are willing to expend the money to do it. But practically every house in Canada is a meat safe, and you live inside the meat safe."

The plague, the hook worm disease, sleeping sickness and tuberculosis had been and were being, successfully combated by combined medical efforts.

"Individual medicine is another story altogether."

"I would like every man and woman to take a course in pathology before they dare to criticize a doctor."

The irregular practitioner was then referred to, and the doctor cited the instance of one school, so-called, of chiropratic, which flooded the province with pupils, and gave a two year course, 'one year in the morning and one in the afternoon. All that was required of the pupil was the signature of his own name." Recent legislation had provided for strict examinations, also that the title of doctor be applied only to doctors of divinity, doctors of medicine or surgery, and dentists. Anyone wishing to practise medicine in the province must pass at least the junior matriculation examinations.

The speaker also had a word for the press, which he declared lived not by circulation, but by advertisements. "The patent remedy is the worst of the lot. But it is noticeable that these people who have been instantly cured of gastric ulcers or fits, or such things, do not live anywhere in the vicinity. They hail from Vancouver or New Brunswick. It is a situation which is hard to remedy, as the press is much more powerful than the medical profession."

Mayor J. J. Turner, in a characteristic neat speech, moved the vote of thanks to Professor Austin for his interesting discourse, and the vote was seconded by Jack McNab, who alluded to the speaker's position as a member of the Kingston Kiwanis Club, and to good work done by him along the lines of child welfar activities.

Following the speech, cards and dancing were indulged in by the members. Excellent music was provided by Follis' three-piece orchestra.

PAPA LOVE MAMA? MAMA LOVE PAPA?

The first response we received to our request for "Peculiarities" came from a man, with an age-old story.

"My wife expects me to go into raptures over her new hats," he says, "and unless I do, she thinks I don't like them. Whenever she comes home with a new one (which is pretty often) she puts it on and makes me look at it from a dozen different angles. Then she asks what I think of it 'It looks fine', I tell her. 'It's a nice shape and the color looks well on you.'

"Then her face falls. 'I don't believe you like it at all', she'll say. 'You don't show any enthusiasm.'

"'I told you I like it a lot!' I answer emphatically. 'It's a fine hat, that's all there is to it. What more do you want me to say?'

"But this only makes things worse. 'You don't need to shout at me just because you don't like the hat I bought,' she says. 'You never do like anything I ever get—I wish I hadn't bought it, that's all!'

"I guess the only thing for me to do whenever she buys anything new is just swoon with rapture."

Four eggs and 1 cup sugar and 1 cup of flour are the sole ingredients. Beat egg yolks and sugar together for ten minutes. SWIMMER DOES STRANGE FEATS Captain George Corsan in Second Demonstration at Y.W.C.A. Pool.

BOYS' DISPLAY

There were many strange feats performed at the second demonstration given by Captain George H. Corsan in the Y.W.C.A. pool last night. Perhaps the strangest of all was the Houdini stunt, when Captain Corsan permitted Doug Loomis to tie him up in a sack, after tieing his hands and feet together. The sack was then rolled into the water and in a moment Captain Corsan came up dragging his sack after him. The watchers had been wondering why the lights had been turned off for a moment but they found out when the sack was put on the edge, as it was a bottomless sack.

The closing item on the program, when Captain Corsan instructed a class of boys in the crawl stroke, was very interesting. First he showed them how to breathe in through the mouth, above water, and out through the nose, under water. The flutter kick, and the arm movements were also demonstrated by the boys, many of whom had just learned to swim this week.

The log rolling demonstrated by Captain Corsan, Mrs. Craig and Miss Dunlop was a very pretty feat of aquatic skill. The three swimmers lay out at full length on the water and rolled over and over. They then formed a boom, grasping each other with the feet. They also swam with their hands and feet tied tightly.

Free Shower Baths.

Excitement was provided in the races. These produced much laughter, not so much because of the antics of the racers but because several inexperienced divers gave the watchers on the edge of the tank a free shower bath which none of them seemed to appreciate.

Life saving, swimming with the clothes on, and undressing in the water were exhibited by Mrs. Craig and Miss Dunlop. The two ladies showed many methods of rescuing drowning persons, some of whom put up a fight and some who were peaceful. They were all alike to the fair rescuers..

Captain Corsan's exhibit of fancy diving was spoiled when he tried a one and a half dive and broke the spring board. Other fancy diving was contributed by Miss Dunlop and Gordon Ham, while Captain Corsan did several neat and fancy dives before the board broke.

Candles Went Out.

Six boys tried to swim from one end of the tank to the other, bearing lighted candles but all but two were unsuccessful, whereas Captain Corsan was able to smoke, not only above water but beneath. The fight on horse back, when four large boys acted as mounts for four smaller ones provided several hard encounters..

Mr. Corsan's demonstration of various strokes and stunts, such as marching, spinning and bicycling imitation of crab porpoise and dolphin, trudgeon stroke, crawl stroke and many others was an interesting exposition of what can be done in water.

WHAT EVERY MARRIED MAN WOULD LIKE TO KNOW

Why a woman cries because she is misunderstood and then cries if she isn't?

Why a woman always expects a man to keep his word except when she changes her mind?

Why a woman likes to be kissed in the dark, yet does not want to keep the fact there?

Why a woman should expect a man to have any money left by the time she is ready to marry him?

Why you can always depend more on a woman when you do not love her than when you do?

Why before marriage a woman will accept what you say to her and afterward make you prove it?

Why a woman who will talk when you don't want her to can scare you by her silence?

Why a woman stops to powder her nose before she answers the telephone?

GIFT OF $100 SURPRISES "Y"

Mrs. E. Walsh, One of the Organizers, Remembers Association Birthday.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.

A pleasant surprise received at the Young Women's Christian Association this week, was the gift of a cheque for $100 from Mrs. E. Walsh on the anniversary of the twenty-first birthday of the present building.

Mrs. Walsh is a charter member of the Board of Directors of the "Y." Thirty five years ago, she formed a group of interested women who organized the first Y.W.C.A. in Peterboro and from that time on she has always had the interests of the Association at heart. The early days were difficult ones financially, but this faithful group gave generously of their money and time. In 1904, the present building was erected and again Mrs. Walsh was one of the most interested members.

From that date to 1910 the mortgage of $12,000 was reduced. Mrs. Walsh had the honor of burning the mortgage and leaving the buliding free of debt.

In 1917, the swiming pool was added and again a mortgage had to be placed on the building. During the past eight years, many have given subscriptions towards the cause, and on the twenty-first anniversary last week the Association was again free of debt.

Mrs. Walsh by her anniversary gift has opened the way to a fund for further improvements and the members of the Association are very grateful to her for all her kindnesses.

Mrs. Walsh is honorary president of the Young Women's Christian Association.

SHOWER FOR MISS CARR.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 8

The Consumption of Tea

Tea as a beverage is used in nearly every country in the world. It is estimated over 200 billion cups are consumed annually. Australia leads in tea drinking with an annual per capita consumption of about nine pounds, which means that every Australian consumes from six to eight cups of tea every day. The consumption per capita in England is 8½ lbs., and in Canada nearly 5 lbs. In the United States, it is less than 1 lb., but this is largely because Americans have not been able to get fine teas until comparatively recently. "SALADA" is considered one of the choicest blends on the market, and is the largest selling tea in either United States or Canada.

"SALADA"

WHEN BABY IS ILL

When the baby is ill; when he cries a great deal and no amount of attention or petting makes him happy, Baby's Own Tablets should be given him without delay. Your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, MAY 23—Many persons under the zodiacal sign of Gemini, the twins, which prevails from May 20 to June 21, are said to have a dual character. Sometimes this influence is carried to the extreme of a Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde. If your birthday is today, this double trait will cause many of your friends to misunderstand you. For a short period, you will engage upon a gay, social life and wild living. Then suddenly you will isolate yourself from all gaiety and for months you will be moody, morose and solemn. Sometimes you will work extremely hard and then you will be an idler for a similar period. You will have many loves because of your changeable disposition.

General Downward Swing On Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, May 23 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices took an early swing downward today owing to rains and cold weather over parts of the Northwest, where yesterday drought and excessive heat were impairing the outlook for spring wheat. On the other hand there were continued crop damage reports from sections which had apparently received no relief. Sellers were cautious as a result and price rallies were frequent. The opening which ranged from 1 1-4 cent decline to 1-2 cent advance with May 167 1-2 to 167 58 and July 155 to 155 12, was followed by an irregular setback to 167 for May and 154 1-4 for July.

Corn eased down with wheat. After opening unchanged to 5-8 up, July 115 to 115 1-8, the corn market underwent a moderate general decline.

Oats were relatively firm, starting unchanged to 3-8 cent higher; July 45 1-8 to 45 1-4 cents. Prices held near to initial figures.

Lower values on hogs weakened the provision market.

Upward Trend Continues Strong In New York Market

NEW YORK, May 23 (Canadian Press).—Today's stock market was forced to contend with another large volume of profit taking, which interrupted but failed to halt the general upward trend of prices. Some of the selling in such issues as United States Steel Common and American Smelting also was inspired by the speech of the British Ambassador at the American Iron and Steel Institute dinner last night, in which he stated that Great Britain must increase her foreign market, especially in the United States, if she was to continue payments of her debt to this country. Recessions as a rule, were small and were more than offset by gains in a number of rails, oils, motors, chemicals and specialties. Nash Motors jumped 5 points to another record top at 430. Wright Airplane moved up 4 1-2, and May Department stores, Brown Shoe, Lackawanna Railroad and American Agricultural Chemical Preferred all sold 3 to 5 points above yesterday's final quotations. The close was firm. Total sales approximated 800,000 shares.

Trade Active To-day On Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, May 23 (Canadian Press).—British Columbia Fish led the market on the local stock exchange this morning with a gain of 1 1-8 points at 36 1-8. F. N. Burt was the most active issue, with approximately 1,200 shares changing hands. After a busy session it closed at 54 1-2, a net increase of 3-8. Smelters took a big slump today, only 35 shares being sold. It closed at a recession of a half at 85. Brazilian was active and closed at 54, 3-8 higher. Twin City had a good morning and closed unchanged at 69. Winnipeg Railway was not so fortunate and closed fractionally lower. Canadian Pacific Railway advanced 1-8 to 145 1-2. Canners closed at 100 14, while the preferred gained a quarter at 99 1-4.

Young Ladies Are Doing Wonderful Work in Selling Tickets.

FOR EXHIBITION.

It takes more courage to be a game looser than it does to be a game winner. In any contest there must necessarily be more loosers than winners, and great credit is due some of the young ladies in the ticket selling contest who have not the advantage of a large organization behind them, but must depend almost entirely upon their individual efforts for the sales they make and yet are doing their bit and carrying on, unselfishly working, not for any thought of personal gain or glory but rather to further the work of the Health Association and to do all in teir power to make the coming Made-in-Peterboro Fair a success. Their untiring efforts are certainly appreciated and cannot be too highly commended.

The Grand Lodge of Orange Young Britons will hold its annual convention in the city on Monday next, May 25th, approximately one hundred and fifty young men from out-of-town are expected.

In the past it has been customary to arrange a short entertainment for delegates to all conventions, by giving them an opportunity of seeing our attractive city, through the courtesy of automobile owners.

Owing to the convention being here on the holiday a sufficient number of automobiles have not yet been arranged for and this means is taken to request any automobile owners in the city to volunteer the use of their cars for one hour and a half on Monday from 1.30 to 3 p.m. This is an opportunity for at least thirty car owners to be of service in advertising our city to young men from other centres, and any willing to do so are requested to 'phone Mr. Jas. Ball at 912. The tour commences from Victoria Hall, 334 George street.

Of the eighteen hundred automobiles in the city are there thirty that can be devoted to a real public service for one hour and a half.

EMPIRE DAY.

Rev. M. C. MacKinnon Addressed Pupils at Queen Mary School.

Empire Day was celebrated at the Queen Mary School yesterday in the traditional fashion with patriotic choruses and addresses. Rev. M. C. Mackinnon of Knox Church was the special speaker and he gave a most interesting and instructive address. The programme follows:

II Classes; The Empire Day Movement, extract of speech by The Earl of Meath, Helen Jones; Chorus, The Maple Leaf, Jr. Bk. III Classes; Address, Rev. M. C. Cheers were given for the King, the Empire, Canada, and for Mr. Mackinnon for his fine address.

MARKET PRICES.

Butter 38 and 40 Cents — Eggs 27 and 28 Cents To-day.

Boxes of tomatoes and cabbage at 20 cents apiece, had hailstones over their green foliage on the market square today. Pansies were two boxes for a quarter, or large boxes at the same price for one.

Spinach was 40 cents a peck. The price would have been fifty cents were the day not so bad, declared the dealer, proving again that t'is an ill wind that blows nobody some good.

Potatoes were 70 cents a bag. Little pigs were $8.50 a piece. General produce was priced as usual, with small qauntities on view.

Upstairs, in the basket section, butter was priced at 3 8 and 40 cents a pound, with eggs at 27 and 28 cents a dozen. Chickens were 28 cents a pound, and a big turkey 25 cents a pound.

There were roots of outdoor phlox and climbing roses at a dime each, and bunches of purple pansies, at two bunches for a nickel. A vendor of an ingenious type of electric sharpeners advertised his product as being of inestimable value in the sharpening of such useful articles as hay cutters and sheep shears, or for corn, sickle and mowing machines.

HANG ON TO YOUR HAT.

Assist me, ye muses, the while I relate,
An uncanny mishap which occurred just of late,
A young lady, well known, and who lives, let us say
Not more than a couple or three miles away,
From the nerve-wracking sound of the city's loud din
Where the green flowery fields of the country begin.
As full oft was her wont, she drove blithe and gay,
With sleek pony and buggy that ill-fated day,
Down to the big city, with never a fear
Nor shade of foreboding of trouble so near.
While around her close-packed on the seat where she sat,
Were parcels galore, and a dainty spring hat.

Which she was returning to her dear friend again,
Who had left it with her, when o'ertaken by rain,
But, tho' ladies may purpose, and plan as they may,
Plans ofttimes miscarry or go far astray.
Quite unheeding the hat, was the lady, I ween,
For her eyes idly roved o'er the fair rural scene.

And she wist not, 'tis plain, when the wind in its play
Whisked the hat from beside her and whirled it away,
Silently, swiftly, with mischievous gust,
Merrily through the road's deep drifted dust,
And tossed it at length in most pitiful plight,
Behind a tree trunk, where 'twas hidden from sight.

Imagine the lady's blank look of dispair,
When the buggy she searched and the hat was not there;
But though she long pondered it this way and that,
She solved not the mystery, but paid for the hat.
Would you not incur trouble, nor loss nor feel flat—
Remember this warning: Hang on to your hat!

CAVAN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MET

CAVAN, May 22 — The annual summer open meeing of the Cavan Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. D. J. Hunter on Wednesday afernoon.

The house was well filled by ladies for the occasion.

A speaker from the department, Mrs. Boyes, Lefroy, Ontario, was present and gave an excellent address.

After a short business session, the following programme was carried out: Community singing with Miss McNeil presiding at the piano; solo, Mrs. R. T. Richards; address, Mrs. Boyes; duet, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. R. S. Staples; second part of address Mrs. Boyes; community singing.

A vote of thank was tendered the speaker, the ladies who sang, and Mrs. Hunter for her hopitality.

The meeting adjourned and a committee of ladies served a delicious and satisfying lunch.

Mrs. Boyes' Address

The first part of Mrs. Boyes' address was on Institute work, the different branches and the district work.

She told of different ways and plans whereby the meetings and work could be made more interesting. Her address contained many interesting and helpful suggestions.

After some music she gave the second part of her address which was on "The farm and its opportunities."

She stressed the importance of the farm and farm home not only to those who make their homes on the farm but to the nation.

It is an absolute necessiy for the well being of the nation that people remain on the farm. In time of war it is a great asset for a nation to have such a source of supply as the farming communities afford.

In times of peace it is where the best can be developed in the young people of our land. It is a sad thing to view a country or part of a country, once farmed and busy with happy life, now left desolate.

The speaker said she had been through a part of Muskoka, where farming land had not been paying and the people had just left the farms. There were empty farm homes, schools and churches.

Influences of Home

It has been said that "no other single building is of as much importance as the farm home;" and indeed it seems as though there are wonderful possibilities in the farm home and wonderful influence eminating from it.

Just think of how many of the "strangers," who each year come to Canada, and pass through or stay in the farm homes.

So many emigrants commence their Canadian life on farms. Some stay and make good, perhaps in time becoming farmers themselves, others proving incompetent or unsuited for the work and drifting on to the cities.

However, in each case, there is the opportunity for the women of the farm home to try to influence and help these strangers. Then again to the women falls the task of making a home atmosphere for her family, to foster, culture and seek to make the home beautiful within and without.

Should Beautify Home

She mentioned the value of flowers and shrubs in adding to the appearance of our homes, and reminded her hearers that many beautiful shrubs can be obtained in our own swamps, such as shumac, high bush cranberry, bitter sweet vine, etc.

She spoke on women's part in making the home. She must be able to adapt herself to so many phases of life, must have wide knowledge and be resourceful. She by a wise use of food values does much to maintain the health of her household. Must train the children that they may grow up companionable. A delightful trait in children is courtesy and respect for older people.

Make the environment good by the use of good pictures, music, good books and unfailing kindness and courtesy.

The address was much enjoyed as Mrs. Boyes spoke on so many of the problems and interests met with daily in our homes.

Mrs. Richards' solo, "The Union Jack," and the duet by Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Staples, "Keep On Smiling," were beautifully rendered and thoroughly enjoyed.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

LIVELY BALL

Batting rampages in the spring form a basis for the annual rumor that the major league ball is much livelier.

The other day I noticed where the manufacturer of the balls used in both major leagues, denied the report.

A flock of home runs during the first few weeks of play, no doubt was largely responsible for the belief that more dynamite had been placed in the ball.

It is a matter of precedent that the batters round into form more quickly in the spring than the pitchers. That is the main reason for the edge the batters usually hold in April and May.

Small parks rather than a lively ball, are the biggest factors in making for home runs. In a desire to get seating capacity, the playing territory in many parks is cramped. Fly balls that should be easy outs go for home runs.

About June first when the warm weather sets in and the pitchers strike their stride, we may look forward to a curtailment of the batting sprees.

ALL-AMERICA

Walter Camp, the originator of the All-America idea in football is dead. What will be come of his creation.

In football, to be selected on the Walter Camp eleven, was the same to the college athlete, as playing in a world series, is to the professional.

[illegible]man or body of men could [illegible]layers out of the li[illegible]hat would meet wit[illegible]e

For [illegible]selections have brought forth much criticism from coaches and football experts. Being human, he made mistakes and often omitted certain players from his team who had the unanimous approval of most of the experts.

Despite this, every college football player had the making of Camp's All-America as his goal.

Other experts picked teams just as good, but making them failed to carry with it the prestige that went with a Walter Camp selection.

Certain leading coaches have at various times expressed the opinion that the All-America idea was harmful because it failed to prove a thing and made much ill-feeling.

However, the All-America eleven is almost a part of football, and it seems as if some system of working out the idea and perpetuating it, should be aimed at by the powers in football.

UNIQUE IDEA

Recently I had a chat with one of the most famous football coaches in the west. He is of the opinion that better football results when the players have a set goal.

Walter Camp's All-America, which had its faults with its virtues, supplied that goal.

The coach expressed the belief that Walter Camp's All-America should be continued, not only as a tribute to Camp, a monument to his memory, but also for the good of the game.

He suggested that a commission of from six to twelve men made up equally of coaches, officials and writers, properly selected, annually agree on a Walter Camp All-America.

Picking All-America teams will continue to be an annual event with football writers, but it would be well to have one team that would officially be regarded as the last word.

NURMI FAILED TO LOWER MARK

Time for Mile at Harvard Stadium 4 4-5 Seconds Under Record

APPEARED STALE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass, May 23.—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great distance star, running a "good mile" as he had promised to do, failed last night to lower either the world's or the American one mile record, although it was understood that he would try for a new mark on the fast Harvard Stadium track.

Nurmi's time for the mile was 4 minutes 15 1-5 seconds, 4 4-5 seconds slower than his own world record, and 2 3-5 seconds slower than Norman Taber's American record, also set in the stadium.

Nurmi set a hard pace in the first quarter, covering the distance in 60 1-5 seconds. He finished the half in the fast time of 2 minues 4 1-5 seconds. At this point, Tom Clausen, junior indoor 1,000 yard champion, dropped out.

Nurmi's pace slowed appreciably in the third quarter, which he had covered in 3.08 2-5. His face was strained and tense as he entered the last quarter. He glanced continually over his shoulder at Connolly, whom he had failed to shake off at any time during the race. In his last sprint on the final third of the last lap he succeeded in opening 20 yards. His time for the final quarter was 1 minute 6 4-5 seconds.

The final lap was slow, despite Nurmi's best efforts and its slowness cost him his chance to better the record.

The champion looked worried and tired; his pace was not the smooth machine-like glide of earlier races; he flashed back numerous glances at Connolly, and his supreme effort for a final sprint widened his lead on Connolly to only 20 yards. Dooley was a quarter of a lap behind at the finish. His times at the quarters told the story of the race. They were:

60 1-5 seconds; 2.04 1-5; 3.08 2-5; 4.15 1-5.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The golfer who adopts the good practice of rather throwing his clubhead backward, catching it with his wrists and a tightening grip at the top, will readily sense the necessity for a momentary pause at the top of the back swing. This pause can be too prolonged, though as a rule it is better by far to overdo it than to turn the club otherwise. Overdoing it has the danger of inviting arm and shoulder rigidity, and thus the player will do well to look out for that. The club must completely reverse its direction and, as it is thrown back, the head gathers a degree of momentum, which causes the shaft to bend or spring. You pause momentarily at the top to allow this bend in the shaft to reverse. It is fatal to start down with the club before this recoiling effect has taken place.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

When the wrong batter takes his place at the plate and hits safely what is the proper procedure for the team in the field to take, provided they notice the error?

The team in the field must make an immediate appeal to the umpire before a ball is pitched to the succeeding batsman.

This play is one of the few in baseball that requires an appeal to the umpire. Even though he is aware of the mistake, he pays no attention to it unless the team in the field makes the proper protest.

Baseball is supposed to be a game for live wires. If the umpire ruled on this play it would do away to a certain extent with heads-up baseball.

If the team at bat errs, it is up to the team in the field to notice it if they are to profit because of the mistake in the batting order.

Should a ball be pitched to a succeeding batsman before the team in the field discovers the fact that an improper batsman has been at the plate, there is no redress. It must stand as made.

What is the proper ruling if a baserunner trying to score from third on the squeeze play is retired at the plate because the catcher pushed the batter out of the way to complete the out?

This is one of the very few plays in baseball where two penalties are inflicted for one offense.

When the catcher interferes with the batsman by pushing him out of the way, tipping his bat or running in front of the plate to receive the ball, he commits an interference.

The act of the catcher, however, is construed not only as an interference but a balk as well.

The interference on the part of the catcher entitles the batsman, who was prevented from striking at the pitched ball, to go to first.

The balk has a direct bearing on the baserunner trying to score from third on the squeeze play. The calling of the balk entitles him to score and the run counts even though the man coming from third apparently was retired at the plate.

Thus, the catcher is twice penalized for his interference with the batsman, a balk and interference being called on the same play. This is quite unusual.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

Peterboro supplied both third basemen used in the Belleville-Oshawa game, Fred. Rutherford playing the red-light corner for Belleville, while "Toots" Ward was at third for Oshawa. Both local boys made a good showing.

• • • • • • • • • •

Reports from Belleville say that Peeney Mills will have to wear a mask if he continues to play left field. He was nearly beaned by two or three flies in Wednesday's game against Oshawa.

• • • • • • • • • •

Kingston papers say that Jake Solomon was missed by the spectators when the Petes played there Wednesday. They had to fall back on the old stuff about Al. Heckman's canoe, which has about outlived its punch—if it ever had any.

• • • • • • • • • •

With Walter Johnson winning games as a pinch hitter, Tris Speaker scoring from first base on a single and Ty Cobb banging out a flock of home runs, it looks as if a supply of monkey glands must have reached the American League.

• • • • • • • • • •

When it comes to a question of the most valuable player don't overlook long George Kelly of the New York Giants. A first baseman by trade, "Kel" can play the outfield in great style, and just now is covering second base in workmanlike fashion in the absence of the Fordham flash. And wherever he is playing the big fellow continues to hammer the ball.

• • • • • • • • • •

The next home game for Peterboro is on June 6th when Kingston play here. In the meantime the Petes will visit Belleville and Oshawa.

• • • • • • • • • •

There will be plenty of ball at home for Peterboro fans on Victoria Day, the City League fixtures at Riverside Park providing an attractive menu. The Junior City League race this year promises to be of unusual interest, with the supremacy of the Lakeviews, twice Ontario champions, seriously threatened by the C. G. E. juniors, who with Jeff Hardill on the firing line expect to win the right to represent Peterboro in the O.B.A.A. play-offs this season. Lew Lebarr's team, although it has lost Whitehouse and other members of last year's championship crew, will be strong again for the 1925 campaign, and the series should be a memorable one.

THREE GAMES IN CITY ON MONDAY

City League Will Provide Good Sport For Those Who Stay at Home.

MANY GOOD TEAMS.

A full day of baseball is provided for those who remain in the city on Victoria Day, as the City League will put on two Junior games and one Juvenile game. The schedule drawn up for the day is as follows:

10 a.m.—C.G.E. vs. Lakeviews; Junior series.

2 p.m.—K.C.'s vs. Dodgers, Juvenile series.

3.30 p.m.—Hillcrests vs. Crests Juniors.

The managers have gathered teams composed of young players of the city, and they will put up a hard fight for the honors.

Despite the losses they have sustained, the Lakeviews have collected a squad of last year's Juveniles to plug th gap and, should they win the league, Kingston Circle Six will not have the easy time they are figuring on. Manager Bill Bennett of the C.G.E. has gathered together a bunch of boys that he thinks will beat any other Junior team in the city and go as far as the Lakeviews in the O.B.A.A. The Hillcrests represent the hopes of East City and they also will be heard from before the cups and medals are distributed at the end of the season. These three teams will provide the fans with some close contests all summer and they play a good brand of ball.

Bill Prindibe and Vince O'Connell have taken the Sacred Heart Midgets, last year's O.B.A.A. finalists, and aded a few players to round out a strong Juvenile squad. The Dodgers have been keeping quiet and are an entirely unknown quantity, but will in all probability have a strong team. The Kiwanis team, the other Juvenile entry, will not be seen in action on Monday, but they have been working hard, and Bill Jackson has lined up all the baseball talent of the west end in a team that will give any other team in the league a mighty battle for the laurels.

With the Seniors playing in Belleville, there should be a large attendance at both morning and afternoon games toencourage the boys to play ball, in order that Peterborough's record for winning championships every year may be assured and new players developed for the Senior team.

BALL GAME HAD TO BE POSTPONED

Weather Conditions Prevent Central Ontario League Opener.

The local opening of the Central Ontario League season, scheduled for this afternoon with a game between Belleville and the Petes, was rained and hailed and frozen out.

The Belleville team were notified by telephone just as they were ready to leave for Peterborough, that there was no chance of a game, and Umpire Si Dell, of Oshawa, was also told that he might as well remain by his own fireside. The other arbitrator, Geo. Sullivan, of Kingston, could not be reached in time to prevent him leaving. The Petes are not scheduled to play at home again until two weeks from to-day. They visit Belleville on Monday and Oshawa on Saturday.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

YOUNG PITCHERS

When two young pitchers win 34 games between them and lose only 13 contests in their first year in the majors, it is quite a break for any ball club.

The Pittsburg club of the National League enjoyed such good fortune last season. Yde, a southpaw, won 16 and lost only three frays, while Kremer won 18 and lost 10.

When a veteran wins 15 or more games he is considered as having a good season. For two recruits to so deliver is decidedly out of the ordinary.

It is a rather interesting fact that Yde, in winning 16 out of 19 games, tied a National League record. His aveage of .842 was the same as Tom Hughes established with the Braves in 1916.

Yde, little figured on at the start of the season, was given his chance only after some of the veteran stars were unable to win. He obliged with eight straight victories.

So far this season Dame Fortune has failed to smile as kindly on Yde and Kremer. As a result the Pirates have suffered a serious setback in their pennant aspirations.

YDE AND KRAUSE

The remarkable performance of Yde last season recalls the work of Harry Krause with the Athletics in 1909.

Connie Mack, discoverer of phenoms, unearthed Krause in California. He was a star among the college teams of that section. Like Yde, Krause tossed 'em with the left hand.

Krause was a slender chap, built on the lines of Herb Pennock, another Mack protege, now with the New York Yankees. Krause didn't look sufficiently strong to stand the grind of the majors. Yde of the Pirates is built along solid lines, looks good for years.

Krause boasted no great speed, but he had a tantalizing curve and great control. He looked just ordinary in spring training.

Inside of a month he was the sensation of the American League. He won his first 10 starts, then slumped, only breaking even in his next 16 games.

His record for the year was 18 wins and eight defeats—a most impressive big league first season.

Krause, however, lacked strength, and shortly passed out of the majors. Yde, the husky athlete, need have no fear that he will suffer a similar fate.

NEAR RECORD

Recently I umpired a game in St. Louis in which Ty Cobb, at the fagend of his playing career, had the opportunity to break a record of long standing and incidentally add one more remarkable performance to his long string.

Cobb, in the game I have reference to, made six hits in six times at bat. Not being up seven times he had no chance to shoot at Wilbert Robinson's record of seven hits in one game.

Cobb's first two trips to the plate resulted in home runs. His second was a double that just failed to clear the bleacher wall. A single and another home run followed.

When he stepped to the plate in the ninth inning a home run would have smashed a total base record that has stood for years.

Four home runs and a double for a total of 18 bases is the record for one game. A home run by Cobb would have given him a total of 19 bases. He had previously made three home runs, adouble and a single for a total of 15 bases.

The best he could do was beat out a hit to McManus, on which the Browns' second-sacker made a great play in breaking down.

True, Cobb is slowing up. His arm has lost some of its zip, but he is still the "Old Master" when he steps into the batting box. Age does not seem to have dimmed his eyes.

'GOLDEN BED' FINE DE MILLE SOCIAL SATIRE.

Wallace Irwin Novel Big Paramount Picture.

What happens to people when they step on acknowledged laws, demonstrated from the masculine side by Rod La Rocque in "The Ten Commandments," now has its feminine explanation in Cecil B. De Mille's newest Paramount picture, "The Golden Bed," screen play by Jeanie Macpherson from Wallace Irwin's novel which also ran serially in Pictorial Review magazine.

As Flora Lee Peake of "The Golden Bed," Lillian Rich, the newest De Mille "find," surges tempestuously through love affairs with four men, a brilliant, flirtatious blonde meteor, saturated with family pride — and totally heedless of those fundamentals which keep less cometlike individuals from eventual disaster.

Flora Lee Peake and Rod La Rocque as Admah Holtz, 'poor white trash,' risen to wealth, and Vera Reynolds, younger daughter of the aristocratic house of Peake, have the principal roles in this colorful De Mille social satire. Others featured in the all-star cast are Warner Baxter, Theodore Kosloff and Julia Faye. Playing in support are Henry Walthall, Robert Edeson, Robert Cain, Jacqueline Wells, Mary Jane Irving, Don Marion and Charles Clary.

Quite a line-up!

"The Golden Bed" will be shown next Monday at the Capitol Theatre to remain for three days.

"DANGEROUS MONEY."

Bebe Daniels Coming to the Royal Theatre in Her First Paramount Star-Picture—Tom Moore in Cast.

In Manager McGeachie's announcement that "Dangerous Money," a new Paramount picture, is coming to the Royal Theatre next Monday for a three days' run, screen fans will find several interesting facts. For one thing, the picture marks the debut of Bebe Daniels as a star in her own right. Then again, the photoplay introduces a newcomer in the directorial field, Frank Tuttle, not altogether unknown, since he gained no little fame as a scenario writer.

Miss Daniels, of course, needs no introduction to the millions who daily patronize the pictures. "Dangerous Money" is a particularly happy choice as her first starring vehicle, because it gives Bebe a splendid opportunity to display her talent.

The production is an adaptation by Julie Herne of Robert Herrick's absorbing novel, "Clark's Field." It is a swift-moving romance, depicting the adventures of a poverty-stricken but beautiful girl who comes into a fortune, only to realize in the end that easy money is dangerous money and that wealth will not buy happiness and real love.

The supporting cast that surrounds the irresistible Bebe includes among others, Tom Moore, William Powell and Dolores Cassinelli.

There are any number of big scenes, the action centering about the Brooklyn waterfront, an Italian villa, an aristocratic finishing school and a fashionable New York hotel. Mr. Tuttle has given the picture a very careful production, and fans are assured of an hour's solid entertainment.

"THE DUMBELLS" IN "OH, YES!"

About the finest bit of news that has been broadcasted around local breakfast tables for some time, is the glad tidings that Captain Mert. Plunkett and his world famous Dumbells Company and Orchestra will be seen here in a brand-new revue called "Oh, Yes!" at the Grand Opera House for two nights, Monday and Tuesday, June 8, 9.

That the good ship, "Oh, Yes!" has been launched for laughing purposes only, and that comedy is the keynote, is evidenced by a glance at the following numbers chosen at random from the program:

Al. Plunkett has a new 'fly' song and also sings "Do Shrimps Make Good Mothers?" Ross Hamilton scores in "Lips I Have Kissed," and "I Love Them All". "Red" Newman sings a patriotic number entitled "Let's Keep the Money in the country" and "How Does the Milk Get Into Cocoanuts?" Pat Rafferty has a knock-out hit in "Lips that Touch Kippers Shall Never Touch Mine". "Archibald" (Stan Bennett) sings "Colonel Lipstick of the Coldcream Guards", and "Jock" Holland leads the big beauty chorus number with "Where are the Girls of the Old Brigade?"

"Red" Newman is featured in a comedy sketch called "A Home from Home," while there is a farcical skit "Red Justice", with Pat Rafferty, Stan Bennett, Morley Plunkett and 'Jock' Holland.

Al Plunkett starts the performance off to high speed with his tongue-twisting song introducing the cross-word puzzle opening.

Captain Plunkett and his Orchestra contribute a most enjoyable half-hour with a repertoire of new musical numbers, ranging from the classical to popular jazz, many of them sung and enacted on the little stage, which forms a part of the orchestral setting.

Those who saw "Ace High" earlier in the season are fully aware that Captain Punkett has mobilized the greatest company this season that has ever appeared under "The Dumbells" banner.

AT THE ROYAL.

"LIFE'S GREATEST GAME." Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

A feature replete with thrills, dripping with human understanding, and crowded with as much action, foot for foot, as any picture of recent memory is at the Regent Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This is Emory Johnson's sixth F.B.O. success, "Life's Greatest Game," and is presented for the first time in this community.

As was the case in his other five successes, the director's mother, Emilie Johnson, wrote the story, and it again attests her genius for melodramatic action, as well as her son's ability as a producer and director.

If there were nothing else of merit in the story (and that is as far from the truth as the North Pole from the Equator) the shipwreck scene in which the ill-fated 'Titanic' is sent to a watery grave after a collision with an iceberg is worth walking miles to see. Nothing quite like it has ever been done on the screen. And this tremendous incident is woven into a well-knit story with a baseball background which will hold any audience to the last flash of light on the silver sheet.

No higher tribute could be paid to the national game than the characterization of the Donovans, father and son, who prove heroes of world's series contests separated by the span of twenty years.

The Donovan family are separated by a family misunderstanding on the eve of the world's series of two decades ago; and Jack Donovan, star pitcher of the Chicago Cubs, finds suddenly that his wife and baby boy have sailed to visit her parents in Europe. They are on the ill-starred "Titanic"; and for twenty years the elder Donovan loses sight of them both. Then Jack Donovan, Jr., unknown to his father, comes up to the big league club which the elder Donovan now manages. With his identity still concealed he pitches his father's team to a victory and wins the series. Eventually the Donovan family are reunited.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

Surely any truth loving, God fearing, individual, who accepts the authority of the Scriptures, and who desires to know truth alone, should be willing to put to one side, what cannot be verified by chapter and verse of the Bible. In regard to the Sabbath Day question; there is no place in the Bible where God ever commanded any one but Israel to keep the Sabbath. The Sabbath law ceased by limitation in the days of Jesus. Jesus did not warn any one or say once "Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." The Apostles never preached it. How could Jesus command any one to keep the Sabbath, seeing he was the end of the law, of which the Sabbath was a part? What day should true Christians observe? The answer is: Any day the law of the land may see fit to appoint for this purpose. The law of our country sets aside Sunday, to lay aside all unnecessary work; therefore it is ours to obey the laws that be. Reference Romans, 13th Chapter.

ASSISTANTS TEACH

Peterboro Schools Have Not Failing of Others—Clerks in Toronto.

A slight wave of excitement was aroused in the Toronto Board of Education when it was learned that assistants to the school principals were in many cases not engaged in active teaching but were doing the work of clerks at nearly twice the salary paid the regular teachers.

The Peterborough Board of Education is not guilty of this, according to G. Harry Thompson, secretary-treasurer of the board. Mr. Thompson states that all assistants to principals work regularly as teachers on the staff and that the only exception is in the Collegiate Institute where a stenographer is engaged to perform the secretarial duties.

SACRED CONCERT SUNDAY EVENING

Benefit For Widow and Children of Late James Herron.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

Don't forget to patronize the Sacred Concert at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow evening, designed as a benefit for the widow and seven children of the late James E. Herron, taken by death in a drowning accident just one week ago to-day.

With the prominent musicians who are taking part, and the nature of the event, a large audience should be assured. Instrumental selections will include pianoforte numbers by Miss Agnes Logan, Miss Edwina Palmer in violin solos, and Mr. William Layfield, playing the cornet. Vocal numbers will be given by Miss Geraldine Collins, Miss Minnie Allen and Mr. M. H. Park. Readings will be given by Miss Annie Fletcher. The Salvation Army Saxaphone Sextette will play, and the Capitol Orchestra augmented to fourteen members by musicians from the Royal Theatre Orchestra and other city players, will play a special overture.

MUSIC POPULAR.

Composition of Harold Gilbert Is Winning Universal Approval.

The Royal Orchestra is playing "Jazz Up the Band," the composition of Harold Gilbert of this city, at the theatre this week, and the composition has made a hit with both orchestra and audience.

Around The City.

The Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club will commence bowling on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The indisposition of the examining physician, Dr. G. S. Cameron, prevented the holding of the examinations for the St. John Ambulance Course at the Y.W.C.A. last evening. These will be held on Tuesday evening next.

On Friday at 11.48 p.m., the fire department responded to a call to 225 Dublin street. It was a chimney fire and no serious damage was done.

Cod Liver Oil Now in Tasteless Tablets

Greatest Flesh Builder

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of cough syrup.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets, and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Be sure and get McCoy's, the original and genuine.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, who passed away May 23, 1919:

Deep in our hearts lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory's frame we will keep it
Because she was one of the best.

Our lips cannot speak how we loved her,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say,
God only knows how we miss her
As we journey along life's way.

MATRON KILLED BY GIRLS WHO ESCAPED FARM

Three Inmates of Prison Farm Killed Matron in Making Escape.

ONE RECAPTURED.

The Other Two Are Still at Large—Men Arrested For Aiding Them.

TORONTO, May 26. - Mrs. Margaret A. Mick, aged 55 years, matron at the municipal jail farm for women, at Langstaffe, is dead; Jeannette McVinn, aged 16 years, of Toronto, is under arrest on a charge of murder, and two ther young women, Isabel Drouse, alias Baby Smith, aged 21 years, Toronto, and Bessie Carroll, aged 16 years, Toronto, are being sought by the police, as the result of a desperate bid for liberty made by the three inmates at the farm on Sunday night.

The body of Mrs. Mick was found lying in a small lavoratory in the section of the building in which four of the women inmates' cells are located.

She had apparently been strangled by the young women, who had then taken her keps and used them to unlock the inner door leading to the Matron's quarters, and another door leading to the outer air.

The McVinn girl, who is stated to have been the ring leader in the plot, she having first freed herself from her cell, and then liberated the two other girls, was early last night placed under arrest.

Early this morning three men were arrested, charged with having aided and abetted the escape of the girls by taking them aboard a motor car to a Toronto address after they had left the jail farm. The three men are Leonard Swales, William and James Norton.

It was through the food chute in her door that the McVinn girl, small and slimly built, managed to wriggle. When she had dropped into the corridor she set to work on the bolt on the door of Prouse's cell with the handle of a spoon, and managed to slide the bolt.

The two then opened the cell holding the Carroll girl.

As soon as Mrs. Mick was heard entering the outer corridor the Carroll girl called loudly that the lavatory in her cell was not working properly, and Mrs. Mick responded to her call. The Carroll girl held her in conversation at the door of the lavatory while the other two crept upon her and seized her.

Then the Carroll girl joined in the attack. Seemingly it was the prisoners' intention not to kill Mrs. Mick but to push her into the lavatory and lock her in until they could get away. Mrs. Mick fell unconscious on the floor under the combined attack. To prevent her raising an outcry, the prisoners tied her two wrists to the standpipes in the cell and wrapped a rag about her head. Having used the matron's keys to leave the building, the fugitives climbed the fence and reached the highway.

Members Of Yale Class of '77 Can't Drink Water; They Will Celebrate the Anniversary In Montreal

MEMBERS OF — FRONT NEW YORK, May 26 (United Press).—"You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink," is the slogan of Newell Martin, Yale '77, the son of a minister, who with other members of his class plans to go to Montreal to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation from college.

Martin, who is 71 years old, has written to his erstwhile classmates, inviting them to join in an old-time reunion in Canada. "Most of them have false teeth and probably wigs," he said, "and they would nearly all be good company with wine, but probably not five would be agreeable if they were served only water." Martin announced his plan in refusing to attend commencement exercises in New Haven.

He said, he feared he and his classmates might set a bad example for Yale students by having a little something to drink at New Haven.

SLOW PICTURES OF GOVERNMENT IN MINE STRIKE

Facetions Suggestion of Western Progressive in Discussing Trade Department Films.

Revenue for 10 Months $21,159—Sold to Companies in United States.

OTTAWA, May 26. — (Canadian Press). — Motion pictures taken by the Motion Picture Bureau of the Department of Trade and Commerce are now being sold to a large number of companies in the United States. The revenue derived from the sale of these pictures during the first ten months of the last fiscal year was $21,159. This information was given to the House of Commons last night by Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, when a vote for $25,000 to cover expenses in connection with the Motion Picture Bureau, was under consideration.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Centre Winnipeg) drew the attention of the Minister to a letter which he had received from the electrician for the City of Winnipeg, in which it was stated that nitro-cellulose films of a highly inflammable and dangerous character were being supplied by the Motion Picture Bureau to churches and other organizations, which were not aware of the danger. The electrician referred to this class of film as "one of the most dangerous products from a safety-to-life point of view." Mr. Woodsworth thought that the Department should substitute the safer form of film.

Mr. Low said that the Motion Picture Bureau was complying with the regulations in force in the various provinces. As long as these requirements were met, the Bureau was keeping within the law.

"This is a case where the Bureau is not complying with the regulations of the city of Winnipeg," remarked Mr. Woodsworth.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) suggested that the Bureau should, in addition to sending photographers to photograph the most beautiful districts of Canada, take photographs of the Cape Breton strike situation. They might also take "slow motion pictures" of the Government getting into action to relieve the situation, he added.

AUTOS CRUSHED MONTREAL BOYS

One Dead and Other Gravely Injured—In Separate Accidents.

BOTH AT PLAY

MONTREAL, May 26.—(Canadian Press). — Adolphe St. Onge, 11 years of age, of Lachine, lies in the St. Joseph Hospital in a critical condition as the result of being knocked down by an automobile, Monday. The boy was chasing a ball into the street when the accident happened.

Killed Instantly.

Five-year-old Jimmy Hubert, of this city, met instant death beneath the wheels of an auto truck on Saturday, when the toy waggon drawn by a playmate upset and the victim rolled beneath the car.

The boy's father, returning home, passed the scene of the accident, and saw the crowd gathered about the victim, unaware that it was his son. A few minutes later, while arranging a party for Jimmy and other children, the father and mother were notified of the tragedy.

THOMAS DOBSON INJURED TO-DAY

Head-on Collision With Big Touring Car Smashed Truck.

HEAD WAS CUT.

Tommy Dobson, of 188 Edinburg Street, mechanic for White Bros. Cycles and Sport Goods, was severely injured at 12.45 today, when the new truck of White's, driven by him, crashed headlong into a heavy touring car driven by A. Duncan. The smashup occurred on George Street, just south of the corner of McDonald.

Dobson, who was in a hurry to get back to work, by his own statement, was speeding down the centre of George Street. At the corner of McDonald he saw Duncan approaching from Water Street on McDonald and he thought Duncan was going to stop and give him the right of way. Duncan, however, kept coming, and made a short turn on the corner, and the cars crashed together. The lighter car was edged swiftly over toward the sidewalk, careened crazily, and smashed headon into a steel light post.

Dobson was severely cut about the head and bruised. He was attended immediately by Dr. Raymore Scott, and was conveyed away in the ambulance. Duncan was uninjured.

Both cars were badly battered. White's truck was completely smashed, the forepart and engine being placed beyond repair. Duncan's car was damaged along the running board and right front wheel.

Another Accident.

At the corner of Dalhousie and George Streets a motorcycle crashed into a nautomobile. Some injury was done the car and cycle, but those driving the vehicles were not hurt.

The car was crossing Dalhousie Street, when the motor cycle going south on George Street, struck it, breaking the running board and injuring the door. The front forks of the cycle were badly bent.

W. H. Martin of Dalhousie Street was driving the car, and N. Miller the motor cycle.

Curled coq is very much the vogue in Paris for hat trimming, particularly for the small turbans that seem to be molded on the head.

CANADA'S ROYAL MOUNTED POLICE NOT IN PARADE

Absence From Military Procession at Empire Thanksgiving Service Commented on.

NOT INVITED

Wembley Authorities Not Responsible for Arrangementsof Sunday's Spectacle.

LONDON, May 26 (Canadian Press Cable)—Many of those present at the Empire Thanksgiving Service at Wembley Stadium Sunday attended by their Majesties the King and Queen, were surprised to discover that members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, doing duty at the Canadian pavilion of the British Empire Exhibiton, found no place in the military procession.

The only thing that Canadian officials at the exhibition would say yesterday was that last year the members of the Canadian force were invited to participate in the ceremony but that this year no invitation was forthcoming. The Wembley authorities stated that they were not responsible for the arrangements in connection with the service which rested with the Department of Overseas Trade.

The Canadians most certainly furnished an additional and significant feature to last year's ceremony. Some newspapers were then kind enough to speak of the Dominion police as being superbly mounted, the writers obviously being ignorant of the fact that the Canadians had borrowed their horses from the Metropolitan Police for the occasion, not having brought their own mounts to England with them.

Great Demonstration

Almost 250,000 people gathered with Their Majesties the King and Queen at Wembley Stadium Sunday for the Empire Thanksgiving service. The proceedings constituted a display of ecclesiastical and military pomp rarely beheld even in the heart of the British Empire, and in view of the fact that the service was broadcast to millions of people over the radio the event may be considered the largest religious service the world has ever known. The highest pitch of enthusiasm was aroused by the marching and counter-marching of the Brigade of Guards to the music of their masked bands.

A fanfare of state trumpeters heralded the arrivals of the King and Queen who were received with vociferous chers. The cheering was succeeded by reverent silence when the first procession entered. Bluff, grey-bearded veterans from Chelsea Hospital and yeomen and warders from the Tower of London furnished a reminder of soldiering and sailoring when battles were less bloody. The most poignant spectacle, which brought tears to the eyes of thousands of beholders, was the little string of sightless men from St. Dunstan's who, with linking arms, marched with unerring step across the great arena followed by the rising generation represented in the school cadets and the naval and military orphanages.

O'LEARY, V.C., FREED

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 26. — After two hours' deliberation, a United States' District Court jury late yesterday afternoon decided that Sergeant Michael O'Leary, war hero and holder of the Victoria Cross, was NOT GUILTY of smuggling aliens across the Canadian border. O'Leary's home is in Fort Erie, Ontario.

Disrespectful Hat Was Knocked Off To Anthem

LONDON, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—A man who knocked another man's hat off because he refused to uncover his head during the singing of "The National Anthem" at the Empire Day celebration by the Fascisti in Trafalgar Square Sunday, was bound over to keep the peace when he appeared in the Bow Street Police Court yesterday.

The Magistrate told the other man that if he had conscientious scruples against uncovering on such occasions he would save himself a lot of trouble if he went without his hat, which many people did nowadays.

Montreal Entertained South Carolina Party

MONTREAL, May 26.—R. F. Watson, Mayor of Greenville, South Carolina, and eighty members of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce, spent Monday in Montreal, in the course of their 1925 New England-Canadian get acquainted tour.

In the morning they made a tour of the city and later attended a luncheon as the guests of the Montreal Board of Trade. Following they were taken on a tour of the local port by officials of the Harbor Commissioners. Last evening the party visited the French part of the city, later departing for Quebec city.

ARCTIC SILENCE SHROUDS AIRMEN AFTER 5 DAYS

No Tidings From Amundsen and His Five Companion Explorers.

WITHOUT WIRELESS.

Experts Do Not Believe the Party Will Suffer—Food Is Available.

NEW YORK, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—While tentative plans for a relief expedition are discussed, experienced Arctic explorers are still confident in the ability of Captain Roald Amundsen and his five companions to return safely from their airplane flight to the North Pole.

Amundsen, his American financial backer, Lincoln Ellsworth, two pilots and two mechanics left King's Bay, Spitzbergen, last Thursday at 5.15 p.m., or 11.15 a.m., eastern standard time. Unequipped with wireless apparatus, there is no possibility of their communicating with the civilized world.

Latest cable despatches from the north, received through the Norwegian capital, Oslo, say the Arctic regions are threatened with storms which, it is thought, will compel Captain Amundsen to return immediately if he is able. Snow and fog are forecast for to-morrow.

FOOD CACHES.

QUEBEC, May 26. — (Canadian Press).—The utmost confidence in Captain Roald Amundsen's ability to get back from his North Pole venture is expressed here by Captain J. E. Bernier, noted Arctic explorer and commander of the Canadian exploration ship "Arctic."

"For my part," the captain said in an interview to-day, "there is no reason to be alarmed. If Amundsen landed, he is now making observations which will establish without question that he reached the pole."

Captain Bernier does not believe it would be difficult for Amundsen to return overland. "Before his departure," he said, "I sent him a letter containing an itinerary which might aid him in getting back. In it I declared all places where food caches have been made, and if he returns overland these should help him a great deal. He has enough food with him to keep his party for thirty days. There is a food cache 413 miles from the Pole, at Columbia Cape left there by Dr. Nansen. If he reaches that point he will have no difficulty in making Ellesmere land, Sabine Cape, where I established a provision depot, and where Dr. Greely spent a whole winter."

HURRY PREPARATIONS.

LONDON, May 26. — (Canadian Press).—Grettir Algarsson, young British Columbian, who planned to race Amundsen to the North Pole, announced to-day that he would hurry his plans for the flight in order to be ready to take part in the search for the Amundsen expedition, now overdue on its return from the Arctic.

FREIGHT RATES AND HOME BANK BILLS DELAYED

Hon. Arthur Meighen Reminds Government to Bring Down Promised Legislation.

SESSION PASSING

Robb Says Home Bank Measure Will be Submitted This Week.

OTTAWA, May 26.—Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, pointed out in the House yesterday, that although it was late in the session, the promised legislation to dealwith the "freight rate situation" had not yet been brought down. Such legislation should not be left to the "last lap of the session." The freight rate situation, he declared, was in chaotic state, and discrimination prevailed. In justice to parliament, this legislation should have been brought down before.

Mr. Meighen declared that his remarks were also applicable to the proposed Home Bank legislation. He further considered that the government should table a memorandum embodying proposals jointly agreed to, in connection with the Australian treaty.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, replied that he hoped to bring down the legislation dealing with the Home Bank this week, while Hon. Geo. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, stated that legislation in connection with the freight rates question would in all probability be brought down by next week at the latest.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River), complained that legislation respecting rural credits and the revaluation of soldiers' lands had not yet been introduced.

KING HONORING MADAME ALBANI

Retired Canadian Singer to be Dame of the Order of Empire.

CAREER RECALLED

LONDON, May 26. — (Canadian Press).—In connection with the King's birthday honors it is announced that His Majesty has approved the recommendation of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin that Madame Albani, the noted Canadian singer, now in retirement in London, be appointed Dame of the Order of the British Empire.

Madame Albani (nee Marie Louise Emma Cecile Lejeunesse) was born at Chambly, Quebec, in 1852, and begun her wonderful artistic career at the Covent Garden Opera House, London, at the age of seventeen. She married Ernest Gye, the impresario, in 1878. Her musical successes at the close of the nineteenth century were world-wide, but she has been living in obscurity in London since her farewell concert in Albert Hall in 1911. A son is employed on the staff of the Foreign Office.

Early in April last, when La Presse of Montreal published a statement that Right Hon. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, had requested it to organize a subscription list on behalf of the aged prima donna it created quite a stir in London, and Madame Albani very emotionally expressed her deep gratitude for Hon. Mr. King's action.

"It is so splendid," she said, "that such an action should begin in Canada itself," and recalled that she had made the acquaintance of the Canadian Premier when he last visited Britain. At that time Madame Albani stated that "London is also doing something for me" in May when a benefit concert would be held at which it was hoped many famous vocalists, including Madame Melba and Dame Clara Butt, would be present.

According to the statement of her husband, their income was considerably depreciated during the war, and while she was compelled to take pupils she was not in "exactly straightened circumstances."

A London doctor now claims that obesity or fatness in women is as much of a disease as rheumatism.

"All For One And One For All" Within The Empire

LONDON, May 26.—(Canadian Press Cable.) —An eloquent appeal to encourage the sentiment of the Empire whose bonds "are as light as the air yet as strong as iron" was uttered by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in broadcasting an Empire Day message. He suggested that the British people must give the word Empire a new meaning, or substitute for it the title of the Commonwealth of British Nations.

"We cannot merely be passive admirers of the Empire's achievements and promise" he declared in deprecating belittlement of the material side of the partnership. "On the contrary all members of the family ought to assist freely and ungrudgingly for the good of all."

The premier was of the opinion that everyone should be able to pay at least one visit to Britain and overseas, and that they should modify the phrase "know thyself" into "know your Empire."

1,500 JAPANESE 'QUAKE VICTIMS

Casualties in Killed and Injured Saturday Estimated at That Total.

HOTELS LEVELLED

OSAKA, Japan, May 26.—The area which suffered most severely from the heavy earthquake shocks Saturday is estimated at 25 square miles and the total casualties at approximately 1,500. There was no damage at Osaka or Kobe.

The fires at Toyo-Oka and Kinosaki have burned out, and both places are in ruins.

Communications are being restored and relief is being extended to the thousands of sufferers. Refugees from Kinosaki Hot Springs relate pathetic experiences there, where the earthquake appears to have been more severe than at any other point.

Nearly all the hotels were levelled with the first shock, and bathers rushed out almost naked into the open. Great volumes of suffocating smoke arose, enveloping those seeking safety.

At the Kinosaki railway station many travellers perished, among them a bridal couple.

BLOSSOMS COVERED WITH ICE SATURDAY

Heavy Frost at Night Formed Ice on Standing Water.

TRENT RIVER, May 26. — A heavy electrical storm, accompanied by rain and high winds, visited here Friday night and continued till Saturday noon, when hail fell, forming ice on all blossoms which were in bloom. There was a heavy frost on Saturday night, thick ice forming on any receptacles containing water left out all night.

WEATHER

May 24th, 1925 has now passed into history and carries with it the memory of being the coldest "24th" that this part of Canada ever saw. In the morning we had some snow, ice of considerable thickness was to be seen, and the thermometer showed two degrees below the freezing point. Tender vegetation was nipped, and some in more northern sections have told me that the damage was serious. One farmer in Smith township said that ice at his place was a quarter of an inch thick and that some fields on his farm were badly yellowed. The cold wave seems to have been general over Ontario. May this year has had one frost than any May ever known. According to the records at Toronto, May of 1867 was its nearest rival, while May of 1907, came third. Yesterday morning the temperature was 37 degrees, while this Tuesday morning it was 35 degrees.—W. P.

EMPIRE FABRIC MADE STRONGER BY INTERCOURSE

Closer Business Relations Between Britain and Canada a Bond of Union.

KING'S EXAMPLE

Knows All People Under British Flag From Earlier Visits.

MONTREAL, May 26. — The need of more intimate business relations between Britain and Canada, and more British capital invested in the Dominion, was stressed by F. W. Field, His Majesty's Trade Commissioner in Canada and Newfoundland, in a speech delivered on Monday at the Victoria Square Empire Day celebration.

The reference to Anglo-Canadian relations came during a plea for more inter-empire visiting, intermingling and commerce, so that the various peoples might benefit by first hand knowledge and not be liable to depend on "secondhand lop-sided impressions," stronger unity of empire would result, the speaker said, and the vast fabric that prospered so much under the late Queen Victoria would become more solid than ever.

Victoria, Mr. Field said, had combined the qualities of reasonableness, truthfulness, common sense and courage, and she had been a powerful factor in foreign and imperial relations.

"She was a good woman and a good queen." The Diamond jubilee of 1897 had seen the birth of Victoria Day, later to become known as Empire Day. That day, the speaker said, awakened to Empire people appreciation of the possibilities of other people as under the same flag.

The present King and Prince of Wales had visited the various parts of the Empire.

"Both of them know the people under their flag," said Mr. Field; "they know them at first hand and that is a lesson of value to the people at large; it is a lesson which many of the peoples in the Empire should take to heart. Differences of opinion will be removed and thought and trade will be consolidated if the people of one part of the Empire know the people of the other parts."

Mr. Field spoke of the ties that bound the empire and the United States.

"If the people of Britain and the Republic stand together with their great driving power, surely they can maintain the nations of the world in peaceful pursuits for all time," he added.

Following several other patriotic speeches, wreaths were placed at the base of the Victoria monuments.

BEEKEEPERS LEARN ABOUT FOUL BROOD

Field Day at Hoard's Station —Inspection by Departmental Apiarist.

ELDORADO, May 26.—A beekeepers' field day was held under the management of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, co-operating with the County Beekeepers Association at the Apiary of C. C. Clancy, one mile north of Hoard's Station. The demonstration being given by Mr. Jarvis, Apiarist of O.A.C. Guelph. The object of this meet was to discuss the best methods of controlling American Foul Brood, which is in the country. The attending beekeepers, both ladies and gentlemen were able to view at close range each stage and symptom of American Foul Brood, as Mr. Jarvis demonstrated. The department is endeavouring to clean up Foul Brood so beekeeping will be a safe profitable business. Madoc beekeepers were represented by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Miller and A. R. Hollands. Mr. Jarvis made a special request that all beekeepers cooperate with the inspectors when inspecting their apiaries to give them the names of all beemen.

HENRY WARD BEECHER STARRED IN THE HEADLINES 50 YEARS AGO

Scandalous Court Case Involved Greatest Preacher of His Day.

LETTERS READ.

Tilton Claimed $100,000 Damages and Trial Lasted For Months.

Half a century has passed since the $100,000 damage suit of Tilton vs. Beecher slipped from an all-important place in the public mind with the jury standing 9 to 3 in favor of the defendant. Half way between then and now Henry Ward Beecher, dead thirteen years, took his place among the first group of Americans to be elected to the Hall of Fame. In the subsequent period he has receded from the knowledge of men to the present generation chiefly through notations in reference books: "Beecher, Henry Ward; pulpit orator and writer; 1813-1887."

The present generation finds it hard to understand why the charges against Beecher should have absorbed an earlier America to the extent they did. The quantity of printed paper given to the case, in its day, seems astounding, even in this era of prodigal presses. For years the charges and investigations and suits centering about the relations of the Brooklyn clergyman and his editorial colleague, Theodore Tilton, and Tilton's wife were the chief interest of the whole country. When the issue came at last to the courts through Tilton's demand for damages, the case was not merely a prize bit for the gossips from one coast to another; it was the scandal, with the accent on the "the."?

The Scandal Breaks.

The sensation came from what, in the first place, had the outward appearance of a doctrinal dispute within the Congregational Church.

The bald outline of the story has no touch of the dramatic as it is given in the biography of Beecher written by Lyman Abbott, friend of Beecher and brother of that attorney for the defense who edited (with the Court's sanction) one of the two histories of the trial, each in two volumes of 800 pages apiece.

"Persecution" is Lyman Abbott's word. Tilton, in 1870, said his purpose was "to strike Beecher to the heart." His claim then was no stronger than that Beecher had made advances to Mrs. Tilton. The husband's first public charge was made in June, 1874. On Beecher's demand it was investigated by a committee of Brooklyn's Plymouth Church which acquitted him in August of that year.

Then came a session of Congregationalists from elsewhere, maintaining that Tilton's resignation from Beecher's church was not orthodox, and then the trial. Dr. Abbott records that during the damage suit the chief attorney for the plaintiff publicly avowed his belief in Beecher's innocence and wished to withdraw, and that eight years after the trial the Judge presided at a meeting honoring Beecher on his seventieth birthday.

Elizabeth Richards and Theodore Tilton were members of Beecher's church. They were married early in his service in the Brooklyn pulpit, of which the silver anniversary was celebrated in 1872. A month after the anniversary the whole country was talking.

Enemies Arm in Arm.

Tilton had been Beecher's editorial assistant on religious magazines. Today he seems a vacillating figure. Beecher's adherents depict Tilton as an egotist to whom came the desire to outshine Beecher as an orator. When the charges became America's scandal, Tilton was in business difficulties; he had lost his two jobs as editor. Not long before that he and Beecher had been seen arm in arm at a reception given to General Grant at the Fifth Avenue Hotel; it was said Tilton had manoeuvred this incident of apparent friendship.

The goddess from the machine in the Beecher case was Victoria Woodhull. She was the Presidential nominee of the Equal Rights Party against Grant and Greeley. She was also a Spiritualist and she lectured for free love. Tilton wrote her biography and, the testimony brought out, drove her to Coney Island, where they went in bathing. Perhaps Tilton was charmed by her; perhaps he used her to spread the story. Both explanations were to be heard.

There had been cursory hints of the Beecher matter when Victoria Woodhull let loose the whole array of charges. Her immediate motive appears to have been rancor. She gave a lecture in New York in advocacy of free love. She said Beecher had approved her views and agreed to sit on the platform. He did not come; Tilton took his place. Mrs. Woodhull called Beecher a man afraid to stand by his opinions.

Afterward she was re-elected President of the National Association of Spiritualists. In her speech of acceptance she made her first attack on Beecher. Soon she followed it up. She said Tilton had told her he had discovered his family affairs were not in order. It was alleged that Frank Moulton, a friend of Tilton, had waved a pistol to get back a letter written by Mrs. Tilton to Beecher. Mrs. Woodhull gave out such charges in interviews; she published them, with asterisks for names, in Woodhull and Claflin's Weekly. Whispers already made the asterisks recognizable.

She and Tennie Claflin, her sister, were prosecuted; Beecher's friends were active in the case. Beecher announced that any one having letters of his could publish them. Mrs. Tilton added her denial to his. Tilton and Moulton made less forthright denials.

Charged before the Plymouth Church with slandering the pastor, Tilton appeared at a hearing and said he would answer any accusations Beecher made. Beecher said he had none to make. It was an astounding moment.

Controversy Rages.

The husband said he had already quit the church, so his name was dropped from the rolls; but not his wife's name. From this came a council of Congregational Churches in 1874, at which Beecher defended the right of any member to withdraw, irrespective of procedure. His church took no part in the council, which accomplished little. Beecher and one of the council leaders kissed each other while 3,000 applauded.

The controversy was on, however. The press, society, the churches, all divided. Meanwhile Victoria Woodhull had announced "moral warfare on the social question," to begin with, "ventilating one of the most stupendous scandals which has ever occurred." This time she used no asterisks. Tilton, in an article, said he had quit the church in 1870 on learning that Beecher had committed an offense against him which he would forbear to name or characterize; he said Beecher had disgraced the Christian name.

What followed was known as "the scandal Summer." Beecher asked an investigation—not of church procedure this time, but of the charges. A committee cleared Beecher, and the congregation held a rejoicing meeting. Only after that did Tilton sue for damages.

Probably no trial has ever aroused more interest. Ten lawyers fought six months. Flowers were sent to Tilton in court. Letters were read. There were suggestions of blackmailing by means of articles which Tilton had had set in type in order to print two copies. There was the disclosure of an agreement of defense in 3874 among Beecher, Tilton and a friend, with apologies and the return of papers.

Buggy trips were mentioned—Beecher with Mrs. Tilton, Tilton with Mrs. Woodhull. Tilton was asked about other women. He was said to have taken $75,000 from Beecher, sending in return to Beecher's pulpit a note reading, "Grace, mercy and peace.—T. T." It was declared Beecher had confessed to the husband. The wife was said to have confessed.

The "Confession" Explained.

The defense was this: Beecher's supposed confession was a misunderstanding of his passionate regret at unwittingly separating husband and wife. She, it was said, consulted her pastor about Tilton's brutality; Beecher advised her to leave him. Then Moulton told Beecher Mrs. Tilton's story of abuse was a fabrication, and the pastor wept at his mistake. Meanwhile the mistake had cost Tilton his employment. The defense also charged a plot to get Tilton's editorial jobs back for him in 1871.

Beecher carried his verbal warmth of expression from the pulpit into private conversation. It became a point in the trial—things he had said figuratively, it was claimed, had been taken too literally. This was not understood at a distance of 4,000 miles. England sent sympathetic memorials to him, and protests at these memorials.

Through six digressive months America listened. It heard that the Tiltons' child was the cause of their reunion; that one of Beecher's eight children had been the cause of Tilton's finding it all out. It saw pictures of Mrs. Beecher self-possessed in the courtroom. It heard Mrs. Tilton referred to as "she whose lips are sealed and whose hands are tied while the battle is waging." It read of Tilton's 1870 demand that Beecher should quit the pulpit, and of the resignation Beecher wrote in 1873—two years of sorrow and struggle to save a certain household, he said—and of how he tore it up and decided to fight. It heard much about Victoria Woodhull and much of Moulton, go-between for the two men during four years.

There were moments enough in those six trial months. One came when Beecher, urbane and even jovial, stopped in court to chat with Tilton's lawyers. Tilton, two feet away, could not see him. Beecher introduced himself to one of the plaintiff's attorneys, ex-Judge Samuel D. Morris. The lawyer was cold. Beecher, however, chatted on. "I notice," he said to Morris, "that you lawyers, like preachers, know how to deliver long sermons." Morris bowed slightly and said: "Yes, sir; I had a long story to tell."

Charges Not Proved.

Six months of this and the jury went out. For eight days the world waited. Once, it is said, the jury agreed in Beecher's favor. The foreman had a son-in-law who had bet that the jury would not return for the plaintiff. The too frank foreman, with the verdict safely reached, wanted the others to know this so that his conscience would be clear. So he told them, at which the deliberations began once more. In the end there was no agreement but only 9 to 3 for Beecher.

The affair was the chief newspaper story for months. Books were written about it. The bibliography of Beecher's forty years in the ministry embraces more than 200 items; few Americans have been the subject of so many biographies, and he himself wrote extensively. Among the 200 items are at least eight histories of the case, some of them fat books stoutly bound, published in Chicago and Philadelphia as well as New York. "The Great Sensation," brought out in 1873; "The True History of the Brooklyn Scandal," in 1874; "Beecher and His Accusers," and more and more.

Clergymen wrote pamphlets with titles such as "Wickedness in High Places"; special papers were published to deal with the case, carrying such headlines as "The Republic Threatened." Books were devoted to the great days of the trial—the addresses of counsel "for sale at all newsdealers," the cross-examinations and startling bits of testimony. It was a drama and a pageant in one, not without elements of the circus, with its protagonist the most successful minister in history.

Leading People Involved'

In the writings about the trial the latter-day inquirer gropes for the cause of all this interest. The case came in a period on which the present day has recently been looking with something of amazement. The principals and the supernumeraries loom queerly through the dimness of fifty years. It is not merely that they wore clothes which now seem quaint; the figures themselves are strange.

There was Beecher himself, a clergyman occupying a position of power in the land such as no clergyman of today approaches. There was "Lib"—Elizabeth—Tilton, a small woman apparently of some charm, with black hair and dark eyes, 40 years old at the time of the trial. She is described on one hand as too talky and on the other as a wronged and maligned women who had always got a good mark in deportment when she was at school. Victoria Woodhull, the spiritualist who ran for President, is a strange enough character, and with her in the middle distance is her sister, Tennie C. (sometime Tennessee) Claflin, clairvoyant, with a broker's office at 48 Broad Street. At the side of Tennie Claflin is her friend, Colonel Blood, spiritualist.

There are others. Anthony Comstock, for one; he prosecuted Mrs. Woodhull and her sister and Colonel Blood for sending through the mails the weekly paper in which the woman candidate made the first attack on Beecher. Ben Butler told a friend that Tilton had a case. William M. Evarts, later Secretary of State under Hayes, was counsel for the defense, and with him was General Benjamin F. Tracy. Elizabeth Cady Stanton was cited as an authority for the original devastating story, and denied it.

The matter was still mostly smoke when a young Brooklyn attorney got a warrant for libel against Tilton, believing sworn testimony by all involved would clear a public issue. This young lawyer was William J. Gaynor, thirty-five years later Mayor of New York, then described as "a solemn-looking young man with a literary cast in his countenance and reddish whiskers and mustache."

The personages, however do not explain the widespread interest. Nor do the allegations. The story was Beecher. It was because of him that one newspaper at first suppressed the scandal. The motive is to be found in the comment of another paper: "All Christendom hangs on the outcome."

Rise of a Great Preacher.

Beecher, the orator, as a boy had to be coerced to speak a piece at school. He thought of going to sea, and years later, when poring over the maps of Sherman's march to the sea, he said, "If I weren't a preacher I would choose to be a General above anything else." Books of clerical anecdotes tell how he related that as a lad in his native Connecticut he learned to swear roundly.

He was the son of Lyman Beecher, once known as "the fiddling parson," a man of distinction, President of Lane Seminary in Ohio when it was a storm centre of Presbyterian doctrine. The son was graduated there and at 24 took his first pastorate in Indiana. He got $300 a year, part in produce; he hauled logs for his own house, cared for an invalid wife who was not made for frontier life, conducted revivals, often lacked the 13 cents for postage due on a waiting letter from the East, and was almost made manager of a new railroad, when, in two years, he moved to Indianapolis.

In 1847, he visited New York by invitation, attended the dedication of Plymouth Church, a new Congregational Church in Brooklyn, and in a few weeks became its pastor. Competition was strong in the City of Churches, but the new minister from the backwoods had a personality and drew adherents of even other sects.

He made campaigns. During most of his life he was engaged in warfare of one sort of another, says Lyman Abbott. "He was constantly attacking what he regarded as abuses—social, political, religious; and he was constantly under attack for what others regarded as social, political and religious errors in his teaching." Slavery was one of his issues, he brought slave children to the platform with him; dramatically he cast down slave shains and stamped on them, and it is recorded that there were parts of the country where his life would not have been safe between 1855 and 1867.

In the Civil War he went to England. As the greatest orator of the day he sought to win sympathy for the North. In 1863 Oliver Wendell Holmes wrote that Beecher had finished "a more remarkable mission than any envoy who has represented us in Europe since Benjamin Franklin pleaded the cause of the young Republic before the Court at Versailles." Fifty years later Beecher's successor in the pulpit, the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, wrote: "Through Henry Ward Beecher God wrought great things for the Republic, and the greatness of God in him made our ascended Elijah the glory of his times."

Was Rated With Lincoln.

He wrote, he edited, he made his pulpit a free platform; at 60 he preached twice on Sunday and once in mid-week and traveled for three lectures a week besides keeping up his writing. Earlier his name had been put beside those of Napoleon and Nelson and it was written, "With the exception of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and General Grant no American ever became so well known as Henry Ward Beecher. In the estimation of many thousands he is the foremost of his countrymen."

"From $40 to $35,000 a Year," runs the heading on one of the many periodical supplements devoted to him. He wrote one novel, "Norwood," which brought him $30,000. His aggregate salary in forty years was $550,000; his lectures and editorial work made as much more. Wedding fees alone brought $30,000. When he died his earnings, including those from his thirty published volumes, were said to have come to $1,450,000.

The public knew vaguely of this success. People read of his $300,000 model farm estate at Peckskill, of the $80,000 his congregation voted him for trial expenses. They read that he was a great actor and also that he could not dissemble. They talked of his "Life of Christ" and of how he covered twenty-six miles in twenty-six minutes with a special engine, to keep a lecture engagement. They discussed his views on temperance, free trade, agriculture, life insurance, suffrage, stenography. They heeded his example when he told how he had always used phrenology as a system of mental philosophy.

In 1872, when there was talk, he lectured at Yale; he traveled the country on what were regarded as triumphal tours; his talks on evolution drew crowds; he sat beside Darwinians at dinners; he introduced Bob Ingersoll at a lecture; he came out for Cleveland against Blaine. He always thought in figures of speech and always welcomed the reporters. Once he spoke of peace bearing a diamond sceptre. "But," said a reporter, "there's no such thing as a diamond sceptre." And Beecher answered, "I guess I know what I saw."

The defendant came out of the trial a martyr. To Beecher's adherents the case was nothing but blackmail. His church increased his salary. The sales of his books, according to his obituary notices, fell off from then on, but when Beecher died in 1887, the memory of Tilton was already approaching the faintness of Victoria Woodhull's invoked spirits.

STRIP OF MOVIE FILM MAY REVEAL SLAYER

ST. LOUIS, May 26.—A short strip of movie film may hold a solution of the mystery surrounding the murder of Dr. William A. Dillon.

For through the aid of a moving picture camera, detectives have been partially successful in tracing the movements of the doctor the night he was killed on the Washington University campus, and in bringing into the investigation something which figures in most murder cases in which men are the victims—a woman.

A striking blond, police believe, can give information which may lead to the identity of the slayers.

Three persons, two of them women, and the third the doctor's son, Edward, 19, a former Kansas University student, have been questioned by detectives.

Only Circumstantial.

Only in the case of the latter have they been able to gain any headway. But so far, the best police have been abel to do is to build a circumstantial case against the son, which they admit would not stand in court.

Up to the time of the coroner's inquest, police were without clews to the murder and were unable to trace the physician's movements after he left his hotel on a telephone call from a feminine voice.

On the day of the inquest Nettie Beckerle, a stenographer ,said she had seen the doctor at a celebration staged in a movie studio in University City to dedicate a new radio station. It was the night the doctor was slain.

A movie director, remembering that he had taken films of the gathering, made proofs of the pictures for detectives.

Dr. Dillon was on the film.

So was his former wife.

And then there was the wife of a prominent man—a man accused of having paid frequent visits to the Dillon home.

Besides this was a person whom police suspect.

Just what else the films will tell detectives is still problematical. Powerful microscopes are being used on enlargements in an effort to find some one who may help solve the murder.

Marie Addis, who was with the doctor early in the evening, has convinced detectives that she left his company about 10 o'clock.

An interesting phase of the investigation was furnished by a telephone operator at the doctor's hotel. She had admitted that she had listened "slightly" to the doctor's conversation several times and that both men and women threatened him with death.

She had heard them invite him out to fight, but he always laughed them off and hung up the receiver.

Young Dillon refuses to talk when grilled by detectives, but he did tell inquisitors "if its a question of the rope, I'll talk, but not until then."

He was drawn into the investigation when it was learned he was absent from his boarding house in Lawrence, Kas., for three days prior to the murder.

A loan shopkeeper of Lawrence told police he sold young Dillon a gun two days before the murder, while a hardware dealer said he sold .38 cartridges to the youth.

The physician was shot with a .38 gun.

This evidence coupled with the fact that young Dillon entered college on forged credits, spent money lavishly, was arrested once as a suspect in a holdup, and was the beneficiary of his father's $25,000 insurance policy in the event of violent death, gave circumstantial case against the son.

Yet detectives believe the "striking blonde" can furnish the necessary evidence needed to find and convict the slayer.

Mrs. Dillon, who divorced the doctor two years ago, and who took part in the playlet at the university the night of the murder, was unable to answer the summons to appear before the coroner's jury.

She collapsed before leaving her home and is under care of physicians.

The old French saying, "Cherchezia la Femme"—find the woman—is guiding detectives assigned to the case.

And they feel sure she is pictured somewhere on the movie strip.

MILLBROOK HOTELS STILL AWAIT BEER

Permits and Beverage Still Absent From Village—Two Stores Apply.

MILLBROOK, May 26.—The two local hotels, and two stores, have applied for permits to sell the four-point-four beer.

J. W. Hutchison, of the Commercial House, has received his permit but no beer. Neither J. Crocker (Queen's Hotel), C. Robinson (restaurant), nor N. Gilmour (tobaccoes, soft drinks, etc.), have received either permits or beer as yet. Mr. Gilmour has taken his billard tables upstairs to the room over his store, to comply with the requirement that all tables where the beer is served must be in full view from the front windows.

According to a recent announcement from Hon. F. W. Nickle, Attorney-General, most standard hotel permits were sent out on the mere strength of the hotel license, but shop permits are being scrutinized more closely. Not one in twenty of the latter has yet been dealt with, and a number have been turned down as not acceptable. Restaurants are also, as yet, awaiting attention.

If People Only Knew.

Life Insurance is probably the greatest force for prosperity and happiness in the world today.

There are life insurance contracts within your reach which no individual—unless he were a philanthropist—could match in generosity.

Consider a $10,000 North American Life 20 Year Endowment Policy.

For a certain annual premium, over a period of twenty years, you actually buy $10,000 cash from us. Investigation will prove to you that the annual payment on this $10,000 is really much less than the bank interest on a $10,000 loan.

But that is not all! If you die at any time after your first payment, we turn over your $10,000 to your widow or dependents, just as if you had paid for it in full.

Could you buy a house—an automobile—even a piano, on such terms?

We will be glad to tell you more about this form of insurance. Write us to-day.

MADE-IN-PETERBORO.

It would be an interesting test if this week the people of Peterboro were to be required to sit down and write a list of the articles manufactured in Peterboro, and then to compare what they wrote with a similar list prepared after the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition in the Armouries next week.

So thoroughly have the manufacturers of Peterboro entered into the preparation for the exhibition that the displays will give visitors a pretty comprehensive idea of everything that is made in the local industries.

The extent and variety of these products will prove a surprise, even to those who fancy they are pretty closely in touch with the industrial situation.

The Exhibition will, in fact, be an education to citizens generally, and the Armouries will have to be visited more than once if the affair is to produce its full value along this line.

With the proceeds in aid of the Peterboro Health Association and a unique chance of learning all about the articles made in our home city, no citizen of Peterboro worthy of the name can afford to miss the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition.

THE ARMY TAG DAY.

The bad weather on Saturday doubtless materially reduced the total collections on behalf of the Salvation Army, yet it served to effectively demonstrate the loyalty and eagerness to serve of the members of the Army organization who faced the elements with the utmost cheerfulness and carried on the drive as if the sun were smiling down with its customary early-summer blitheness.

Amid the thunder and rain and hail of Saturday morning the Salvation Army lassies, who must have been chilled to the bone by the Arctic breeze, stuck gamely to their posts, and the business of selling tags went on as if there were no such thing as bad weather.

The tag day receipts may have suffered, but the cause for which the Salvation Army stands gained because of the devotion to duty shown by every member to whom a share in Saturday's campaign was alloted.

The drive emphasized the fact that the Salvation Army does not pick the soft spots in which to carry on its mission.

No task is too hard, no conditions are too repellent, no obstacle is too great, when the work of the Army has to be done, and the loyalty and enthusiasm that is shown by every member, even in the face of such circumstances as were in force Saturday, must sometimes be the envy of other organizations where lip service is too often substituted for genuine self-sacrifice and zeal.

KEEPING UP THE MILITIA.

Some of the members of the House of Commons who talk so glibly about militarism and the necessity of Canada preparing for peace rather than for war, should be a little more explicit in stating their views.

Do they honestly think that this country is showing any signs of preparing for war?

Do they want to scrap the remnants of the organization now in existence?

As a matter of fact Canada has no army at present; what she is supposed to have is the skeleton of a militia upon which an army could be built if the need arouse.

Hardly the frame-work is left now, however, and if this is to be retained it will be necessary for the country to expend enough funds to keep the remnant alive.

We cannot expect that the men who are serving us by assuming the responsibility of acting as officers in our militia units shall go down into their own pockets and finance the scheme themselves.

Our national pride has surely not sunk so low as that.

In naval matters, of course, we are content to accept the protection of the British navy without making any contribution toward its upkeep or without, as Australia has done, taking some of the load off the shoulders of the British people by maintaining a competent navy of our own.

The people of Canada surely do not want to get rid of their obligations to maintain the nucleus of a militia by shifting the burden upon the officers of the various units.

LOOKS LIKE A FAILURE.

The general verdict upon the 4.4 beer policy of the Ontario Government after a few days' test of the much-heralded beverage seems to be that the administration has succeeded in arousing the ire of the temperance forces without satisfying the opponents of prohibition.

Temperance leaders have condemned the introduction of slightly stronger beer as a calamity.

It is not likely to prove anything of the kind, unless to those who introduced it.

The wets looked forward to the day when the Ferguson-Nickle brew would go on sale with the hope that here at last was a legal beverage with a "kick" to it.

They have been disappointed—the 4.4 beer, according to expert investigators, is a "dud."

It is, in fact, just about as Mr. Nickle described it—"a palatable beverage."

If it were to sell at 5c a glass it would probably enjoy a good sale.

The Federal Government, however, helped to kill it when they clapped an excise tax on the new brew and made the 10c glass almost inevitable.

With the "kick" absent and the price high, the present indications are that after the public curiosity has been satisfied the new beer will not be in much greater demand than was its predecessor allowed by the Ontario Temperance Act—unless the tourist traffic keeps the breweries working.

Four-point-four has swung the temperance forces against the Government.

It has been the source of annoyance and inconvenience to hotelkeepers, who have had to remodel their premises in accordance with Mr. Nickle's abolish-the-bar orders.

It has disappointed the thirsty.

What is the next step?

That is the big question.

Will it be the authorization of stronger beer that may satisfy those who have already pronounced four-point-four a snare and a delusion?

There are those who say so—but time alone will tell.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF "SOCCER."

In his characteristically clever defence of golf and other games against the attacks of the splenetic editor of the National Review the other day, Earl Balfour scored heavily when he blandly declared that Britain's supremacy in sport was "due to the fact that we invented all the great games except, perhaps, baseball."

"The fact that we are imitated by other races to the remote parts of the world must interfere with our success. We have conferred benefits on the world by our games."

It was, no doubt, golf and tennis that Earl Balfour had chiefly in mind when he countered with the claim which effectually silenced Mr. Leo Maxse, but an equally striking illustration could have been cited in its support in the remarkable spread of football, both Rugby and Association. Though challenged successfully in the carrying code by New Zealand, and confronted by a serious rival in France, the Old Country still emphatically retains her supremacy in Association football, which, if she did not invent, she was the first to develop in its modern form.

Football of a kind, we are told by historians, was known among the nations of antiquity. Greece and Rome both played a game of which kicking and carrying a ball were essential features; and though Irish antiquarians have claimed that football was a pastime in Ireland two thousand years ago, the tradition accepted by football authorities is that the game was introduced in Britain by the Roman legions.

However that may be, there is authentic record of the popularity of football in London in the twelfth century; and in spite of laws enacted against it, and of the fulminations of writers like Sir Thomas Elyot and Stubbes who characterized it as "nothing but beastly fury" and "a devilish pastime," the game, as then played, continued in favor until the early part of the nineteenth century. For a time it was one of the features of the "Shrove Tuesday" festivals, but because of its strenuous character and brutalizing tendencies, the old free-for-all football fell into bad repute; and survived only in the great English public schools, where it was played under conditions familiar to the readers of "Tom Brown's Schooldays."

What is now so widely known as "Soccer" took its rise at a memorable meeting in 1863 of representatives of the leading English public schools, who drew up a code of rules which established the fundamental principles of the Association game, and set the seal of official authority upon its character; this step being followed very soon afterwards by the formation of the National Football Association which has since controlled the game. Eight years later, the English cup competition was inaugurated, with fifteen clubs participating; and in the following year was played the first international match between England and Scotland.

Such, in brief outline, is the history of the game which shares with golf the distinction of being the most universally popular of all games. Its development and spread have been phenomenal. Every British village has its club; every city its league matches and cup ties that are patronized by tens of thousands of spectators. It has been estimated that ten million people take pleasure in "soccer" football in the Old Country; that at least five million pounds are invested in clubs and players, and that more than that amount is spent annually by followers of the game. Apart from its recreational ramifications, it has become one of the vital economic factors of British life.

And scarcely less amazing is the rapid growth of this essentially English game in other countries. In Canada and the other Dominions its popularity is steadily on the increase; in the United States it has obtained a hold that in some industrial centres seriously challenges baseball itself; and on the European continent it threatens the extinction of all other national games. As a writer in the London Times points out, "Sokker" has become a household word in Sweden, France, Germany and Spain are developing teams which, under British tuition, may rival England's best; and even the youth of Turkey are resorting in increasing numbers to what the authorities regard as the new revolutionary practice of playing Association football.

It is a great game, the imitation of which, in Balfour's words, "by other races of the remote parts of the world" may menace British supremacy, but may also have an influence more profound and far-reaching than is dreamt of in the philosophy of the editor of the National Review or of the League of Nations.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition will be in full swing a week from today. As the event draws near it becomes more evident that this is the biggest thing of its kind the city has ever known.

Many citizens came to the conclusion over the week-end that they must have bought next winter's coal for this summer's use.

There may be little "kick" in four-point-four. But it must be admitted there is plenty of kicking about it.

It was frigid weather for the opening of the Woodbine. It always was a pretty cold day for a lot of people anyway.

The disappearance of Canadian banks suggests the old verse about "the ten little nigger boys sitting in a row."

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 25.—Sensational upturns in price both for corn and wheat and for rye as well, resulted today from freezing weather over the grain belt as far south as Kansas. Temperatures, the lowest at this time in seventy years were reported. Need of general replanting of corn was predicted, and serious apprehension was expressed as to the outlook for the winter crop. After an extreme jump of 8 1-8 cents a bushel, the corn market closed unsettled, 3 1-8 to 7 1-8 cents net higher; wheat finished strong at the day's top, 1 3-4 to 5 7-8 cents up, May 171 34 to 172, and July 161 3-4 to 162; rye up as much as 8 cents, with oats showing 1 1-2 to 1 7-8 gain and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to 15 cents advance.

SHOWER FOR GIRLS WHO LOST BY FIRE

Public and Sunday School Companions United at Campbellford.

LAKEFIELD, May 26. — Mrs. H. J. Sutton entertained between fifty and sixty ladies, including the members of the Girls' Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, on Thursday evening at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Myrtle Kidd, whose marriage to Mr. Allan Taylor takes place early next month.

Mrs. Sutton's spacious home was prettily decorated with spring blossoms and presented a most attractive appearance.

Mrs. D. H. McMillan and Mrs. Wm. Millage contributed solos in a very pleasing manner and Miss Hunter rendered several pianoforte selections which were much appreciated.

When all the guests had assembled, two dainty little maidens dressed as brides with the conventional bridal veils and wreaths drew in a decorated wagon to the accompaniment of the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Dorothy Sutton. A large wedding cake occupied the centre of the wagon and was found to contain, instead of the usual ingredients of a cake, an assortment of useful and dainty articles for the bride-elect. The wagon and its load was augmented by a large clothes' basket full of gifts and several large parcels. Mrs. Kidd, who was seated in the bow window of the drawing room, under a floral bell was assisted in opening the gifts by Miss Lulu Darling. The gifts were truly miscellaneous and there were few duplicates, china, linen, kitchenware and ornaments in great variety testified to the popularity of Miss Kidd. Many of the gifts were accompanied by original verses but all conveyed the "love and best wishes" of the donors. Miss Kidd made a very graceful little speech, thanking her friends for their gifts and the good wishes which accompanied them. The girls of the Auxiliary served dainty refreshments after which Mrs. Judson R. Hull sang a solo in splendid voice.

The remainder of the evening was spent in social intercourse and was a pleasant function which will live long in the memories of all those present.

Mrs. Earl Orr entertained her neighbors on Saturday afternoon at a tea and handkerchief shower in honor of Miss Myrtle Kidd, who will be a bride of June.

Never Met Its Equal For Healing!

Writing from Saulnierville, Digby Co., N.S., Mr. John M. Theriault says:—"We find Zam-Buk a splendid household healer for cuts, burns and other accidents and skin ailments of common occurrence.

"One of my sons tried Zam-Buk for his boils and it did him such a lot of good, that I decided to give the balm a trial for piles, from which I had been troubled for over two years.

"Before one box of Zam-Buk was finished, I had derived such ease and comfort that I continued with the treatment. In a comparatively short time I had gained permanent relief from the piles. Zam-Buk proved equally good for chapped hands, cracked lips, etc.

"I've never met its equal for healing."

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes . . . but no work or children.

She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she swamps Dick with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazzy" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR ,warns her not to been seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with JIM CAREWE.

Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia.

And again she was surprised at the sharp pang of jealousy that prickled through her at the thought of Miss Briggs sitting there with Dick all afternoon.

"If there's anything I can do for your mother let me know," Dick called after her as she went into her own room to dress. His kindness was a reproach in itself.

How good he was to her! And she didn't deserve it!

Gloria was ready to go long before the doorbell rang.

When at last it did, Gloria snatched up her coat and ran downstairs impatiently.

"If I'd had any sense I'd have sent a cab for you. Time counts in a thing like this!" she said sharply to Miss Briggs as they went up to Dick's room.

Miss Briggs flushed. She knew that what Gloria meant was that if she had had any sense she would have hurried to the house in a cab herself!

She bit her lip and said nothing.

When she opened the door of Dick's room there was a radiant smile in her eyes.

"Good-by, you two," Gloria said, and was gone.

Gloria ran out to the garage and started the little blue roadster. Two minutes later it was skimming the shining wet pavements on the road to the hospital.

Gloria's heart beat fast as she neared the street corner that had become the favorite meeting-place of herself and Stanley Wayburn.

. . . Yes! There he was! Standing in the misty rain, smoking his everlasting cigaret.

He swept off his hat as Gloria headed her car in toward the curb, and stood bare-headed in the rain.

"For the love of Mike, put on your hat! Do you want to catch your death o' dampness?" Gloria asked, opening the door of the car. "Jump in, and be quick about it!"

"If I'm going to catch cold, I've caught it now. You've kept me waiting there in the rain for almost an hour . . do you know it?" Stan asked. He settled into his seat and shook the raindrops from his pearl-gray hat.

"I wasn't coming to-day at all," Gloria said.

"You weren't coming?" Stan repeated. There was surprise in his voice.

Gloria shook her head.

"No," she answered. "But they telephoned to say that I'd better go right over to the hospital. Mother Gregory's there to be operated o appendicitis. . . . I must hurry!"

She pressed her foot down on the accelerator and the little car shot forward eagerly.

"I asked you to ride with me so I could tell you why I made up my mind not to meet you to-day," Gloria went on bravely. "This is the last time I'm ever going to see you . . . or talk to you."

Stan opened the door of the car and tossed out his half-smoked cigaret.

"What's the big idea, Russet?" he asked laying his arm along the back of the seat. Gloria leaned forward, away from it.

"You see, it's this way. . . . I've been thinking a lot about Dick and you and me lately," Gloria tried to explain. "I knew I couldn't go on living in the same house with him so long as I was thinking about you all the time . . . seeing you every day.

"Last night I made up my mind to leave and go to New York to get a job on the stage . . . but to-day when I looked at Dick I saw how much he needs me. Why, he's crazy about me, Stan! It would kill him if I went away from him! So I've made up my mind to put you right out of my thoughts and be a good wife to Dick from now on. I owe it to him. . . ."

Wayburn interrupted her with an easy laugh.

"You can't put me out of your thoughts, Russet," he said. "You can chuck me out of your life . . . but you will go on thinking about me just the same. I know women!"

"Oh, I know you know all about women!" Gloria answered bitterly. "And two weeks after you've left—you'll have forgotten all about me. You'll have a dozen new sweeties. But Dick's not like you, Stan. . . . I'm the only woman in the world for him. That's why I've got to stick."

She slowed down the car and drove up before the hospital where Dr. Seymour had taken Mother Gregory.

"Aren't you making a mountain out of a mole-hill, Russet?" Stan asked, lighting a fresh cigaret. "I haven't hurt you. I haven't asked you to leave your husband for me. Our friendship's been just a flame where I could warm my heart . . ."

"Oh, cut the poetry!" Gloria cried impatiently. "You know just as well as I do that we had no business ever seeing each other. There's no such thing as a harmless friendship between a married woman and a single man! No woman has enough room in her life for two men!"

"Well, don't get sore at me about it!" Wayburn defended himself. "It's not my fault that you're unhappy with your husband."

Gloria opened her eyes with surprise.

"Well, it that isn't just like a man!" she exclaimed indignantly. "All you've done for the last three months is to follow me around and make love to me at every turn! And then you have the nerve to tell me it isn't your fault that I'm unhappy with Dick? . . . Why didn't you let me alone? I was contented enough until you came back to town."

Wayburn's lip curled in contemptuous amusement.

"I did let you alone, Russet," he said. "It was you who came to the theatre to hunt me up, if you remember. . . . I knew what ailed you. You were bored with married life. You wanted something more exciting . . . more jazzy. You wanted a love affair with me. Now, be honest with yourself! Didn't you?"

• • •

He leaned forward and took Gloria's gloved hands in his.

"You're just a peppy young Flapper who got married too soon, he said. "You'll settle down after a shile, and be a fine wife. You'll forget you ever knew me."

"Is that what you want me to do?" Gloria asked. "Now that you're leaving town, you're perfectly contented not to see me again, aren't you? You want me not to bother you any more, don't you? You're tired of me."

"I'm not going for two weeks or more," Wayburn answered. "In the meantime, I want to see you just as often as you'll let me see you, Russet. . . . And let's not quarrel any more. . . . What's the use?"

Gloria opened the door of the automobile and slipped out of it. Years afterward, when Stanley Wayburn thought of her, he saw her as she was now . . . her eyes full of unshed tears, her soft mouth trembling.

"I won't see you again," she said briefly. "Goodby, Stan."

Wayburn watched her run up the front steps of the hospital and disappear within its swinging doors.

"Along about day after to-morrow she'll be calling me up again," he said comfortably to himself. "I know women."

He turned down the brim of his hat, turned up the collar of his coat, and went away through the slanting gray rain, whistling "My Flapper Wife."

• • •

The combined smell of ether and carbolic acid made Gloria a little faint and dizzy as she walked through the hospital.

A fresh-cheeked nurse led her to the waiting-room.

"As soon as they bring Mrs. Gregory down from the operating room, I'll let you know," she said, and went away.

There was a pile of magazines on a fumed-oak table in the middle of the room. Gloria picked up one, and settled down with it, in an uncomfortable wicker rocking-chair.

She turned the pages idly. Then she took off her hat and tossed it onto the table. She leaned back against the chair and went to sleep.

She was awakened by the clatter of dishes and silver. Outside the door of the waiting-room was a large cart, laden with trays of food for the patients.

Gloria glanced at her wrist-watch. It was five-thirty. Surely it must be time for them to be bringing Mother Gregory back from the operating-room. . . .

At last Gloria got up and walked out into the hall. A few yards away from where she stood was another cart. From it came a tiny sound, like the cheeping of small hungry robins. She walked over to the cart.

On it, with their little pink hands waving in the air, were four little babies tucked into a nest of soft white wool. Gloria looked at them curiously.

"Aren't they the cutest things you ever saw?" asked a gay voice behind Gloria. She turned to see the little fresh-faced nurse standing there.

"It's their feeding time. That's why they're howling," she explained. "I'd let you hold one of them for a minute, but it's against the rules of the hospital."

Gloria shrank away from her.

"Oh, I wouldn't want to hold one!" she cried. "I'd be afraid of hurting it! I don't know how to hold a baby!"

The little nurse stared.

"A woman doesn't have to learn how to hold a baby. She just knows how, the minute she takes it in her arms. It's born in her," she said.

She gave Gloria a queer, puzzled look as she trundled the baby cart away.

"That is, it's born in most women," she added. "Of course, there are a few that don't like babies, 'specially. But I think they're unnatural and . . ."

Without finishing her sentence she vanished around a corner.

Presently another nurse came into sight.

"Are you Mrs. Richard Gregory?" she asked. Gloria nodded.

"Dr. Seymour wanted me to tell you that the operation is over, and that your mother-in-law came through it very well," she said. "And he says if you'd like to see her, it's all right for you to, now."

"Will you take me to her room, then?" Gloria asked.

• • •

Mother Gregory lay on a narrow high bed in a white-walled room. Her face was colorless and covered with sweat. She snored through her parted lips.

As Gloria stood looking down at her, she half-opened her eyes. Her lips moved. She was trying to say something.

Gloria bent her head to listen.

"Dick," she whispered, "Dick."

Then she lapsed into her stupor again.

Gloria tiptoed out of the room.

. . . There must be more to this baby business than she knew!

Here was Mother Gregory, thinking of her son the minute she came out from under the anesthetic! He was still her baby . . . the principal thing in life to her.

And what was it the little pink-cheeked nurse had said? . . . That women who didn,t want babies were unnatural women.

Gloria wondered if she were unnatural. She wondered what it would be like to have a baby of her own.

When she got home Ranghild was setting the table. There was an appetizing odour of dinner in the house.

Gloria ran upstairs. The door of Dick's room was closed. Miss Briggs was talking in her low and lovely voice.

Gloria knelt down and put her ear to the crack of the door. She held her breath and listened.

Women Worst Offenders In Disturbing Church Services In Brighton Church

LONDON, May 26 (Canadian Press Cable).—Rev. Reginald John Campbell, who created a stir some years back with his 'New theology tenets" and who forsook Non-conformity and the pulpit of the City Temple in 1915, and was ordained into the ministry of the Church of England in 1916, is drawing such crowds to Holy Trinity Church, Brighton, of which he is incumbent, that a sidesman of the church has resigned the position, feeling that he is unable to further attempt to control disorderliness in a section of the congregation.

Rev. Mr. Campbell has publicly rebuked the uncontrolled behavior in his church, the most of which appears to proceed from a section of the holiday-making throng that is now invading the popular seaside resort. Women are stated to be the worst offenders. Their conduct is inexcusable, even among sensation hunters, for, while Rev. Mr. Campbell's addresses nowadays reveal very lofty thought, they contain little that is calculated to excite the interest of the shallow-minded.

Duke of Rutland to Sell Longshaw Lodge and 14,000 Acres.

OWNS HADDON HALL

LONDON, May 26. — (Canadian Press). — Another of England's old estates soon will go under the hammer, the young Duke of Rutland, who succeeded to his father's title recently, having decided to sell Longshaw Lodge, his Derbyshire shooting box, together with nearly 14,000 acres of land.

"The crushing burden of taxation" is the laconic reason the Duke gives for the decision. The Duke received the estate as a gift from his father in 1921, when famous old Haddon Hall and about 1,000 acres, besides other sizable parcels of land, came into his possession.

After the war the late Duke sold many of his vast estates, in all, about 60,000 acres, the present Duke falling heir to a mere 18,000 acres and the historic Belvoir Castle, near Grantham. Many fine farms are included in the Longshaw Lodge estate, but it is noted chiefly for its grouse moors, which King George, the Prince of Wales and nobility often have hunted. During the last seven years the late Duke of Rutland has realized more than £2,000,000 (about $10,000,000) from sales of his Derbyshire and Leicestershire lands.

NORWOOD PLUNGED BACK INTO WINTER

Quarter Inch Ice Formed After Electrical and Hail Storm.

NORWOOD, May 26.—Norwood has experienced a great many different kinds of weather during the past few days. On Friday evening rain began to fall about 7.30 and during the night it developed into a severe electric storm, accompanied by hail. No serious damage was done in the immediate neighborhood. Rain continued to fall practically all day Saturday and during the night there was a light fall of snow, and ice about a quarter of an inch thick was formed.

Fell Down Stairs.

Miss B. E. Pearce met with what might have resulted in a very serious accident, when she fell downstairs on Saturday morning.

Crashed Into Pole.

Mrs. E. J. Wannamaker, while on her way home on Friday evening, in some way lost control of her car and ran into a telephone pole, breaking it off. There was very litle damage done to the car and Mrs. Wannamaker escaped being injured in any way.

CONFIRMATION BY BISHOP F. SWEENY

Campbellford Church Visited by His Lordship Yesterday—Class of 21.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26. — Right Rev. James F. Sweeney, D.D., Bishop of Toronto, visited Campbellford yesterday, and in the evening confirmed a class of 21 in Christ Church, by the apostolic rite of the laying on of hands. Of those who thus made a profession of their faith in the teachings of the Anglican Church, eight were boys and young men. Rural Dean O'Connor-Fenton of Norwood, assisted in the impressive service. The 13 girls and young women in the class made a handsome appearance in their confirmation attire.

Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of the church, presented the class to the Bishop for confirmation and vouched for each member, everyone of whom he had carefully instructed in the meaning of the ceremony. Then the Bishop's prayer was uttered over each.

The Sermon.

In his address to the new communicants Bishop Sweeney took as the basis of his remarks the promise of Christ to His disciples "I will not leave you comfortless," but the translation which he preferred and upon which he dwelt is rendered as follows: "I will not leave you orphans." The sermon was filled with words of hope and comfort to the young people who were taking so important a step in their spiritual life.

No stronger appeal can be made to the human heart, the speaker said, than the sight of a child bereft of its parents. They should think of the security given them in the promise contained in the text, in time of trouble, temptation, of sorrow and of loss. Belief in that promise brought a sense of peace and rest. The rite of confirmation emphasized the thought when those who are confirmed feel the presence of the Holy Spirit in them.

"We call on Him," continued the speaker, "to come to you to dwell in you, and to make you His children."

To the believer there is the prospect of a home coming for Christ has said, "Where I am there you shall be also." We have a Mediator, an Advocate, a High Priest, within the veil.

Confirmation, the Bishop said, was not an end, but a means to an end—the opening of a new life. His hearers, to whim his words were specially addressed, were urged to pray that they might do what God would have them do.

A special service will be held in the church Thursday evening to prepare the members of the class for their first communion, of which they will partake next Sunday morning.

The choir rendered as an anthem the hymn "The Lord is my Shepherd."

PART OF HIGHWAY.

TORONTO, May 26.—(Canadian Press).—Construction during the present season of some 40 miles of the North Bay to Cobalt road has been decided upon by the Ontario Government and with this end in view tenders for the contracts will be called for within the near future. The road is one which has been urged upon the Provincial Government for several years back, serving as it will the needs of an important mining and lumbering country. In the course of time it will form one of the links in the Trans Canada highway.

SCIENCE PRIES INTO PRIVATE LIFE OF ATOM FOR NEW FACTS

New Chapter in Knowledge of Universe Written By Students.

SOLAR SYSTEMS.

Nurmi of Atoms Moves at Incredible Speed—Well Behaved.

Dr. Niels Bohr of the University of Copenhagen received, a few days ago, the Barnard Gold Medal for Meritorious Service to Science, because of his extraordinary discoveries as to the constituency of atoms. The following article, by a scientist, deals with the private life of an atom, based on Dr. Bohr's researches.

By E. E. FREE'

Modern wizards of physical science have pried into the private life of the atom and have almost succeeded in taking atoms apart and examining their works as freely as a watchmaker takes apart a watch. The results are a whole new chapter in our knowledge of the universe and entire new sciences of atomic geometry and atomic mechanics.

Only a few years ago it was believed that there existed in the universe some eighty different kinds of matter, one kind for each of the chemical elements. There were atoms of hydrogen, other and quite different atoms of oxygen, still other atoms of iron, sulphur, silver, gold, copper and so on. Just what these ultimate atoms were like no one troubled very much to inquire. They were just atome, the "ultimate, indivisible, particles of matter." The best textbooks of science went no further than that.

Old Ideas Upset.

In scarcely more than a decade all this theory has changed. We now know that atoms are not indivisible at all. We know, on the contrary, that they are complicated and changing systems composed of two kinds of extremely tiny particles, particles far smaller than the atoms themselves. Whereas the scientists of the last century were content to study atoms in the mass, measuring and weighing many billions of them at once, the scientists of to-day study the individual atom and discover an immense field of mechanics and mathematics, the existence of which was not even suspected twenty years ago.

Atomic mechanics is far more complicated than the mechanics of our solar system. It is probably more important, too, for if we can learn all about the structure of atoms and how to alter and control these structures we may place in the hands of human engineers the keys not only to the age-old problem of the transmutation of the elements, but also to an enormously increased effectiveness of chemistry.

The best starting point for an explanation of what has been learned already about atoms is the simplest atom that we know, the atom of hydrogen gas. This atom is organized on the basis of a much simplified solar system, a solar system with only one planet.

At the centre of each hydrogen atom there is a very tiny particle the nature of which we do not know very much about. We call it a "proton," which is a Greek word meaning the beginning or source of everything. This proton corresponds to the sun of our solar system. Around it, at a distance which is enormous in comparison with the size of the proton, there revolves the other particle which, with the proton, composes the hydrogen atom. This other particle is not like the proton. For one thing, it is much larger. For another thing, it is charged with negative electricity, while the proton is charged with positive electricity. This other particle is called an "electron."

Is Matter Electricity?

It may well be, indeed, that the proton and the electron actually are electricity, instead of merely being charged with electricity. A current of electricity in a wire consists, so far as we can determine, merely of a stream of electrons. An electric spark is merely a flock of electrons jumping suddenly through space.

Electric effects do not seem to exist apart from protons and electrons, any more than the effects which we ascribe to matter exist apart from the same two particles. Electricity and matter seem to be fundamentally the same. Both are manifested by protons and electrons. That is as far as we can go at present in describing what these fundamental protons and electrons really are.

This aside, we understand the hydrogen atom reasonably well. The electron revolves in its orbit around the central proton in about the same way the earth revolves around the sun, although with a vastly greater speeed. By certain influences, such as great heat or strong electric discharges or intense light of certain special character, the electron can be knocked out of its orbit around the proton. Sometimes it escapes altogether from the atom and becomes a free electron. On other occasions it is not removed altogether, but is merely displaced outward into another and larger orbit, in which it continues to revolve much as before.

After a time, however, the displaced electron always moves back to its original orbit; the smallest orbit, so far as we know, which it can occupy.

Even when the original electron has been removed altogether from the atom, the naked proton soon captures another electron from among the free electrons wandering about in its neighborhood. This new electron comes to occupy, relatively soon, the same orbit around the proton from which its predecessor escaped.

There is ample space inside even the smallest orbit of the hydrogen atom for such movements to take place. Although all atoms are so small that it needs millions of millions of them to make a dust speck large enough to see, the electron and the proton are far smaller still. The electron is the larger, almost two thousand times the size of the proton.

How Atoms Differ.

Suppose a hydrogen atom enlarged so that the usual smallest orbit occupied by the electron is the size of a one-mile race track. The electron, on this same scale, will be approximately five-eighths of an inch in diameter, about the size of an ordinary marble. The proton will be so small as to be invisible except with a microscope. It will be a dust grain less than one two-thousandths of an inch across.

That is our present picture of an atom of hydrogen. Around the edge of the race track there rolls, with tremendous speed, the small marble which represents the electron. At the centre of the track there is an invisible dust grain representing the proton. All the rest of the atom is empty space.

There exists many other kinds of atoms in addition to this simplest hydrogen atom. All of them are made up, however, of the same two kinds of particles, the protons and the electrons. The atom next to hydrogen in simplicity is that of helium, the famous non-inflammable gas used by airships. The helium atom contains four protons and four electrons. All four of the protons and two of the electrons are at the centre of the atom, forming a group which takes the place of the single proten of the hydrogen atom. The other two electrons revolve about this central group, much as the single electron of the hydrogen atom revolves around its single proton. Scientists call the central group of protons and electrons the "nucleus" of the atom.

Complicated Atoms.

The two electrons that revolve around this central helium nucleus do so in orbits which are somewhat smaller than the electron orbit of the hydrogen atom. Nor are these orbits both in the same plane. On the contrary, one of them is tilted sharply to the other. If one of the helium orbits be supposed to be in the plane of our one-mile race track, its diameter will be such that the marble-sized electron which occupies it will be rolling around about half way between the centre of the race track and the outer fence. The other electron will be revolving in another orbit of about the same diameter, but tilted up into the air at an angle of approximately sixty degrees, the lower half of this orbit descending, of course, below the race-track surface in the same plane as the upper half.

The next kind of atom, in increasing order of complexity, is the atom of the metallic element named lithium, compounds of which occur in lithia water. This atom contains six protons and six electrons, three of the electrons revolving in orbits arranged at angles to one another much as the two helium orbits are. The other three electrons and all six of the protons form, as usual, the central nucleus.

So with the other atoms comprising the known series of chemical elements. The next one is the atom of the metal beryllium, with eight protons and eight electrons, four of the electrons being in orbital revolution around the group of the other particles. The next atom is that of boron, with ten electrons and ten protons, five of the electrons being in orbital motion. And so on.

Each atom in the list has one more revolving electron than the preceding atom, as well as an increased number of protons and electrons in its nucleus. In each case the orbits of the electrons are arranged in space around the nucleus in a fashion which grows in complexity as the number of such orbits is increased. In the more complicated atoms the arrangement is still far from being understood.

The most complicated atom known is that of the rare metal uranium. It is believed to contain approximately 238 protons and the same number of electrons, 92 of these electrons being in orbital motion around the nucleus.

The skeptic who has read thus far is probably asking himself how we can be so sure of these things. If atoms are so tiny that billions of them can crowd together on a pinhead, how can we know how they are put together? It is well known that no ordinary microscope will permit us to see things so small as this.

The answer is that no microscope does. No scientist has ever seen an atom. What we know about them is due to light rays and to certain relations of these light rays to the movement of electrons from one orbit to another inside the atom, the movement mentioned a moment ago in discussing what happened to an electron that is knocked out of its usual orbit in an atom of hydrogen.

This electron returns, it will be remembered, from the outer, larger orbit to which it was displaced. If the electron is lost altogether, another electron enters, coming to occupy, in the end, the same inner orbit from which the original electron was displaced.

The Telltale Spectrum.

This return of electrons to the atom is accompanied, it has been discovered, by the emission of light rays from the atom. Science does not yet know why these light rays are emitted, but they are. It has long been known also that the light thus emitted is characteristic of the kind of atom. The hydrogen atom, for example, emits light of certain definite colors or, as the scientists say, of definite wave lengths.

If the emitted light be passed through a glass prism or split up in some other way into the rainbow strip of colors which scientists call a spectrum, the special kinds of light emitted by the hydrogen atom will appear as definite bright lines across this spectrum, each at the place and color corresponding to the exact wave length of that line. These lines are well known and can be instantly identified. Accordingly, if a scientist can see the spectrum lines emitted from some distant source of of light he can determine just what atoms are present in the shining body and are emitting the light.

It is by this method that the astronomers have determined what kinds of atoms are present in the distant stars. The light of many stars, when spread out into a spectrum by means of the instrument called a spectroscope, discloses, for example, the bright lines characteristic of the hydrogen atom. We know, therefore, that hot and glowing hydrogen is present in the substance of these stars.

That was the situation about fifteen years ago when a brilliant young physicist, Dr. Niels Bohr, now of the University of Copenhagen, began to study this matter of the kind of light given out by different kinds of atoms. It was already suspected that atoms contained revolving electrons, and it seemed to Dr. Bohr that the light rays emitted might be made to yield information concerning the number and arrangement of the possible electron orbits.

After much work a theory of these relations was formulated. The theory was tested. It has been found, both by Dr. Bohr and by many other experimenters, that certain fixed relations do hold between the arrangement of the atomic orbits and the nature of the light rays sent out when electrons move from one orbit to another one.

Atom Behavior Foretold.

Gradually a large amount of knowledge has been accumulated concerning different varieties of atoms. The theory has been tested, also, in the most satisfactory way of all: it has been used to make predictions of unknown facts, and these facts have then been confirmed by direct experiment. At the present time the theories of Dr. Bohr hold the field essentially undisputed. It is from these theories, confirmed, of course, by much direct experimental evidence, that scientists have deduced the atomic structures already described.

What we know includes not only the numbers of the protons and electrons, together with some facts about the arrangement of the electrons in orbits, but also much information concerning the speeds of the electrons, the amount of energy they possess, and the like.

In the matter of speed, for example, the slowest of any of the atomic electrons occupying a normal and usual orbit is the single electron of the hydrogen atom. Even this electron moves with a speed so great as to be almost incomprehensible. It covers the tremendous distance of 1,300 miles in one second. Of course, the movement is not straightaway, but is merely round and round the tiny orbit of the atom. If the electron were loose from its atom and were moving at this same tremendous speed, it could go across the United States and back again in less time than it takes you to read this sentence.

The Nurmi of Atoms.

And this the slowest of all the atomic electrons! The fastest of them, so far as we know now, is one of the electrons in that most complicated of all the atoms, the atom of uranium. This champion moves with a speed believed to be in excess of 125,000 miles a second, a speed not very far short of the fastest speed known for anything, the 186,000 miles a second which is the speed of light.

With such speeds as these it is apparent that atoms must contain tremendous amounts of energy, held merely as energy of motion. That this is actually true, in some cases at least, is indicated by the phenomena of radio-activity. The atoms of radium, as well as several other kinds of atoms, are explosive. Once in a while one of the atoms in a piece of radium blows up. Some of the protons and electrons in the atom are shot out at tremendous speeds. The remainder of the atom is re-formed into an atom of something else. The radium atom, for example, becomes an atom of a rare gas called radon.

This atom of radon is also explosive. It breaks up again, forming an atom of another radio-active element. This goes on through a considerable series of atomic explosions until finally the series ends in an atom which is stable and undergoes no further disruption. This last quiescent atom is, as a matter of fact, an atom of lead.

During this series of atomic explosions a vast amount of energy is set free. It has been calculated that if the energy set free by the complete disintegration of an ounce of radium could be collected and used it would be enough to heat an ordinary dwelling house for several years. Even in atoms which are not explosive there is contained a vast store of energy of motion. If all the flying electrons in a glass of water were suddenly stopped, the energy set free would be more than that released by the explosion of a ton of dynamite.

Value of New Knowledge.

It does not follow, however, that this store of energy inside the atom can ever be put to use by man. Atoms are extremely stable structures. Scientists are coming to believe that under any conditions likely to be available on earth the energy necessary to disrupt the average atom would be far greater than the energy delivered by the disruption. Accordingly, the hope of useful atomic power, which burned bright in the minds of experimenters a few years ago, has become a little dim.

There is, however, one practical boon which atomic science continues to regard as highly probable. This is the transmutation of one kind of atom into another. For more than three centuries this was the chief effort of the ancient alchemists. Now it seems probable that this long quest may be near its goal.

The disintegration of radium offers, it will be noted, several instances of natural transmutation. Still other instances have been achieved artificially by Sir Ernest Rutherford, who bombarded atoms of several elements with the extremely speedy and energetic particles shot out during the explosion of radio-active elements. A small percentage of the atoms thus bombarded were broken up, atoms of new kinds being formed. More recently it has been claimed by Professor Miethe of Berlin and others that atoms of mercury have been transmuted into atoms of gold.

Creating Needed Elements.

We may feel sure that by this method or by another, with these elements or with other elements, advancing knowledge of the internal structure of atoms will give us, one day, the secret of altering them and of converting one element into another.

No scientist ascribes much importance to the transmutation of any other element into gold. Gold is valuable only for money, and money might be made out of amost anything. But there are other elements which are much needed and are scarce. Platinum is an example, the supply of this extremely rare metal being far less than the need of chemists for it. Iodine bids fair to be another element that we shall need, its growing use as an article of diet for the prevention of goiter threatening to tax the world's visible supply.

To make such elements as these at will, to convert the silicon of ordinary rocks into useful aluminum, the useless nitrogen of the air into carbon which we could use for food, the plentiful calcium of our lime beds into the potash that we lack—these transmutations are the ones in which the scientific man is really interested.

And with our invasion of atomic privacy advancing as rapidly as at present, we may hope that we shall be able soon to remake the composition of our earth's materials a little nearer to our heart's desire.

BROTHER 'BILL' DOESN'T ENVY HENRY FORD.

DEARBORN, Mich., May 26.—Would you trade places with the richest man in the world if you could?

Ther's one man in this old world, with its millions striving and fighting for wealth, who says he wouldn't.

Anr this man is William Ford, brother of Henry Ford.

"Why should I want to trade places with my brother, or any one else?" he said. "I'm happy and contented.

"I enjoy my work and have a good business. I have a nice, comfortable home and a happy family. That means a lot, so I don't envy any other man for anything else he has.

"I recently increased the number of men working for me to 40. That is not many compared with the hundreds of thousands working for my brother, but I'm contented and I'd be just as happy if I had only two men working for me."

He is not connected with the Ford Motor Company, and never has attempted to capitalize the reflected glory of his wealthy relative.

Home Folks Know Him

Out side of the town of Dearborn he probably is as little known as his brother is famous, but here, where one of his Brother Henry's greatest plants is located, everyone knows him as "Bill."

He always has "stood on his own feet," and he prefers not to be called "Brother Bill." This doesn't that there is any hostility between the two brothers. They are the closest friends, but Bill always has preferred to make his own way.

"Make it clear," he said, "that I don't sell Lincoln, Fords or Fordson tractors. I sell only appliances for the Fordson tractors.

"I started in this business in a little shop on a side street in Dearborn, but the business prospered and I moved to larger quarters, at Highland Park, just across from my brother's plant there."

There is a striking resemblance between the two brothers. Both are tall and angular, with long arms and legs. Both have gray hair, and the same deep-set eyes. Both have comparativley few wrinkles for men their age, for Henry has passed the 60-year mark and his brother is close to it.

"Bill" never seems to worry about anything. Many a day you will find him waking around his plant singing or humming some of the same old songs which were favorites when he and Henry were boys together on the farm.

"Bill," like his brother, has dabbled in politics only once.

A few years ago when Dearborn was rated as a tough town and the hangout of crooks from Detroit, "Bill" was elected village president and police chief—a combination job The town also was noted for fleecing mototrists.

Cleans Up the Town

The new president cleaned out the crooks, stopped the fleecing of motorists, organized a volunteer fire department and introduced a model traffic system of safety zones which since has been adopted by many other cities.

He declined to stand for re-election.

"Politics don't interest me," he says. "It takes too much time from business, even in a small town."

With his wife and three children, "Bill" lives in a modest, red brick house, just off the main street of Dearborn. You can walk right up to the front door and shake hands with "Bill."

About a mile away is the big estate of his brother. Henry is forced to maintan three sets of guards which you have to pass before you reach the front porch.

"Bill' is a member of almost every lodge in Dearborn, and he's a special favorite with the town kids. He probably gives away more nickels and dimes to children than John D. Rockefeller.

HASTINGS WILL BEAUTIFY TOWN

More Flower Beds to Appear Than Before—Horticulturists Busy.

PLANTS ARRIVE

HASTINGS, May 26.—The Secretary of the Horticultural Society has received the balance of the spring premiums. Many lovely plants have been received by the members and the list the Secretary had to arrange was large and varied. Many of the members are ordering shrubs, rose bushes and perennials in place of annuals which have been grown so much of late years and find they do not need so much attention as the latter. In the Fall the bulbs will arrive as in other years for house forcing or for arranging in beds for the next Spring. The Society is making arrangements to have more public flower beds through the village this year than in previous years. The flower beds along the water front and lock gates are beginning to look picturesque again now that the tulips are blossoming so prettily.

HASTINGS, May 26.—The new 4.4 beer has been introduced in the villages to those who have been so inquisitive as to the taste. Some are satisfied with the flavor and others are not. None has as yet been served in local restaurants and one proprietor has announced that he will not serve it or handle it in any way.

SPRAYING FOR APHIDS.

Two members of the Viburnum family, the high bush cranberry and the snowball as well as the Euonymus are badly attacked by various sorts of aphids. These little insects, suck the juices of the leaves and tender branches causing the leaves to curve badly. Do not wait to spray until this curling is noticeable but watch the bushes and spray as soon as the little black eggs begin to hatch. A very early spraying as soon as the buds burst is advisable but this advice is too late for present needs. Even though a certain amount of curling has taken place the developing foliage throughout the growing season can be saved. Spraying should be persisted in until complete control is assured. As the aphids hatch irregularly and breed very rapidly, several sprayings may be necessary though if caught early enough one or two should suffice.

Use nicotine sulphate in the proportion of three ounces to twenty gallons of water. This may be purchased under various trade names as "Black Leaf 40" etc. To spread the spray and make it stick to the insects a soap or oil should be used. For this purpose any soft soap or soap free from alkali will do. Use ¾ of a pound for the 20 gallons. An oil, the trade name of which is Sunoko is also good used at the rate of 1 qt. to the quantity mentioned.

As the aphis is a sucking insect it must be hit by the liquid and so a fine spray under a good pressure should be used. As the eggs are scarcely touched by the spray it will be necessary sometimes to spray again as mentioned to catch succeeding generations.

Aphis on th Eunoymus and other shrubs do not do as much damage as on the viburnums but are unsightly. They can be sprayed as soon as noticed and are more easily got rid of.

HASTINGS, May 26.—A consignment of three hundred thousand pickerel fry have been placed in the local waters of the Trent River. Some splendid catches have been made and now that the waters have again been replenished, no doubt that Hastings will still retain its name. A party of tourists and fishermen arrived a few days ago from Kitchener to try their luck. The weather has turned very cold which may change the luck for a few hours.

Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves

Many years ago there lived in Persia two brothers, Cassim and Ali Baba. Ali Baba was a poor wood-cutter whose only possessions were three donkeys which he used for carrying wood to market.

Cassim was very wealthy and therefore had very little to do with his brother.

One day as Ali Baba was in the forest, he saw a band of horsemen approaching, at some distance.

Fearing they were robbers, he climbed a large tree that stood at the base of an immense rock and hid himself in the branches.

The troop, who were all well mounted and armed, halted and dismounted in front of the rock and took off their heavy saddle-bags.

One, who was evidently the leader, came under the tree where Ali Baba was hidden, approached the rock and pronounced the words, "Open Sesame," so distinctly that Ali Baba heard him.

As soon as he had spoken the words a door opened in the rock and the entire company passed in, the door closing after them.

Ali Baba was afraid to try to get away, so he waited a long, long time. Finally the robbers all came out of the cave and the leader said, "Shut Sesame," and the door closed. Without speaking further the company leisurely made ready and rode away; but Ali Baba waited until they had been gone a long time before he dared come down. Then he looked cautiously around before he approached the rock and said, "Open Sesame."

The door immediately opened and instead of a gloomy cavern as he had expected, Ali Baba saw a large, well-lighted vault, filled with all sorts of provisions, silks, brocades, rugs, clothing, heaps of jewels and bags of gold.

However much he was surprised, he soon collected his wits and carried out all the bags of gold that his donkeys could carry. Loading it hastily, he covered it with wood so none could see and set out for home.

When he arrived there, he carefully locked the gate and carried all the gold into the house, where his wife immediately began to count it.

"You foolish woman," said Ali Baba, "you never can count it all. We must bury it at once so none may know."

She insisted that she must have some idea of how much they had, so she ran over to Cassim's house and asked to borrow a measure.

Cassim's wife loaned her a measure, but, being curious, she put some soft wax at the bottom of the measure.

Ali Baba's wife hurried home and filled and emptied the measure until she had measured it all and was greatly pleased with so much wealth. Then she returned the measure.

After her sister-in-law had gone, Cassim's wife looked into the measure and was much surprised to see a gold coin sticking to the wax.

When Cassim returned home she said to him, "You think you are rich; but your brother Ali Baba has so much gold he measures it by the quart instead of counting it." And she told him all about what had happened.

Early next morning Cassim went to see his brother, whom he had neglected shamefully because he was poor.

"Ali Baba," said he, "you are a sly old fox to pretend poverty when you have so much gold you must measure it."

At first Ali Baba was too astonished to speak. Then Cassim showed him the gold piece and told him all about it. Under threat of turning Ali Baba over to the authorities, Cassim drew out the story of the cave and even learned the magic words.

Cassim, who wanted no more of his brother, set off before daybreak next morning with ten mules bearing great chests in which he planned to carry off all the treasure.

He reached the entrance of the cave and pronounced the words, "Open Sesame"; the door opened and, after he went in, closed again.

The greedy Cassim was overjoyed to find in the cave even greater wealth than his brother had described. He could have spent the day admiring the treasure, but fearful lest the robbers return, he laid as many bags of gold as he could at the door of the cave; but his thoughts were so full of gold that he quite forgot the magic words that would open the door. He tried all the words he could think of, but "Open Sesame" would not come to mind.

He threw down the gold and walked round and round the cave like a mad man—the riches entirely forgotten.

At noon the robbers visited the cave and found Cassim's mules outside with the chests on their backs. Drawing their sabers, they gave the proper words and the door opened. Cassim made a bold dash to escape but was soon slain.

The robbers carried the gold back to its place and held a council. It was plain that the intruder had some way learned the secret of entering, but not of leaving the cave. They decided to leave Cassim's body outside the door as a warning, in case any one else shared the secret. This they did and went off on another trip for more plunder.

When Cassim did not return home that night or the next day, his wife spoke of it to Ali Baba, who departed at once to search for his brother.

Arriving at the cave, he was overcome with grief to find that his brother had been slain. Fearing that news of it would also lead to his ruin, he took Cassim's body home to his widow, during the night, and cautioned her against mentioning the matter.

Next day the news was given out that Cassim was very ill; later that he was much worse, and in a day or two, that he was dead.

Then Morgiana, a slave girl in Cassim's household, was sent for Mustapha to come and sew Cassim in his winding sheet; but because of the wounds the robbers had given Cassim, she did not wish Mustapha to know whom he was preparing for burial. So he was brought to the house blindfolded and taken away in the same manner.

The robbers set about to find who it was that they had slain and sent two of their best men to the village in disguise to make inquiries. When they both failed they were beheaded and the captain took upon himself the task of investigating.

By adroit questioning and much bribery, he discovered the house to which Mustapha had been led blindfolded.

Returning to the cave, he ordered his band to secure nineteen mules and thirty-eight large oil jars, one full of oil and the others empty. Then the captain put one of his men, well armed, into each of the empty jars. With the mules laden with thirty-seven robbers in jars and one jar of oil, and himself disguised as an oil merchant, he set out toward the town, reaching it at dusk.

He led them to Cassim's house, where Ali Baba and his family now lived with Cassim's widow.

Seeing Ali Baba in the doorway, the pretended oil merchant said, "I have brought some oil a great way to sell in the market tomorrow. Would you kindly allow me to pass the night with you?"

Ali Baba readily agreed and opened the gates for the mules to enter. While the merchant was busy unloading the mules, Ali Baba called to Morgiana to hasten and prepare a repast. In doing so, she looked out of the window and saw the merchant go to each jar and remove the lid. This aroused her curiosity so much that when she had served supper, she slipped out into the court and saw a man's head at the top of one of the jars. She soon discovered the whole secret, but kept it to herself.

From the jar of oil she took enough to fill a tremendous kettle, in which she heated the oil until it boiled. Then she quietly went out again and poured the boiling oil upon the robbers until none was left alive.

Morgiana returned to the house as Ali Baba and his guest were finishing their supper and dressed herself as a dancing girl to entertain them.

The robber captain felt sure that Cassim was the one who had been slain in the cave, and, fearing that his brother shared the secret, was here to silence him.

This Morgiana had known when she found the robbers in the jars. So she wore a long dagger at her belt as she danced.

After entertaining them for a time with many graceful steps, she drew the dagger, and, as she danced, pointed it to the breast of one, then another, then toward herself. When she saw that this created no suspicion, she watched her chance and plunged the dagger into the robber's heart.

Ali Baba was terribly shocked at this bold deed, but when she had fully explained, he rewarded her with her freedom. Not long after Morgiana became the wife of Ali Baba's son.

Ali Baba waited a whole year, during which no further attempt was made to injure him, before he went near the cave. Then he took his son along and taught him the secret, which they kept between them ever after.

They guardedly removed all the goods from the cave, a little at a time, and Ali Baba and his son became very rich and famous as merchants dealing in rare and costly things.

They were by far the richest and most powerful men in the whole country. And remembering how much they had suffered from poverty and how even Cassim had looked down upon them because he was rich, they resolved to spend their time and great wealth in helping the poor and oppressed.

Morgiana, by her wisdom and winning ways, not only brought happiness to her husband but made friends everywhere, as she went about doing good to high and low alike.

Prepare for Celebration.

The Omemee Athletic Association is preparing for the annual celebration on Monday, May 25. The committees in charge of the various events on the park and the concert in the evening in Coronation Hall are working overtime to make the day a success, and assure the anticipated burning of the mortgage on the Athletic Park. The Lindsay Salvation Army Band will be in attendance and also a soft-ball team of girls from the County town will meet in a friendly game with a local girl's team. The May Pole dance under the direction of Miss D. Anderson will be given and many other attractions will be on the grounds. Refreshment booths will be located on the grounds.

At least fifty-five or sixty people will take part in the evening entertainment, which will consist of quaint folk dances, male quartettes, choruses, wand drill and a comedy entitled "Sarah's Young Man," lasting one hour.

The day is being looked forward to with much pleasure and if good weather favors the O.A.A. a good crowd will be a certainty.

Prepared for 4.4.

Richard Morton, proprietor of the local hotel in Omemee, is making preparation to handle the new 4.4 beverage, but as yet has not received any of the goods. Mr. Morton has had to remove one pool-table and make other changes as to partitions, before he is in a position to handle the brew and having already secured his permit, no doubt will rush the completion of the necessary requirement in oreder to keep up with the hotels of nearby towns, which are already disposing of large quantities.

His Worship delivered a timely address on the occasion on which the session was sitting, Victoria Day.

Alderman Denne tendered the keys of the city in a manner that left the delegates with a feeling of deep appreciation. He pointed out the many important features that adorn the city, especially the wonderful lift locks, the largest in the world, of which he said, Peterborough is justly proud.

Fraternal Greetings.

The various prominent Orangemen conveyed the fraternal greetings of that body to the visitors.

Mr. Bradburn, on behalf of the riding, extended greetings to the Grand Lodge. He knew that the city of Peterborough is proud of its position to entertain conventions and appreciated the choosing of this city for the present sitting.

The Grand Master's, Grand Secretary's and Grand Treasurer's reports were very favourable to the future success and the present stability of the Association. The number of new lodges and old lodges re-organized during the past year have far surpassed any previous year and the financial condition is one to be proud of. Many grants to charitable institutions were made.

The reports of the D.D.G.M. and County Masters showed wonderful progress throughout Canada and Newfoundland. Notable features of the Grand Secretary's report were the formation of a new Orange Lodge, L.O.L. 2961, Toronto, composed entirely of Orange Young Britons, and a Royal Black Preceptory has been formed by a number of Orange Young Britons, showing the great value as an asset to the senior association.

Object to Holiday.

The following resolution was unanimously adoptedby the Grand Lodge:

"Whereas the House of Commons of Canada adjourned on Ascension Day, a Roman Catholic church holiday, and on the direction of the Prime Minister for Canada, the said House of Commons is to sit to-day, May 25th, the day set apart for the commemoration of the birthday of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria;

Be it therefore resolved, that this Grand Lodge of Orange Young Britons, places itself on record as condemning the unpatriotic and unprotestant attitude of the Prime Minister of Canada in thus permitting the Roman Catholic hierarchy to control and dictate his actions, which vicitate every principle of British Imperialism and a free Canadian Government, and

Be is further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Prime Minister of Canada."

During the noon adjournment a group photo was taken at the Armouries.

Banquet Enjoyed.

The afternoon session dealt with reports of committees and after adjournment a splendid banquet, prepared by the local Lady Orange Lodges, was heartily enjoyed and appreciated.

M. W. Bro. Hudson, G.M., presided, and after the usual patriotic toast to the King, followed by the usual toast to the mmortal Memory of King William III., M.W. Bro. J. A. Dickson, G.S., proposed the toast to the Grand Orange Lodge. This was ably responded to by Wor. Bro. M. J. O'Brien, Ottawa, Grand Organizer, Ontario West, L.O.L.

The Grand Lodge of Loyal Orange Young Britons, was the toast proposed in very fitting terms by an old Peterborough boy, Capt. Cecil W. Armstrong, of Toronto, who pointed out the great work of the association in furthering Imperial patriotic citizenship throughout Canada. This toast was responded to by Rt. Wor. Bro. Summers, the Grand Chaplain.

A toast to our fallen Brethren, was proposed by the Grand Master, and drank in silence.

"The Ladies" was the toast ably proposed by R. W. Bro. K. C. Water, D.G.T., who paid high tribute to the efforts and co-operation of the Lady Orange Lodges. His sentiments were endorsed by Wor. Bro. Don. Clarke.

Mrs. Staples, W. Mistress Eastern Star, L.O.B.A., responded in a very splendid manner.

In proposing the toast to the local lodge, Most W. Bro. Wes. Montgomery, P.G.M., paid high tribute to the splendid and untiring efforts of Bro. Girth Reader, Dep. Master, O.Y.B., 372, whose energy had been the means of entertaining the delegates in a manner that would leave an everlasting memory of the good time spent in Peterborough.

Wor. Bro. Len Foster, W. M., O.Y.B., 372, and Wor. Bro. Ball, Dist. M., L.O.L., endorsed the words of the Past Grand Master. Bro. Reader deserving untold credit for his efforts.

Bro. Reader replied to a vote of thanks.

Worthy Mistress Mrs. Foster, of Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A., and Worthy Mistress Mrs. Staples were introduced to the Grand Lodge during the afternoon session by R. W. Bro. A. E. Mitchell, D.G.S., and M. W. Bro. Wes. Montgomery, P.G.M.

The ladies were received by rounds of applause when they in turn conveyed the greetings of the Lady Orange Lodges of Peterboro.

Big Parade.

Headed by a splendid fife and drum band the delegates paraded the city at the conclusion of the banquet, and arriving back at Victoria Hall, enjoyed a splendid dance arranged by the local committee.

The officers will be elected at today's session, when business pertaining to Grand Lodge will be dealt with and the next place of meeting decided.

Abitibi Led In Activity In Toronto Markets To-day

TORONTO, May 26 (Canadian Press)—Abitibi was the outstanding feature today on the Toronto exchange advancing to 71. Consolidated Smelters and Twin City advanced fractionally and closed at 84 3-4 and 69 3-4 respectively. Brazilian and British Columbia Fish were active with the former easing off one eighth and the latter gaining a point at 37, while Brazilian closed at 54 5-8. Burt was active but closed unchanged at 54. Winnipeg Railways was dull, selling only one lot at 47 1-2, a recession of 3-4 from last session.

Stocks In New York Take Upward Trend This Morning

NEW YORK, May 26 (Canadian Press).—The resumption of bullish operations in motor stocks towards the end of the first hour checked the reaction in Wall street and turned the course of prices upward again. Maxwell B and Hudson were bid up vigorously, attaining new peak prices at 97 1-4 and 57 1-4 respectively. Old time favorites also came to the fore with substantial gains being registered by American Can, General Electric, U.S. Cast Iron Pipe and Reading. Chemicals reflected improvement in that industry, Allied Chemical and American Agricultural Chemical preferred quickly mounting two or more points. Among the dozen or so issues to break through their previous year's highs were U.S. Industrial Alcohol, common and preferred, All-American Cables and Paige-Detroit. Oils were slow in responding to reports of increased gaso line prices along the Atlantic seaboard. Call money renewed at four per cent.

Wheat At Winnipeg Moved Quickly Upward To-day

WINNIPEG, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Responding to an advance in Chicago quotations on Monday, while the local exchange was on holiday, wheat prices here this morning bounded upward, ranging 2 1-4 c to 5 1-4c higher than Saturday's close. July led the advance, opening 5 1-4 to 3 1-4 higher at 182 to 180. May was 3 1-4c to 21-4c higher at 191 to 190 and October 4 7-8 3 3-8 up at 148 1-2 to 148. During the first hour prices held steady.

Paper Stock Active On Montreal Exchange To-day

MONTREAL, May 26 (Canadian Press).—A burst of strength and activity in several paper stocks during the final half hour featured this morning's session on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Earlier in the day, the active features included Brazilian, National Breweries and Smelters, and, while the balance of the list was comparatively quiet, after the holiday, the general tone was strong.

Abitibi led the entire list in point of activity, furnishing trading in over 2,700 shares after opening at 67 3-4. Later in the session it went to the new high level of 72 and then reacted to 71 1-2 for a net gain of four points. Spanish River also showed considerable strength and touched 108 3-4, up 2 1-4.

National Breweries and Brazilian were among the most active features. The former opened unchanged at 54, later reacted a point to 53, but then recovered to 53 1-2. Brazilian continued its recent climb to higher levels and touched 54 7-8 up 1-4, the highest price since last February. Consolidated Smelters hovered around 85 to 84 1-2, only a fraction below the recent high of 85 7-8.

Report Of Damage By Frost Caused Rise In Wheat Price

CHICAGO, May 26 (Canadian Press).—Although selling to realize profits brought about early declines in price today for wheat, the market later scored an advance. Wheat rallied sharply after reports were received that conaiderable permanent damage to the spring wheat crop in north west had been done by the recent freeze up. Opening prices, varying from 1 1-4 decline to 1c advance, May 172 3-4, and July 161 to 162 were followed by series of down turns and reaction, with the market going as low as 169 3-4 for May and 160 for July, and then rising to 172 3-4 May and 163 1-8 July.

Further frosts expected tonight made corn ends relatively stable as compared with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1 3-4 lower, July 118 3-4 to 119 1-4 corn prices underwent a moderate general sag and then recovered about all the decline.

Oats started unchanged to 1-2c off, July 47 to 47 1-4, and then eased a little more but later held near to yesterday's finish. Provisions were easy influenced by the action of hog values.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Travel north, south, east and west from Peterborough and never a road will you find without its signposts: "Bad turn 300 feet ahead;" "Sharp turn to the right." People who travel the highway benefit by the timely advice and are grateful to the men who were thoughtful and interested enough to display the finger of warning.

Sign Posts

It seems though, that more signposts are needed. "The ole swimmin' hole that was the joy of a boy's summer life is no longer considered safe or clean. Many of the old swimming places, especially one much used in East City, are bejouled by the discharge of poisonous matter into them.

Why not a notice there reading: "Don't swim here—the water is bad Good swimming at Inverlea and Lake Street?"

The members of the Motor League have willingly taken the responsibility of notifying the public of danger spots on the motor routes—now are required men who will advertise the presence of a danger equally great for the boys who love to swim.

A home isn't a home until some heart, like a hearth, holds either the fire of love or the embers of remembrance.

Half Our Words.

A Peterborough school teacher who is given to such compilations said the other day that forty-three words comprise about half everybody's daily conversation. Here is his list:—and, be, have, it of, the, will, you, to, about, all, as, at, but, can, come, day, dear, for, get, go, bear, her, if, in, me, much, not, on, one, say, she, so, that, they, these, this, though, time, we, with, write and your.

But why "she" and "her," and not "he" and "him?" Personally we remember days when we never said "she" or "her," and surely the whole world of men and women is not always talking about women.

The same man pointed out how many words are misnomers. India ink never did come from India; it should be called Chinese ink. China is seldom made in China. Rice paper is not made from rice or any part of the rice plant. The gooseberry has no connection with the Christmas bird. Catgut has nothing to do with cats, and cutlet does not mean a cut of meat, but refers to the little rib.

How many more can you think of?

Truth in trade, truth in advertising, truth at any time is the only one thing that will work for a long time.

Royal Flush

Poker playing gave its name to a curtain spot in Scotland, Kennedy's Pass, where there is no defile through rocks and no sign of a pass anywhere around. A party of travellers played poker in a stage.

At this place on the road the first man in the game passed, and the second did also, hoping to be able to raise the ante. Everybody else passed and the hand was killed. The second man, named Kennedy, held a royal flush all the time.

It seems that there may be people in Peterborough passing while holding royal flushes. They leave to someone else the opening of the game for civic improvement, for city beautification, and for industrial development, when they ought to open the pot and play the game to its limit.

It doesn't seem good business to pass with a royal flush of undeveloped ability, unemployed capital and unused energy in hand. And it certainly isn't good sportsmanship.

"It looks as though our preserves are going to last all summer."

"I shouldn't wonder. I've laid aside about 40 jars no one can get the covers off."

Thirty.

DOROTHY AGERMAN HAD LIMB BROKEN

Dorothy Agerman was in a hurry to get home from school today. She ran out on the roadway and was struck by a motor car said to be driven by Robert Morrison, who was travelling along the Monaghan Road at a point near Chamberlain Street. The child's leg was broken and she was removed to Nicholls' Hospital.

Dorothy, who is about eleven years of age, and is a pupil in the Junior Third Form of the Prince of Wales School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Agerman, of Jackson Avenue.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

The sacred rite of confirmation in the Catholic Church was administered at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday last by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien. One hundred and fourteen children, including fifty-six boys and fifty-eight girls, were confirmed in the afternoon, and fourteen adults at the evening Vesper service. In the afternoon the girls, robed in their suits of white, with white veils, the little boys in black, sang hymns on their way to the church from the convent school. Assistants at both services were Rev. P. Costello and Rev. P. Butler.

GEORGE STREET METHODIST.

Rev. W. Harold Young gave his hearers at George Street Sunday evening something to think about in the way of an Empire Day sermon. The Sons of England marched in body to the church and occupied the centre section of seats. Their Chaplain, Mr. Gray, read the Scripture reading.

Mr. Young took as his text, "But Paul said I am a citizen of no mean city," from Corithians. Paul was a citizen of Tarsus, and that city held a great position commercially in Paul's day. Its influence was felt throughout the known world.

The speaker said there have been five great empires: Babylon, Greece, Roman, Charlemagne's and Britain. We fondly believe ours, the present British Empire, to be the greatest in history by the standards of extent, population, trade and shipping, but these are only secondary signs of greatness.

Our real greatness as an Empire, in the opinion of the speaker, must be in the extent to what it brings best into the lives of the people. There are four necessary things in this list: education, liberty, justice, spreading of God's message.

Mr. Young showed that Great Britain was not as great as she might have been in the past, and he showed that she must rise to great heights if she shall arise to present-day needs.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

Verses 46, 47, 48 and 52 of the twenty-fourth chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, "And said unto them 'Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day: and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things.' And they worshipped Him and returned to Jerusalem with great joy," was the text chosen by Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave at St. John's Church for his Ascensiontide sermon on Sunday evening. Using this text, Dr. Blagrave preached on the privilege and responsibility which was the disciples' and which has been passed on to their successors, the church of today.

The disciples worshipped the Master. People may honor men, but they worship only God. This was the first Christian worship of Christ as God. They rejoiced because He had blessed them and they had a Friend in heaven. Pictures always depict Christ as rising to heaven with His hands outstretched to bless his people. The church is the successor of the disciples and is still conscious that there is a Friend in heaven who is blessing her.

Privilege is always accompanied by a corresponding responsibility, said the speaker, and the privilege of the disciples brought the responsibility to them of being witnesses to Christ and preaching repentance and remission of sins among all nations. Privilege and responsibility can never be separated. If the disciples had failed to perform their duties the death of Christ would have been in vain, but the Book of the Acts of the Apostles shows how they fulfilled their responsibilities. They never worried, but lived up to the command of the Master, "Take no thought for the morrow," and worked and rejoiced.

The church is the successor of the disciples and the charge given them has been accepted by the church. The command, "Be ye witnesses," applies not only to the clergy, said Dr. Blagrave, but to all members. The members of the church have the privileges of the sacrament and the grace of God. There are always people who want the privileges without the responsibilities and who do not want to be witnesses. The church appears to be divided and competing, but people would appreciate the privileges of the church if it should cease to function.

There are two ways in which the church bears witness. There is the individual witness by each member and the corporate witness of the whole church. The extension of Christ's Kingdom is the part of the church and she has always felt the urge to go into all the world. What would have happened, asked the speaker, if the disciples had said, "Let us confine our work to Judea or to Samaria or Galilee?" Instead they went into all the world. The duty of the church is to do this, too It cannot stop. If the people of other lands say they do not want Christianity the church's answer can only be, "We must." The disciples thought that the second coming would be in their lifetimes, but they went to work right away. It is the privilege and responsibility of the church and its members to be witnesses.

At the celebration of Holy Communion in the morning a new flag was dedicated by Dr. Blagrave and was flown from the pole on the tower in honor of Victoria Day. The hymns chosen for the services were for Ascensiontide, but one National hymn was sung at each and the organ postlude at the evening service consisted of National airs.

GOSPEL HALL CONVENTION.

A very inspiring service was held in the Great War Veteran's Hall on Sunday evening when W. Hill, of Toronto, A. Ainsley, of New York, and G. Garrett, of Foxmead, addressed the Gospel Hall convention. The speakers put forth a wonderfully stirring appeal to the large audience and it could be seen that their eloquence was not lost. A. G. Bentley, of Peterborough, acted as chairman.

Mr. Hill, the first speaker, took for the basis of his subject a number of passages from the Scripture which dealt with the transmission of the Gospel. Some of these texts were Romans 1-1. Ephesians 1-13, Acts 20-24.

Opinions vary as to the constituents of a Christian but the Bible plainly indicates a Christian as "one who belongs to Christ."

"It is not one single circumstance which the Devil uses in keeping one away from God but it is a whole series of circumstances. It is not one incident but a whole chain of incidents. There are two Gods. The Holy Father in Heaven and there is the God of this world who is the Devil and blinds the minds of those who do not believe in God," said Mr. Hill.

There are some who are enlightened by the gospel intellectually but who never allow it to reach the heart. It comes warm from the heart of God and the stream of it has been flowing for over 2000 years. "He that hath the Son hath life." This gospel message then, embodies Christ, but sinners who alienate themselves from this stream of Life cannot realize the end or they would surely turn from the path they are pursuing.

The Gospel is like a ray of light, the one end of which reaches the earth but the other end is still at the source from which it emanates. Thus are people linked to God with a ray of Grace. When a man is saved he is brought into the kingdom of God, into the flood of light in which God moves—then Spiritual things can be appreciated.

Heaven on Earth.

If one cannot experience Heaven on earth it is certain that Heaven above can never be attained. People must be able to partake of Divinity here in order to live with it afterward.

When God takes a man as a Christian he must take entire commission just as when sheep are bought in Scotland the mark of the owner is placed upon them and they are taken home.

Grace is the blessing of God distributed where it is not wanted. Sinners have tarnished the name of God but his Grace has been sufficient to same them in the most extreme of circumstances.

A free gift in God's grace thrust upon those who have done nothing to merit it.

Mr. Ainsley said that those preaching the doctrine of evolution were attempting to take the crown of creation away from God. Christians must unite against them in a campaign to retain God as Creator.

Christ is also Creator as He makes light and darkness, peace and strife. Christ sends sorrow to bring people from the road of sin back to the peaceful path leading Heavenward.

Sorrow is largely instrumental in showing people the love of Christ. When one knows the author of a book one enjoys reading the work. It is the same with the Bible. The good Book can only be read with understanding when the Great Author is known.

Christ to-day is not known as the despised Nazarene but as a Universal Saviour.

Christ must be trusted for salvation. "Look unto Him and be ye saved."

Mr. Garrett gave a brief address on "The Three Touches of Christ." "All have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Reformation is not sufficient: there must be a rebirth—a new being created in order to conceive the Glory.

The first touch was when Christ made the leper clean. Places of the deepest degredation are visited by the cleansing hand of Christ and are made pure and wholesome again. No matter how contaminated by sin one may be, there is always present grace which is sufficient to save.

The second touch was when the deaf and dumb mute was made to hear and speak.

All who are working in sin are deaf and dumb and can only exist with the full use of senses when Christ comes into the life

The third touch was when the dead man was restored to life. People can be dead in sin with moral life extinct but when Christ sends his shining rays of light into the being a new life begins and the old self is cast away like a worn out cloak.

The service was of a very refreshing nature. All speakers had a very definite message for the heart and delivered it with a simplicity and effectiveness which was wonderfully appealing.

The music was also exceptionally good, a quartette being the feature of the evening service.

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

The last services of the campaign in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church were held on Sabbath, when Rev. William Allan preached to large congregations.

At the morning service Mr. Allan thanked the people of St. Paul's for their kindness to him during the past two weeks of special services, mentioning a few who had been specially associated with him. He hoped his messages would be helpful to all.

At the Morning Service.

At the outset, Mr. Allan said he had been requested to say something about the subject for the morning—"God's Wonderful Word and Fundamentalism versus Modernism." These were two great terms, and there were two distinct trends of thought in the Church, especially in the Presbyterian Church in the UnitedStates, and at the present time in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The battle of Modernism and Fundamentalism was being fiercely waged every day. The Modernists gave forth that the Scriptures anent certain prophecies were out of date, not to be relied upon, but the fact was our Scriptures were more up-to-date than our daily newspapers. Modernism is, after all is thought and said, no more modern than it claims to be. That which Modernists preach today is centuries old; in its modernised dress it is by no means modern. Modernists are sometimes called Liberals, representing a particular trend of thought in the Church, but with a modern doctrine, and a liberal spirit, in that they would give their doctrine to others who would embrace their views—liberal with something they are impertinent enough to be liberal with. Modernism and Fundamentalism are two different doctrines, as wide part in thought as the poles. One gift lacking today in our Church is the gift of God's grace.

"A Gospel of Shambles."

Modernists seem to get rid of the supernatural, and are trying to whittle away the Scriptures. They attack the authority, integrity and inspiration of the Word of God. They do not teach how the thought should be obtained from the Scriptures, the belief in the prophecies. They make Jesus no more divine than we are divine, perhaps a little better than we are. They teach an ethical cult, the work of communion with the eternal and without union with God. They imply that the Gospel of the Cross is a gospel of shambles—no one can be saved unless there is blood shed.

Modernism is very suave, very arrogant, and conceited, it talks loud and garrulously; they say there is no scholarship among Fundamentalists. The Fundamentalist says, as in the text, the 119th Psalm, 129th verse: "Thy testimonies are wonderful: therefore doth my soul keep them." After the tragedy of the fall, God upbraids the sinful race, not in anger, but as incouraging them to repent. There is no room for quibbling with God.

Refute the Scriptures.

The Modernists, continued Mr. Allan, refuse to accept the first three chapters of Genesis, as too far-fetched, and not to be heeded. There we have the seed of woman in conflict with the seed of the serpent. The moment the head becomes injured, the mind has no power of judgment, and other parts of the body though injured have no effect on our rational mind. That is what Modernists refute. Also the passage referring to the Virgin Birth of Emmanuel "Unto me a child is born, a son given"—a child is born, a son given. And this is absolutely in harmony with the original promise. There is no more wonderful combination given than that of the promised seed, Jesus Christ.

Between the Old and New Testaments there elapsed 400 years in which no new prophecy was given us. Will the original promise stand or fall. The angels were sent forth to sing the praises of the coming promised seed. The proof is overwhelming. Getting rid of the Word of God, discrediting it, is simple, but what about the birth, vicarious existence, death and resurrection of Jesus? Anyone who knows history can see that it clearly demonstrates what is still going on—under the Satanic power, and the conflict with the seed of woman. The world is on trial. Hypocrisy characterizes the religious life as burden with sin. It had led humanity into a haze, with no way of getting out. Jesus had suffered to bring about redemption from sin.

The Virgin Birth.

The virgin birth was an absolute necessity. Without being born of the seed of woman, He could not be the saviour of men. Modernists say it was not necessary. Otherwise than being born of a virgin, Christ would have been like ourselves. We need someone who is above us, to whom we can approach as a redeemer. Christ must be the anti-type of the human race. Whoever lifts a hand or voice against Christ Jesus in any condition will be made answerable for so doing. If the Modernists are trying to deny the authority of the Scriptures, why do they not obliterate the chapter about Joseph, the betrothed of Mary? They do not carry their gospel very far, leaving aside the diffcult portions which would connect their views. They are, said the preacher, as blind as bats in their views.

Christ's Atonement.

His vicarious death or atonement—Jesus died instead of others for us. He was made like man, but had to die for our sins. If he did not die, then we are lost, and without hope.. But the prophecies of his building the temple (of the body) in three days, Jonah in the whale for three days, and Christ's resurrection from the dead, when a special guard was put on the tomb, with the royal seal, in fear of the disciples coming to take the body of Christ away, all have wonderful fulfillment. The Jews, had they found the body of Christ in the grace after the third day, could have given the lie to the prophecy. But the Lord arose from the grave in the third day. So Christ paid the penalty for our sins.

Beware of Modernists.

Concluding a very interesting sermon, Mr. Allan told his hearers not to let Modernists talk us into a corner on these subjects of the virgin b'rth, the vicarious death and His resurrection for our justification. The world is still in sin, and we need Christ's hand with us. The future of the Continuing Presbyterian Church in Canada depends on our loyalty to our faith and loyalty to the Word of God, and not to be laughed aside by the faithlessness and infidelity of Modernism. Our Church will be prospered and used of God as it has never before been used; we will be stronger and more aggressive through faith in His power. Let us turn a deaf ear to the voice of the Moderns, and put our trust in the Rock of our salvation. So shall we be blessed abundantly in the days to come.

THE EVENING SERVICE

Before a very large congregation, Rev. Mr. Allan preached a stirring, earnest discourse from St. Luke's Gospel, 17th chapter, verse 32: "Remember Lot's Wife," his subject being "A Plain Talk About Another Man's Wife."

Mr. Allan referred to Christ's return, when the world seemed to be remaining until then as it was when He first appeared on earth. We should aim to make conditions better than they were. 1, When Lot's wife was married she was exceptionally privileged; she was well married. 2. She went a long way in the right path, but not far enough. 3, No privileges can compensate for the loss of self-respect. Lot's wife was turned into a pillar of salt because she forgot herself, and looked back. The bridge between God and the sinner is the Cross of Calvary. We cannot serve God and Mammon, said Mr. Allan, who summed up a most interesting and instructive sermon, by telling his hearers that we should seek to further the interests of our Presbyterian Church, thereby leaving no room for thoughts other than the furtherance of Christ's kingdom on earth. He thought the present crisis in our Church life would be a great blessing—much of the deadwood of the pew and pulpit would be eradicated, and the Continuing Presbyterian Church would have full chance to progress to greater things.

At the conclusion of the service many people bade Mr. Allan good-bye as they filed from the church.

HUMOROUS PLAY HASTINGS HALL

Ladies' Aid of Colborne Church Gave Interesting Entertainment.

GOOD ACTING

HASTINGS, May 26.—The Opera House on Friday was crowded to the door when the Ladies' Aid of the Colborne Methodist church presented a very humorous play entitled "Aunt Mary's Family Album." The play was presented under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the local Methodist church.

The programme opened with a selection by the Colborne Orchestra and the artists were: piano, Miss Isobel Faik; violin, Mr. A. Fleming; saxaphone, Mrs. E. O. Coyle; guitar, Mrs. A. Fleming; trombone, Mr. E. Turpin; traps, Mr. E. O. Coyle. Instrumental duet, Mrs. Wilson and Clare Wilson; chorus, eight ladies,; instrumental duet, Isobel Faik and Clare Wilson.

The first act was a scene laid in a village parlour fifty years ago and the costumes of the performers were very characteristic of that day. Mrs. Kelly the village hostess exhibited her family album to her city visitors and callers. These photos were living models and were grandfather Kelly, Mr. F. E. Mellon; grandmother Higgs, Mrs. C. N. Dudley; Joshua Higgs and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Vandervoort; Arbella, Miss Vera Edwards; my sister, Mrs. E. O. Coyle, Mrs. C. Foster, Mrs. B. H. Coyle; my fours sons, J. Purdy, A. Ives, H. Lemon, H. Hodgens; my brother Jakes' wife, Mrs. W. W. Goheen; Mary Ann Smithers and son Joram, Mrs. E. Turpin and Master Ira; Annie Mable Warren; cousin Jerusah, Mrs. J. A. Lemon; an old beau of mine, Mrs. C. C. Philip.

After the first act the orchestra played again and Mrs. R. Roberts played a piano solo; Miss Vera Edwards sang "he Songs My Mother Used to Sing."

The second act was a quilting bee and afternoon tea at Mrs Kellys. This was made very humorous by the local hits given by those taking part. During the afternoon a program was given, Mrs. Vernon and Mrs. Good Boston friends, Mary of Hastings and Marie of Boston. The ladies all joined in harmony with the old time chorus, "Dixie"; Miss Jane Skinning gave a reading "The Joiner" and was brought back by an enthusiastic audience twice, the second time giving ::When Esau sawed Wood" and "The Old Red Hockey Sweater"; Miss Jemina Goodsense sang "You'll Have to Put on Airs" was heartily encored and then sang local hits, accompanied by Spanish guitar; duet by Mrs. Higgs and friends, "In the Sweet Long Ago,"; Woman's "Rights" was read by Mrs. Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. W. Barton sang in character costume "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

The Deacon appears at the Kelly home and thinks it time he took himself a wife and Miss Jane Skinning decides that she can take care of him, although this is contrary to her own way of doing things, as she has always said she disliked men. These two new found lovers sang Ruben and Rachel and all appeared on the stage singing "Good Night Ladies."

The characters were:

Mrs. Kelly—Mrs. C. O. Edwards.
Mrs. De Vere—Mrs. G. Pearce.
Mrs. Barton—Mrs. W. A. Moore
Mrs. Goodsense—Mrs. A. T. Fleming.
Mrs. Hicks—Mrs. H. Vandervort.
Mrs. Vernon—Mrs. F. Clarke.
Mrs. Good—Mrs. W. H. Charlton.

Mrs. Meek—Mrs. W. R. Taylor.
Mrs. Bond—Mrs. E. Quinn.
Mrs. Donnelly—Mrs. W. E. Gould.
Mrs. Jacks—Mrs. C. T. Tuerney.
Mrs. Lane—Miss Vera. Edwards.

The chairman, Rev. M. L. Hinton, welcomed each one present in his usual amiable way.

Two Year Old Girl Walks Two Miles To See Mother

NEW YORK, May. 26—(Special). Like a homing pigeon two-year-old Mamie Martiska found her way to her mother's arms.

While the police of West Orange, N.J., were sending out a general alarm in the belief that she had been kidnapped, nurses in Orange Memorial Hospital saw Mamie trudge up the stone steps of the hospital, slip in through a half opened door and laboriously climb a long flight of stairs to receive the maternal kisses and caresses for which she had travelled nearly two miles.

How Mamie managed to complete the distance between the home of relatives and the hospital is still a mystery. The police believe her scuffed shoes and clothes with the marks of many falls indicate that she walked, although she had to cross several busy streets to reach the hospital.

Six weeks ago Mamie's mother, Mrs. Mary Martiska, was taken to the hospital with an an undiagnosed ailment and Mamie went to live with relatives. The girl, an only child, had visited Mrs. Martiska only once since her illness. While the police and nurses argued over her travels, Mamie only crowed. She had found her mother.

CAUSE OF BLAZE STILL A MYSTERY

Insurance Officials Are Investigating Fire at Seymour.

BURBNRAE, May 26.—Large crowds of visitors have viewed the ruins of Mr. Robt. Cleugh's buildings, which were destroyed by fire last Sunday morning. Officials of the insurance company have been investigating the case trying to determine the cause of the fire, but owing to the early hour at which the fire started no one knows anyting about where the outbreak occurred. Consequently very little can be found out about the cause of the blaze. Mr. Cleugh has already purchased another team of horses to replace some of those destroyed. Harness and other equipment has also been purchased so that the work of cleaning up and reconstruction can go on as soon as possible.

TOURISTS EARLY AT BAILIEBORO

Signs of Activities Along Shores of Rice Lake—Fish Biting.

BAILIEBORO, May 26.—There will apparently be plenty of activities at Rice Lake this summer. New cottages and boat houses are being built along both sides of the lake, and daily a fleet of boats can be seen almost anywhere along the lake.

H. Jewison has erected a canteen at Barnard's Landing and expects to supply the wants of the campers during the summer months.

W. Hibbard, who is running a boat livery, already has his boats in first class shape to start out into the water, and many are already taking advantage of the fine weather by going out for a sail.

Th pickerel are now biting and the mud-cats are being caught in large quantities off the wharf. Several pickerel weighing between five and six pounds have been caught with the hook and line.

A number of the American tourists have already arrived at Rice Lake for the summer. Many who came to the Rice Lake fishing grounds last year state that they will certainly spend their holidays here again this summer as the quality and quantity of fish caught in this lake exceeds that of any caught in any other body of water that they have had the privilege of visiting.

Don't Squeeze Black-Heads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads makes the pores large and causes irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxine powder—aprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

Bed Should Not Be Too Soft —Blankets Loosely Woven.

A good bed is a good investment. It should not be too soft. It should have springs that give, permitting the mattress to conform to the shape of the body.

Some advise against feather pillows and feather beds. They maintain that feathers overheat the body and head. Hair or cotton mattresses, and cotton or hair pillows are recommended by these.

However, if one is enjoying refreshing sleep on a feather pillow, it would be foolish to throw it away and get a hair pillow.

Bed covers should be porous and light. Closely woven woollen blankets are the best. Two blankets, or two thicknesses of any kind of cover is better than the same thickness and weight in one single piece.

Always have the room well ventiated. Night air is not dangerous. The healthiest people are the ones who sleep right out in the open, winter and summer.

Especially is out-door sleeping well for persons who spend their working hours inside. Cold air is invigorating, and an outing during sleep is almost as beneficial as an outing when awake.

Special care should be taken that bed clothing is warm and dry. Electric blankets now are on the market. By turning on the current half an hour before retiring, the bed will always be found warm and dry.

THE EVOLUTION OF BRITISH DEMOCRACY

An address delivered to the students and teachers of the Normal School on Empire Day:

(By Joseph Wearing.)

The subject chosen by me this morning will some day under the pen of a great historian produce the most remarkable volume in all history. No great nation since the world began can show a growth from practically aboriginal conditions to world wide empire with responsible government and full freedom for all in every part of it except that aggregate of countries known as the British Empire. We are proud to belong to this Empire, because of its extent and might; we should be prouder still to belong to a nation which with remarkably little internal discord and bloodshed has not only developed in such a way that it would appear to be the evolution of a divine plan but at the same time has been a bulwark against all forces of tyranny, oppression, and reaction from many other quarters of organized society.

It is both interesting and instructive to draw a parallel in this matter of national evolution between the empire to which we belong and the only other empire to which it can in any way be compared, namely, the Roman Empire.

We have no historical knowledge of the Roman people in a wild, savage, aboriginal condition. The early records show such a well organized condition with the patria potestas (the power of the father) as its base that law as we know it was almost unknown. The punishment of crime was in the hands of the elders, who meted out punishment at their discretion being on their part restrained by custom which is frequently as binding as law itself. There was no law of contracts because when a man gave his word he was bound by the sacred ties of religion to keep it. They were a highly developed people when all their law was contained in the famous Twelve Tables, published in the year 450 B.C., and which became the genesis of the greatest code of law ever written, namely, the code of the Emperor Justinian compiled about a thousand years afterwards and completed 533 A.D. by the distinguished jurist Tribonian and the seventeen eminent lawyers who assisted him.

In the earliest times that we know very much about the Romans their state was a Republic and so much afraid were the people of anything in the nature of a king that instead of one man at their head they established the famous dual consular system knowing that when two men ruled each would try to prevent the other from seizing supreme authority. For me there is no portion of history quite so thrilling as that which portrays the passing of the Roman Republic into the Empire; the prosperity which came with conquest and the arrogance resulting from the Punic wars; the rivalry of Julius Caesar and Pompey with the latter's defeat at Phaesalia; the short reign of Julius Caesar and his spectacular death at the hands of Brutus; the overthrow of Antony at Actium and the final establishment of Augustus as Proconsul and Imperator. By a strange irony of fate this stirring page of history has not yet been sketched by any immortal pen. It was the choice of Gibbon, that master of historians, to show not the rise but the decline and fall of that great empire founded by Augustus. What I wish to draw your attention to in this parallel is the history of the Roman people from a democratic standpoint, that is from the standpoint of government by the people themselves. Without going into details the early history shows a struggle between the patricians and the plebs resulting in a most democratic form of government on the part of the thirty-five tribes through two popular assemblies known as the Centuriate Assembly and the Assembly of the Tribes. Both these assemblies were elective and both had legislative power. Above these was the Senate which was practically the executive body and although the Senators were appointed for life as in the case of our own they entered office as the popular choice of the people. This was the form of government for at least five centuries and the story of the decline and fall of Rome is the story of a free people allowing the right of government to be taken from them so that the popular assemblies pass away, the Senate becomes impotent, the concentration of power in one man becomes so great that each succeeding emperor arrogates to himself more and more the rights and privileges of a god until finally the weight of the imperial throne crashes through the crumbling structure of that world-wide empire built in the beginning upon such sure foundations. It is not to be wondered that Gibbon describes this final passing of an ancient nation as "the greatest, perhaps, and most awful scene in the history of mankind."

I would like you to keep in mind the epitome which I have given you of the greatest of the ancient empires while I turn your attention for a few minutes to the growth of the greatest of modern empires. It can be taken for granted I suppose that the history of Great Britain practically commences with the Norman Conquest and the feudal system introduced by William certainly made no provision for government by the people, that is the common people. I think I am safe in saying that most of us here this morning are descended from those early tillers of the soil who became the yeoman and the very backbone of old England and the constitutional development of Great Britain is chiefly concerned with the struggle for liberty on the part of these men—the workers of the land. The poet asks:-

"Who were the Yeomen, the Yeomen of England?
The free men were the Yeomen, the free men of England!
Stout were the bows they bore;
When they went out to war,
Stouter their courage for the honour of England!
And nations to eastward
And nations to westward
As foemen did curse them
No other land could nurse the,
The Yeomen of England!
But their Motherland, Old England!
And on her broad bosom did they ever thrive!

It would be interesting to point out to you how these men gradually threw off the shackles which bound them to the land for the benefit not of themselves but for the lord from whom they held the land in fee but I must confine myself briefly to touching on the growth in democratic power and the constant curbing of despotism on the part of rulers. There are five great charters of British freedom which you should never forget for without a doubt some of your ancestors fought and perhaps died at Edgehill, Marston Moore, or Naseby, in defence of the principles contained in the reign of John, Petition of Rights in the reign of Charles I., Habeas Corpus Act under Charles II. and The Bill of Rights and The Act of Settlement under Charles II. and The Bill of Rights and The Act of Settlement under William and Mary. Without going into particulars these different statutes stand out as milestones in the path taken by British people in preventing sovereigns obtaining such absolute power that they could peremptorily throw into prison any subject coming under the royal displeasure, and it is this which marks the essential difference between the British and Roman populace. The reign of the Stuarts is also noteworthy because under Charles I. Parliament finally asserted its absolute right of taxation and thus preventing the king waging wars at his pleasure, this being brought to a head by the famous John Hampden who inspired the well-known lines:-

"Some village Hampden that with dauntless breast
The little tyrant of his fields withstood,
Some mute in glorious Milton here may rest
Some Cromwell guiltless of his country's blood."

The Restoration appeared to mark a period of reaction with the fruits of the Revolution lost but the spirit of the people soon manifested itself for under Charles II. we had the abolition of all feudal tenures which created all kinds of obnoxious obligations under which land was held of the king and under James mainly as a result of the trial of seven bishops who dared to speak their mind on matters of politics where the king was concerned a movement began which ended in complete freedom of speech even to the extent of criticizing the king himself. This was the final complete and irrevocable assertion on the part of British people that kings rule not by divine right but by the right of the people in whom finally absolute sovereignty resides.

One of the contributory causes of the downfall of the Roman Empire was the centralization of all power at the city of the seven hills and the absolute impossibility of holding together such a huge heterogeneous mass of people by the iron bond of authority. The loss of the American colonies together with the speeches of Chatham and Burke indicate to us how difficult it was for the ruling powers of Britain to extend the freedom of the subject beyond the season. It is now stated that the loss of the thirteen colonies was followed by a determination of the ruling powers to curb even closer the liberties possessed by the overseas colonies which still remained and it has been given to Canada to take the lead in all subsequent adjustments which have led to the present happy condition of a British federation of nations all under one flag. The report of Lord Durham in the middle of the last century revealed precisely the Canadian temper and right now it is noteworthy that any pronouncement by the Canadian government as to the policy of Canada in any matter pertaining to the Empire is accepted as a general policy by the other Dominions. You may have noted that the stand taken by Canada on the ill-fated Protocol was at once backed up by the other Dominions. Perhaps one of the happiest developments has been the adaptation of our Royal family to modern conditions. In all history there is no other instance of a ruling family so adapting itself to the growth of democracy that with the loss of constitutional authority there has been generated a power in the hearts of the people which makes our present king and his most popular son more secure in the throne and its succession than any monarch since the time of Alfred.

I conclude with the hope that the evolution of democracy in the British Empire will be followed by the growth of liberty everywhere; that is, liberty as it is enjoyed here in Canada for example as contrasted with so-called liberty in Russia which is actually the worst form of autocracy. As Wordsworth says:

"It is not to be thought of that the Flood
Of British freedom, which, to the open sea
Of the world's praise, from dark antiquity
Hath flowed,
Should perish and to evil and to good
Be lost forever."

I believe it will not be lost but that it will bring finally all the nations of the world to such harmony with one another as is now enjoyed by the self-governing dominions within our Empire.

CAPTAIN SCOTT'S OLD VESSEL IS GOING INTO ACTION AGAIN

The Discovery Will Take Scientists to Antarctic to Study Whales.

FOR LEGISLATION

Ship Has Made History in Southern Hemisphere—24 Years Old.

By CLAIR PRICE.

Captain Scott's old ship, the Discovery, is going back to the Antarctic, but on a far more lady-like mission than she has ever carried out before. Some time in July she is to leave Portsmouth, England, where she is now overhauling, and when the southern Summer begins in October she will be based on Grytviken, South Georgia, an island 800 miles east and a little south of the Falkland Islands, of which it is politically a dependency. From Grytviken she will roam Antarctic waters, carrying scientists who will study the natural history of the whale.

The data they collect are ultimately to be used in framing whaling legislation, but the immediate purpose is purely scholastic. Their laboratory will consist of 1,000,000 square miles of open sea, a vast marine jungle alive with fish, penguins, hair seal and, at present at any rate, with the humpback, fin and blue species of the whale. Except for the technical knowledge of whaling skippers, it is a field of which science knows almost nothing.

Wherever the whaling skippers have been given a free hand, sooner or later they have exterminated the whales, and the whaling industry has collapsed. At present, the industry off the dependencies of the Falkland Islands is comparatively new. It was begun off South Georgia in 1906, and thus far it has produced $125,000,000 worth of whale oil.

To prevent it collapsing at some time in the near or remote future, the British Governor at Port Stanley in the Falkland Islands has consulted the skippers with a view to framing protective legis'ation. There being no local scientific data on the subject, he has had to take the skippers as his only source of information. He has discovered that every skipper has his own opinion of how whales ought to be protected, and there is more than a suspicion that some skippers' views are not wholly disinterested.

Ship Is Twenty-four Years Old.

For a stout little ship that has made Antarctic history, this bids fair to be a simple assignment. The Discovery, the Fram, the Terra Nova, the Aurora and the Nimrod are all wooden vessels built either to penetrate pack ice, to "saucer" above rafting ice, or to drift in ice without crushing. They were built for men like Scott, Shackleton, Nansen and Amundsen.

The Discovery was built at Dundee for Scott's National Antarctic Expedition of 1901. She was the sixth of that name, the first Discovery having been commanded by Captain Cook. She was of about 500 tons, bark-rigged and with auxiliary steam power, and her wooden hull was made to withstand ice. Scott took her out of London on July 31, 1901, and reached McMurdo Sound in the following January. By February she was frozen in off Cape Armitage at the extreme southern end of Ross Island and the expedition lived aboard her, using the shore hut only occasionally, while Scott, Wilson and Shackleton made their ninety-three-days' march, reaching a point within 463 miles of the Pole.

The relief ship Morning found her there in the Summer, still frozen in, and because the sound did not clear that Summer she remained frozen in for another year. The next Summer the Morning and the Terra Nova reached her with orders that if she could not be got out she would have to be abandoned. Just as she was on the point of being abandoned, the ice began drifting north and on February 19, 1904, the Discovery escaped.

Scientists Already at Work.

When a Colonial Office committee, acting at the suggestion of the Governor of the Falkland Islands, recommended in 1920 that a number of vessels be employed to gather data essential to legislation for the whaling industry, it was found that the only suitable existing ships were the Discovery and the Terra Nova. Neither was then in the best condition, and wood shipwrights were scarce; but a thorough examination of the Discovery finally led to her purchase and she was towed to Portsmouth to be overhauled.

Her base at Grytviken is already manned and will be in working order by the time she reaches it next October. It consists of a marine station, a wireless station and the necessary dwellings, all of which have been shipped from Liverpool, the buildings in sections to be erected on the spot. The Marconi Company has sent out an engineer, a wireless staff and the necessary equipment, and the scientific staff has begun its labors.

At Grytviken they confront a fieldof research such as would turn most scientists green with envy, and it is not impossible that discoveries of the greatest importance may make the name of Grytviken famous within the next five or ten years. Although they are to confine themselves to whaling research for the present, their field embraces 3,000,000 square miles of mainland, islands and sea, all comparatively unknown territory. Port Stanley, in the Falkland Islands, is a village of less than 1,000 inhabitants, but it rules all the land lying between longitudes 20 degrees west and 50 degrees west south of latitude 50 degrees south and between 50 degrees and 80 degrees west south of 58 degrees south.

This includes the probably continental territory known as Graham's Land, running south to the Pole, and a large number of islands of which the most important are South Georgia, the South Shetlands, the South Orkneys, and the South Sandwich Islands. All the harbors serving this vast area are British, and enterprises using the British harbors require British concessions. In all this area, except for a small sea elephant industry in South Georgia, the only present industry is whaling. There have been other industries in the past in which, owing to the lack of protective legislation, the goose has been killed.

Exhausted Sea Resources.

A century ago the South Shetlands were swarming with fur seal, and in a single Summer as many as 30,000 furs were taken. Eventually the fur seal was exterminated and there are now no known survivors excepting a small colony one one of the islands of the Faulk land group, where a trained naturalist is nursing them under the most stringent protective laws. A century ago there were sea elephants at the South Shetlands and the sea elephant industry yielded 940 tons of oil in a single Summer. Thus the sea elephant was exterminated there.

Whaling is the big industry in the dependencies of the Falkland Islands. The shore end of the industry is carried on mainly in the harbors of South Georgia and the South Shetlands, but there is a little of it in the South Orkneys and at Port Stanley itself. It has mushroomed into existence with the speed of a gold rush. Not only have fortunes been made in it, but the British Government found it sufficiently valuable during the war to buy up its entire output of whale oil for making glycerine. The trade has reached its present large proportions only in the last twenty years.

The "right" of whalebone whale hunted off Greenland and Spitzbergen by American, British and Norwegian whalers fifty years ago floats when dead and accordingly may be hunted with the hand harpoon. But the humpback, fin and blue whales of the Falkland dependencies normally sink when killed and can only be held with the harpoon gun. This was invented by the Norwegian Svend Foyn in 1865 and perfected during years of Norwegian coastal whaling. Its use is still jealously guarded by Norwegians, since some Norwegian towns live exclusively on the profits of whaling with Foyn's harpoon gun.

This gun finally made it possible to hunt the humpback, fin and blue whales of the Falkland dependencies, and when these whaling grounds were at last opened up it was the Norwegians who began working them and who work them now. The names of the late Alexander Lange and Captain C. A. Larsen are indissolubly linked with the days of pioneer whaling off South Georgia and the South Shetlands. Captain Larsen is still at it, and although there is now much British capital in the industry and British licenses are required to use the British harbors, the working personnel of the industry is still exclusively Norwegian. The British whaleman appears to be as extinct as the "right" whale which he helped to exterminate off the once famous Greenland grounds.

Norwegian whaling ships no longer cut up and boil down their catches at sea, but take them into the harbors, where the rendering is done at a factory on the beach. Having no need of great hold space, they are small vessels about 100 feet long, and owing to the absence of keel, which enables them to turn quickly in pursuing a whale, they are abnormally unstable.

These small whale catchers, each mounting a harpoon gun, began hunting humpbacks first, for these are the smallest of the three species; but the humpback was so severely overfished that protective legislation had to be devised and the number thatmay now be taken is restricted. Just before the war the whale catchers switched to the fin whale, and in 1914 the fin whale predominated in the season's catch. Since then the blue whale has led. This is the greatest of all whales, ordinarily attaining a length of 90 feet and frequently touching 100 feet. The earliest whale catchers off the Falkland dependencies avoided it, for instances have been known in which a blue whale has counter-attacked and a whale catcher has had to limp into the nearest harbor for repairs.

All three varieties belong to the family of fin whales, whose whalebone is worth little and 95 per cent. of whose commercial value is the oil. Some of this is made into lubricating oil, some of it is used for dressing fibre and leather, but most of it is used in soap. Since the invention of a method known as the hydrogenation treartment it has been possible to convert it into edible fats, and during the war some of it was used in Great Britain for the making of margarine.

Recent Protective Measures.

There were such fortunes to be made in the industry and so many applications for licenses that even before the war the Govenor at Port Stanley instituted an inquiry with a view to drawing up a protective policy. Legislation was enacted to prevent waste in the boiling down of whales, to protect females accompanied by calves, and to restrict the total catch. By a system of leases and licenses the number of whale catchers mounting harpoon guns was limited. In order to supplement the technical knowledge on which these preliminary measures were taken a committee was formed in London to assemble all the whaling data available. A biologist, Major G. E. H. Barrett-Hamilton, was sent to South Georgia to collect all the data he could at the whaling factories. But Major Barrett-Hamilton died soon after reaching his post and the war brought the work of the London committee to an end.

Toward the end of the war another committee was formed in London to outline necessary research work into whaling and other possible industries in the Falkland dependencies, and in a report in 1920 it recommended the establishment of a scientific base at Grytviken and the employment of a number of research ships to supply it with data and materials. Thus far, however, the export duty on whale oil, which has been imposed for the purpose of enabling the committee's recommendations to be carried out, only suffices for the work of the Grytviken base and one research ship, the Discovery.

Behind the work of the base and its one ship there has now been organized a committee on which the Colonial Office, the natural history section of the British Museum, the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, the Admiralty and the Royal Geographical Society are represented. This committee, particularly Sir Sidney Harmer of the British Museum, who is one of the world's authorities on the biology of the whale, has laid down an outline of the work to be carried out by the base and the ship. It is to include the study not only fo whales themselves, but also of the conditions of oceanography and meteorology which determine the abundance of whale food; the temperature, salinity and currents of the sea which bear on the whaling industry and the influence of ice and climatic codnditions.

It is to include a study of plankton, the small sea growths which are the food of the humpback, fin and blue whales, particularly of its seasonal and local occurrence, for such light as it may shed on whale distribution. Some time is to be spent in studying killer whales or grampuses, which kill calves and frighten adult whales from their feeding grounds. But the bulk of the ship's time for the first year of its work is to be spent in tracing the migration routes of the whale, a work that may take it as far north as the tropics.

It is believed that the whales go south in the Summer to feed and north toward the tropics to breed in the Winter, but of their breeding habits nothing is known. It is hoped that the ship will succeed in tracing their migration routes and some way of marking individual whales is now being worked out, the present plan being to scar them with a small dart fired from something like a medieval crossbow in order to identify them when met or killed later.

Lieut. Commander J. R. Stenhouse, R. N. R., D. S. O., D. S. C., who is to captain the Discovery when she goes into commission, is in charge of her overhaul at Portsmouth. He was captain of the Aurora when she went to the relief of Shackleton's party in 1914. Pending the completion of the ship's overhaul, her scientific staff are at work in an upper room at the Colonial Office in London. There are five of them, a director, three zoologists and a hydrologist.

ORCHARDS HURT IN HAIL STORM

Trees Stripped of Bloom — Peas Cut and Bruised Badly.

WINDOWS BROKEN.

BAILIEBORO, May 26.— The hail storm that swept this district about six-thirty o'clock on Saturday morning did a great deal of damage to the blossom in the fruit orchards.

A number of the farmers also state that considerable damage was done to the pea crop. The tender young plants were badly cut off and bruised.

The storm was so heavy that it knocked the twigs and leaves off the trees in pailfuls, and at the conclusion of the storm the ground lay covered with a coating of hail stones.

Several residents have stated that the window panes in their houses were cracked or broken.

No harm was done by the lightning in this district, with the exception of an occasional tree or telephone pole having been shattered.

TALES about it were as numerous as its dark, broken windows. Oaks shadowed it thickly; winds sucked through its halls. The shutters sagged and were ivy-eaten—the windows giving in to an emptiness at once foreboding, dreadful.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

WOMEN BUYING MORE DRESSES

Alright for Woman Who Likes Variety—Not Best Method.

NEEDS THOUGHT

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 26.—(United Press). — Women's dresses are cheaper today than they have ever been. There are hundreds of gown manufacturers turning out copies of costly models which sell for one-fourth the price of the original model. Thus, many women buy four or five dresses of inferior workmanship rather than buy one gown of fine material and finishing.

There are two sides to the advisability of buying in quantity. For the woman who likes a variety of clothes and who cares only for their general effect, quantity buying may be all right.

Well dressed women are minimizing the number of models purchased each season. They discard them when they become out-of-date and buy new ones. Often a costly model becomes copied in inferior materials before it has been on the market a month. One always takes this chance in buying a better garment, but if one buys often and buys but one gown at a time one can discard a gown when it becomes commonly worn. By doing this one keeps the wardrobe up to the minute. The six months' season no longer exists and new models are brought out every month, which make last month's garments seen antiquated.

Women who keep a large supply of frocks on hand and who purchase bargains to hold over for another season can not look stylishly dressed. It is a great mistake to buy a "sales" dress at the end of a season to hold over until the following season. Many of the best dressed women buy but one or two gowns a season. When an occasion arises which demands another gown they rush to the shops and get something up-to-the-minute rather than readjust the hemline or sleeves or some "sales" gown that has been packed away in the closet, adding up interest on its cost.

GOLFING.

This is the time of the year when that grand old Scotch game of golf is in "full swing," counting all the swings that are missed.

And there is relationship between golf and happy homes.

Probably the majority of men who play golf are office workers, who need the exercise and fresh air that the game affords.

They enjoy getting away from the office.

Yet many of them fail to realize that their wives often are tied down by housework, just as much as they are by office work.

I heard a man bragging the other day that he spent eight hours of the last four Sundays on a golf course. And during this time his wife was at home alone, growing more disgusted with her home every minute.

There's a happy medium in all these matters. The wife should realize her husband enjoys a game of golf with other men, but at the same time she is not going to be happy if she is neglected and ignored every ime there is an opportunity for recreation.

Marriage is a partnership, and every husband who realizes what priceless real happiness is should not get "drunk" on golf.

Don't use the Christmas Candy Canes to stake the garden peas; that won't make sweet peas.

Don't mix homebrew with spading under a hot sun; it will cause indigestion. Avoid the spading.

LIPSTICK LENDING IS NOT SANITARY

It is Dangerous For Both the Owner and Borrower of Cosmetics.

By HEDDA HOYT
(Women's Editor of United Press)
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, May 21.—(United Press).—There is nothing more unsanitary or ill-mannerly than using the cosmetics of another person.

One might just as well use another person's toothbrush as use their lipstick, powderpuff or eyebrow pencil. And yet we all have friends who sit before our dressing tables and utilize our very personal articles of cosmetics.

What can be more unsanitary than a powder puff absorbed with oil from the skin? The woman who has the audacity to ask to borrow one shows great lack of breeding. Using the lipstick of another is not only outrageous nerve, but a very dangerous thing for one should not submit one's self or another to germ transference. We are not cognizant of the germs that lurk on the lips of our friends.

Most women have a filthy habit of moistening their eyebrow pencils and brushes with saliva. Figure this out with yourself the next time you wish to use another person's eyebrow brush on those eyes of yours!

Recently I saw a lady throw away a complete outfit of make-up because a visitor had asked permission to use them. Of course, one hates to refuse to lend these things and to avoid complications one should keep in a separate compartment a complete line of make-up for people who have the tactlessness to ask for them.

Even this is bad, for then your friends will be using the cosmetics used by others. One should keep separate pieces of absorbent cotton for applying powder and rouge and this eliminates the idea of a 'family' puff. After the lipstick has been used, clean the end with a piece of gauze. Do this with the eyebrow pencil and under no consideration keep mascaro for the use of friends, as one should take no chances with the eyes.

If someone asks to use your make-up at a party it is very easy to say, "I'm sorry, but there's no powder on this puff" or "I'm afraid to lend my lipstick, as I recently had a cold sore and you shouldn't use it. A real friend won't put you to this embarassment.

FRISE—FIELDING

The marriage took place yesterday morning, at the Parsonage of Murray Street Baptist Church, of Grace Fielding and Howard Frise. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. W. Rose, D.D. Attendants were Miss Lena Hamilton and Mr. Gordon Frise. Mr. and Mrs. Frise, who will reside in Peterboro, left later for a motor trip to Barrie.

HENRY—CARR

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place on Monday morning at 10 o'clock in Knox Presbyterian Church, when Ruby M., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carr, became the bride of Harvey E., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Henry.

Rev. M. C. Mackinnon officiated, and the attendants were Miss Helen Macdonald of Montreal and Mr. William Hardwicke of Peterborough.

The bride wore an ensemble costume of Canton crepe and Kasha cloth in wood shade, trimmed with darker Canton. Her hat was of straw trimmed with Canton, and she carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. Ross Williamson sang very sweetly 'At Dawning," and on leaving the church, the bridal party passed under an arch formed by staves decorated with streamers in the colors of the A.S.K. Class, held by members.

The church was prettily decorated with apple and cherry blossoms, and the body of the building was filled with well-wishers of the young couple, who have been prominent in church circles.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Henry left on a motor trip.

IN PETERBORO CHURCHES

was the morning subject, based on Job's utterance, "The Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." It was an interpretation of life from the viewpoint of sculpture, which is "the art that works by force of taking away." Ruskin says: "The sculptor must paint with his chisel; half his touches are not to realize, but to put power into the form. They are touches of light and shadow." This offers a suggestive and fruitful meditation on human life, when the hand of Providence reaches forth, not to give, but to take away. Of course it is a painful process, this chiselling, but it spells not ruin but growth, not loss but gain.

"The more the marble wastes, the more the statue grows;
So if the working of my soul be such
That good is but evolved by Time's dread blows,
The vile shall day by day
Falls like superfluous flesh away.
O! take whatever bonds my spirit knows:
And Reason, Virtue, Power within me lay."

As yet we are faulty, rough-hewn, nowise polished, but we are His workmanship. He taketh from us nothing that we need, and when His work is finished, behold it is divine!

So

"While our lips confess
The Lord who gives, we may
Remember with an humble thought,
The Lord who takes away."

SACRED CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

Capitol Crowded For Benefit of Hapless Widow and Children.

The Capitol Theatre was crowded to the doors on Sunday evening for the sacred concert held as a benefit for the widow and family of the late James E. Herron, victim of a drowning accident on the Sunday previous. The hearty applause which followed each number on an excellent programme was evidence of the appreciation taken by the audience in an entertainment which was inspired by the best possible motives, and called forth the best efforts of those taking part. The sum of $220.79 was realized at the door.

Mayor Turner made a brief speech at the opening of the programme, referring to the text: "Bear ye one another's burdens," as being the mainspring of such endeavors, and expressing gratitude to Manager Crowe of the Capitol Theatre, and the Examiner, for providing the concert.

The musical programme was in keeping with the day and was of a sacred order throughout. It opened with the playing of the popular Lust spiel overture, by an orchestra led by Miss Florence Gladman at the piano, and composed of the following players: Mrs. J. Foster, Messrs. H. Hartshorn, Arnold Spencer, W. Lech, C. Seymour, Gallagher, W. Layfield, Benson Beach, Gibson, Townsend, R. Dyer, J. Irwin, Hully. This was a well played and attractive number.

The Salvation Army Saxaphone Sextette played splendidly. To take the blaring voice of these brazen-tongued instruments and soften it down to a reverential rendering of soft-toned music, requires much skill. The musicians in this group proved themselves really fine players, and earned a hearty encore, which was responded to with another bright selection.

With their usual fine musicianship Miss Edwina Palmer and Miss Agnes Logan delighted their audience with violin and piano numbers. Miss Palmer palyed the Andante from Lalo's Concerto, and Miss Logan the Andante in F major, by Beethoven. As an encore, Miss Palmer gave a soft selection with muted strings, and Miss Logan played by special request, the charming arrangement of the "Londonderry Air."

Vocal solos were given by Miss Geraldine Collins, Miss Mirnie Allen and Mr. Maurice H. Park, the trio receiving hearty encores. Miss Collins sang, in Latin, the lovely Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria," with violin obligato by Miss Palmer, and accompaniment by Miss Logan; Miss Allen had a pretty sacred number, and Mr. M. H Park's fine tenor voice in his selection, was accorded an enthusiastic encore which brought Kingsley's "Farewell."

Little Annie Fletcher and Phyllis Pink, two tiny tots in white frocks, made a hit with their rendition of "Jesus Loves Me," the little pipin voices accompanied on the piano by Mrs. R. Bugg.

A very effective cornet solo by Mr. William Layfield was Tosti's "Good Bye," with a well played encore.

Assistants to Manager Crowe in helping to seat the audience were Miss Ada Shaughnessy, and Messrs Arthur Head, Ted Crowe and P. Mowry. Members of the police force who regulated the crowd were Inspector J. Reid, Sergt. Deannard and Constable Wheeler.

HOME-LIFE SOCIETY

BIG PROBLEM IS BEING SOLVED IN LOCAL PLANT

Mr. H. M. Bishop Prophesies Development in Dustless Sweeper Industry.

ADDRESSES ROTARIANS

Only Thirteen Shareholders in Company Are Residents of Peterboro.

That there must be big developments in street sanitation and that of the 386 shareholders of the Dominion Dustless Sweeper Company only thirteen reside in Peterboro were some of the interesting things told the Rotary Club by Mr. H. M. Bishop of the Dustless Sweeper Company in a spirited address at the weekly luncheon today. Past President J. W. McDermid presided in the absence of President Jack Seels who is in Chicago.

Mr. Bishop's eloquent recital of the manner in which all new developments had to fight against ridicule and scorn until they ultimately succeeded was most interesting. He described the manner in which the ideas of Edison, Graham Bell, and others were put into practical use through the support they received and pointed out that three things were needed in this connection courage, correction and capital. Passing to the question of street sanitation the speaker showed that this was always the most neglected department in the cure machine and he went on to point out the need of a system of dry sweeping that would avoid damage to the pavement and at the same time clean up the streets of the menacing dust deposits. The elimination of dust from the streets and from dusty industrial plants was a problem that had long been studied and he was convinced that its solution was being developed right here in Peterboro.

The Dominion Sweepers were making new friends every day he informed the Rotarians and prophesied a developmet in the industry that would surprise the people of Peterboro. He pleaded for more boosting and less knocking as a policy that would make this a much more pleasant and progressive community.

MAIL CARRIERS SEEK INCREASE

Campbellford Men Join in Request for Payment on Salary Basis.

ABOLISH CONTRACTS

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27.—The rural mail carriers attached to the local service have not yet abandoned their efforts, in common with the other carriers all over the Dominion to secure higher compensation from the government. Garfield McKinnon of Guelph, who is head of the Association, was here recently conferring with the Campbellford members.

The Campbellford post office is rated among those in the small towns of Ontario that do a large business. There are five rural routes, these serving a large and prosperous district, and the service rendered by the carriers is above criticism. Very few trips are missed even in the worst of snow blockades.

The length of four of the routes is 22¼ miles, that of the fifth, the contract for which is held by George Hay, being 18½ miles, but this route is the most difficult of them all to travel, summer or winter. The average pay per mile is about $40 and the carriers are expected to be on duty every day in the year except Sundays. What they are asking for is $70 a mile and the statutory holidays. They also ask that the contract system be abolished and that they be placed on the same basis as the employees of the civil service.

Year after year the case of the rural carrier has been presented to the Department without result and Mr. McKinnon has been at Ottawa recently on the same errand.

The trouble with the class of service is that while it does not require the full time of the carriers their daily duties last long enough to prevent profitable engagement in any other line, and some of the local men who use autos claim that the cars are more expensive than horses as the latter alone can be used during the greater part of the winter.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Rheuma—The One Safe and Quick-Acting Remedy for Rheumatism —Money Back if it Fails.

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatic, arthritis, gout and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be sceptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous uric acid is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

Don't think because Rheuma is not expensive that it won't bring you back to health. There is no guess work about it. That's why McDermid & Jury and good druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and blessed relief almost at once.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

When a player is being run down between the bases and the following runner occupies the base he vacated, only to have the original occupant regain the base, making two runners on the same base, who has the right to it and what is the proper way to make the play?

A base always belongs to the original occupant. If a following runner advances to the base vacated, he cannot be put out while holding that base, while the original holder is being run down.

When the original holder regains the base in safety, it belongs to him and the following runner who advanced there is not exempt from being put out, even though he is standing on the base with the original occupant.

When two men are standing on the same base, the team in the field should touch the player other than the original occupant, the player who advanced there during the run-down. Touching him with the ball retires him even though he is on the base.

It is perfectly permissible for the following runner, who had advanced a base, to return to his original base if he can get there before being touched out.

Just remember that a base always belongs to the original occupant if he can and desires to return to it, provided he is not forced to advance.

QUAKER OATS UNFORTUNATE IN CHARITY CUP

Excellent Brand of Soccer Was Given by the Quakers and Woollens.

WOOLLENS WON 1-0

Winners' Defense Replied to the Quakers' Unsuccessful Bombardment.

On Victoria Day, in the Phelan soccer cup, the Quakers were eliminated from the series by the Woollens by the odd goal. It was the best exhibition of soccer seen this season, and very unfortunate for the Quakers, who had most of the play. The consensus of the crowd was "a draw would have been more fitting," from the large attendance at the Oval.

First Half.

From the kick-off, Clark made tracks along the wing, and from a timely pass, Mitchell rattled the upright with a connecting shot. Quick as a flash, Williams did likewise at the other end. He obtained two unproductive corner-kicks that Blowers frustrated at the opportune moment. Scott retaliated into goal again where another two corner-kicks were repelled when danger was very positive, but Cridland and Blowers were impregnable when hard pressed. Then Clark came into the picture with very aggressive tactics that kept Curtis on the alert. Play was productive of clean tackling and nice combination on each side, although the Quakers were more harmonious on mid-field play, while Woollens' sharp-shooters acted disjointedly. This was very much in evidence when Smith led his teammates around Hillman's charge, but luck was against them as they tried to get a goal as a Woollens' player would pop up at the crucial minute. The Quakers' continued bombardment was relieved by Art Read when he kicked out the ball that was going into the net. Mitchell trapped in the mid-field, swinging the ball out to Burgess, who travelled along the wing, slipped around Maker, full back, tipped the ball forward to the waiting foot of Mitchell, who made a supreme effort to gain the lead as he tested Curtis with first time shot. Scott carried the ball close into Woollens' area when half-time was announced.

Half Time.

The second half was opened up with excellent tactics of the aggressive and defensive kind that Maker and Honour responded to the Woollens' pressure which was ably backed up by a first-class half-back line — Logan, Scott and Maker—that never faltered to encourage their pivot men a chance at goal. A movement initiated by Mitchell was rewarded with success when Burgess outwitted the defence as he slipped the ball across to the centre. The Woollens' centre forward jumped in between the Quakers' defence pair to get his foot there first and land the ball out of the reach of Curtis. The last thirty minutes was undoubtedly in the Quakers' favor, that was intertwined with occasional brilliant rushes by Griffine and Mitchell. At this period of the game the clever outside right of the Woolens, Clark, was accidentally injured and was no use thereafter. No matter what the Quakers tried, they had misfortune with them, as this was proven when Williams mastered the situation to his advantage to shoot into goal but by accident the ball hit Hillman's knees, to be cleared by Read. Enthusiasm prevailed at a high pitch as the respective supporters shouted to their favorites. Credit must be given to the Woollens' defence men —Cridland and Blowers—for their success and Quakers' defeat. Woollens 1, Quakers 0.

Goal-scorer—Mitchell.

WOOLLENS TROUNCE THISTLE BY 4 GOALS

Clark, Wilson, Burgess and Blowers Were the Marksmen.

The Canadian Woollens continued their string of victories in the league schedule on Saturday afternoon when they trounced the Thistles to the tune of four clear goals. Last year champions were only able to muster ten players owing to sickness in recreation season. All the Woollen boys played a good game and the losers were best served by the full backs and half backs—forwards were missing. The league leaders have not had a goal scored against them this season as yet!

From the kick-off the Thistles became prominent on the left for a short period until the opposing defence found their bearings, then it was a nice piece of combination between Wilson and Burgess that threatened Anderson's citadel without any success. The Thistles' new goal keeper made some startling saves at point blank range, but a questionable foul against Wlison (Thistle) brought disaster when Clark accepted a pass along the wing and sending a dropping ball into goal it deceived Anderson as the wind twirled the sphere in below the cross bar. The losers made amends, as they made tracks into Wollens' territory, to be repelled by a stalwart half back line. Another foul given against the Thistles for handling, again let the winners add a second goal when Wilson tapped it past Anderson. This reverse upset the Thistles in every department; instead of aggressive forwards they all fell into half backs with the exception of Richmond who stood mostly as a spectator or a chance sharp-shooter.

Before half time a well engineered movement on the part of Mitchell-Clark wing again rewarded their side, as Burgess beat Anderson with a low ground shot. Half time—Woollens 2; Thistles 0.

Half Time.

On resuming the play was marred by so many free kicks for small infringements that would have been otherwise more profitable to all the twenty-one players. The re-arranged Thistle team did not work wonders; Richmond taking the place of Anderson between the sticks. Another foul kick against the Thistles let George Blowers come into the scoring column as he drove hard from 30 yard range. Richmond was too late jumping up to prevent a tally as he could not extract his boots out of the mud. A few minutes later he demonstrated his worth when called upon to hold the opposing forwards' shots from every angle. There was no further scoring, in the most farcial game played in many seasons, and awful to witness. Woollens 4; Thistles 0.

Goal scorers: Clark, Wilson, Burgess and Blowers.

The Teams.

Woollens: Hillman, goal; Cridland and Chambers, goal; Gaskill, Mann and Blowers, half backs; Clark, Mitchell, Griffin, Wilson and Burgess, forwards.

Thistles: Anderson, goal; Frank Wade, back; Carmichael, Jack Wade and Dawson, half backs; Lauchlin, Rowells, Richmond, Williams and Wilson forwards.

Referee: William Rickard.

SMALL SCORES IN OPENING CRICKET

Royal Oak Club and Frank Dyer's Eleven at Exhibition Ground.

In spite of the rather cold weather, an enjoyable cricket match was played yesterday at the Exhibition grounds between the Royal Oak club and Frank Dyer's XI, which was virtually the team representing the Peterborough Club.

The wet week-end left the wicket strictly in the bowlers' favor, and this coupled with good bowling and fielding kept the scores on the small side.

The Royal Oak Club elected to bat first and opened the innings with Walsh and Dugan, Mr. Dyer taking the ball himself, assisted by Charles Thorpe. A disastrous start was made, Dugan being caught on the first ball, and this seemed to have an effect on the whole team, nobody being able to play the bowling with any confidence. Charlie Thorpe bowled well during the innings which closed for 14 runs, and had the wonderful average of five wickets for eight runs, while Frank Dyer captured three for five.

Mr. Dyer's eleven opened carefully and Fox had the satisfaction of driving the winning run with only one wicket down. After this Coutts and Thorpe obtained runs quickly, but with their departure at 41 wickets fell cheaply, the whole side being retired for 54. Reg. Dyer and Dugan bowled unchanged throughout the innings:

TWO MEN HURT IN CAR SMASH

One Unconscious From Saturday Until Yesterday—Both From Lindsay.

FOUND ON ROAD.

On Saturday night at 9.30, about five miles from the city on the 4th line of Smith township, a car occupied by two Lindsay men turned turtle, and severe injuries resulted.

Mr. Workman did not regain full consciousness till yesterday.

It appears that Mr. Ransom was blinded by the glaring headlights of a passing car and in turning his own car back into the road he went too far to the left side and plunged over the embankment.

A man passing on horseback noticed the car lying on the roadside and a man's form stretched beside it. He immediately 'phoned for a doctor, and the two men were rushed to the Nicholls Hospital in an ambulance.

Mr. Workman was the more seriously injured as he suffered several cracked ribs and was in an unconscious state till yesterday when he partially revived.

Mr. Ransom suffered some severe scalp wounds and a badly torn ear.

Both men are employees of the C.N.R. in Lindsay, and it is thought by the doctor that they will be in the hospital fully a week before being able to leave.

Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the City Baseball League, received the following wire from G. N. Gordon, M.P.:

"I am sorry I cannot be with you to-day and the other friends who enjoy wholesome sport. The House of Commons sits to-day, and it is one of the days when I require to give attendance during the whole sitting, but the club and its members have my best wishes for a successful season, and I will follow their success with interest and satisfaction during the whole season.—G. CEMETERY RATES MUST BE RAISED

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien Addresses Letter to His People.

An encylical letter from His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, was read at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday morning, relating to the condition of St. Peter's cemetery and the raising of rates for services therein.

A committee of members of the three Catholic parishes of the city, Messrs. J. R. Corkery, S. Shaughnessy and D. Holland, with the caretaker, James O'Keefe, has recently been engaged in considering the financial condition of the cemetery and decided to raise the rates, to meet increased expenses of upkeep and ensure better service in the way of water supply, etc., at the graves. "With the present scale of prices, and a prospect of some future time seeing the cemetery totally sold out, a condition of an abandoned and derelict burying place would have to be faced."

A Triduum for the young women of the parish, conducted by Rev. Father McMahon, S.J., and extending from Thursday morning to Sunday evening next, was announced at the morning masses.

BIG BICYCLE PICNIC ATTRACTS SCORES OF CITY BOYS AND GIRLS

Races, Games, Free Candy and Ice Cream Enlivened Holiday Event.

SPLENDID PARADE.

White Bros. Sponsored First of Annual Picnics—Well Worth While.

On Monday nearly a hundred boys and girls joined in making White's Bicycle Picnic a decided success. Nine miles north east of the city, near Nassau, a playground had been provided and a refreshment booth established. Considering that this picnic was the first, ample reason was given for continuing the practice, if youthful enthusiasm could be used as a measure.

At one o'clock the crowd began to collect at White's store and all the members of the staff were besieged with volleys of questions and inquiries as to the time of departure and place of immediate destination. At 1.45 the photographer held the stage and would not be appeased till he had snapped a number of pictures of the line-up in front of the store.

Passers-by stopped to gaze at the throng and those at a distance came nearer to find out what it was all about.

There were envious little boys, with lumps in their throats, who were saying: "Gee! I wish I had a wheel; say, mister, will you have another picnic next year? Mebbe I'll have a bike then."

After the photographs were taken the boys began milling about, as boys will sometimes, but they were finally straightened into some definite order and lined up behind the bicycle ambulance. Then amid the shrilling of the siren, and the accompaniment of youthful shouts of glee, the parade was away. The smallest cyclists were little Douglas and Inez White, who excited much comment from the onlookers.

Big Procession.

Two decorated wheels led the procession up George street immediately followed by the ambulance and the parade, while a few outpost riders darted hither and thither irked at the restraint of being kept in line.

The trip to the grounds was made without mishap and on the arrival there a concerted dash was made for the refreshment booth.

After the first sharp pangs had been satiated Frank White told the boys to get mounted on their wheels and ride in a circle about him while he doled out refreshment checks.

This was rather an amusing incident wherein some, allowing the instincts of certain Elizabethan forbears to predominate, practiced piracy on the highlands and snaffled an extra ticket.

Sports were organized but due to the unstable character of the crowd, were not followed persistently. A baseball match started off auspiciously but when the football plunked into the locks, the diamond was deserted, and all flocked with one accord to superintend the operation of rescue and resuscitation.

When the umpire again said 'play ball' scarcely half of the players were available so the faithful ones resolved themselves into groups playing catch and kicking the football, or racing off to the refreshment counter as if smitten with some mighty desire.

Races were Exciting.

After this desultory type of amusement the races were announced to take place on a measured section of the roadway. The course was lined with excited boys and girls wheeling their mounts around through the crowd until some order was restored by the running of the trial heats for the 100 yards bicycle race.

On account of the large number of entrants it was necessary to run this race in nine elimination trials and two final heats. The victor was Ken MacDonald, who came through the hotly contested final with plenty of power to spare.

Gordon Young won the 50 yards for boys under 12, while Bud Westbrook came through for those over 12 and under 17. These two events were foot races.

An obstacle race, wherein the contestants rode 50 yards, turned the wheels completely over mounted and rode back, was won by Tom Perks, who must have had many occasions to place his wheel in that position for repair purposes, else how could he perform the feat so effectively.

Another obstacle race was won by Fred White and Freda Allison. In this event the young ladies piloted the bikes while the boys supplied the sole motive power by pushing. Mishaps were expected but due to the skilful steering of the girls and the solicitous attention of the boys no falls were registered.

Tested Skill.

Fred White who won an elimination head for the fast 100 yards event, demonstrated his versatility by winning the slow event when he crawled down to the finish by 0 miles per hour.

This event was a good test of bicyclemanship, as it required considerable skill to keep the treacherous machines in a perpendicular position at that slow rate.

Following the races came the clarion call for lunch. Although all had been warned to bring food many failed to do so with the result that many larders would be raided in the night watches.

However, generous showers of pop corn, suckers and line-ups for free ice cream did considerable to lull the gnawing within.

Ambulance busy.

The trip home was replete with chains flying from the sprockets and tires going flat. Many repairs were made on the road and the remainder were gathered up and taken charge of by the ambulance. None were left by the roadside.

MacDonald was despatched ahead of the procession and when it passed down George street red and purple flares were lighted on the street corners.

The procession halted at White's store when a mighty volume of cheers hammered the welkin.

A display of fireworks concluded a perfect day and all the picnickers departed to await impatiently a similar event next year.

Unfortunately the day was somewhat cold which might have influenced some in remaining away, and there were also several ball games, but it is certain that nothing will interfere next year to prevent a bumper attendance.

There was absolutely no doubt left in the minds of all present concerning the success of the holiday, and Mr. White saw that the effort was well worth repetition.

Next year, he says, the picnic will have an attendance twice that of this year for he intends to spare no expense to make the affair one of the biggest events of the boys' year.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE GOLDEN BED."

"The Golden Bed" now at the Capital Theatre is a story of two girls, a pampered belle and her resourceful sister—and what they do for a self-made millionaire who is an all too human combination of strength and weakness.

The picture is Cecil B. De Mille's latest production for Paramount which was adapted by Jeanie Macpherson, author of "The Ten Commandments," from Wallace Irwin's novel and Pictorial Review serial.

The book was hailed by critics and public alike as "the most searching novel of marriage ever written. Its pages glow with life and love."

And what a picture De Mille has made of it!

Flora Lee, selfish young daughter of the aristocratic family of Peake, and her younger though far more sensible sister Margaret, are both in love with Admah Holtz, rising young candy manufacturer who is long on money but shy on culture.

Holtz marries Flora Lee, the girl who turned her back on him when he was poor, only to realize that it is not he she loves but his money. Flora Lee gives a big candy ball which ruins Admah. He goes to prison. The girl goes off with another man while Margaret bucks up young Holtz; he fights back, has partially recovered, when Flora Lee returns, half out of her head, to the house of Peake, now used as a tenement. There she dies in the golden bed while Margaret and "Candy" Holtz go into each other's arms.

"The Golden Bed" will strike an unusually human note to those who have watched hard-working "nobodies" rise to wealth and social position over those who believed a marvellous family name did away with all necessity for work.

Rod La Rocque, Vera Reynolds and Lillian Rich have the principal roles in the production. Others featured are Warner Baxter, Theodore Kosloff and Julia Faye.

There's a great cast playing in support.

AT THE ROYAL

"BEBE" MAKES A HIT.

Bebe Daniels' first Paramount starring picture, "Dangerous Money," which opened last night at the Royal Theatre, once again proves the truth of the old saying that "money is the root of all evil."

As long as Adele Clark was a miserable little drudge in her aunt's dingy boarding house, she was contented to bask in the sunshine of Tim Sullivan's love. The minute Fortune favored her, Adele's troubles began and her romance with Tim received a rude shock.

"Dangerous Money," which Julie Herne adapted from Robert Herrick's gripping novel, "Clark's Field," is a study in vivid contrasts and picturesque backgrounds, ranging from the Brooklyn waterfront to a villa in Italy. All those subtle touches of humor and pathos that were ingrained in the story have been cleverly brought out in the photoplay, and the result is a picture, full of heart interest, that is bound to appeal to the overwhelming majority of film fans.

Miss Daniels gives a performance little short of marvellous. Her sincerity, vivacity and personality are invaluable assets and stamp her as one of the most talented, if newest, of our screen luminaries.

When it comes to playing the part of a young and handsome Irish contractor, there is none who fits the bill more admirably than Tom Moore and Tom proves it by giving a characteristically fine performance. William Powell, as the suave villain, and Dolores Cassinelli, round out an excellent supporting cast.

To Frank Tuttle, who directed, goes a generous slice of credit. This picture marks his directorial debut, and if it's a sample of what he can do, we hasten to add, "Bring on the rest!"

The shorter subjects are all up to the quality mark set by the Royal, and last night's programme seemed to more than please the big holiday crowds.

"COUNTRY STORE NITE" TO-NIGHT.

To-night, at the Royal, fifty prizes will be given to the lucky ones. The usual surprises and laughs will be handed out and to-night's the night to-night!

AT THE REGENT

"LIFE'S GREATEST GAME."

Written by Emilie Johnson and directed by Emory Johnson, the inseparable mother and son who have already chalked up five successive triumphs to their credit, "Life's Greatest Game," the sixth opus of the Johnson's, now playing at the Regent Theatre for a run of 3 days. Baseball is the subject of this stirring melodrama, which includes in its spectacular sweep the sinking of an ocean liner at sea, the winning of world's series glory by the young hero, and the utter disruption of the devoted Donovan family for a period of twenty years. No more comprehensive study of human nature has been offered on the silver sheet for many a moon than this remarkable picture, which is destined to gain even more popularity than such successes as "The Third Alarm" and "The Spirit of the U.S.A." Johnnie Walker is starred as the young pitcher who attains world-wide fame and money to have his mother's life in the blue ribbon classic of the diamond. He is supported by such excellent actors and actresses as Thomas Santschi, Jane Thomas, Gertrude Olmsted, Dave Kirby and Dickie Brandon, in addition to a most of extras and small part thespians who lend color to this unusual and appealing entertainment.

The catastorhpic sweep of a giant ocean liner being lost at sea in a collision with an iceberg—the tremendous punch of a father finding that his son is the unrecognized hero of the world's series game for the team which he himself manages—the delightful costumes of twenty-five years ago—the human appeal of a typical Emilie Johnson story; that is what the Regent Theatre can promise its patrons when Emory Johnson's sixth F.B.O. success, entitled "Life's Greatest Game," is projected on the screen for the first time in this locality for a run of 3 days. While baseball is the thesis of the picture, and a stirring tribute is paid to the glory, honesty and sterling attributes of the national game, no attempt is made by Mrs. Johnson, the author to inject into the tale anything which might militate against its general mass appeal, and she has wisely refrained from producing a technical story. Johnnie Walker and Thomas Santschi are starred in the picture. Gertrude Olmsted, David Kirby, Jane Thomas and Dickie Brandon are featured players; while hundreds of extras and many other small parts add lustre to the pictorial qualities of the film, particularly in the baseball scenes set more than two decades ago.

PETES DEFEAT BELLEVILLE ON HECKMANS FINE PITCHING AND SMART SUPPORT BY TEAM MATES

"Heck" Deserved Shut-Out in First Start of Season at Belleville.

GOYER LOOKS GOOD

Brother of Famous Freddy Made Favorable Impression.

(By F. D. C.)

With Al. Heckman fast balling the opposition to death, and his team mates fielding in fine style behind him and doing some timely hitting on the attack, Shiner Johnston's Peterborough crew grabbed off a clean-cut 6-2 victory over Belleville in the Victoria Day Central League fixture in the Quinte city yesterday.

Heckman, showing plenty of speed and nice control, had the Belleville hitters pretty well handcuffed throughout the matinee. Five singles represented the sum total of their club swinging and had it not been for a bad chuck to second by "Jiddy" Helson in an attempt to start a double play, the Petes' right hander would have started off his season's string with a shut out. He had Belleville popping them up all afternoon, fifteen expiring by the aerial route.

Barring this low throw and another to second by Max Swanston in trying to stop a steal, the Petes' defensive work was perfect. The outfield killed off eight batters, Herb Wolfe in centre grabbing off four flies and Red Legon taking care of three. Ray Rose was the busiest man in the infield with seven cleanly accepted chances.

Opposed to Heckman was Gil Goyer, a younger and right-handed brother of the famous Freddy, and he looked like a smart pitcher who will be of much assistance to Belleville this season. He was steady, exhibited nice speed and a hook that broke "big," and he should get better as the campaign goes on. He was well supported by his team mates, with Verne Weier setting the pace by gathering in six flies, several of them in circus style. Belleville had all of last year's regulars out except "Crock" Williams, and, of course, Oulette. The red light corner was taken care of by Fred Rutherford, formerly of Peterboro, who fielded nicely and drove in one of Belleville's two counters.

Considering that the game was played under leaden skies and with the temperature much more suitable for football than baseball, the fixture was a fast and snappy exhibition in which the nice fielding of both teams gave the fans much over which to enthuse.

The Petes played smart heads up ball, both on the attack and in the field and their showing was very gratifying to the handful of loyal fans who braved the Arctic weather to see the battle.

Summary of Play.

In the first Wolfe was thrown out by Rutherford, Rose fanned and Ross rolled to Harry Mills.

For Belleville Ross was easy, Rose to Harrison, Meagher hoisted to Holyman and Rose took Weir's high one.

Swanston opened the second with a fly to Hagerman, Heckman lifted to Weir and Rutherford threw out Legon.

A bad throw by Helson helped Belleville get their pair of counters in the second. Peeney Mills started with a single to centre and Hagerman's roller to Helson looked like a double play. The third baseman, however, threw low to second and Mills reached third and Hagerman second. Harry Mills' sacrifice fly to Wolfe scored brother Peeney. Casey walked. Rutherford dropped a single into right scoring Hagerman, but Goyer rolled to Rose and Legon made a nice catch of Ross's fly to left.

The Petes got one back in the third. After Helson had been thrown out by Goyer, Harrison was sent to first for interference by Catcher Mills. Holyman flied to Hagerman, but Wolfe singled to centre and Rose cut a single over Meagher's roof on which Harrison cashed in. Ross folded to W. Mills.

In Belleville's end of the frame, Meagher was out on a long fly to Ross. Weir lined to Rose, who made a nice catch of a hard hit ball. W. Mills lifted one to Holyman.

Harrison Scores Two.

The Petes won out in the fourth. Swanston opened the innings with a single to left. Heckman singled past third and Legon moved the battery up with a neat sacrifice. Helson's fly was nicely taken by Weir, but Harrison supplied the necessary punch by a hot single over second, scoring Swanston and Heckman. Holyman popped to Meagher to retire the side.

Belleville could not move a wheel, Hagerman struck out, H. Mills rolled to Heckman and Casey flied to Wolfe.

Petes Get Three.

The fifth saw the invaders put the game on ice. Wolfe nearly tore the leg off Meagher with a terrific single aid Rose drew a walk. Ross supplied the orthodox sacrifice, moving up the runners. Swanston pulled Rutherford into the diamond looking for a bunt and then cut one by the third baseman on which Wolfe and Rose scored and Swanston went to second on the throw in. He ripped a boot in the process and Manager Johnston ran for him. Heckman drew a pass. Legon fanned. Helson beat out a single to Meagher, "Shiner" scoring from second on the play. Harrison was safe on Weir's fumble, filling the bases. Weir made a nice catch of Holyman's fly in short centre field..

For Belleville, Rutheford popped to Heckman. Holyman threw out Goyer and Ross's tap in front of the plate was fielded by Swanston for an out at first.

In the sixth Wolfe was called out on a tap of Meagher, who also threw out Rose. Ross popped to Weir.

In Belleville's half, Meagher was thrown out by Heckman. Weir walked. W. Mills flied to Legon. Weir stole second and went on to third on Swanston's low throw. Hagerman fanned.

Swanston was called out on strikes to start the seventh. Heckman lifted one to Ross in centre. Legon singled through short, but was out stealing.

Belleville got two hits and no runs in their half. H. Mills raised to Rose. Casey singled through short. Rutherford forced him Heckman to Rose. Goyer singled to left. Wolfe grabbed Ross's fly to centre.

The Petes wasted two hits in the eighth. After Rutherford had thrown out Helson, Harrison singled through short. Holyman flied out to Weier. Wolfe singled to second, his third hit. Rose's torrid grounder, which looked like a sure safe one, was blocked by Harry Mills.

In the Quinte crew's half, Meagher was tossed out by Swanston. Weir singled to left and stole second. W. Mills flied to Legon. Hagerman raised a high one to Rose.

In the ninth Ross popped to H. Mills. Weir made a fine catch of Swanston's drive over second. Heckman was hit, but was forced at second, Meagher to Weir.

In Belleville's half, Heckman took H. Mills' easy fly and threw out Casey on his rap to the box. Keon batted for Rutherford and his fly to centre nestled in Wolfe's glove to wind up the game.

CHAMPION LAKEVIEWS WIN AND LOSE JUNIOR LEAGUE'S OPENERS; K. C. JUVENILES BEAT DODGERS

Jeff Hardill Held Lou LeBarr's New Team to Three Hits.

BEST OF HOLIDAY

Junior City League Opened by Mayor Turner — Lakeviews Shut Out Hillcrests.

The City Baseball League got away to a good start in the Junior and Juvenile series yesterday, when three games were played in Riverside Park. The League was officially opened by His Worship Mayor Turner, who in a short address called upon the players to provide clean amateur sport, which would be of benefit to them and to the city, and asked the people to support the boys by their attendance and encouragement.

The first game was won by the C.G.E. Juniors, who beat the Lakeviews, last year's champions, 7-2. Except for the first innings, when the C.G.E. scored four unearned runs on two hits, two errors, a fielder's choice and an infield out, and piled up a safe lead, the game was the best of the three. More good baseball was provided, and a number of fast plays resulted. Jeff Hardill was entirely master of the situation, allowing only three hits and retiring nine by the strike-out route. He had everything, including control, his only lapse in that line being a wild pitch which Marchen swung at for the third strike. Woods struck out seven and allowed seven hits, but six errors at crucial moments helped the winners to add to their score.

The winners bunched their hits behind their opponents' errors, and only one of the seven was unproductive of runs, but the Lakeviews could only collect three safeties off Hardill, two of them falling to Bill Collins and the other to Delahaye.

Lakeviews, 6; Hillcrests 0.

Lefty Donnelly and Shock Mein shut out the Hillcrests in the finale of the sporting programme of the day. Lack of punch with men on the bases accounted for the downfall of the East City players, who left men stranded in each of the seven innings, two men having the disagreeable experience of striking out while two of their team mates were waiting for transportation. One hit in each of five innings was allowed them by Donnelly, who encountered by striking out ten. Mein relived him at the start of the sixth and allowed one hit when hits were needed. They bunched four in the fifth for four runs, in which they were assisted by three of the losers' four errors.

This game was featured by two fielding stunts, both in the fourth inning. Marchen started them when he took Ralph's fly to short right centre while running with his back to the plate. Mesley, playing centre, pulled another great catch at almost the same spot when he did a nose dive to scoop up Delahaye's hit and came up with the ball securely clutched.

Marchen was the leading hitter of the game. The Petes' erstwhile shortstop had three safe blows in four trips to the plate. Scully compiled a higher batting average by making two hits in two trips. Kearns and Holland each got two for the losers, Holland's being due to his speed in beating out infield taps.

K.C.'S 11, DODGERS 3.

The first game of the afternoon was a one-sided affair. The Dodgers, managed by Jack Weir, had a good bunch of boys, but they are still diamonds in the rough, and the finished play of the K.C.'s, last year's Sacred Heart Midget champions, was too much for them, and the final score was 11-3. In the first three innings the south-end squad piled up seven runs, meanwhile holding the Dodgers scoreless. In the fourth the losers settled down and scored a run on two hits and a stolen base. They then held the Caseys from the plate, although the latter managed to collect two hits with only one out. Acting Manager Vincent O'Connell threw a bunch of reserves into the breach and they proceeded to score two runs in the fifth and another pair in the sixth, to make the game safe. A last minute rally netted the losers a couple of counters in the seventh, when they found Masterson's curves for two hits and a walk, but was far from the necessary total needed to win.

Weston, who pitched for the losers, was able to strike out five of the Knights, but was very wild, walking six and hitting two, besides contributing three wild pitches. His support was somewhat shaky, and several chances to make plays were lost through lack of experience. The pitching of Masterson was up to his standard of last year, thirteen of the Dodgers carrying their bats after looking at the third one. He walked five, but came through with strikeouts when there were men on the paths. Murray alone had any success with the bat against him, making three of his team's six hits.

Curly LeBarr did yeaman service, officiating alone in the three games. There was little questioning of his decisions, although his calling of balls and strikes from behind the pitcher brought out a few enquiring glances from either pitcher or batter.

The attendance at the morning game was very slim, but with a little warmer weather in the afternoon, quite a number turned out to see the games. Small boys with fire crackers were everywhere, and showed great aptitude in timing the explosion to coincide with the thud of the ball against either the glove or the bat.

ORONO BOYS STAGE FIELD DAY SPORTS

Two Carloads of Millbrook Boys Motored Over to Compete.

MILLBROOK, May 26. — In spite of bad roads, and unfavorable weather two carloads of boys from the Tuxis Square and Trail Rangers groups of the local church es drove to Orono on Saturday to compete in the field day sports under the auspices of the C.S.E.T. and C.G.I.T. organizations of that town.

Rev. F. H. Howard and Mr. F. W. Fallis gave the use of their cars in conveying the boys to Orono, and Rev. G. S. Gervan also accompanied them.

There were about 60 entries in the various classes, including boys from Bowmanville Blackstock, Newcastle, and other outside points. The physical director from Oshawa had the events under his charge.

Jim Larmer, Millbrook, won the one mile race, his record being 4.43 and 3-5, though he has made it in 4.11, but neither track nor grounds were in proper condition owing to the heavy rain all the previous night and most of the morning.

In the soft ball game between the girls' teams from Orono and Blackstock, the former won. Miss Gladys Tucker, who received her initiatory training in C.G.I.T. work in the "Wide Awakes" group at Millbrook, introduced the organization at Orono where two groups are now functioning actively.

The boys who went from Millbrook on Saturday were: George Clarke, Jim Larmer, Walter Savles, David and Russell Gervan, Rob Larmer, Aubrey Todd, Arnold Fallis, Keith Barbard and Arthur Howard.

Had the weather been more favorable the girls' group would have been represented also.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Taking the club back too rapidly, which usually results from breaking the clubhead back quickly with the wrists, sends the club to the top with such speed that it must be stopped with a jerk. The result of this is that the player loses exact control of it and he starts down with it before he has finished going up. Then he unwinds his body too fast coming down; gets far ahead of the club. Slicing results.

The body unwinds rather slowly in the forward swing ,the hitting action being entirely with the clubhead, not with the body. The clubhead is thrown with shoulders arms and wrists. The body follows. In the correctly made swing there is a lack of consciousness of body action.

This is the second town league game that has been postponed this season. The league is not getting off to a very good start.

The Johnston lots, now the property of the town, are in readiness for the Softball League, which will have seven teams thwis season. Kingston's Second Victory Spoiled Flavor of Oshawa's Ceremonial Opening.

ERRORS NUMEROUS

Jimmy Breckenridge Clouted for 13 Hits—Six Boots Behind Him.

OSHAWA, May 26 (Special to The Examiner).—All the Oshawa Central Ontario baseball team displayed in their first league game at home yesterday was the opening ceremonies with L. O. Clifford, M.P., doing the pitching, Mayor H. P. Schell swinging the willow; W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., M.P.P., wearing the big mit and switching places.

Teddy Gallagher, the Kingston southpaw, had the high sign on the locals in every innings but the second, when he walked two batters; his catcher, Walker, let a couple go past the screen and one run crossed the plate; outside of that frame he held them to two hits, one coming in the fourth which accompanied by an error, was good for run number two, while the other single came in the ninth, but the runner was left on the bag. Jimmy Breckenridge, the old Leaside pitcher, made his first start for Oshawa, and was touched for 13 hits, one of which was a home run by Red Batstone but the support given by his team mates was of the poorest. The score by innings and lineup were:

DEMPSEY ORDERS TRAINING GOODS

NEW YORK, May 26.—(United Press).—Jack Dempsey, whose reluctance to fight in America caused a general slump in the New York fistic market will do some boxing in Europe, it is believed here, following receipt by a sporting goods company of a cabled order from the heavyweight champion for training equipment. Dempsey asked that two punching bags with six bladders, one pair of boxing shoes and six pair of punching bag gloves to be sent to him at the Claridge Hotel in Paris.

BURNBRAE TUG OF WAR TEAM WON HOLIDAY PULL WITH EASE

Field Day at Campbellford Brought Out Good Sports Features.

HORSE RACES.

Peterborough Thistles Won Soccer Game With Campbellford, 5 to 2.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26.—The Burnbrae tug of war team are still champions of Central Ontario, winning an easy victory over the ten Campbellford men whom Mayor Meyers had selected to uphold the honor of the team. The team from Percy Township failed to put in an appearance, to the disappointment of the crowd, but none regretted this absence more than the champions, as they are anxious to have this dispute settled for all time. The Burnbrae team will disband after another trial with Warkworth, no matter what the result may be. They have been in the ring for the past sixteen years, conquering all opponents, but sixteen years makes a difference in the staying powers of even a Burnbrae man. Of the ten men who were on the team yesterday, five—W. W. Little, Victor Taylor, Roy Walker, Bert Third and Lindsay Watson—helped win the first victory ever scored.

Capt. James Stewart has been training his men for some weeks and the result was very apparent the moment the word was given. On the other hand, Mayor Meyers' men went into the fray with the slightest preparation, having nothing to depend upon but their strength and determination. The Burnbrae men dig footholds in the hard sod, using nothing but the heels of their shoes. As soon as the word is given they secure enough of the rope to allow them to seat themselves on the ground, from which position it seems a physical impossibility for ten men to move them. Then when Capt. Stewart calls upon them to "heave," the response is unanimous.

The Campbellford men made a brave fight for a team that had never been in such a contest before, but they were clearly out-classed.

Word came from Warkworth that the team from Percy Township had been unable to practice, but that they would be in shape to meet the champions at the Fall Fairs. The men on the different teams yesterday were as follows:

Burnbrae—Will Hume, W. W. Little, Harold Little, Victor Taylor, Roy Walker, Bert Third, Lindsay Watson, Frank Little, A. Jones and William Bennett.

Campbellford. — Hilton White, George Towns, Harold Petherick, Ward Archer, Joseph Lindsay, Herb. Smith, Wm. Martin, Peter Nesbitt and D. Searles. Jack White was one of the men selected, but he was unable to attend and at the last minute his place was taken by a volunteer from the crowd.

S. J. Fisher of Belleville acted as referee, and J. S. Battisby was time keeper.

Where Campbellford Excells.

There was on the programme horse races, and not a local horse among the entries, although C. H. Coveney did drive his handsome pacing mare, hitched to a buggy, around the track, giving a fine exhibition of speed and action. There was a football game in which the Campbellford boys lost out to the Peterboro Thistles. Campbellford may have won no glory in the tug of war, losing like the French army of history everything but honor, but when it came to lacrosse, this town took everything in sight. In that game the young men of Campbellford are still true to the records of the past, when the local lacrosse team was noted the Dominion over. Lacrosse is still the game that draws the crowd, no matter what the other attractions may be on a public holiday. Jack Nesbitt, Charlie Holmes and others of the old timers have lost none of their cunning, although they have been out of the game, practically for years and in the match yesterday they received splendid support from the Hastings team with which Campbellford was amalgamated.

The Horse Races

There were three entries in each of the two horse races on the bill. In the free-for-all two of the horses, Polly Stout and Just Jack, were from the stable of that confirmed and successful turfman, R. Elmhurst of Lang. The third entry was the veteran campaigner, South Dakotah Maid, owned by Si Garrison of Frankford.

Polly Stout maintained her reputation as the queen of the race track in this district, taking first money in three straight heats. In the second heat she began to act badly while scoring coming up to the wire on the run two or three times. Her owner, who was up, believed his othe entry, Just Jack, showed his understanding of the vagaries of the temper and his mastery over the mare. Dismounting from his sulky he removed the poke and gave Polly two or three sharp cuts with his whip which she apparently accepted in the spirit in which they were administered. Anyway, she took her place at the pole and led the field to the wire without another skip.

Dakotah Maid is still game but her best days are past. She led the others for the first half mile but weakened in the second lap and finished third in the money, Just Jack giving Polly Stout a stiff race up the home stretch, finishing a close second. Best time—2.22.

2.30 Trot or Pace

The entries in the 2.30 Trot or Pace were: Betty Azoff, owned by Art Elmhurst of Indian River; Jeanette Taylor, by Wm. Ament of Grafton, and Frank Medium by James Hubble of Havelock. The latter is a large horse that was in the woods drawing logs for the greater part of last winter. He improved with practice and his third heat was his best. The Elmhurst family again triumphed, Betty taking the race in straight heats. Best time—2.39¼.

S. J. Fisher was starter, J. S. Bottisby and J. Nelson Stone, were the timekeepers and the judges were D. A. Owen, J. C. Anderson, Dr. S. L. O'Hara and Charles Schooley, the latter of Peterboro A. G. Thompson acted as clerk.

The Thistle Win.

Peterboro Thistles had little difficulty defeating the amalgamated St. Mary's and Christ Church team at football by a 5 to 2 score; Richmond, the Thistle centre, kicking 3 goals, and Williams and Dawson one each, while Blackwood and page were the local scorers. The lineup:

Campbellford.—Goal, Gay; Backs, Smith and Armstrong; Half Backs, Fitzpatrick, Cleverly, Sargeant; Forwards, Romaine, Brunelle, Blackwood, Haw and Page.

Peterboro Thistles.—Goal, Brown, Backs, Wade and Anderson; Half Backs, Carmichael, Wade and Wilson; Forwards, Laughlin, Dawson, Richmond, Williams, and Browl.

Referee—Richard, Peterboro.

Lacrosse is Favorite.

That lacrosse is popular in this section was evidenced by the crowd that swarmed around the playing field, madly cheering their favorites.

The first game between Campbellford's 1925 Junior entry, all decked out in new jerseys, and Havelock, last year's district winners, provided a tidy struggle with the local crew coming home in front by the odd goal in nine. The youngsters showed some clever lacrosse for the first game of the season, and if the league games to follow, are on a par with yesterday's fixture, lacrosse fans in this section will see some grand struggles.

"Huck" McArthur, "Joey" Ibey and the two Ingram boys were the outstanding stars for the homesters, while Kitchen, H. Plunkett, Wells and Jack were best for Havelock.

The Orange and Black attacked from the face off and Freddie Ingram gave Brother Harry a nice pass close in, but the shot went wide and Havelock opened the scoring, when Jack shot from the side. Freddie Ingram evened it up before the period ended, when he took a pass right in front of the Havelock nets.

Second Period.

Both goalers were called upon several times during the period, but Plunkett was the only successful marksman, putting the railroaders 1 up.

Third Period.

F. Ingram again evened the score on the nicest play of the game when he slipped in the rebound of his own shot with a cluster of Havelock defence men around him. The same player almost repeated on a pass close in but Davidson made a beautiful save. However, the home crew went to the front the next minute, when L. Blake picked up a loose ball in front of the Havelock net and flipped it in. "Shirt" Blake made it 4 to 2, when he was on the firing end of a clever combination. Reynolds got a cheap goal for the Railroaders when he was allowed to bring the ball out of the crowd behind the nets unchecked, and Wells put the teams on even footing again from a nice pass across in front of the goal.

With just a few minutes to go, L. Blake scored the winning goal on a pass from F. Ingram.

Campbellford Juniors 5, Havelock Juniors 4.

Campbellford Juniors: Goal, Fox; point, McArthur; c. point, Cochrane; 1st defence, Poulton; 2nd defence, Bush; centre, T. Ibey; 2nd home, L. Blake; 1st home, H. Ingram; outside, F. Ingram; inside, F. Blake; subs., Bland and C. Ibey.

Havelock Juniors: Goal, Davidson; point, Greenley; c. point, Lang; 1st defence, Reynolds; 2nd defence, Barnett; centre, Kitchen; 2nd home, H. Plunkett; 1st home, McWilliams; outside, Wells; inside, Jack; subs., Waymark, Wilds and Neal.

For the Meyers Cup.

The second game for the Meyers Cup, between the amalgamated teams of Campbellford and Hastings vs. Havelock and Norwood, also resulted in a win for the home team by a score of 5 to 2. Both outfits contained a mixture of old-timers and youngsters, and they dished up some fairly good lacrosse, and both will improve when they get used to playing together.

At the conclusion of the game, Mayor Meyers called the members of the winning combine to the centre of the field and presented the handsome silver cup known as the Trent Valley Lacrosse Cup. The Mayor congratulated the boys on their victory and clean playing.

Campbellford and Hastings: Goal, Garrison, C.; point, Scriver, H.; c. point, Holmes, C.; 1st defence, Tait, H.; 2nd defence, Montgomery, C.; centre, F. Scriver, H.; 2nd home, B. Clapper, H.; 1st home, Horkins, C.; outside, Nesbitt, C.; inside, Stevenson, H.; subs., Lott Reid, McArthur and H. Ingram.

Norwood and Havelock: Goal, Davidson, H.; point, Hooper, H.; c. point, C. Brennan, H.; 1st defence, R. Scott, H.; 2nd defence, T. McGee, N.; centre, Kitchen, H.; 2nd home, L. Plunkett, H.; 1st home, H. Baker, N.; outside, A. Kemp, N.; inside, D. Brennan, H.; subs., Quinn, Armstrong Jack and Baker.

Referee: B. Lott, Oshawa.

Notes of the Day.

The attendance was good in spite of the unseasonable weather and the Fair Board will have a neat surplus when all bills are paid.

Police Chief Brown handled his first big crowd since coming to Campbellford and had no trouble. There was only one case of intoxication in evidence and that cannot be charged to the new beer. The victim showed a disposition to walk backward, a sure sign that he had been indulging in moonshine.

T. J. Horkins, chairman of the committee on sports, was congratulated upon the programme that he had aranged and the manner in which everything in his department was conducted.

WHITEHOUSE TO PITCH OPENING GAME TOMORROW

Peterboro's Home Schedule Starts Wednesday at Five O'clock Against Belleville.

TWO SOUTHPAWS

Keon Will be Trunks' Heaver —Mid-week Game Should Draw Big Crowd.

Peterboro fans will get their first chance to see this year's team in action at the Riverside Park to-morrow evening at 5 o'clock when the Belleville fixture postponed from last Saturday will be staged. If the game approaches yesterday's battle at Belleville in snappiness the twilight fixture will be a great start to the local season, for both teams played smart ball on Victoria day.

Frank Whitehouse will be on the firing line for the Petes and he will be opposed in all probability by Hughie Keon, who after a bad start turned in a nice card against Oshawa last ween. Keon has plenty of stuff and now that Oulette is removed from the scene the former Tweed righthander will get lots of chances. Belleville will have nearly all the old gang in line to-morrow night and they always play good ball at Riverside Park.

The Peters deserve a big crowd at to-morrow's game—and they need it as they have adready had two trips out of town, and have a journey to Oshawa on Saturday.

With all the available talent in town lined up the local Central Ontario League outfit is endeavoring to bring home the bacon with a homebrew aggregation, and in this ambition they merit the united support of the fans.

THREE GOOD GAMES PLAYED SPORTS DAY

Bailieboro People Saw Boys Beaten 7-5, But Girls Evened Matters.

BAILIEBORO, May 26.—Three baseball games were played at the sports day here on Monday. The first game was played between Bailieboro Juniors and Garden Hill Juniors. The final score was 7 to 5 in favour of the visiting team. Johnston and Dean acted as the Bailieboro battery, both doing splendid work, Johnston fanning them right and left with his tricky curves and dorps. The Garden Hill battery consisted of Mercer and Dunbar. The game was practically won on errors in the outfield of the home team.

The second game was played between the Bailieboro girls and Garden Hill girls in softball. The home team walked all over the visitors, holding them down to a no hit, no run game, the final score of which was 24 to 0 in favour of the home team. The Bailieboro battery was Perrin and Dean. Garden Hill, Munro and Dunbar.

The South Monaghan senior team played a pick-up team and won 9 to 4. The Souht Monaghan battery, Hutchison and Dunbar, and the opposition, Mercer and Dean.

SPORT GOSSIP AND COMMENT.

The fact that the postponed Belleville-Peterboro Central Ontario League game is to be played at Riverside Park tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock will be welcome news to a lot of good fans who are unable to see the Saturday games and who will be glad at this opportunity to see the Petes in action. It will be the first time on record that the local Central Ontario League season has opened in mid-week and the experiment will be watched with interest. A goodly crowd should see the season ushered in by this twilight fixture.

Don't make the mistake of under rating this Belleville gang because Oulette has been lost to them. This youngster Goyer who worked against the Petes yesterday has plenty of stuff and should develop into a very useful heaver, while Falt Gero w and Co. all claim that with any luck Hughie Keon should have won the opening game from Oshawa. Keon will undoubtedly be sent in against the Petes here tomorrow while Manager Johnston will use Frank Whitehouse. Belleville still have the Mills brothers, Weir, Ross, Casey, Meagher and Hagerman and no line up with that bunch of fighters can be sized up as weak. The Peterboro fans will find the Quinte gang out there battling all the way tomorrow night as they have always done against the Petes.

Heckman's fine performance against Belleville yesterday was the source of great satisfaction to the whole Peterboro camp. Heck likes the weather hot when he is sent to the firing line and his feat in holding Belleville to five hits under yesterday's conditions was very pleasing all round. Except, of course, to Belleville.

With a right handed pitcher working against the Petes yesterday Shiner Johnston sent Wolfe and Ross, left handed batters, into the outfield. Wolfe led the hitters for the day with three singles in five times up and it looked as if Umpire Si Dell cut him out of a fourth when he apparently beat out a roller to Meagher. Wolfe's second hit was a vicious roller that struck Meagher on the leg and bounced nearly to second base. A few more drives like that and the Cental League infielders will be shouting for shin guards.

When Umpire Geo. Sullivan announced the Belleville battery yesterday as Goyer and Mills it sounded like the old days when the left handed Freddy now toiling on the mound for Guelph used to oppose the cunning of his south paw salary grabber against the hooks of Howard Kirn. This younger edition shapes up like a real pitcher, too.

"Shiner" Johnston pulled a good one in the fifth yesterday. Swanston tore his boot as he reached second base on a hit and asked for a runner. Belleville selected Shiner to do his stuff on the bases for the catcher and the Pete's pilot surprised them by going home from second on an infield single by Helson which both Meagher and Harry Mills went after with the result that first base was uncovered. Before the second baseman realized the play Johnston was almost home.

Kingston by virtue of their 7-3 win in Oshawa yesterday are heading the Central Ontario League parade with a clear sheet while the Petes and Oshawa are tied for second. The surprise of the year was the fine pitching of Teddy Gallagher, Kingston's veteran southpaw, who held the Motorists to two hits. Gallagher, like Heckman, prefers warm weather when he is in the gun pit and his work yesterday was rather more than was expected of him considering the weather conditions.

With sixteen men in uniform the Petes looked like a big league outfit at Belleville yesterday. Frank Whitehouse, Jimmy Hall, Ed. Gartner, Frank Collins, Scotty McPherson, and Fred Ash were the players who did not get into the game yesterday.

Geo. Sullivan of Kingston and Si Dell of Oshawa will be the officials in tomorrow night's game here, as they will be in charge in all Peterboro-Belleville games during the season.

Max Swanston and Hap Harrison were the only players in yesterday's game in addition to Wolfe to get more than one hit. They nicked two each and both came through with a timely blow that scored a pair of runs. Ross, Meagher, Harry Mills and Hagerman went hitless for Beleville and the last named who had four hits against Oshawa furnished Heckman with his two strikeouts of the game.

Johnny Marchen the youngster who was given a trial at short stop by the Central Ontario League team has been released to the Lakeviews and played second base for Lew Lebarr's team yesterday. Marchen is a very promising young player who developed fast last sason and who should continue to show rapid improvement as he is willing and peppery. He will make the grade into senior ball before long.

Defeated Colborne 7-6 in First Game of Northumberland League.

GOOD BASEBALL.

The Northumberland League opened in Colborne yesterday.

Frankford was the visiting team and won from Colborne 7 to 6. The battery for Frankford was Trenpice pitching, McLeod and Lawrence catching. The battery for Colborne Roffe pitching and Turpin catching. The umpires were Wager and Cowie.

The score by innings:

Frankford .. .0 0 1 0 2 2 1 1 0—7
Colborne .. ...0 3 3 0 0 0 0 0 0—6

There was a good turn out and considering the cold weather there was a very fair exhibition of baseball.

The president of the league, C. W. Varkoe, pitched the first ball and the batter was the president of the Colborne team, Mr. Wilson.

Outstanding feats—Won 19 games and lost 11 in 1919. Has been in four world series. Pitched famous 10-inning tie game between Giants and Yankees in 1922 classic.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

CAPABLE SUBS

Major league manages are going in strong for capable reserves this year.

I have no doubt but that the plight the Washington club found itself in during the world series when Peckinpaugh was injured, is the cause of it.

Lack of even so-so substitutes almost cost Washington baseball's greatest honor the world's championship. It seemed almost ridiculous that a pennant winner should be so weakly fortified.

Several of the substituts who broke into the 1924 world series were far removed from major league caliber, yet figured prominently in the classic of the year.

In every camp I visited during spring training, the managers pointed with pride to their classy bunch of reserves.

..The theory that a team is no stronger than its substitutes is apparently about 99 per cent truth.

PINCH HITTERS

In speaking of reserves, I doubt if there is a more handy player to have around than the athlete who can hit in the pinch.

The pinch hitter is one of baseball's most valuable assets. As a matter of fact, a club lacking in at least one capable hight-hander and left-hander for pinch purposes, is workin[illegible] handicap.

Th[illegible] played havoc with the [illegible]ankees in many a clo[illegible]ear. The club had plen[illegible]anded pinch hitters but was shy a good right-hander.

The role of pinch hitter is, perhaps, the toughest in baseball. Incidentally a manager always lays himself open to the second-guesser when he makes a shift in his lineup

GIANTS STYLE

In all probability no club in the majors uses the sacrifice less than the New York Giants.

In the spring games I watched between the various major league clubs, I noted that Manager McGraw leaned strongly to the hit-and run.

I also observed that any time the Giants use the hit-and-run play the batsman seemed to try to hit the ball to right field. He didn't always succeed but the effort was made.

After one of the games I made mention of the fact to one of McGraw's stars and he admitted that the players in so dong were working under managerial instruction.

Here is the very interesting information I gleaned as the result of my observations, also revealing one of the reasons for the Giants' success.

RAIN WAS GOOD FOR NEW CROP

Saturday's Electric Storm Did No Damage in Bethany District.

BAND CONCERT

BETHANY, May 26.—The severe hail and electric storm which passed over this district early Saturday morning did no damage. The rain which fell will be of great benefit as the continued drought was beginning to show its effects on crops and pasture. The Spring crops are up and showing fair growth and with warm weather will come along quickly.

Band Concert.

The brass band which has been practicing diligently for the past several months under the able leadership of D. A. Greenlaw gave its first open air concert on Friday evening. The citizens greatly appreciated this treat and it is the general wish that the programmes will be continued throughout the Summer months.

SHOWERS FOR BRIDE

Miss Myrtle Kidd Was the Recipient of Many Beautiful Gifts.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26.—Margaret and Mary Ellen, the little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Cock whose house on the outskirts of town was recently destroyed by fire, were tendered a shower Saturday afternoon by their schoolmates in the Campbellford Public School and by their fellow scholars in St. Andrews' Sunday School. A large number of young people left town in autos for the residence of William H. Grills in Seymour Township, when the shower was held. The two girls received many useful gifts to replace articles lost in the fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Cock are now living in a temporary residence which neighbors help them on their farm lot, their daughters have been staying in town where they attend schools.

At St. Andrews.

Rev. Roland McEachern of Toronto, formerly Presbyterian minister at Keene, was the preacher at St. Andrews' Sunday morning and evening.

At the evening service, Miss Grace McDonald of Toronto, who spent the holiday with relatives in town, assisted the choir and sang with fine effect as a solo the hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul."

A meeting of this congregation has been called for Thursday evening to elect trustees and for the transaction of other business. A full attendance is requested.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

There is one rule in golf which, like the ancient law that still gives man on horseback the right of way over you and your car, is 900 years old—and still good. This is the rule of concentration while making your shots. Nearly all average golfers, in the pleasures and the excitement of play, forget this rule often if not completely. Your mind cannot be wandering all over the course when you are about to make a shot. It must be one the exact business of the moment, which is the business of hitting the ball. One need not be ponderous to the point of annoyance to others, yet while making the swing the mind should be entirely free from any thoughts other than those having to do with the shot. Be exacting.

TO-NIGHT IS THE NIGHT

If you do not feel well there is some reason for it. In nine cases out of ten it is due to your liver. So start tonight and take two Tanol Calomel Tablets or take one before meals and a glass of hot water in the morning to wash all poisons from the system. Calomel, as you know, is the only drug known that acts upon the liver and that is why there has been such wonderful results from the use of it in the new form called Tanol Calomel. Just get a few of these sample tablets from F. C. Webber's Drug Store, Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are. m.w.s.

BOSSOM FROZEN ON FRUIT TREES

Saturday's Storm Did Damage at Hastings—Icicles on Trees.

HASTINGS, May 26.—All kinds of weather prevails locally. On Saturday the weather turned decidedly cold in the afternoon and icicles were hanging from some of the trees. The apple blossoms were frozen and some of the leaves on the lilac bushes were quite crisp. In the evening snow began to fall and continued for a short time.

Papers Saved
A steady watch is being kept at the charred ruins where the fire was early Saturday morning. Nothing remains to be seen of the buildings, that once stood on Water Street only the damaged machinery and burnt peces of wood are visible. IN MEMORIAM
CROUTER—In loving memory of our dear son, Wesley Crouter, who was killed May 26th, 1915.
Ten years have gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home
On earth with Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we place upon his grave
May wither and decay;
But the love for him who sleeps beneath
Shall never fade away.
—Sadly missed by mother, father and son, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crouters and Earl.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of Mrs. Mary Burke, of Downer's Corners, Peterborough, who passed away 25th May, 1924:
Our mother dear who passed away
From earth to dwell in heaven,
The summons came, she could not stay,
Our earthly ties are riven.
Our family group is broken now,
One vacant chair is there,
An empty place at our repast
Gives grief that we must bear.
Her smile, it always cheered our way
And made our burden light.
A shade has grown o'er the day
Since she left our sight.

SALVATION ARMY TAG DAY RESULT

Bad Weather Gave Taggers Poor Results For Their Discomfort.

The Salvation Army taggers were unfortunate in the choice of a day for their drive for funds in connection with their Self-Denial campaign. Saturday was a mean day for such an effort, but the steadfast workers in their blue uniforms who braved the inclement weather for long hours were living examples of the self-denial practised by themselves in a good cause. The sum of $335 was realized during the day.

Rummage Sale Wednesday.

When the doors open at 9 a.m. Wednesday, the ladies of Peterboro and vicinity will be greatly amazed. The values at the Art Silk Co.'s Rummage Sale will be phenomenal. Mr. Caldwell says, "Never in my history have I had the wonderful opportunity of offering such values to the ladies of Peterboro. One lady remarked Saturday, 'What are you going to sell, Mr. Caldwell.' 'Now, Madam, that would be telling. You just be here when the doors open Wednesday and take your choice of these values, and you will never regret it. You know the old proverb, Madam, so often repeated, 'The early bird catches the worm.' So be with the early ones and share in these wonderful values.

REVALUATION OF LANDS HELD BY SOLDIERS URGED IN ADDITION TO PROPOSED REDUCTION ON STOCK

Western Members of House Say Soldiers Bought Land Above Actual Value.

SOME ABANDONED.

Slash in Debt For Stock Regarded as Too Low By Progressives.

OTTAWA, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—A resolution was proposed in the House Tuesday for the revaluation of livestock held by soldier settlers under the Soldiers' Settlement Act, prior to the 1st day of October, 1920.

The resolution states that settlers who have not repaid their indebtedness to the Soldiers' Settlement Board, and who are still on their land, shall be credited with an amount in reduction of their indebtedness to be determined as follows:

Forty per cent. of the purchase price of all livestock advanced to the settler and purchased prior to the first day of October, 1920;

Twenty per cent. of the purchase price of all livestock advanced to the settler and purchased on or after the first day of October, 1920, and prior to the first day of October, 1921.

J. H. Harris (Conservative, York East) stated that there seemed to have been no attention paid by the Government to the question of relief in respect to the excessive cost of chattels to the soldier settlers. Mr. Harris instanced one case where a soldier had paid $250 for a bay mare, ten years old, and $35 for twenty-five hens. He thought that livestock at this price was rather expensive, and asked what was the policy of the Government in regard to affording relief in such cases.

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, stated in reply that he would have the case of the soldier settler particularly referred to by Mr. Harris looked into, but that "no further legislation is in view in regard to this matter."

A. W. Neill (Independent, Comox Alberni) regretted that the reduction in the purchase price of livestock had been fixed at forty per cent. instead of sixty per cent., as originally recommended in regard to purchases prior to October 1, 1920.

Urged Larger Reductions.

Mr. Neill was also of the opinion that the reduction in the purchase price of livestock advanced to the settler, and purchased after October 1, 1920 and prior to October 1, 1921, should not be fixed at twenty per cent. instead of forty per cent. He was of the opinion that larger reductions in each instance were to take effect.

E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River) also was of the opinion that the larger reductions of sixty and forty per cent. instead of forty and twenty should come into effect. He also believed that there were certain sections of the country in which it was not only necessary but imperative, that a revaluation of soldier settlement lands and equipment should be made.

Mr. Garland read a letter from a returned soldier in his constituency, asking that steps be taken to have

G.W.V.A. Likely To Refuse Expenditure Particulars

OTTAWA, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—The assertion that it was extremely doubtful if a detailed statement of all specific items of expenditure would be furnished by the Dominion Command of the Great War Veterans' Association, regarding monies received from canteen funds, marked the enquiry of the special committee of the Senate this morning into the administration of canteen and disablement funds, the uses to which the advances from these sources have been put and the sale and manufacture of paper poppies. The payment of $25,000 by the G.W.V.A. for stock in the Veteran newspaper, and a further payment of $8,000 for subscriptions to the Veteran also came under discussion.

BOMB PLOTTERS HANGED TO-DAY

Three Men Paid Penalty For Crime in Sofia Cathedral.

PUBLIC HANGING.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 27 (Canadian Press)—Three of the leaders in the recent bombing of the Sveti Kral Cathedral in which 160 persons were killed, were hanged here today. The men executed were Zadgorsky, custodian of the Cathedral, Friedman and Koeff.

The men were hanged in the public square just behind the Jewish cemetery. Troops formed lines around the execution place and thousands of persons witnessed the hanging.

Three more persons have been sentenced to death for their connection with the cathedral plot.

Half an hour before the men were hanged their sentences of death were formally read. Koeff mounted the scaffold first and the gypsy executioner adjusted the noose around his neck.

Zadgorsky came second, tottering up the steps with difficulty.

Friedman, last to mount the scaffold, approached the hangman with courage and with his head held proudly erect.

Restoring Crown's Appeal Right In Criminal Cases

OTTAWA, Ont., May 24.— The right of the Crown to appeal in criminal cases will be restored if amendments to the criminal code, introduced Tuesday by the Minister of Justice, are made law. Hon. Ernest Lapointe explained that the bill "gives the Attorney General the right to appeal which was taken away some years ago, in the amendments which were enacted giving the prisoner the right to appeal which he did not formerly possess. That amendment gave the right of appeal to the prisoner, and parliament took away the right from the Crown which it had before that time. This is to restore the right of the Crown to appeal."

FORM DEMANDS UPON GERMANY

Britain and France Will Send Note on Disarmament Under Treaty.

NO EVACUATION.

LONDON, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—It was understood here today that the British and French Governments have reached an agreement regarding the demands they will incorporate in their note to Germany concerning her disarmament under the Treaty of Versailles. The note may be sent to Germany soon after the meeting at Paris on Friday of the Reparations Commission. It is reported that this meeting will formally signify that Germany has carried out her financial obligations under the Dawes plan.

What bearing the statement of the Reparations Commission will have on the evacuation of the Cologne area is problematical, but it is stated authoritatively that the evacuation is unlikely until Germany has carried out both her financial obligations and those regarding disarmament.

WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO CRASH LEAVING CITY

Party Left Mt. Julian on the Way to Homes in the Toronto District.

TWO ARRESTED.

Mrs. Mary Smith Died in Hospital— Car Driven By a Boy.

BOWMANVILLE May 27 (Canadian Press)—Mrs. Mary Smith, aged 64, of Toronto, died in the hospital here last night as the result of injuries received in an auto crash near here shortly after midnight on Monday. She was one of a party of five returning to Toronto on the Kingston Highway from a week-end stay near Peterboro. The touring car, driven by fifteen year old James Harry Jones, Toronto, to avoid an approaching rig swerved into a bridge abutment, throwing the occupants out. The other passengers escaped with slight cuts and bruises.

At Mount Julian

The party, consisting of James Jones and his son Harry, of 78 Dagmar Avenue, Toronto; Hilda Jones, a daughter, aged 22; Mrs. T. M. Robinson, a daughter-in-law(and Mrs. Mary Smith, a sister-in-law was returning home from Mount Julian, a village east of Peterboro', with Harry Jones at the wheel. When nearing the bridge over Wilmott's Creek, at Newcastle, the driver lost control and the car crashed into the abutment of the bridge with considerable force.

The automobile is a total wreck with the rear wheels smashed off and the other exposed parts of the car clearly show the tremendous impact of the collision.

Dr. T. C. D. Bell of Bowmanville was summoned and attended to the needs of the injured people. Mrs. Mary Smith was removed to the hospital at Bowmanville and medical aid was present during the rest of the night and yesterday. She died last night without regaining consciousness.

The other members of the party sustained minor injuries, but up to the present time no serious complications have developed.

Two Arrested

Following directly in the course of the unfortunate car was Provincial Constable H. Walker, who placed James Jones and his young son under arrest.

The party was returning from a family reunion of six sisters at the home of Mrs. William Northey of Burleigh, Stony Lake, where they had spent the week-end.

Word of the accident was communicated to Mrs. Smith's family of four sons and three daughters, who all reside in the Riverdale district, Toronto. They are: George E., 72 Newmarket Avenue; Colin J., Stanley, Clifton M., Mrs. Herbert Hunney, Mrs. Harry Wimpeny and Miss Elva Smith.

Jury's Verdict Attacked Because One Juror Deaf

OTTAWA, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Whether a jury, one member of which was deaf, could bring in a legal verdict, was argued in the Supreme Court of Canada Tuesday. On the case of one Boak, the Court of Appeal of British Columbia ruled that his trial, at which he was found guilty of manslaughter, having caused the death of two persons while driving his automobile, must be re-heard because one of the jurors at the trial was said to be absolutely deaf. The Crown brings to the Supreme Court an appeal against the ruling of the Provincial Court of Appeal. The argument of the Crown was heard yesterday and judgment was reserved. No counsel appeared for the respondent.

NEW YORK, May 27. — To-day is the sixth day since the Amundsen-Ellsworth polar flying expedition hopped off for the north, and the whereabouts and welfare of the six adventures remain as much of a mystery as ever.

There is much discussion about relief measures but Amundsen's friends in Norway declare this talk is premature.

The latest news from Oslo is that the weather at Kingsbay was more favorable last night than for some hours before.

TWO MEN FINED IN LIQUOR CASE

Magistrate O. A. Langley Clears Up Identity of the Accused.

ONE FINE PAID.

Two Men Fined—C .. ..

At County Court which was held at 2.30 yesterday Magistrate O. A. Langley imposed a fine of $100.00 and costs on J. Brickenow and his brother-in-law Ozias de La Plante, who were charged with having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling.

Geo. W. Hatton, K.C., appeared for the prosecution and J. F. Strickand for the defence.

Magistrate Langley dwelt on the unfortunate circumstance connected with the case wherein a prominent citizen of this city was confused with one of the accused who bears a similar name.

"It was a most regrettable incident," the magistrate said, "and one which might result in considerable trouble to innocent parties."

Brickenow paid the stipuated fine while La Plante who is said to be a traveller from Montreal was confined pending the payment of the required sum.

Suspended Sentence

Two young girls appeared before the court charged with vagrancy. Magistrate Langley administered an admonition and warning as to the certain consequence of misbehaviour and allowed them to go on suspended sentence.

EXPECT SPLIT AMONG STATES' PRESBYTERIANS

Definite Break in the Church Is Imminent, Say Modernists.

VIRGIN BIRTH.

New York Presbytery Must Keep Law and Order of Church.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—A definite break in the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America is imminent, modernists in the denomination's general assembly in session here declared to-day. The split will come a representative of a decidedly liberal Presbytery said, if the various presbyteries uphold the action of the assembly yesterday in voting that a literal acceptance of the virgin birth is a necessary qualification of anyone who enters its ministry. While the modernists made clear their position in this regard to-day, ultra fundamentalists asserted that "the law and authority of the Church will be upheld," if the New York Presbytery continues to license ministers who do not accept in full all the creedal and doctrinal beliefs of the Church.

A protest against the ruling of the Judicial Commission yesterday in holding that the New York Presbytery went against the law of the Church in licensing ministers to preach who could not affirm their belief in the virgin birth, was formally presented to the Assembly to-day.

POLICE TO HAVE NEW TELEPHONE

Present Line Is Overloaded With Hundreds of Calls a Day.

NO TRAFFIC SIGNAL.

At the meeting of the Police Commission yesterday afternoon it was reported by Mayor Turner that arrangements had been made to have another telephone line connected to the Police Station, with a buzzer and key system, as recommended by the Bell Telephone Company. At the previous meeting of the Commission the Bell Telephone Company reported that the one line was overloaded and that a considerable number of busy calls were reported.

New telephones will be installed in the residences of Detective Carey and Inspector Reid.

The Mayor recommended a traffic signal he and the Chief had inspected in Toronto, but action was laid over.

Chief Newhall was given leave of absence to attend the Police Chiefs' Convention, held in Winnipeg this year, and the City Treasurer was authorized to pay him $200, which had been put in the police estimates for his expenses.

There were present His Honor Judge Huycke (chairman) and Mayor Turner.

The proposed plan has the approval of the Ontario Government and the University.

Time For Compensating Cattle Owners Extended

OTTAWA, May 27. — (Canadian Press.)—A section of the Animal Contagious Disease Act will be amended by extending the time during which the owners of animals slaughtered on account of disease may receive compensation, when a bill introduced in the House of Commons Tuesday, becomes law.

The bill was given first reading yesterday.

The Minister of Agriculture explained that two-thirds of the market value was piad to the owners of animals which were slaughtered on account of being diseased. About $600,000 was paid out for this purpose last year, but under the Act as it stands, the payment of compensation would terminate on July 1.

BANK DEBITS IN APRIL INCREASE

Debits to Individual Accounts 11.2 P.C. More Than in March.

HEAVY CLEARINGS.

OTTAWA, May 27.—(Canadian Press.)—The bank debits to individual accounts as reported to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics by the Canadian Bankers' Association, in April, were $2,229,135,033, which represents an increase of 11.2 p.c. over March and 9.8 p.c. over April 1, 1924. When adjustment is made for seasonal variation according to the experience with bank clearings during the last ten years, the increase over the bank debits of March last would still amount to 5.8 p.c.

The clearings in the 30 clearing house centres of Canada during April were $1,278,773,239, an increase of 7 p.c. over March and 1 p.c. over the clearings of April, 1924. Bank amalgamations, necessarily restricting inter-bank transactions, have in recent years seriously interfered with the comparability of clearing statistics, there being only 12 chartered banks in April 1925 as against 15 in April, 1924.

Another Pleads In Vain That 4.4 Made Him Drunk

TORONTO, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—When Morris Kelly appeared in court this morning on a charge of drunkenness he informed Magistrate Cohen that his condition was due to an excessive quantity of 4.4 beer. The Magistrate seemed surprised at the plea and asked the accused to repeat it. "Very well then, you will pay $25 and costs or go to jail for three months," said the Court.

JURY ACCEPTED WOMAN'S STORY OF MAN'S DEATH

Returned Verdict of Suicide in Shooting of Ernest Stockham, Montreal.

COUPLE RELEASED.

Witnesses Said Former British Guardsman Had Declared Intention of Killing Himself.

MONTREAL, May 27—(Canadian Press).—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Reay, of Lasalle Road, Verdun, were released last evening, following the rendering of a verdict of suicide by a coroner's jury yesterday in the case of Ernest Stockham, ex-British Guardsman, who was found dead early Sunday morning, May 17, in the rear of Reay's home, with a bullet in his head. Mr. and Mrs. Reay had been out on $10,000 bail.

The evidence of two witnesses showed that the deceased had spoken of committing suicide on the after noon preceding the tragedy.

Mrs. Reay, who in her evidence at the previous session of the inquest described her relations with Stockham from the time she met him in Halifax, again took the stand. She swore that on Saturday night she had had an appointment with the deceased but had not kept it. He had telephoned and said he was coming to visit her, as was his custom on Saturday evenings. Witness swore she had told him not to come, but he insisted.

Shortly after she had left her home to make some purchases, and on her return found Stockham had arrived. He had thrown the furniture in disorder. Stockham later aided her to tidy things up.

Witness said she knew the deceased had taken her husband's revolver, but she had made no attempt to take it away from him, fearing his superior strength.

Questioned as to whether Stockham had ever taken the revolver before, Mrs. Reay testified that he had taken it from her husband's drawer about three years ago.

Mrs. Reay then described Stockham leaving her home about 11.30 at night, threatening to do away with himself. He had returned some time later, coming to her bedroom window. She had put her hands through the shutter of the window, so that he could kiss them, she swore; then he shot himself.

THE CONTEST CLOSES MONDAY, JUNE 1ST.

Miss Pearson Wins To-day's Prize.

The Ticket Selling Contest is rolling to a close. Monday, June 1st sees the Opening Day of the Fair and also sees the end of the contest. All votes must be turned in to Mr. Allen's office before four o'clock in the afternoon. The contest has been spirited and no one can tell as yet who the winners of the first three prizes will be. The offer of Mr. Crowe, the manager of the Capitol Theatre, still stands that he will give a month's pass to every girl that has at least 100,000 votes to her credit. There are many on the list who can qualify for that number between now and Monday afternoon.

Miss Pearson wins the three pairs of silk hose for turning in the largest number of votes between yesterday morning and this morning at ten o'clock. Prizes are coming thick and fast. Mr. W. J. Kent, the well-known druggist, has offered an expensive quart size Thermos Bottle to the girl who turns in the most votes between ten o'clock this morning and ten o'clock Friday morning. Of course, it is impossible for all to win prizes, but everyone is interested in the standing of the several contestants and this column is the first one in the paper to which many people turn. If you can't win a prize you can always try to have your standing at the close of the contest as high as possible, and remember that the public in general and the Health Association in particular, appreciate the efforts that all are putting forth.

The standing today is as follows:

Arleigh McKone	156,000	Marita Collins	19,600
Trucie Pearson	142,000	Eva Fife	17,000

CONVERSION IS ONLY ONE STEP

Is But Enlisting in the Race —Rev. Mr. Ferguson's Millbrook Sermon.

LIFE'S INVESTMENT.

MILLBROOK, May 27.—"The long, white ribbon over the centuries is the living way of Christ. New groups are being continually added to the travellers along this way as Christ draws men to the Father."

The growth and progress incident to the church, and to the individual Christian, was the theme of the sermon preached by the Moderator of the Peterborough Presbytery, Rev. Mr. Ferguson, of Baltimore, in Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening.

The text was chosen from the familiar words in St. John 14, 6: "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life; no man cometh unto the Father but by Me." Three pictures are before the mind from the last clause of the verse—Man, Father, and Me—the seeking man, coming to the waiting Father, through the Mediator, Christ Jesus.

"I am the Way," speaks of advance, each for himself, from some one place to some other place, for this life is not a fixed thing, but must be a road of progress. Man improves as he advances, if he keeps on the Way, and the beauty of it all is, though he is liable to fall, and does fall, yet the homing instinct keeps him on his road to his lasting abiding place with the Father.

Fiftieth Anniversary.

Though no specific mention was made of the fact that the fiftieth anniversary of Presbyterianism in Canada was in the speaker's mind when preparing his discourse, it was yet evident when, in referring to progress as an "ever-growing, Divine adventue," he added, "This applies to the church whose motto must always be, Forward. The church is lured from her Lord, and stopped on her onward way, if she becomes separated from the advancing Christ."

'Cometh" brings an atmosphere of expectancy—it has the right ring about it, and smacks of the spirit of progression and growth."

"I am the Truth," and all the way in Christ we are learning more of Him, and advancing farther, and farther into truth. It is a way rich and varied, leading us ever into more glorious countries, and the nearer we come to the Heavenly city the more wonderful appears the truth of God.

Because Christ is advancing, the Truth must be a growing knowledge and we are not afraid to venture with Him as guide, because there are neither mistakes, disasters, nor failure, if we keep close to our Pilot who is the Way, and the Truth.

Life? Naturally there is growth where there is life, and He imparts to us something of His spiritual stature as He is ever breathing into us the breath of life.

Conversion Only a Step.

"How much has your spiritual stature increased since the day you began to follow Him? There can be no greater mistake than to tell the beginner in the way of life that conversion is all that is necessary—it is but the initial step of enlisting—the race is all ahead.

Christ is a mighty reservoir of wisdom and power, and His life overflowing into ours will fill it to the brim, then men will see and know, by our fruits, that we have His life breathing through ours, and give glory to His Name.

Why should any be spiritually dead, ignorant, and homeless, when Christ is the Way, the Truth, and the Life? He is an unfailing source of vitality, and with His life flowing in, and through His people, and His church, errors will be corrected, diseases healed, strength and vigor increased and assured.

"Human life is a continual expenditue, and only as we live by faith is it turned into a continual investment."

New Beer Arrives.

J. Crocker, of the Queen's Hotel, has received his permit to sell the new 4.4 beer, but as yet none of the beer itself has been received in the village. J. W. Hutchison, of the Commercial House, had his permit earlier in the week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Burnham and daughter, Dorothy, Mrs. Lightheart, and Miss Wilhelmine Lightheart of Peterborough, were guests of his mother, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, for a brief visit on Monday evening, on their way from Toronto, where they had motored to spend the holiday week-end.

SOVIET MUST PROVIDE HORSES

Must Retain Confidence of Peasants Who Elect Non-Communists.

FEAR CAPITALISM.

(By William Chamberlain, United Press Moscow Correspondent.)

MOSCOW, May 27. — The Soviet must give horses to the peasants, 40 per cent. of whom have none and must proceed with the electrification of the land if it wishes to avoid a return to capitalism, according to Commissair Zinovieff.

His warning was contained in a recent speech before the Soviet congress made public to-day, which showed that as a result of more liberal village elections, some Soviets devoid of Communists, had been chosen.

Zinovieff declared that the Communists must work hard to retain the confidence of the peasants, and he recommended among other measures that the government provide work for the unemployed village dwellers.

YOUTHS FOUND IN CAR WRECK

Truck Wrecked on George Street This Morning—Police Investigate.

REMAND GIVEN.

Two youths were found by the police at six o'clock this morning lolling in the remains of a wrecked truck, the property of James MacPherson, which figured in the store-window smash up on McDonnel St., two weeks ago.

The magistrate remanded them until to-morrow, as he said that they were not in a fit condition this morning to stand trial.

The truck was driven from the south end early this morning, the police say, and at or about MacDonald's lumber yard one tire was thrown off and to date has not yet been found. The other tire and rim were found at Argyle and Water streets.

The car travelled a considerable distance propelled by the one rear wheel while the right rear corner dragged on the brake band.

Earlier there must have been a severe crash as the radiator and hood were badly hent, the windshield and one lamp glass were completly demolished.

The two youths were found in a dazed condition, and MacPherson was found at 10.30 when he was conducted to the police station to await investigation of the accident.

PLAY REPEATED.

All Saints' Dramatic Club Gave Performance For Young Britons.

The play "The Stubborn Motor Car," was repeated last night in Victoria hall, under the auspices of the Orange Young Britons. An appreciative audience enjoyed the fine performance given by the members of All Saints' Dramatic Club who have drawn large audiences to their play.

The parts were, as usual, well taken, and the staging was perfect. All Saints' Sunday school orchestra, led by Mr. Breadman, provided music between the acts, which was much enjoyed.

ONTARIO PROHIBITION UNION, AT WARKWORTH CONVENTION DECIDE TO SUPPORT ONLY SUCH CANDIDATES AS WILL PLEDGE THEIR VOTES

Will Demand Promise of Vote From Municipal Candidates as Well.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Many Delegates Present and Officers Appointed For Each Township.

(By a Staff Reporter) .. ..

WARKWORTH, May 27 — The temperance hat has been thrown into the political ring and the fight against the Ferguson beer and the Conservative Government's alleged breach of faith with the people is on. The members of the East Northumberland branch of the Ontario Prohibition Union, which was organized here on May 9th, at their first business session held yesterday afternoon went on record as in favor of political action which will guarantee support only to those candidates who will pledge themselves to work and vote for prohiibtion if elected.

Municipal Condition, Too

This pledge is to be exacted from municipal as well as legislative and parliamentary aspirants. The reason given for carrying the fight into civic affairs is that so many town and township councillors have their eye on the wardenship of their county as a preliminary step to election to legislature or parliament. Ontario legislators have in their hands the making or unmaking of provincial prohibition laws. The goal of the temperance forces is Dominion wide prohibition but before this object can be attained members of Parliament favorable to the cause must be elected.

Profession Not Enough

It is not sufficient for a candidate to be a prohibitionist in theory only. They must be known as personal advertiser, practical supporters of the principles insisted upon by his supporters. In a word in order to pass the test it is necessary that he shall have established in the community a reputation as a total abstainer.

All these conditions are clearly set forth on a card which every member of the Prohibition Union is required to sign and for such membership the nominal fee of 25 cents a year is charged.

There were nearly 6000 men and women who voted for the preservation of the Ontario Temperance Act in the plebiscite last fall and the aim now is to have every one of these join the Union. If this object is attained and all the members remain true to their pledges in nominating convention election, none but a bone dry prohibitionist will have a show in the political arena, no matter to what party he may belong.

The Session Opens.

The town hall here was comfortably filled at 2.30 yesterday afternoon, every municipality in the old riding being represented, when Rev. J. S. I. Wilson of Brighton called the meeting to order. G. F. Little of Brighton Township, who is secretary read from the minute book the story of the meeting of the executive of which the union was organized.

President Wilson made a short address in which he explained that the meeting was necessary in order to combat the action of the government in amending the Temperance Act after the people had voted for its preservation.

Rev. Ben Spence.

The outstanding figure of the meeting was Rev. Ben Spence of Toronto, who conducted a round table conference, answering a number of questions put to him by members of the audience, and in not one of these queries was any hostility manifest, the object of the questioneer apparently being solely to acquire information.

"We are now," said Mr. Spence, when he had been introduced, "in much the same position as the little girl who explained why she fell out of bed by saying that she had gone to sleep too near the place where she had lain down.

"We temperance people have gone to sleep too near the place where we started but we are awake now. The government has put more kick in the beer and in the prohibitionists as well. You can hardly realize the the political atrocity that has been committed in this province."

New Beer Intoxicating.

Asked if in his opinion the new beer is intoxicating, Mr. Spence said that that depended on the individual drinker. The average man could not drink enough of it, to get drunk, but became intoxicated. He explained the difference in the two conditions by saying that a man was drunk when overcome by liquor, and intoxicated when he had absorbed enough alcohol to make him act differently from what he would if he had taken none.

Drawing a small bottle from his hip pocket, Mr. Spence displayed about four ounces of a liquid which resembled rye whiskey, but which he assured the audience was only colored water.

"That much whiskey," he continued, "about two jolts, or snorts or swigs, whatever you like to call it, would intoxicate the average man. A quart of the new beer contains just the same amount of alcohol as that much pure whiskey. I believe the 4.4 is pretty flat stuff, but the beer atmosphere has been esablished again in our cities, towns and villiges."

The new beer, he said, in reply to another question, instead of putting the bootlegger out of business is worth a million dollars to him. The man who drinks the beer and fails to feel a kick will go to the bootlegger for stronger stuff.

The new beer is the brewers' proposition. Men will drink large quantities of it to find the kick, so that the brewers' output will be larger. The brewers have formed a dangerous political combination.

The Moderation League, Mr. Spence said, regard the 4.4 as a good start towards their goal—the overthrow of prohibition.

The speaker said that while the Ontario Government has a large majority in the House it holds power by a minority of 37,800 of the popular vote. In the recent plebiscite the temperance people polled 58,665 more votes than the total poll by all the elected or defeated Conservative candidates combined in the election of 1923. The prohibitions are not obliged to take anything from the Government.

If the beer is as harmless as Premier Ferguson says it is it could be sold in a church without restriction and it would not be necessary to bar boys under 18 from using it.

The following is a list of the president and secretary in each of the municipalities in East Northumberland, that of the president being given first:

Millinery Display

The local milliners held their summer openings on Saturday, May 23rd, and despite the rather unfavorable weather, they were well attended. The milinery parlours were most inviting, being charmingly decorated with apple blossoms, spring flowers, shaded lights and the hats, dainty and summery, were the smartest and latest models. They were leghorns, braids, crepes and velvets mixed and flower trimmed, with touches of gold and very stylish hand painted models. The summer models favour the larger brims and while the bright colours were much in evidence, pale greens, golds and whites were much favoured. Hats quite as smart as might be found in any city parlour were displayed to suit the tastes of the most fastidious.

On Friday evening when the two little children, Verna and Doris, of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sampson, Garry street ,were playing near their home the younger child attempted to cross the street. Seeing a car without lights approaching, which was driven by Mr. E. McNutt, the older child attempted to rush after her sister and bring her to safety. Both were knocked down, the younger child being cut about the head. Medical aid was procured and the little tot is doing nicely.

JAPS WILL EAT TO GAIN STATURE

Have Been Fish Eating Race For Ages, Says Scientist.

FRESNO, Calif., May 27.—(United Press).—Japan is dissatisfied with the short stature of its men and proposes to add inches to the height of Japanese by converting them into a meat-eating race. Dr. Issa Tanimura was here yesterday, en route to Washington to confer with Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce. Dr. Tanimura's mission in this country is to study the beef and corn production so that he may return to Japan and introduce new methods of eating.

"The Japanese for ages have been eaters of rice and raw fish," he said.

"It is because of religious beliefs taught by the Buddhists who believe that all four-legged animals are unclean. This is wrong. Religion has taken inches off Japanese. We want our men to be tall like the rest of the world."

RATE STRUCK AT 47 MILLS FOR CAMPBELLFORD

Tax Rate is Six Mills Higher Than Last Year's Impost.

CONFER WITH BOARD.

Council Obtained Decrease of $1,500 in Demand of School Trustees.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 27. — Campbellford's tax rate this year will be 47 mills, that figure having been decided upon at a special meeting of the Council held Tuesday night. This is an increase of six mills over the rate of 1924, and is four mills higher than it was in 1923. The total amount to be raised is about $65,000.

The members of the Council present last night were: Mayor Meyers, Reeve Davidson, and Councillors Kingston, Abernethy, Cole and Moore.

The members of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education, consisting of George O'Sullivan (chairman), D. W. Douglas and Dr. H. B. Longmore, with Wesley Stephens, secretary-treasurer of the Board, met in conference with the councillors. The Board had asked for an appropriation nearly $6,000 in excess of that of last year, and the object of the conference was to endeavor to reduce this amount.

Finally a reduction of $1,500 was made in the Board's estimates, and when this was done the rate was struck.

WHISPERS.

"Believe me, it pays to advertise—especially with your children. Did you ever contemplate trying to sell yourself to them?

"Why not make as much effort to ingratiate yourself with your children as you would with a stranger? Why not try to impress your children with your ability, your wisdom, your up-to-dateness as you would any man or woman with whom you are trying to do business?

"If parents could only convince their children that they are not back numbers and kill-joys, it would do more than any other one thing to improve the family relationship."

FRENCH FORCES RETREAT FROM BIBANE HEIGHTS

Small Body of Troops Retired in Hand-to-hand Struggle With Moors.

ABANDON OUTPOSTS.

Feared That Aggressive Attack on Fez Would Find Open Road.

PARIS, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—Bibane Heights, north of the Ouergha River, have been lost to the French Army in Morocco in a fight with the surrounding tribesmen.

Bibane, occupied several days ago, was left in command of Lieut.-Col. Feral. The surrounding tribesmen assumed such a menacing attitude that he decided that he had better retreat to the main column of General Colombat's army, which had taken the heights. Immediately, the tribesmen fell on his command, riding in on him from all sides until his troops were in a hand-to-hand battle and were compelled to keep up a running fight for hours—until what men remained alive rejoined the main column, leaving the rebellious tribesmen in triumph and possession of the heights. The aggressive attitude among the rebellious tribes and the Riffians who are supporting them indicates a new drive towards Fez, and the recent encounters arouse fears that the road to Fez is less surely guarded than had been believed.

The abandonment of six small outposts on the left bank of the Ouergha, which was officially announced, also is disturbing opinion.

MISSING DOCTOR KEPT TOY SHOP

Dr. Hastings Disappeared From Pittsburgh Hospital in 1920.

FOUND IN ERIE.

ERIE, Pa., May 27.—(Canadian Press).—For five years John Hugh, known in years past to the medical world as Dr. Charles F. Hastings, has collected curios and repaired toys in a small shop here.

The children who brought broken dolls to be mended took an instant liking to the soft spoken, mild mannered, bearded man who told them fairy stories as he repaired their playthings.

Mothers often stopped to chat with him and to inspect his curio collection.

John Hugh on Monday threw off the mask he has worn for five years and admitted that he is Dr. Hastings, who disappeared suddenly in 1920 from the Homeopathic Hospital in Pittsburg. His "disappearance" he revealed was due to his desire to start anew a life that included seven years spent as an inmate of insane asylums.

The disclosure was made to a newspaper man, Major Thomas G. Sterrett, who has been seeking Dr. Hastings as heir to $50,000 left by his mother, Mrs. Caroline F. Hastings of New York City, who died May 7 in Ithaca, N. Y.

BLOSSOM WEEK VANDALS.

Last week was Blossom Week in the Niagara fruit belt—the cold weather kept Eastern Ontario from celebrating with the more temperate Western zone—and thousands of motorists visited the district to view the magnificent panorama of thousands of fruit trees in blossom.

Unfortunately, many of them were not satisfied with merely viewing the scene; they had to carry back souvenirs in the shape of branches broken from the apple and peach trees.

The Examiner wonders sometimes at the apparent unconcern of many urban residents toward their neighbors in the country.

Suppose the shoe was on the other foot?

The consternation of a resident of Belmont avenue, for example, can be imagined were a car containing a group of country visitors to pull up in front of his home while some of the party calmly proceeded to pick a large bouquet of Mr. Urbanite's choice tulips to carry back as a souvenir.

Such conduct would not be a bit worse than that of hundreds of city people who have no compunction about damaging fruit trees and carrying off the blossoms.

There are too many urban folks who seem to think that a farmer's land is common property.

FLYING THE FLAG.

In the House of Commons on Monday the absence of flags from some of the Government buildings in the capital in commemoration of Empire Day was criticized by Mr. L. J. Ladner, the member for Vancouver South.

Mr. Ladner was quite justified in bringing the matter to the attention of the House.

The Government should supply a lead in this question of flying the national flag, for as a people we all painfully deficient in giving outward expression to our feelings of patriotism.

How many flags were displayed in Peterboro, for instance, on the holiday?

Certainly not enough to make their presence noticeable.

This city, of course, is not the only offender in this respect.

In the course of a motor trip through a section of Eastern Ontario on Monday the absence of flags in the villages and towns was striking.

There was one outstanding exception.

Trenton was a blaze of colour.

On the main street Union Jacks were displayed on poles set into the pavement on both sides of the street, while from upper windows other flags caught the eye.

The majority of the residences seen were also decorated with the Union Jack or the Red Ensign.

The effect of the display was impressive.

Trenton may not be a whit more patriotic at heart than Cobourg, or Port Hope or Colborne or Belleville or Peterboro for that matter, but when it comes to a question of letting the world know that it honours the Empire and the anniversary of the birthday of a beloved sovereign, the town at the mouth of the Trent stands alone.

At least, it did on Monday.

PUBLIC RECREATION.

A satisfactory development in the arena of municipal government in this country is the fact that in 1924 the money invested by municipalities in public recreation was just three times as great as was made for the same purpose ten years ago.

Some short-sighted citizens may object to this growth being regarded as satisfactory.

The Examiner uses the description "short-sighted" advisedly, inasmuch as it feels that those who only see the larger expenditure are missing the real saving that is represented by the development of healthier young citizens who are too busy in taking advantage of the recreational facilities provided to get into trouble.

Expenditure on public recreation is a gilt-edged investment, and the city of Toronto, which is setting the pace for Canada along this line, has no hesitation in saying so.

Toronto's playgrounds are perhaps unequalled on the Continent.

With a park area available of thousands of thousands of acres, the demand for accommodation is so great that double the space could be utilized.

The Queen City actually supplies its citizens with 67 baseball diamonds, 240 tennis courts, 39 football cushions and 129 bowling rinks, and all of these are taken up six days a week.

Does any one really believe that the health dividends earned by the expenditure of these facilities are not large enough to amply justify the expenditure.

Better parks than pills; better baseball diamonds than juvenile courts; better facilities that keep people outside than facilities that keep them inside—in jails or hospitals.

THE DETOUR NUISANCE.

In this section of Ontario the detour nuisance is with us again, and will doubtless have to be endured by motorists throughout the summer with paving operations going on on various sections of the Kingston road both east and west of Port Hope.

In one sense, of course, detours should be welcome—they are a sign of progress.

They indicate that permanent roads are replacing the inferior surface that has failed to stand up to the pressure of the traffic of today.

But it sometimes seems that those who are in charge of road operations could with a little thought make conditions much more pleasing for the motoring public.

Why should Victoria Day, for example, be selected as an opportune time for commencing work east of Port Hope and thus blocking the stream of holiday traffic on a day when it was two or three times as great as usual?

Not only that, but the detour was most inadequately marked and needless confusion was caused.

There was no urgent reason why the start could not have been delayed until after the holiday, or failing that, that the detour road could not have been properly marked.

With the tourist season upon us, the Government should pay more attention to this feature of its road-making programme.

The Kingston highway carries practically all the tourist traffic entering Eastern Ontario.

If there are to be three or four detours between Oshawa and Kingston at the height of the holiday season some care should be given to seeing that the roads chosen for detour purposes are put into condition for the volume of traffic that will necessarily have to be carried by them.

Those in charge of the actual operations are satisfied as long as they get the traffic off the highway—what happens to it then seems to be nobody's concern.

But it should be—for the comfort of our own citizens and the convenience of the thousands of visitors we expect to have in Ontario this summer.

COUNTRY STORE NOT GONE YET.

The Hanover Post is inclined to agree with the view of S. L. Squire, Deputy Minister of Highways, that the extension of good roads and the increase in the number of automobiles had sounded the death knell of the country store. The Post has a word of regret: "It seems a pity that the country store appears doomed, for it is just another little community link that is being severed."

It may be a trifle premature to weep over the passing of the country store, because there are a good many of them who are doing as well as ever, says the London Advertiser. Others have passed out, yet in spite of good roads and more cars there will always be country stores, because there will always be days when the roads are not good to travel on and others when the residents of the district are too busy to leave home.

The country store served well its day and generation. Especially when it was the seat of the local postoffice it was common meeting-ground for the community. Many a full-grown man can look back now to the time after supper, when it was too dark to work longer, to the trip to the store. He can perhaps remember going when he was so small that he preferred having the hired man along with him. There may or may not have been any mail that day, but the store was open, the men and the boys from other farms were there. In front of the store was that long porch, illuminated from the coal-oil lamps in the store windows, the kind that had the reflectors behind them. Some one in the company was sure to have a mouth-organ; there was the intimate conversation of the older men—and in all it was a sort of glorified visit with a portion of the community.

But things moved on and the time came when it was decided that mail should be delivered in a box at the farmer's gate. It was a good thing, yet this good thing cancelled another good thing—the meeting of the people at the rural postoffice.

It is easy to figure out how the trend is all away from the country store, but it is a fact that the same roads that carry people from the country to the city also carry them from the city to the country.

THE 24TH WAS THE GREAT DAY.

This is the day that should have been yesterday, the 24th of May, says the London Advertiser. The boys and girls of today do not know it as the Queen's Birthday, but as Empire Day, and it's doubtful if it has anything like the definite meaning it used to possess. The 24th of May somehow used to stand up like a sore thumb. It started about 4 o'clock in the morning in front of the old blacksmith shop, and lasted until the last had left town for the night and the last skyrocket had been fired.

We give the blacksmith shop as the place where the day was officially opened, because it was there that the one great bang took place that woke the town. It was done thusly. An anvil was brought out, and the hollow in the top where the cutting tool was sometimes seated was filled with powder. On top of this was placed another anvil. Then a long rod, heated in the forge, was applied to the pocket of powder, and there was one glorious bang that shook the town. After that function was over the lesser bangs kept up as long as the limited means of the bangers lasted. Such luxuries as skyrockets belonged to the few families in the town who could afford them.

In the morning there was the calithumpian parade, in the afternoon the baseball game between our town and the next one to us on the railroad line. The town band was out in all its glory, and the youngster who couldn't work a free pass into the fair grounds carrying a baseball bat or holding one end of the bass drum was very, very slow indeed.

Then came the farmers' trot, the running race, the demonstration of our firemen with a hand-drawn hose reel, showing how fast they could work on a holiday when there wasn't any sign of a fire. Next came the giants who threw the 56-pound weight and tossed the caber, the latter requiring a man with the strength of an ox to up-end a timber about the size of a small telegraph pole. You may say it was boyish imagination that classed these men as giants—not so, because at several contests around here in recent years there was not a man on the grounds who could toss the caber.

In the evening came the grand concert in the town hall, featured by the world's greatest comedian, the world's best Scottish dancers, a tenor, imported because he could sing high C or die in the attempt, or a basso who could rumble on a low D. The singers had to do one or the other; it really did not make much difference which way they went as long as they carried out that sensational climax at either end of the vocal catalogue.

That was the old 24th of May, when 25 cents could stage a real celebration, and a dollar create something very close to a riot.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A British scientist says that girls who wear thin stockings are developing chronic indurative erythema which extends from the external malleolus upward. So that's that.

Undoubtedly it is the point in the four-point-four that causes the disappointment.

People who spent the week-end at their summer cottages are being welcomed home by their friends with the same admiration that would be shown toward the members of a polar expedition.

A man wearing a straw hat on the holiday would have run the risk of being torn to pieces by the maddened populace.

Even the holiday firecrackers sounded as if they had been touched by the frost.

Wise and Otherwise.

Dominion Tires are GOOD Tires

On the Track—Off the "Cross-ties"

Latex-treated Web Cord

is the greatest advance in tire making since the advent of cord tires.

The Latex-treated Web Cord process does away with cross-ties, the cause of friction and heat in cords. The cords, after saturation in rubber in its pure, natural liquid form (latex) are united in a perfectly uniform web.

This treatment is confined exclusively in Canada to Dominion Cord Tires. It means longer life, more mileage and greater value—without adding a copper to the price.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 26.—Unfavorable crop reports both from the northwest and southwest, together with a sharp advance at Winnipeg, turned the wheat market upgrade here today after an early decline. As a result the close for wheat was unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 2 3-4 higher, May 171 3-4 to 172 1-2, and July 163 3-8 to 163 5-8, with corn at 3-4 to 1 1-2 cents decline, and oats varying from 1-8 cent off to 1-4 higher. The outcome in provisions ranged from a setback of 12 cents to 20 cents advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 26.—Montreal exporters stated today that there was very little demand from English importers for Canadian grain in this market, and outside of sales of a few odd loads of oats, business was very quiet.

A THOUGHT.

FOLDED HANDS.

Poor, dear tired hands that toiled
so hard for me,
At rest before me now I see them lying.
They worked so hard and yet I could not see
That she was dying.

Ah, folded hands, if I could bring them back again,
The patient, cheerful drudging and
the toiling,
I could not bear to see a single stain
Their whiteness soiling.

Each day the same, the same dull weary round,
No time, no thoughts, no mind to rest a while;
Maybe you're happy now—perhaps you may have found
The time to smile.

Sunday the same as each of six until, threescore and ten,
Death comes and claims you, gives you rest.
I—not so kind—drove you thro' life to death and then
Perhaps 'twere best.

If I could only take your calloused hands in mine,
And draw you down from that bright home above,
Perhaps I'd kiss away each toil-worn line
And tell you of my love.

But would you come, dear hand and give the trial?
Take up again with me your lot?
If I should tell you that, perhaps you'd smile,
But I forgot.

What Holiday so enjoyable?

Nowhere is so much enjoyment packed into each twenty-four hours as aboard ship on an ocean voyage.

Games and exercise on spacious decks, or cosy relaxation in deck chairs with the clean sea breeze on your cheeks; meals fit for an epicure, served in a luxurious brilliant saloon; dancing to the strains of a wonderful orchestra, with a stroll between numbers to watch the moonbeams dance on the waters; cards and conversation with congenial companions; and each night, restful refreshing slumber in a comfortable berth in a spacious airy stateroom.

Why not make a trip to Europe your holiday this year? You can cross the Atlantic, visit in the Old Land for a few days, and return, all in three or four weeks. And, if you go via Anchor-Donaldson or Cunard Canadian Route you will see, as well, the beauties of the historic St. Lawrence River.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR:

GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, a struggling lawyer. Her idea of marriage is fun and fine clothes ....but no work or children.

She refuses to cook or keep house and hires RANGHILD SWANSON to do it for her, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. And she swamps Dick with debts for her clothes and a new automobile.

Gloria becomes infatuated with STANLEY WAYBURN, an out-of-work actor. Her "jazzy" friend, MAY SEYMOUR, wife of DR. JOHN SEYMOUR ,warns her not to been seen with Wayburn. She tells Gloria how she herself has been snubbed because of a foolish love affair with JIM CAREWE.

Dick becomes seriously ill with pneumonia.

Footfalls on the stairs—Ranghild to tell her that dinner was ready—brought Gloria sharply to her feet.

"Will you fix a tray for Mr. Gregory and bring it up to him?" she asked calmly, although she was sure Ranghild had seen her eavesdropping at Dick's door. "And there may be a guest for supper, too. Wait a minute and I'll le you know. . . ."

She opened the door of Dick's room and went in.

Miss Briggs had stopped talking. And she and Dick fixed their eyes on Gloria. She remembered the old verse that runs:

"Two's company,
"Three's a crrrowd."

But she smiled at Miss Briggs and asked how Dick had behaved himself all afternoon.

"Wonderfully well," Miss Briggs answered. "He slept for more than an hour."

"She read me to sleep," said Dick. "She has a voice that's as soothing as rain on a roof."

Miss Briggs blushed with pleasure.

"Oh, dear," thought Gloria, "I wonder if Dick knows how the poor thing adores him?"

Aloud she said, "Our dinner's ready, Miss Briggs. Will you come downstairs and eat with me?"

Gloria saw that Miss Briggs was going to refuse to stay. Before she could, Gloria went on:

"And then, perhaps, you'll read Dick to sleep again afterward?" she asked. "He has a hard time getting to sleep lately. And Mrs. O'Hara wants to stop giving him sleeping powders."

"Very well, I'll stay," Miss Briggs agreed stiffly.

But she turned on Dick a look of exaltation, as if she were telling him there was nothing she wouldn't do for him . . . even to eating a meal with his silly little wife!

* * *

Gloria caught the look as she went out into the hall to tell Ranghild to use the best napkins and to put on the salad forks. Then she and Miss Briggs went downstairs.

"Where can I put these?" Dick's secretary asked as they went into the dining-room. She held up a tight package of bills and letters, rolled together by a rubber band.

Gloria took them from her and laid them on the sideboard.

"Dick says you pay all my bills for him. I'm afraid you think I'm awfully extravagant," she said amiably.

Miss Briggs smiled her secret, tight-lipped smile.

"It's not part of my job to think about the bills I pay," she said primly. "I'm just a bookkeeper."

"I see," Gloria answered. "By the way, I'm getting a little surprise ready for Dick. . . . All winter long he's been planning a rose garden and vegetable garden for the back yard. Of course, he's too sick to attend to it, and I thought I'd go ahead with it myself."

She stopped and looked down at her plate thoughtfully. Then she raised her eyes candidly to Miss Briggs.

"If I do it I've got to have some money," she said. "It costs a small fortune for top-soil and rose bushes. Now, what I want to know is whether you'd let me have the money without telling Dick about it. You see I want to surprise him by having the garden all started by the time he's well."

Miss Briggs hesitated. Her blue eyes were troubled.

"I've never drawn any of Mr. Gregory's money out of the bank without asking him first," she said. "How much money would you want?"

"Two hundred dollars," Gloria said promptly. "I want to have a trellis made for the side of the garage, too. . . . There's no reason why you should not let me have the money, Miss Briggs. Dick would be spending it on the yard himself if he were up and around. I'm just going to do it for him."

Miss Briggs brightened.

"That's true," she said. "Shall I send you a check for the money, or do you want it in cash?"

"Cash," Gloria replied.

Miss Briggs buttered a piece of bread thoughtfully.

"I only want to do what's right . . . ." she murmured, as if she were thinking aloud.

After the meal was over, she went upstairs and read Dick to sleep.

Down in the living-room Gloria sat, listening to the low droning sound of her voice.

"She's the kind of woman Dick should have had for a wife," she said to herself. "If he'd had any sense he'd have married her years ago."

She drove Miss Briggs home. On the way back she went into a drug store and telephoned Stanley Wayburn.

"I'll have that money for you tomorrow, Stan," she said. "Meet me at two o'clock at the usual place."

* * *

The first thing Gloria did the next morning was to telephone Henry Moss, the gardener, who had sold Dick the dwarf evergreens that circled the house.

She told him just how she wanted the garden in the back yard laid out.

"And send your bill to me, not to Mr. Gregory," she added. "I'm fixing up the yard as a birthday present for him."

"I certainly am getting to be an artist at telling white lies!" she remarked to herself on her way downtown to Dick's office. "All I hope is that I can keep track of the fibs I've told different people."

Miss Briggs had the money ready for her. Gloria counted it . . . ten $20 bills in a white envelope.

Gloria wished she could keep the money to herself. There was a red dress in one of the stores that she would love to have; a cunning thing with a bell-shaped bodice.

Stan was waiting for her on their street corner.

"Lord, but I hate to take this!" he said, as he slipped the envelope of bills into his pocket. "But it's only a loan. I'll return it to you inside of three or four weeks."

"Yes, I'm afraid you'll have to, unless you want me to lose my happy home," Gloria answered frankly. "I got the money from Dick's secretary. And I told her I wanted it for some gardening that I'm having done. So you see, I'll have really to have the money so I can pay the bill when it comes in on the first of the month."

"Don't worry, Russet, you'll get it," Wayburn answered. There was more than a shade of sarcasm in his voice.

He took a cheap nickeled watch from his pocket and looked at it.

"I made an appointment with the tailor this morning," he said. "And I'm ten minutes late now. . . . Too bad we couldn't have spent the afternoon together. Meet me to-morrow, will you? We'll go for a hike, eh, what?"

* * *

Gloria didn't answer at once.

She had made up her mind not to see him again.

And, besides, she was angry with him for making an appointment with the tailor. He might, at least, have tried to persuade her to spend the afternoon with him, she thought!

"N-no," she began.

Wayburn laid one of his hands on her arm.

"Oh, have a heart, Russet," he pleaded. "I'm going away in a week or two. It can't hurt anybody if we see each other once in a while, can it?"

"All right," Gloria yielded. "I'll bring the car here to-morrow at this time. Would you like to drive out into the country?"

"Sure. We'll watch the grass grow, and listen to the zimwitch bird singing in the amfalula trees," Wayburn answered, nonsensically. He showed his strong white teeth in a broad grin and went.

Gloria watched him go. He carried himself with an air of engaging insolence.

"He's the best-looking man anywhere!" Gloria remarked to herself, "but I wonder if I'll ever see that $200 again!"

She didn't know what she would do if Stan failed to pay it back before Henry Moss' bill came in . . .

She walked along George Street, window-shopping as she went. The little red dress with the bell-shaped waist was still in the show-window where she had seen it a few days before.

"I think I'll go in and try it on," Gloria thought. "Of course, I can't afford it. But I'd like to see how I look in it, anyway."

She went into the store.

"There's a little dress down in the window that I'd like to try on," she told the saleswoman who came to wait on her. "A little red crepe."

The saleswoman looked at her doubtfully.

"That dress in the window is a small size," she said. "I don't believe it's big enough for you."

"Nonsense," Gloria said sharply. "I weigh only 115 pounds. I always wear misses' sizes."

* * *

She took off her own dress in the fitting-room while the saleswoman went to get the dress out of the window.

Perhaps she would buy the dress after all, if it was becoming. . . .

So long as she was going to see Stan again, she might just as well look pretty for him, she decided.

Gloria drew in her breath as the saleswoman slipped the red dress over her head, and began to fasten it down the back. It was just the least bit tight across the shoulders.

"I'm sorry, but the dress won't go around your waist," the saleswoman said, finally. She straightened up from her task of trying to pull the dress together. Her face was scarlet with the effort.

She slapped a tape measure around Gloria's waist and held it up so she could see the measurements. Gloria gasped.

"Let me try," said Gloria, impatiently. She pulled and tugged at the dress, but it simply would not go around her. At last she unbuttoned it and took it off roughly.

"Would you like to see anything else?" the saleswoman asked.

Gloria shook her head. She put on her own dress, and, carrying her hat and coat over her arm, hurried to the rest-room on the next floor.

She dropped a penny in the weighing machine that stood there, and breathlessly watched the hand swing slowly upwards.

One hundred and twenty-four pounds! . . . Oh, she couldn't weigh that much! The scales must be wrong.

On her way home, Gloria stopped at a drug store and weighed herself again. This time the scales told her that she weighed 125 pounds!

"Well, what do you know about that!" she thought, unhappily. "This is what comes of breakfasting in bed, I suppose! But I'll bet I'll lose ten pounds this next week, or know the reason why!"

PRESTON STEPS FROM STAND IN RATES HEARING

Author of Report Alleging Shipping Combine Concludes Evidence Before Committee.

THREAT OR PROMISE.

Declared That More Would Be Heard From Him on Rates Charges.

OTTAWA, May 27 (By Canadian Press)—W. T. R. Preston, author of the sensational report asserting the existence of a great shipping combine on the North Atlantic, concluded his evidence before the special Parliamentary Committee on ocean rates Tuesday afternoon. Before leaving the witness chair, he made a brief statement in regard to certain evidence given by H. M. Cleminson, general manager of the British Chamber of Shipping, a previous witness.

G. H. Montgomery, steamship counsel ,after protesting against the introduction of new evidence said he would not re-examine Mr. Preston on his statement.

:"Let him go," he said.

"Oh, you'll hear more' of him," remarked Mr. Preston as he prepared to leave.

"Is that a promise or a threat?" queried Sir Henry Drayton, as membes of the committee laughed.

"Both,' said Mr. Preston.

Questioned earlier in the afternoon by C. H. Montgomery, K.C., steamship counsel, Mr. Preston told the committee that when he went overseas to investigate the "combine" he had seen Lord Kylsant and the interests represented by Lord Inchcape.. He had seen a gentleman "introduced to me as Hr. Hughes," who represented Lord Inchcape's interests. Mr. Montgomery asked Mr. Preston in regard to the £3-10 immigant rate given the Elder-Demster line. He wished to know whether this line had been given a special bonus for carrying these immigrants. Mr. Preston said the bonus was given to the Elder Dempster line because this company performed special work as booking agents.

The witness objected to the form in which Mr. Montgomery repeated this answer. "I'm not going to let you put words into my mouth," he informed counsel. "We're going to clear things up as we go along."

Source of Information

Mr. Montgomery asked a number of questions in regard to schedules of conference rates published in Mr. Preston's report. The witness refused positively to tell counsel where he got the schedules. "You are not going to find out where I got those rates," he said. "I've had the combine on my neck for twenty years. I'm not going to put it on anyone else's neck."

Hon. H. H. Stevens asked Mr. Preston whether or not he had made his second trip to England to try to sell the Canadian Government Merchant Marine.

The witness replied in the negative.

"That would be too hard a job," he remarked.

Skipper Called

Captain John O. Merlin, of the Cairn liner "Cairnmona," now in Montreal, was next called. He stated that his boat was a first class cargo liner running at twelve knots an hour.

"Have you got your log-book with you?" asked Mr. Symington.

"I've got abstracts from it. I did not think it necessary to bring the log-book."

Mr. Symington asked the witness to send for his log so that it could be produced today.

The captain said that his boat had just come from Lisbon with a cargo of fruit and wine, the latter for the Quebec Liquor Commission. His vessel had averaged 8.9 knots an hour with an average daily coal consumption of 38 tons. By burning 42 tons a day he could reach the maximum speed of 12 knots an hour. This was north country coal. Welsh coal was ten per cent more efficient than the coal he was using. His crew numbered 44, twelve of whom were firemen.

"Have you ever seen this new style of ships—the corrugated ship?" asked Mr. Duff referring to evidence given by a previous witness. The captain replied that he had seen one but never sailed one.

"I cannot see that the corrugations would have any effect on the speed. It might make the vessel more buoyant," said witness.

William Kay, chief engineer of the Cairnmona, was called. He said that his boat had reached a speed of 13 knots an hour travelling light. 12 knots when the ship was loaded. of 12 knot when the ship was loaded.

POLAR SILENCE STILL SHROUDS AMUNDSEN'S HOP

No Word Received Up To Late Thursday Night From Arctitc Explorer.

SIX DAYS GONE.

U. S. Dirigible May Be Sent To Search For Amundsen's Planes.

NEW YORK, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—The North American Newspaper Alliance announced through the Associated Press late last night that it was still without word from the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole expedition.

It is now six days since the two planes started from King's Bay, Spitzbergen, headed for the Pole.

EUROPE'S KEEN INTEREST.

LONDON, May 27.—Not since the world waited for months in 1912, almost with baited breath, for news from the ill-fated expedition of Robert F. Scott, the British explorer, to the South Pole, has the fate of any Polar explorer excited so much speculation and interest in England as has that of the Amundsen-Ellsworth expedition, now overdue at Spitzbergen.

Throughout Continental Europe also, Amundsen's plight is the one absorbing topic of interest and anxiety. Newspaper give the greatest prominence to despatches from Spitzbergen as well as to the speculations of other explorers and of Arctic experts as to what might have happened after the party hopped off for the North Pole.

Reports from the United States that the United States Navy dirigible airships Shenandoah or Los Angeles might be pressed into service to search for the lost explorers received first page position in the newspapers and aroused the keenest interest.

So far it is the general opinion here, however, that there is no immediate cause yet for anxiety. Many Norwegian, other Scandinavian and English authorities express the opinion that it is probable the party succeeded in reaching the Pole, descended there, and that Amundsen is now awaiting favorable weather conditions before attempting to return.

Amundsen's Confidence.

Sir John Scott Keltie, for many years Secretary of the Royal Geographical Society and recognized as an authority on matters relating to the Arctic, told the Associated Press that Amundsen had the greatest confidence that there was land in the vicinity of the North Pole. Sir John said he believed that should Amundsen have found this land he undoubtedly would have descended for the purpose of making a thorough investigation.

Sir John expressed the opinion that such an attempt would be extremely hazardous, but in view of Amundsen's long record of Arctic exploration, he declared that if any explorer could land at the Pole and return safely that man was Amundsen.

In connection with the reports of proposed rescue flights by American dirigibles, the opinion was expressed in scientific circles that should there be no news of Amundsen within the next few days such a relief expedition would be of the greatest value.

It was pointed out that if Amundsen and members of the party should be forced to attempt to travel afoot on a return trip from the North Pole at this season they would be faced by great stretches of open water and floating drift ice and would have the greatest difficulty in reaching Greenland, which is the nearest land. A dirigible airship, unhampered by conditions of suface ice or water, could cover large areas of territory and easily locate the foot travellers at a long distance away, it was believed by scientists here.

LOAN COMPANY BILL HELD UP

Proposal to Force Companies to Give Notice of General Meetings.

TOO SOLICITOUS.

OTTAWA, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—A sharp division of opinion developed in the House of Commons Tuesday over the degree of responsibility the Government should assume for the operations of loan companies. Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, had introduced a bill to compel loan companies incorporated prior to 1914 to give ten days' notice of general meetings and of changes in their by-laws and similar business. The bill did not pass the committee stage.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen complained that the Department of Finance was yielding too much to representations from stock and bondholders for further protection. The Department's "paternal solicitude" for these people would in time make the Government liable for anything which might happen to the companies involved. The Government was taking too much responsibility in this matter and would get little thanks from the people who asked for it. If the inspector of loan companies was capable of really controlling all the loan companies and giving complete protection to their shareholders "he would be holding a bigger job at a bigger salary."

Mr. Robb explained that the Department had received complaints that at least one loan company had refused to give its shareholders copies of its changed by-laws and withheld such information for as much as a year. The Department thought it right and feasible to compel the submission of by-laws up to date at the time of the annual meeting at least.

W. F. Carroll, Liberal member for Cape Breton, said there were ways in which shareholders could compel directorates to supply copies of by-laws without coming to Parliament.

Mr. Robb said he would postpone consideration of the bill until a later date, and the committee rose.

Must Be in Accord With the Treaty of Versailles, Says Briand.

NATIONAL HONOR.

Whatever Shortcomings the Treaty Has, Signature of French Must Be Respected.

PARIS, May 27. — (Canadian Press).—The debate in the French Senate yesterday, which was on the foreign affairs budget of 1925, covered the whole range of foreign matters. M. Briand declined to be explicit on the subjects of security, evacuation of Cologne and disarmament, because these questions would be taken up in diplomatic negotiations in the coursre of time, but he assured the Senate that the security pact must be in accord with the Versailles Treaty. "Whatever may be the shortcomings of the Treaty of Versailles," he said, "we must stick by it. It is a question of probity and respect for our signature. OMEMEE SPORTS DAY A SUCCESS Athletic Club Burned Mortgage and Put Balance of Receipts in Treasury.

MAY POLE DANCE.

OMEMEE, May 26. — Victoria day and the day following, on which the celebration was held, and for which the Omemee Athletic Association have worked untiringly, in anticipation of being able to burn the mortgage in Athletic Park, dawned cool and grey, but the loyalty of the citizens and the whol surrounding country made the day one of the most successful in the history of the association, and not only was the mortgage burned but the club have still a handsome balance in the treasury with which to continue improvements on the park, and make it not only a bower of beauty but a place of recreation.

The village was in gala attire for the holiday, and the music provided by the Salvation Army Band of Lindsay, added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Some eight hundred people attended the sports on Athletic Park, where a soft ball game between Lindsay and Omemee young ladies created much enthusiasm. The game resulted in a win for the visiting team to the tune of 15-5.

A baseball match between Mount Horeb and Mount Pleasant resulted in favor of Mount Pleasant, the score being 6-1.

The annual May Pole dance was a fascinating part of the afternoon's programme, little Doreen Rehill being crowned Queen of the May.

The sports included foot races for the young boys and girls in which many entries appeared; also three-legged races, hoot and shoe races high jump, running broad jump, running hop, step and jump, sack race, baseball throwing contest, married ladies' race, the prize-winners of each receiving substantial prizes donated by the merchants such as roasts of beef and pork, camera, running shoes, mahogany jardiniere stand, chocolates, perfumes etc., and many generous cash donations. The best single turnout was awarded to Mr. A. Bland of Mount Pleasant. Mr. George Magee was the lucky prize winner for the largest family on the ground.,

The refreshment, ice cream, cool drinks and attraction booths, did a land office business, and those in charge worked hard to cater to the inner wants of the holiday crowd.

Evening Entertainment.

The entertainment, which was put on by local talent in Coronation Hall in the evening, made a grand finale to a big day. Over 50 took part in the programme which was divided into two parts the first being as follows:

Orchestra selection—Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Stephenson and son Arthur.

Opening chorus—(1) O Canada. (2) Our Canada.

Wand drill—12 young girls in costume.

Male quartette and encore—Messrs. J. L. Brooks, E. W. Rowland, L. A. Southworth, S. J. Mackey.

Fold dance—6 girls in costume.

Folk dance—8 girls in costume.

Chorus—"Maytime," 14 girls in costume.,

Male quartette.

Chorus—"Hail, King George."

During the intermission a second number by the orchestra was well rendered and highly appreciated, following which the burning of the mortgage on Athletic Park by the President of the Association, Mr. Harry Lamb, took place and in a short address thanked the people of the community for their loyal support and patronage.

The second part of the programme a comedy sketch, entitled "Sarah's Young Man," which kept the audience in gales of laughter for upward of one hour. The cast of the characters was as follows:

Mr. Moggroidge — Mr. Mowat Black.

Mrs. Moggridge—Miss Lila Parsons.

Harry Fielding—Mr. Roy Mahood

Araminta—Miss Violet McBain.

Motor Notes

PARIS, May 27.—The silent and durable fabric leather body is taking hold in France.

This is the popular Weymann body, whose frame is so constructed as to minimize squeaks, rattles and body resonance in sedans.

Citroen and Mathis, two most popular car manufacturers here, have adopted this body.

This type of body costs slightly more than the metal type, but it is believed quantity production will bring it lower.

The shipments of cheese from the Port of Montreal last week amounted to 8,636 boxes, which showed a decrease of 1,804 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 1,835 boxes with the same week last year, while the total exports from May 1 to date have been 5,250 boxes in excess of the corresponding period for 1924.

The receipts of cheese today were 6,595 boxes, as compared with 6,176 for the same day last week, and 9,757 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the demand for supplies from any source and in consequence the market was quiet.

LONDON, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—The Westminster Gazette says the French reply to British enquiries concerning France's attitude toward German disarmament and the proposed security pact shows a great divergency between French and British views. "Unless some compromise is reached," the paper remarks, "it looks as if Great Britain and France will have to pursue separate paths. It is understood the reply will be discussed by the Cabinet."

UTILITIES DISCUSS TAKING OLD POLES

Men Had Narrow Escape—Machine Telephone Poles Used by City.

A special meeting of the Utilities Commission was held yesterday afternoon to discuss with Mr. McKay the difficulties met with in taking down the poles and cables of the Machine Telephone Company. Some days ago, some of the men on the job had a narrow escape from electrocution when a cable came in contact with a live high tension wire. It was decided that the Commission should have a man present when necessary and that any work where there is any danger should be done in off hours so that the power may be shut off without interrupting any business.

Some of the poles of the Machine Telephone Company's system are used by the Utilities Commission for their wires and Mr. McKay's suggestion that the Commission should buy some of the poles was referred to Messrs. Dobbin and Beatty for a report on which ones could be used.

It was decided that water services should be laid on Sophia street, James street, Bethune street and Downie street.

POWER TAX NOT ULTRA VIRES

Department of Justice Rules That Government May Impose This Tax.

APPLY FOR CARILON.

OTTAWA, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—The proposed Federal export tax on power is not ultra vires, according to a ruling of the Department of Justice. This statement was made in the House of Commons by the Prime Minister.

Premier King also stated that an application has been received by the Department of Railways and Canals for the Carillon power lease, but up to the present the matter has not been before the Federal Cabinet for consideration.

REVALUATION OF LANDS HELD

settlement lands revalued. Mr. Robb said that an officer of the Department had inspected that district, and reported that revaluation was not desired by the soldier settlers there. He invited Mr. Garland to obtain further data so as to show whether the officer had not done his duty.

A. Speakman (Progressive, Red Deer) said that there were probably more men under the Soldiers' Settlement Act holding land in his constituency, than in any other in Canada. He was disappointed with the "inadequate manner" in which the revaluation was being dealt with. It would mean loss to the Government without reasonable aid to the soldier settler.

Generous Treatment.

R. H. Halbert (Progressive, Ontario North) believed in a revaluation of soldier settlement lands. He considered that soldier settlers should be treated generously.

Harry Leader (Progressive, Portage La Prairie) pointed out that in some cases, soldier settlers had purchased lands at from 35 to 50 per cent. above the actual value. Many of these had abandoned these lands, and he thought that the idea of a revaluation was a proper one.

C. G. Power (Liberal, Quebec South) considered that the proposed legislation was discriminating against the man who had worked hard and had paid for the property he had acquired.

Mr. Neill asked special consideration for the soldier settlers at Courtenay, B.C. The Government had bought lands there at $45 per acre, which were only worth $7.50. The stumps were so thick that a settler ought to be given the land for nothing, and also paid a bonus to clear it.

J. T. Shaw of Calgary West and E. W. Warner of Strathcona urged the necessity for coming to the aid of soldier settlers. The latter suggested the cost of revaluation might be avoided by simply deducting a certain sum from every soldiers' assessment for lands and equipment.

BUDGET PASSED SECOND READING

Motion By Snowden to Reject It Was Badly Beaten.

DUTY FOR REVENUE.

LONDON, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—In the House of Commons Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, secured the second reading of the finance bill, embodying his budget proposals. The bill passed its second reading after the closure was applied and carried, and Philip Snowden's motion to reject the bill was defeated by 331 to 139.

The Chancellor further declared that the Government had no intention of postponing the pensions scheme, but he promised a statement in due course which would reduce to very small proportions the fears that the scheme would be a burden on industry. Winding up the debate, Premier Baldwin denied that the reimposition of the McKenna duties or silk tax was protectionist; they were purely revenue duties. He declared that Great Britain had travelled a long way towards its rehabitation as the financial centre of the world.

VOTE SUBSIDY TO STEAMSHIP LINE

Sum of $340,666 Was Voted For West Indian Service.

OTTAWA, May 27.—(Canadian Press).—Strenuous opposition to a vote of $340,666 for subsidizing the steamship service between Canada, the West Indies and South America, which developed in the House of Commons, culminated in an amendment to reduce the item by $255,000. The amendment was defeated.

Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals, thought that in view of the coming conference, it would be unwise to discontinue the subsidy. On discussion the vote carried.
